Council Delegates Reach An Agreement Armaments Problem

Merged Into System of Leag ue Investigations by Commissions to Examine Arm aments When Protests Made That Reich N ot Fulfilling Treaty.

CESSATION OF THE FRA NCO-GERMAN RELATION STRA IN SET FOR JAN. 31, 1927

GENEVA, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Conciliation has again triumphed at Geneva in the peaceful shaping of Franco-German relations.

After days of doubt, almost despair, M. Briand and Gustav Stresemann, as well as Sir Austen Chamberlain, M. Vandervelde, Signor Scioloia and Viscount Ishii reached an accord yesterday whereby inter-Allied control of German armaments will cease January 31, 1927, and will be merged into a system of League of Nations' investigations by commissions to examine German armaments when protests are made that the Reich is not fulfilling the conditions of the Versailles Treaty.

Germany regarded militarv control as vexatious and offensive to her national prestige and Dr. Stresemann now returns to Berlin with something definite to present to his people.

On the other hand, as a distinguished Frenchman said last night, France by the agreement negotiated yesterday gets continued security—that security which is the foundation stone of French national policies.

By the terms of the accord two unsettled questions—the strength of the fortresses at Koenigsberg, Kuestrin and Glogau, and exportation of war material—will be submitted through the regular diplomatic channels for settlement, primarily through the Ambassadors' Council. If they are not solved in this manner, they will be submitted to the Council of the League of Nations.

The Council, Sir Austen Chamberlain explained last night, can ask for legal or technical advice, on which presumbaly it would base its final judgment.

The accord was not signed yesterday, but Sir Austen made it clear that it is absolutely binding and cannot be nullified by any change of governments.

POPE CONDEMNS MODERN DRESS

Urges Fathers To Check Daughters' and Wives' Irreverence.

OUTRAGE MODESTY.

ROME, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press)—Modern fashions for women were characterized as "an outrage in every sense against human and Christian modesty" to-day by Pope Pius in addressing 1000 representatives of the Federation of Catholic Men."

Emphasizing his displeasure over the present modes, the Pontiff urged fathers to check their daughters' and wives' irreverence and corruption as expressed in immodest clothing.

Speech By Mussolini To Be Heard Over Radio

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (United News).—The voice of Mussolini, dictator of Italy, will be heard over the radio on Tuesday night, marking the first time in broadcasting history that the voice of a European statesman has been brought here. Station WGN, Chicago, will broadcast the speech which the Italian Premier delivered several weeks ago in Chigi Palace. It is his message to the American people and the Italians living in America. His voice was recorded by a new electrical device.

The speech, which is nine minutes long, is in Italian. It will be followed by an English translation.

Legitimate Shows Bow To Movies in Germany

BERLIN, Dec. 13. —Swiftly and silently the movies are doing their disastrous work to the legitimate theatre in Germany. Thirty years ago there were 34,722 such theatres and just before the World War the number mounted to 50,952. To-day, thanks to the "movie epidemic," the number is only 42,290. This in itself is not so bad, but the fact is that most of the legitimate houses are regularly empty.

Gary Interests Own Control of Telephone System.

SERVES 100,000.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., December 13. (United Press.) - The purchase of a controlling interest in the eighteen million dollar British Coumbia Telephone Company was announced here by Theodore Gary and Company.

The purchase was made through the Associated Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Gary interest.

The Canadian company serves more than 100,000 subscribers in Vancouver and about thirty other towns.

TWO MEN SAVED FROM LONELY ISLE

Man With Rowboat Takes Off Stranded Boatmen.

ASHLAND Wis., Dec. 13—Marooned on an uninhabited spot on the Apostle Islands three days ago, when their small boat was wrecked, Joe Lacrosse and Frank Butterfield were rescued on Saturday with only a small portion of hard tack as food.

Signal fires on Bear Island, which the two men burned for three days, attracted Eli Lapointe, camp foreman on Manitou Island, and he rescued the men in a row boat.

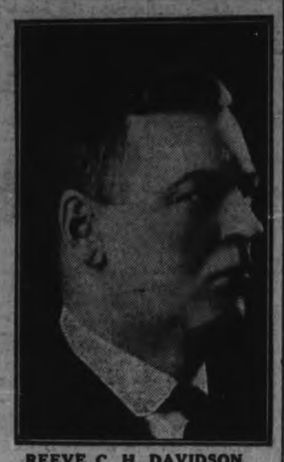
The two, who had practically abandoned hope of rescue, said they had taken a boat load of freight from Bayfield to Sand Island Wednesday, and were returning when their engine broke down.

The boat was carried by a high wind on rocks at the north end of Bear Island, where it was battered to pieces. The men swam ashore in icy water. In a deserted fishing shack they found some hard tack, on which they lived three days.

Twice ore boats passed, but they did not see their flames, they said.

Attended only by some native carriers Miss Doris Dinham a 22-year-old Australian girl has trekked through Africa from Cape Town to the north of the Belgian Congo, a distance of 2,000 miles. She passed through cannibal villages, canoed down rivers full of crocodiles and hippopotami, and tramped for two weeks through a forest which nobody is supposed to have come through alive.

"SPORTSMANSHIP"



REEVE C. H. DAVIDSON.

COBOURG, Dec. 13.—A revealing sidelight on the character of Reeve Davidson, of Campbellford, was gently directed by his arranging for the purchase of the gold watch and chain which the Counties Council presented to Warden McCubbin last week. This was a personal gift from the members to their retiring Warden, and incidentally the details of collecting the money, buying the watch and ordering its engraving were unobtrusively assumed by Reeve Davidson.

That done and the watch wrapped in its handosme case, Campbellford's reeve retired into the background, but those whose memories wre alert recalled that Davidson and McCubbin had been rivals for the wardenship last January, "friendly enemies" in that keen contest, but none the less friends as the year was ending, and apparently both were passing from the scene of thier courteous conflict. It was an evidence of sportsmanship that adorns the athletic arena and seems even more admirable in municipal foruma where men seek the preference and honor to which their service and experience entitle them— and where some must accept didisappointment.

The long scroll of Northumberland and Durham's Wardens is silent about those who were nominated but unchosen, whom the fates frowned upon, and tells nothing of those who failed and how they played the rest of the game. Perhaps the unremembered ones were just as gracious, just as true sportsmen as "Charlie" Davidson. For 1926 at any rate there is no doubt. Behind the name of John McCubbin and linked with it only in the memory of their associates in the County Council and in its minutes, is that of C. H. Davidson, who missed a titular distinction men warrantly covet, and bearing only good will to the victor, displayed to the end the possible felicities of adversity.

30 PASSENGERS STILL MISSING

All Foreigners and Some Chinese Saved From Ship.

MANY DROWNED.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—With all the foreigners aboard the steamer Lien-Shing, which sank yesterday after striking Amherst rocks, 64 miles out of here, accounted for, and the bodies of eight of 150 Chinese recovered, search was continued to-day for more than 30 native passengers reported missing. Twenty-five Chinese drowned when a lifeboat upset.

There were 238 aboard the Lien-Sing when it struck.

It is known that the ship was off its course instead of being thrust on to the rocks by the tremendous undercurrent or a storm.

Passengers who have been brought here paid high tribute to the officers of the Lien-Sing.

Solitaiare Joins Gang Arrested For Conspiracy

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 13 (United News)—Mitchell Solitaire has been arrested for conspiracy.

Instead of playing a lone hand it is charged that Solitaire joined with coast guards men in thinking it would be a good plan to land 22,000 cases of liquor valued at nearly $1 000,000.

DETROIT LABOR FEARS INVASION BY CANADIANS

Leaders Take Credit For Check on Canadian Workers.

HAD MADE PROTEST.

Say Windsor Workers Hold Jobs Americans Should Have.

DETROIT, December 13. — Labor union leaders declared yesterday that the order from Washington directing local immigration officials to gather detailed data about each Canadian worker coming to Detroit from Canada marks the beginning of "a determined crusade to protect American workers, both union and non-union, from an unlawful invasion of foreigners."

It is recalled that Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit Federation of Labor and Daniel O. Collins, Business Agent of the Bricklayers' Union, went to Washington ten days ago, and lodged formal complaint with the Department of Labor regarding the entry of aliens in Canada among the approximately 15,000 men and women coming to Detroit each week day to work and returning to Canada at night.

Protest was Lodged.

"We protested against a plain violation of the immigration law which was enacted by congress on the plea of the American Federation of Labor and were assured by Harry E. Hull, Commissioner General of Immigration, that an investigation would be made and steps taken to check the influx of alien workers, both union and non-union," Martel said regarding the trip to Washington.

"It may be that the orders to get the data may be only a coincidence to our protest but in any case we are glad the government has taken action to remove the menace. We asked for no discrimination in favor of union workers as we firmly hold to the belief that a trade union card gives no alien any right to violate our immigration laws.

"We believe in the principle of 'America for Americans,' and believe in an impartial enforcement of the law. No city in the country is so menaced as is Detroit. If we can't have protection we had better give this section back to the Indians."

Claims Purpose Statistical

Dr. P. L. Prentis, District Director, disclaims any knowledge of inception of the order aside from the fact that that he was directed to obtain the data for "statistical purposes." Beginning on Monday persons crossing daily will be given cards to fill out, and when that is done they will be given a lengthy questionnaire.

Questions asked call for the name, Canadian address, birth place, citizenship, occupation, name of employer, location of employment and the date on which the alien entered the United States to accept regular employment. Those born elsewhere than Canada are required to give the date the date of their arrival, the name of the steamship and the port of entry. Married women must give the name, citizenship and birthplace of their husbands, and holders of border identification cards must give the register numbers and the date of issuance.

Boston, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are the only major league cities where professional baseball is prohibited on Sunday.

London Theatre Caters To Exalted and Humble

LONDON, Dec. 13.—(Associated Press.)—Russian ballet may be seen in London this winter for a shilling. With the opening of the Diaghileff season at the Lyceum it was decided to try the experiment of offering for the first time first-class entertainment of this kind at popular prices. The idea has proved successful.

Not since the days of Sir Henry Irving has the Lyceum made a bid of this sort for the patronage of the most exalted as well as the humblest devotees of the art of the theatre.

COBHAM SCOFFS AT "AIR PERILS"

Depicts Aviation as Empire Bond in Address in Toronto.

PRIVATE OWNER KEY.

TORONTO, Dec. 13. — Aviation as the creator of stronger bonds between the various units of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and as a definite factor for peace throughout the world, was the word-picture painted by Sir Alan Cobham, one of the pioneers of long-distance air travel in a delightfully breezy address, given in reply to an official welcome from the city, tendered at a luncheon on Saturday in the King Edward Hotel. Mayor Foster presided.

Sir Alan needed little introduction to the audience, for, in addition to representatives of the Church, State and city, many old flying companions of the grim war days were present. Introducing the speaker, Rev. Canon H. J. Cody referred to him as "one who has opened to practical realization the unification of our Empire," and in another instance, as "an Imperial pioneer, and one who is aiding to solve the great problem of inter-Imperial communications."

"Safe and Simple."

In typical fashion, Sir Alan poked fun at the "perils of the air" which Canon Cody had mentioned. "That is just the idea I have been trying to kill for the last five or six years," he said. "One needs to develop a kind of Coue-ism on the subject by repeating, 'It is perfectly safe and simple to fly.' Flying, if properly carried out, is not dangerous; and when I say that I mean it. The idea of perils of the air dates back to the wartime.

"We have got to that stage where, I assure you, taking a trip from London to Paris is just as safe by air as by any other way; in fact, it is safer between Calais and Paris."

There were three separate kinds of aviation, Sir Alan continued, and it was because the three were confused that ideas detrimental to flying were entertained to-day.

First, there was service flying in the army, navy, or air force. Then there was air transport—commercial or passenger, mail or goods, with air liners flying to and from two definite points, which was a totally different proposition from service flying. Lastly, there was the private owner.

Passing over service flying, in which a pilot had to learn all kinds of "stunts," Sir Alan declared that air transport was straight flying between two points, with an experienced pilot, and with constant wireless communication. Three-engine machines, which would fly safely with two engines, were being used, so that they would be safe if one engine went "dead" during a trip.

As regards the private owner, Sir Alan thought that the rising generation was developing a mentality for aviation. The young man of to-day, he observed, was learning to fly much more rapidly than the tyros of 10 or 15 years ago.

Supplementary Service.

Aviation, he remarked, was not a competitor for transport, but an additional form of transportation, and would not divert passengers from rail or steamship, but would supplement these services. He was happy that he had persuaded a large shipping company to this idea, and it would shortly start an air service in conjunction with its steamships.

Aviation propaganda had been his task for some years, Sir Alan said, and it had been uphill work, because the good done in 12 months might be undone in five minutes by some careless pilot who crashed and caused the death of one or two people. That, he said, the papers regarded as "a news item."

"If you really want to get into the news, go up in an aeroplane and scratch your finger, and you will know all about it," he added. Until such time as the press came

EUROPE ANXIOUS OVER ITALIAN BORDER ACTIONS

Rumored Secret Clauses in Italo-German Friendship Treaty.

NO CONFIRMATION.

Treaty To Be On Same Lines as Germany and Poland.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Every foreign office in Europe has its eyes focused on Rome, with a permanent pucker of anxiety between official eyebrows. Every move that Mussolini makes arouses the keenest suspicion. His recently-secured control of Albanian ambitions in the Eastern Mediterraneon and in Africa has given all Europe the jumps.

France is doing her best to keep the Italian dictator in hand by fully informing him every day of the movement of their troops toward and along the Italian border, which, as the French Foreign Office is anxious to emphasize, are only undertaken to allay the fears on both sides of the border of any sudden unauthorized attack.

Secret Clause

The recent rumors of a secret clause in the new treaty between Italy and Germany, indicating that Italy has offered to support Germany in freeing the Rhineland, and that unless the League of Nations will give Italy room for expansion, Germany will support Italy in a movement against Turkey, has increased the anxiety, although there is absolutely no official confirmation of any such clauses in the treaty, and the British Foreign Office laughs at the idea that any secret agreements are included.

It is pointed out officially that as both Germany and Italy are members of the League, the treaty must be registered before it is of international effect. They urge that it is obvious that neither nation could register with the league a treaty which flouted and violated the league principles. It is understood that Mr. Chamberlain has had assurances from both Stresemann and Mussolini to this effect and the foreign office sees no reason to doubt the assurances, and professes to believe that when the treaty is finaliy published in detail it will be on the same lines as the existing treaty between Germany and Poland.

Final Draft

ROME, Dec. 11.—The final draft of the Italo-German "friendship" treaty has been completed and the document awaits signatures.

LEAPS TO DEATH THROUGH WINDOW

Man Jumps Out of Passenger Train Going 35 Miles an Hour.

FOUND IN CREEK.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., December 13. — Daniel B. Maclean, about 55 years old, en route from Port Burwell Ont., to Mansville, Alberta, jumped through a three paned window in the tourist car of Canadian Pacific passenger train No. 3, at Red Rock, east of this city, Saturday night, and died as the result. The body was found yesterday morning by Canadian Pacific officials in a creek at the bottom of the track embankment. Maclean was only slightly injured in the leap and death is believed to have been caused by exposure.

Maclean's wife and daugther are said to reside in Winnipeg.

Frank Brackenburg of Port Burwell was accompanying Maclean to west. He was talking to porter of tourist car and turned at the crash of breaking glass to see Maclean going through the window. The train was travelling between 35 and 40 miles an hour. It was stopped and search of the track and the right of way failed to locate Maclean.

Railway officials at Schreiber were notified and early on Sunday morning they left for Red Rock, finding the body shortly after daybreak.

Needs Christmas Bell Takes One Off Engine

DETROIT, Dec. 13.— The plea that he wanted to play Santa Claus to some children does not promise to excuse Joseph Grywacz, 2811 Military avenue, for his theft of a locomotive bell from the West Detroit yards of the Michigan Central Railroad Thursday.

Grywacz was caught trudging along with the valuable brass bell on his back by Frank Ryan, a railroad detective. He had taken it from a standing locomotive a few minutes previously.

His explanatiaon about wanting to be a fully equipped Santa did not go very well with Ryan, who swore out a complaint, and Judge Thomas M. Cotter to-day signed a watrant charging Grywacz with simple larency.

PRINCE ON WAY TO SUNNY SPAIN

Makes Stop-Over at Perpignan While En Route To Barcelona.

RUMORS DENIED.

PERPIPNAN, France, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales, travelling incognito, stopped here overnight while en route to Barcelona. This is the Prince's second visit to Spain within a few months.

Recently it was announced that the Prince of Wales would spend the Christmas holidays in Spain and an interesting rumor cropped out with the news of the impending visit. This was that the Prince might become betrothed to Princess Beatrice, the seventeen-year-old daughter of the King of Spain. The report, however, was denied at the time.

The Prince, while in Spain, is expected to visit Madrid, Grapada, Seville, Cordoba, Malaga and Gibraltar.

Jerusalem Pleasure Resort; Vatican Sends Missionary

ROME, Dec. 13 (United Press) — Jerusalem, the Holy City, may be converted into a pleasure resort and already is a centre of Bolshevism, reports to the Vatican said.

An American Franciscan, Paschual Robinson, has been sent there to resume his work as Apostolic visitor in Palestine and do his utmost to counteract the alleged menaces of Bolshevism and roulette wheels.

Pope Pius is admittedly concerned over the situation in the Holy Land.

THE MALE VOICE CHOIR had a rehearsal in St. Paul's Church yesterday, when they sang part of the 24th Psalm to one of the most majestic tunes ever written. The verdict of those who heard it was that it alone was worth the price of admission, and this Choice will sing three times TO-NIGHT AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, 8 P.M.

GIRL CHARGED SINGLE-HANDED BANK ROBBERY

Young Girl Takes $1,000 From Farmers' National Bank at Budal.

OUT ON BAIL.

Stenographer in Office of Dan Moody, Governor-Elect of Texas.

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press). — Charged with the single-handed robbery Saturday of the Farmers' National Bank at Buda, a small town near here, Miss Rebecca Bradley, 22-year-old Austin girl, was released from the Hayes County Jail at San Marcos on $5,000 bond early yesterday morning. Last night she was at home with her widowed mother in Austin, and is to appear this morning.

Miss Bradley declined to talk to newspaper men when taken from jail. She said to an Associated Press correspondent, first to greet her, "I cannot, have not and will not talk with any newspaper man. I wish to speak with my mother first."

Miss Bradley, a graduate of Texas University, is a stenographer in the office of Dan Moody, State attorney-general and Governor-elect of Texas. Her actions Saturday, as charged by authorities, were spectacular, ranging, authorities claim, from Round Rock, a village 20 miles north of Austin, to Buda, 15 miles south, where a slip of a girl, posing as a newspaper woman, held up F. A. Jamieson, cashier, and Raymond Howe, book-keeper, of the Farmers' National Bank, and escaped with $1,000.

She was taken into custody here Saturday night. Sheriff Allen yesterday sketched the alleged activities of Miss Bradley. She told him the story Saturday night, he said, as he was taking her by automobile from Austin to San Marcos, county seat of Hayes County.

"She went to Round Rock Saturday morning in a flivver," Allen said. "As she had been there several times recently, Tom Nelson, president of the Farmers' State Bank, took the number of her automobile. She left there and passed through Austin, going on to Buda.

"In Buda she went to the bank and, posing as a newspaper woman, got behind the cage on the pretext of borrowing a typewriter. Then at the point of a pistol she held up the cashier and book-keeper. She took $1,000 in five dollar bills and locked the two men in the vault, expressing the hope that they could get enough fresh air, and took the back road to Austin.

"Reaching Austin, she put her car on a wash rack. She was with her mother about 2 o'clock for a short time. Some time during the afternoon she wrapped up $910 of the money, the .32 calibre automatic pistol, and mailed the package to herself at Austin in care of University Station.

"At 5.10 she returned to the wash rack and was arrested, taken to the police station and docketed.

"Miss Bradley had no idea she was suspected until she went for her machine at the wash rack. She was identified at the police station by the victims of the robbery, Jamieson and Howe. She then was placed in my custody.

"On the way to San Marcos she told me the story. She said she had no tear to shed; that she had a lot to live down, but that she did not have as much to live down as 'those saps in the bank who let a bit of a girl get away like that'."

Sheriff Allen turned over to Hayes County authorities the package containing the currency and pistol which Miss Bradley had addressed to herself and mailed.

HERTZOG GIVEN WARM WELCOME

Addresses Enthusiastic Gathering on Work of Conference.

WORK OF EMPIRE.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters)—Premier J. B. M. Hertzog returned to South Africa this morning from attending the Imperial conference in London and was given very enthusiastic welcome home. Large crowds were at the dock when he landed and he was conducted amidst cheering crowds in the street to the civic centre where he was given a mayoral reception and referred to the good feeling that existed between the English and Dutch residents. Speaking of the work accomplished at the Imperial Conference in connection with South Africa's status as a Dominion, he said it was not the work of one section or another at the conference but it had behind it the soul and spirit of the whole British Empire.

"We stand as men who have come into our inheritance of freedom in the fullest and most complete manner" the Premier declared amid cheers. "Not as Dutchmen and Englishmen, not as Boer and Briton, and not as Nationalists and South African party adherents have we come into this inheritance, but as sons of South Africa."

BRICK FOR FURNACE WORK.

If the design of the vapor pan in a hot air or "pipeless" furnace will permit, place a common porous building brick in the water container so that it stands upright inside the furnace jacket. The brick acts as a wick. Its use results in the evaporation of much more water that usual, provided the water pan is filled every day— Popular Science monthly.

ART ASSOCIATION CHRISTMAS MEETING

Splendid Programme Given at Regular Meeting on Saturday.

An exceptionally fine programme was presented in the studio of the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, when the entire entertainment was carried out in the spirit of the Yuletide season. Branches of evergreen and little Jerusalm cherry trees decorated the rooms and the programme was "Christmassy" from beginning to end, the selections by the various musicians being rendered in a very attractive manner, and evoking hearty encores in every instance. Mrs. J. D. Fletcher sang the Lithuanian Christmas Carol and Gounod's "Ave Maria," the latter in Latin, with piano accompaniment by Miss Margaret Widdess and violin obbligato by Mr. Stewart Widdes, who also played the obbligato for Mr. Douglas Carlisle's rendition of the vocal solo, "By the Waters of Minnetnka." Mr. Carlisle also sang, by request, Gounod's "Nazareth," with piano accompaniment by Miss Olga Fowler, and Mr. Stewart Widdess played violin arrangements of the "Volga Boat Song," with an encore in Beethoven's "Minuet." He was accompanied on the piano by Miss Margaret Widdess.

Mrs. William Bleckwell, president of the Women's Art Association, introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. David Wren, M.A., B.D., pastor of Trinity United Church, who addressed the ladies briefly on "The Spirit of Christmas in World Problems."

He said, "I doubt if there is any department in life which is quite equal to the influence of the life of Jesus, and the contribution that He made in the development of ideal conditions. He makes us grow more mellow and sweet and kind and sympathetic, particularly at this season of the year, when His birthday approaches. In the arts and sciences, in painting and music and literature and philosophy, He wrought revolutions. And at the Christmas time, a time of joy and sorrow, of intimate re-union, He makes us suppress anger and hate in thought and in action. At Christmas time we learn to forget as well as to forgive. On the pages of history, the names of Caesar and Charlemagne, of Hildebrand and of Homer, will pass away, but the name of Jesus travels down the years. Giovanni Papini, in his "Life of Christ," says: He was born in a stable and He was cradled in a manger, but it was not by chance that He was born so. The world was an immense stable, full of filth and tyranny and oppression, and it was to this world of filth and tryanny and oppression that He came to live, out of a stainless Virgin. And the world has been different ever since Jesus was born. Mr. Wren went on:

"He gave us a new and more complete vision of God, a true vision of the Great Father that the world will never let go. He came and with bold hands, rolled back the curtains that gave us a new vision of God. We may be different in race and color and nationality and environment, but we are all children of a common Father, and brothers and sisters together. The manger was the cradle of the world's life, where it may come at last to gather the nations of the world once more and sing together: 'Peace on earth among men of good will'."

Rev. Dr. Wren spoke of the prophecies of Lord Birkenhead and Marshal Foch as to the possibilities of another war in the not-far-distant future, and said: "But the organization of the world is not on the basis of warfare. We look to the time when the sword 'shall be turned into a plowshare and the spear into a pruning hook,' and when we shall gather around the manger once more in the true spirit of Jesus."

A sincere vote of appreciation to the speaker was moved by Miss A. Lancaster, and seconded by Mrs. H. W. Morphet.

Mrs. Blackwell then announced the receipt of a letter of congratulation on their fine programmes, recently received from a former member of the Women's Art Association, Miss Hatton, now staying at Hyeres, in the south of France, and also urged the attendance of the members at the lecture on Art to be given at the Normal School on Thursday evening of this week, by Mr. Stuart Dick, now lecturing in Toronto, and official lecturer of the National Art Gallery of London, England. Mrs. P. L. Barns spoke of the meeting of the Art Study Club tomorrow night. Afternoon tea was served at the conclusion of the programme.

BAND ARRESTED; ASSAULT CHARGED

Indians Held For Attacking Deseronto Police Officer.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—A band of Indians alleged to have assaulted Charles Wilkins, aged Deseronto constable, were taken into custody late on Saturday by Provincial Inspector Gurnett and Provincial Constable MacLachan, who had searched the Indian reserve near Deseronto for three days, since the assault was committed. Leo Maracle, Eddie Maracle and James Doreen are in Belleville Police Station and Jimmy Maracle and Peter Jaynes are in Deseronto Jail, awaiting trial.

It is alleged that the men assaulted Wilkins when the latter accosted them for being disorderly on the streets of Deseronto.

OBITUARY.

REV. J. G. BROWN.

—(Canadian Press).—Rev. J. G. Brown, B.A., D.D., professor at McMaster University, died suddenly shortly after seven o'clock Saturday evening on a C.P.R. train between Ingersoll and Tillsonburg. Dr. Brown who resides at 109 Oakland Avenue, Toronto, was to have conducted educational day services Sunday at Mount Elgin and Stratford. The body was brought to Tilsonburg and forwarded this afternoon to Toronto.

Services were conducted at the funeral parlors of Taylor and Carles by Reverend Albert Carr of Tillsonburg Baptist Church and Rev. C. R. Duncan, of Toronto who was conducting special services here Sunday. Dr. Brown was formerly a missionary to India and was widely known in Canada.

JOHN H. DAVEY.

COBOURG, Dec. 13.—The funeral took place here on Saturday of John H. Davey, a well-known citizen. Mr. Davey had been a partial invalid for some years. Two weeks ago he had a fall, and broke his hip and sustained a concussion.

He was a son of the late Joseph Davey of Hamilton township, where he was born 65 years ago. He is survived by his wife, Margaret McKenzie a daughter of the late Roderick McKenzie of Haldimand township and by two sons, Smith of Port Hope and Boyce of Cobourg and by two daughters, Jennie A., matron of the Ontario Hospital, Penetang, and Dorothy M. at home.

THOMAS CASSAN.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13.—The funeral of the late Thomas Cassan was held on Thursday, December 9, from the residence of his son, Alfred Cassan, of Belmont.

The late Thomas Cassan was in his 84th year and was the son of the late John Arthur and Eliza Cassan of Seymour. Deceased was born in Seymour township and was a resident there for over sixty years. Abouty twenty years ago he moved to Belmont township where he resided until his death on Tuesday evening. He was of quiet, dignified disposition and was highly revered by all who knew him. He is survived by two children, Alfred of Belmont with whom he resided, and one daughter, Mrs. Ronald Young of Fittsburgh, Mass., and one brother, Arthur W. Cassan of Centre stret. His wife and two brothers, Richard and Edward, predeceased him several years ago. Interment took place in the Havelock cemetery.

H. J. H. FIFE

NORWOOD, Dec. 13—The funeral of the late Mr. H. J. H. Fife who passed away very suddenly at his home on the Dummer Road on Friday evening will be held on Monday afternoon. Service at the house at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made at the Norwood cemetery.

The deceased who was 68 years of age had many staunch friends in this locality and was well known. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Morton of Toronto, who have the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends.

ORANGE LODGE HOLDS SOCIAL

Successful Function Put on in Campbellford—Shower Given.

W. I. MEETING

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 13—The amalgmated Orange Lodges, Nos. 36 and 526, gave a very enjoyable social evening in their lodge rooms on Thursday evening, December 9. There were about seventy guests. Progressive euchre was played until eleven o'clock, after which the committees served a lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee. The following were the winners for the prizes: For lone hands, Mrs. James Potts received a handsome tea set; for games, Mrs. B. Ibey received a tray. Gentlemen's prizes: For lone hands, Mr. C. Ibey, and Mr. Arthur Morgan for games.

The lodges intend holding another social evening some time in January.

As Miss Jane Crouter was returning to her home on Tuesday evening she slipped and fell on the ice on the sidewalk on Inkerman Street, sustaining a fracture of the hip. Miss Crouter is advanced in years, and her condition is serious. She is now at the home of Mrs. John Plumpton.

"Shower" For Mr. and Mrs. Cook.

About sixty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Cook, who were recently married, met at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Claude Hoard, on Thursday evening to tender them a miscellaneous shower. The bride and groom are popular young people of Percy, and received many beautiful and useful presents. The evening was spent in progressive euchre and dancing, after which the hostess served a dainty lunch.

Seymour West Women's Institute.

The ladies of the Seymour West Women's Institute held their regular meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Reginald McCulloch. After the singing of the Institute Ode, the reports of the treasurer and secretary were given. A letter from Miss Dorothy Huycke, teacher at Connelly's School, was read, thanking the Institute for the first aid kit they supplied for that school. Mrs. Van Volkenburg, on behalf of the Trent River School, also thanked the Institute for their first aid kit. A barrel of fruit has been sent by the ladies to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. The Institute presented Miss Josephine McConnell with a handsome pair of silver candleticks on Friday evening, in honor of her approaching marriage. Mrs. Raymond Free made the presentation. The afternoon was sociably spent and twenty ladies were present. The hostess served a nice lunch, for which the ladies tendered a vote of thanks.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Brown on Thursday, January 20.

SAYS ENGLAND WILL BE "FREE"

Minister Malan, of South Africa Looks For Republic.

QUOTES REPORT.

CAPE TOWN, December 13th — United Press. — "Does any one doubt that England can depose her king and found a republic if she likes?" asked Minister of Railways Malan in discussing accomplishments of the recent imperial conference in London.

Declaring that it was only a small sacrifice to give the English in South Africa their own government he said that the time will come "when article four will complete its work," evidently meaning that this article which grants the dominions more freedom eventually will do the same thing for England.

Malan's remarks were made in answer to a question as to how South African independence was achieved.

CALIFORNIA AND PACIFIC COAST FOR WINTER

In California, the sun shines upon a land blessed with a most wonderful climate—blossoms everywhere—orange trees heavy with fruit—tropical plants lending an exotic color to their every surrounding. California is a veritable picture-land of warmth, health and happiness.

ONE MAN DIES FROM CAR GAS

Another Man and Two Girls Found in Serious Condition.

IN CLOSED CAR.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 13—Paul Caso, 22, is dead of carbon monoxide poisoning and John Tedesco, 22, is in a serious condition at a hospital and two girls are suffering from the effects of the gas.

The four were found in a sedan in the Caso garage on Sunday morning. The engine of the car had stopped when the victims were found, but the ignition switch and throttle were on.

It is believed the occupants of the car were overcome soon after the car was driven in and that the engine continued to run until the gasoline tank was empty.

JEWS RESENT FORD'S CHARGES

Challenge Motor Magnate To Accept Suit For Libel.

REPEATS INDICTMENT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Controversy between Henry Ford and Nathan Straus, Sr., New York philanthropist, over what Mr. Straus publicly termed Mr. Ford's 'slander against the Jewish people,' has been halted—temporarily, at least—but prominent Jews here today, including Samuel Undermeyer, took the gage.

While Mr. Straus refused to reply to Mr. Ford's reiterated indictment of the Jewish people in the forthcoming issue of the Dearborn Independent, Mr. Undermeyer issued a challenge to Mr. Ford to come into the jurisdiction of the United States court in this district and submit to service in a suit growing out of his alleged publication of articles libelling the Jews.

In his statement Mr. Ford says the international Jew is in control of American finance, of the press and of the revolutionary elements of the world. Mr. Ford alleges Jewish power, "in Communistic Russia and in capitalistic England," in his claim that the international Jew is the chief control in the making of war and the chief profiteer in wartime.

PRESENTS GIVEN DECEMBER BRIDE

Miss Josephine McConnell Receives Gifts From Her Many Friends.

HASTINGS, Dec. 13.—On Friday evening a number of friends of Miss Josephine McConnell met at the Bethel United church, Seymour West to wish her their best regards for the future. She is to be married on Tuesday to Mr. John R. Scott, of Campbellford. An interesting programme was given. Mrs. Thomas Dunham acted as chairman.

Miss McConnell was presented with a set of silver candlesticks from the Women's Institute by Mrs. Robert McCulloch. Also a Pyrex casserole and Rattan table from the Church League and community by Mr. Ernest Stevenson. And the following address was read by Mrs. Harold J. Brown:

Dear Josie,—We, your friends and neighbors, have gathered this evening to spend a little while with you in a social way, before you leave us for your happy home in your new sphere of life. Words would fail to express to you the appreciation that is due you from this congregation and community. In a beautiful and unassuming way you have done the tasks to which you have been appointed through the years, as organist of the church, president of the Young People's League and in every way that you could possibly help in church, Sunday school or Young People's work. We well know that to all who take part in public work there are the discouraging hours and at times there were hours when you have thought your life and work were not appreciated. This is the price that all pay for faithful and loving service.

Your work has been appreciated and the church and community will always be richer for the genuine, unselfish service you have given through the years of childhood and young womanhood. Please accept these gifts as a slight token of our esteem and love for you. We hope that as the years pass you will remember the little church at home and your many friends of the community.

Signed on behalf of Bethel United church, Seymour West Women's Institute and community, Dec. 10, 1926.

Mrs. Robert McCulloch,
Ernest Stevenson,
Douglas Fleming,
Fred Longmuir.

While lunch was being prepared, Mrs. Ernest Stevenson put on a nut contest. The winner was supposed to sing a song.

UNNECESSARY BY-ELECTIONS.

Samuel W. Jacobs, M.P. for the Cartier Division of Montreal, is to introduce a bill during the present session to abolish ministerial by-elections to the extent of making it unnecessary for a newly appointed Minister to appeal to the electors if he had been returned at the polls shortly before.

The bill should pass.

The old law in regard to ministerial appointments has been outgrown; the reason because of which it was created no longer exists, and it is uncessary, expensive and inconvenient.

So long as the Ministers chosen for the Cabinet are elected members of Parliament there is no sensible reason why they should be put to the expense and trouble of going back to their constituents for another endorsation.

It should be understood that when a man is elected to Parliament he may at any time be called upon for service in the Cabinet without any further appeal, and Mr. Jacobs' bill, giving official endorsation to that principle, is a progressive piece of legislation that should not lack general support when it is considered by the House.

SAVING TIME.

It is notable that the Speech from the Throne contained an intimation that it is proposed "to afford opportunity for an early consideration of the rules of the House of Commons."

That is taken to mean that efforts will be made to amend the rules to make it possible to complete the work of Parliament with greater expedition by eliminating unnecessary debate.

With such a move The Examiner is sure that the public will be in thorough accord.

The amount of time wasted, often over matters of minor importance, at Ottawa has been in glaring contrast to the celerity with which the British Parliament has decided great problems.

It is to be hoped that the amendments foreshadowed by the Speech from the Throne will materially help in reducing the length and number of the speeches in the House.

In the debate on the address in reply to the Speech itself, for example, nothing would be lost and much time would be saved for important public business if the speech-making were left to one or two leaders from each of the parties instead of allowing the discussion to drag on for weeks.

DOMINION DAY.

If anything were needed to kindle the enthusiasm of Canadians in the celebration of the Dominion's Diamond Jubilee next summer, it has been supplied by the announcement in the Speech from the Throne that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has accepted Canada's invitation to be present at the Ottawa celebration, and that there is a very strong probability that Premier Baldwin of Great Britain will also visit Canada for the jubilee.

While interest, of course, will centre in the events at the capital, graced by the presence of such distinguished visitors, the celebration will be Dominion-wide.

Every centre in Canada is expected to arrange a Dominion Day programme, with the same general lines followed everywhere, so that Canadians in every part of the country will unite in honouring the sixtieth birthday of the Dominion.

The preliminary steps have been taken in Peterboro in the organization of a citizens' committee, and the successful staging of a demonstration bigger than anything in the city's history is an aim that should be supported by all Peterboro.

Next Dominion Day should be marked down in every citizen's calendar as a day upon which he remains at home to help achieve a record celebration of the birth of the Dominion.

A BETTER SYSTEM NEEDED.

The complaint voiced by The Examiner a few days that the present system of compiling voters' lists leaves much to be desired receives official endorsation in the report of the Chief Electoral Officer, Col. O. M. Biggar, who declares that the method now in force is not only unsatisfactory but is unduly expensive.

Col. Biggar points out that to prepare the voters' lists for a general Federal election costs about $1,000,000, and in addition, the process is inconvenient and not completely accurate.

He is of the opinion that by an expenditure of less than $250,000 a year up-to-date lists having a high degree of accuracy could be continuously kept available.

This plan, which would have the lists ready whenever an election was called, would undoubtedly result in fewer mistakes and would be of great assistance to candidates, materially shortening the length of the campaign.

Col. Biggar's suggestion is worthy of every consideration, as is his further recommendation that something should be done to make the position of returning officers more permanent.

Our present system of conducting elections is open to criticism on a number of points, and the Chief Electoral Officer is quite justified in pointing them out and urging reform.

AN EPITOME OF MODERN METHOD.

It was pointed out in these notes not long ago that the skyscrapers of lower Manhattan, being hollow, really imposed no startling weight upon that narrow tongue of land; and that the weight in any of those with deep foundations was not equal to the amount of earth and rock excavated. One of the largest buildings in superficial area now in course of construction is that on the corner of Broad street and Exchange place, replacing the attractive and even stately Mills building of eight stories which, thirty years ago, was the show-office building of New York. The depth of the excavation of the new building can be estimated by the fact that there will be four basements, or sub-basements, with the lowest of them sunk ten feet into the solid rock which underlies the old sea sand. People who know New York really well may be surprised to learn that one of the troublesome parts of the excavation has been water—not fresh-water springs, but sea water. Under the ground the Atlantic Ocean comes right up to Mr. Morgan's back door, and the Morgan building is protected against it by caissons and a thick wall.

In a line from the Stock Exchange to the bay, along Broad street, practically all the buildings of any size are constructed on piles. The new building, more than fifty feet below the level of Exchange place, will have a wall many feet in thickness, built on the caisson system and amply sufficient to keep out the sea water of the old creek. More than fifty thousand cubic yards of earth and rock will have to be removed from below the level of the cellars of the old Mills building. The weight of this earth and rock is much more than that of the imposed building to arise next year on one of the finest sites in the city, opposite the Stock Exchange.

At the time of writing the building is a hole in the ground full of costly and carefully calculated timbers, all to be scrapped as the steel uprights and girders find their allotted and numbered places. Large as American wages are, the economy of effort is such that it might be possible to show, by calculation, that it forms a smaller percentage of construction cost than it did thirty years ago when the workman was not receiving more than a fifth of what he gets today. To the thoughtful man, modern steel construction is really the epitome of today's American methods.—Barron's.

CANADA AND WORLD'S FOOD.

Most of the estimates made by scientific men time to time as to the assured time when the world's food supplies would run short have been proven wrong when the fatal days arrived. Canada has helped to leave them unfulfilled.

The late Sir William Crookes in 1898 gave Canada 25 years to reach a maximum of 12 million acres in wheat. Yet in the period since, Canada's wheat area has grown from under 3,000,000 acres to nearly 23,000,000 acres this year.

Sir Daniel Hall, President of the agricultural section of the British Association, this year spoke less pessimistically than many others on the question of the world's food supplies, but nevertheless he was not thoroughly optimistic. He said that new land would be called for year after year to feed the world, and he could not see where the new land was coming from. Intensification of production, in his opinion, would provide the only remedy.

Looked at from the Canadian viewpoint, however, one may question whether sufficient weight is given to the immense potentialities of agricultural development in new lands, and especially in Canada is the conclusion of a writer in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics Agricultural Bulletin. We have seen since the war the practical elimination of the great Russian Empire as a factor in the European food supplies, and Canada has stepped into the breach, for the Dominion is now second if not first amongst the world's wheat-exporting countries. It is true, as Sir Daniel Hall points out, that increased production is mainly dependent upon increase of population; and the increase of wheat production by Canada in the past has been chiefly due to immigration. The Canadian production of wheat can be increased in three directions: (1) extension of the area by the settlement of new lands; (2) increase in the cultivation of areas now occupied but not improved; and (3) intensification, or increase in the average yield per acre by improved methods, including mixed farming, better seed, better varieties and, where necessary, the application of artificial fertilizers.

But the matter for practical purposes really resolves itself into the questions of price and population. Assuming that the price of wheat remains stable and remunerative, there is abundant room for expansion in Canada even when placing the possibilities of such expansion upon the most conservative basis. It is estimated that there are within the Provinces as now constituted at least 300 million acres of land possible of devotion to agriculture (not necessarily wheat), whilst at present less than 60 million acres are under field crops with a population not exceeding 10 millions. Without indulging in any definite predictions of future development, it is easy to realize that there are great potentialities of increased production in Canada alone.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Better clean up that shopping list this week. Peterboro's stores never contained a better choice of Christmas gifts.

The only reason The Examiner has not so far published the names of aldermanic candidates is that none have been announced yet.

They're already picking a successor to Mr. Ferguson for the Ontario premiership, believing the head of the Provincial Government may become the leader of the Dominion Conservative party. And they may be right.

Hon. Vincent Massey is to be known as "Minister Plenipoteniary and Envoy Extraordinary in the United States for His Majesty's Dominion of Canada." And that isn't a patch upon what he was called in Durham during the 1925 campaign.

Incidentally, the mouthful of words by which "His Excellency" Hon. Vincent Massey is to be officially designated indicates that Canada has not yet completely succeeded in abolishing titles.

Mr. C. R. McKeown, beaten in Dufferin at the recent election, is slated for the chairmanship of the Ontario Railway Board. That seems to be one case in which defeat did not represent a loss.

Dean Inge's favorite hymn should be, "Lead, Kindly Light." He seems to love the encircling gloom.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Assertions that 65,000,000 bushels more wheat than last year is coming from south of the equator tended to pull wheat prices downward on Saturday. Closing quotations were unsettled at the same as Friday's finish at 7-8c down, with corn showing 1-8c to 1-2c gain, oats varying from 1-4c decline to 1-4c advance, and provisions unchanged to 20c down.

Excellent harvest weather prevailing in Argentina gave emphasis to bearish aspects of crop reports from the Southern hemisphere.

Inactivity of export demand Saturday for wheat from North America put friends of higher prices at a further disadvantage, with talk current that Argetina and Russia were both pressing sales abroad. However in the late dealings here, the market displayed some power to rally, strength of corn values acting as more or less of a stimulus. It was noticed also that domestic cash wheat at the chief terminal centres was displaying a firm tone, especially in the southwest and that wheat appeared to be wanted by mills.

Some of the larger speculators here became buyers of corn on an early decline. With surplus offerings quickly absorbed, a sharp advance ensued. Oats were governed by corn. Provisions were lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market on Saturday was again of a very limited character, there being little demand from foreign buyers and the trade on spot was also slow. The tone of the market for oats was weaker and prices were again reduced another 1-2c per bushel.

A fair amount of business was done in Spring wheat flour for local and export account and prices were firm. The undertone to the Winter wheat situation was easier, but values showed no change. The demand was limited.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a continued good demand. Standard grades of rolled oats were firm under a good enquiry.

The egg market was active and prices for fresh and storage grades ruled steady. The receipts were 184 cases.

The demand for butter continued good and prices were firm. The receipts were 518 packages.

The cheese market was moderately active and the undertone was steady. The receipts were 64 boxes.

MAKING HONEY NOT ONLY JOB OF BUSY BEES

Efforts Towards Bountiful Fruit Crop of Equal Importance.

FERTILIZE BLOOMS.

Sorry Day For Growers If Little Creatures Did Not Aid.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—Whenever you pick up a nice luscious cherry or a rosy peach, do you ever think of the busy bee? If not, you are overlooking one of the essentials. Something of the story of the part which the busy bee plays in making possible Ontario's generous crops of fruits was told on Thursday before the Ontario Beekeeners' Association by George S. Demuth of Medina, Ohio. At the same time, the fact was brought out that the standard agriculturists receive about five times as much financial benefit from the activities of the bees as do the actual beekeepers. The keepers of the bees get their revenue from one source only, that is, the crop of honey, but the agriculturists, particularly the fruit growers, get their returns in the form of fertilized blooms, which, in turn, make possible those stacks of fruit which are to be seen at the Fall markets.

There was one fine illustration of the part played by the busy little bee in the fertilization of the blooms, and it had to do with a cherry tree in the Grimsby district. This was a black cherry tree, and it came in bloom during the rainy season. As is not generally known, there is a period of approximately twenty-four hours only during which the bloom of that brand of cherry may be fertilized, and if the weather chances to prevent the busy little bee shoving its nose into the bloom during the appointed hours it is a sad outlook for the fruit farmer. So, on the day in question the cherry tree in question came into bloom. It was wet until about 4 in the afternoon, then suddenly it cleared up and the bees began to do their work.

As the fruit farmer expressed it, they began to buzz about that tree like crazy insects, but since the wind was still blowing they confined their efforts to the sunny side. It was an unusual situation, so the farmer watched that particular tree. On the cold side of the tree, where the bees had not worked, there were practically no cherries in the Fall, the scattered specimens being eight inches or a foot apart. But on the other side it was a case of the farmer having to prop up the limbs to keep them from breaking beneath the weight of the fruit. So the next time you pick up a juicy cherry, just thank the busy little bee.

Borrow Neighbors' Bees.

As the story goes, certain farmers in the fruit districts who have no bees, make it a Spring practice to borrow or rent colonies of bees to place among the fruit trees during the critical hours of fertilization of the bloom, and it has been found, generally speaking, that the farmers who do this have good crops of fruit, while those who do not, often have little more than half a crop, or sometimes less. In some cases, it was pointed out, peach orchards which were populated with colonies of bees in that manner had fine crops while orchards a half a mile distant, without bee colonies in the neighborhood, had practically no fruit.

According to Mr. Demuth, the practice of renting bee colonies during the season of bloom in the citrus districts in the United States has been increasing. This is done all through the orange, lemon and grapefruit districts and the growers of such fruits will pay as high as four dollars for the rental of a single colony of bees for a few days. The practice of renting bees has also caught on with the greenhouse owners, as they have found that it is much more simple to rent a hive of bees and place it in the conservatory than it is to attempt to fertilize the bloom by artificial means.

The story of the queen bee was told by J. A. McKinnon, first vice-president of the association. Queens in the human race are supposed to belong to the aristocratic class, and the same applies with the bees. The queen bees, particularly if they have the required characteristics, are much in demand, and the price ranges anywhere from five dollars to two hundred. Sometimes they are shipped over the ocean by mail, and it is quite the common thing, for them to be sold at distant points on this continent. But the price is determined entirely by the character of the queen. If she happens to come from a gentle and hard-working colony, then her owner can get the higher figures, but if she chances to belong to a slothful colony she is lucky if she brings the lower figure. More often she is snuffed out.

Hard-working Queens.

Evolution steps into the raising of queen bees, the aim of the experienced beekeeper being to produce queens which will raise large families with gentle disposition and with a willingness to work from early morning until night.

One ex-farmer who had some experience with bees told of starting three colonies and discovering that their most striking characteristic was viciousness. They had a violent dislike to anything human and made it known by the only means at their disposal. So the farmer retaliated by snuffing out two colonies with an excess of smoke, and by taking the third down to the lakeshore and using it as a target for rifle practice. He believed he was following the instinct of self preservation; but the expert does not do things of that sort. Instead, according to Mr. McKinnon he steps into the hive kills the queen, and starts all over. He purchases a queen from a colony with more civilized instincts, and before the first season is over, all the savage bees have died off, in the natural course of events, and they have been replaced by the progeny of the gentle queen.

Bu such processes, it is possible to build up a colony of bees of almost any character, which the beekeeper desires. If he wants a savage army to discourage boys from pillaging his orchard, he can develop a horde of stingers; if he wants workers which will grasp the shining hours, he can develop that type; and once he gets the reputation as an owner of gentle bees which the good ladies might wear on their collars instead of chameleons, he has no trouble making a nice profit from the raising and selling of queen bees to other beekeepers less fortunate.

In other words, the science of bee culture has reached and advanced stage, and nature has bowed before the hand of man. A colony of bees, if left to obey its natural instincts, will raise but one queen bee, through the process of feeding the larva, the royal jelly reserved as fodder for queens alone. But man can upset the processes of nature, which he does when he wants a whole grist of queens to throw upon the market. He takes the larvae, places them in separate cells of honeycomb robs the queen bee cells of the royal jelly and puts a small quantity in each cell with each larva. B, that trick, he cheats the bees' natural instinct and gets his full supply of gentle queens, or savage queens, or queens of any other disposition, which in their turn, rear swarms of bees of their own kind. And it is that manhandling of nature which enables the beekeepers to sell queens at prices ranging anywhere from five to two hundred dolalrs.

Honey Has Food Value.

Miss Mary I Barber, of the Department of Home Economics, Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, dealt with the food value of honey. She stressed the need of human beings getting back to natural and unrefined foods. Civilized foods, such as meats, potatoes, white bread, pie and coffee, made up a meal with little to recommend it. On the contrary, honey was classed among the energy foods which could be converted into activity.

"We are inclined to think of energy in terms of work," the speaker continued, "but in reality we are using a continuous supply of energy every minute we live, even when we are sleeping."

Honey Miss Barber insisted, stood among the best energy foods, because of its natural composition.

CHANGES MADE IN CIVILIZATION

PIONEER QUALITIES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 .—(Canadian Press.)—The distinctive features of American civilization are due to conditions which have rapidly changed," Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, said in his address to the convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents here today. He explained that by American civilization he included both Canada and the United States.

"There is no longer a frontier," Sir Robert declared." The influx of the foreign element has been checked; those who have attained material comfort are discovering that man does not live by bread alone, and they are asking for food for the mind and spirit, so eagerly that universities, colleges, schools and institutions for the promotion of any and every kind of fine arts, are crowded."

The effects of the pioneer quality which was one of the most potent elements in American civilization, Sir Robert stated, where the lack of class distinction; the high economic grade of the average man, and the full opportunity for each and every individual. Another effect, not so desirable, but rapidly being improved, was the economic preponderance over cultural achievements in the newer sections.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I must congratulate my friend Mr .Merrill upon the stand he has taken in regard to the appointment of our late candidate to the vacancy in the Senate. I think ,wtih him, that Mr. Duffus is entitled to the same and that he will be quite a valuable addition to that body. I sincerely hope he will get that appointment, as he is a good debater and will be able to hold his own and at the same time stand up for the rights of the people. I wish him good success.

Yours truly,
WM. STEVENS.

THE CALAVO OR AVACADO

The avacado is a tropical fruit, native to Mexico, Central America and the northern part of South America. It is also grown quite extensively in Florida and California. In California the fruit is now known as the Calavo, which will be the new name for the California avacado.

The old Aztec name for this fruit is Ahuacatl, and it has been grown for centuries by these people. In the last few years, the name of alligator pear has been given to it, but no one seems to know where this name originated, except that some varieties have a skin that is quite tough and some are pear shaped. Varieties are also found which have a round shape and others are oval in contour. The fruit is usually of a bright greenish, yellow color and weighs up to four pounds. The tree is a large ever-green and a full-grown tree will produce hundreds of this fruit.

The avacado is rich in vegetable oil, from ten to twenty per cent, with also some proteids and carbohydrates. It is especially nourishing, and is no doubt the most nutritious fruit grown.

Care should be exercised in choosing the fruit in the market, as it should only be used when it is ripe. When the avacado is really ripe, the meat is buttery with the consistency of cold butter.

This fruit may be used at almost any meal during the day and combines well with any of the other kinds of food. It can be added to a salad by cutting up in thin slices and mixing it with any other kind of salad vegetable. One of the most delicious ways to use it is to cut it lengthwise and serve a half portion to each person. No dressing should be used on it, except a little salt if desired. The fruit should be ripe enough to be eaten with a spoon.

If it is of the proper consistency, it may also be used as a filler for sandwiches. Use only whole wheat bread and spread the thin slices of bread with the soft avacado. Butter may be used also if desired. You will find that this will make a delicious picnic sandwich and will agree with those who cannot use a meat sandwich.

If you have never used the avacado, add it to your daily diet and you will find a new thrill in the taste of this delicious fruit.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE CAMPAIGN

By Dr. Frank Crane.

In the late campaign we noticed the address of Mr. Hoover on the advantages and importance of keeping the Republicans in power,and there were addresses by other people, particularly Governor Smith, about the necessity of having the Democrats administer our affairs.

From time to time, men of ability, Elihu Root and others, express their opinions about the glorious old party. Mr. Wilson at one time urged the country to return the Democrats, as he wanted a powerful party of his own to back him in his policies.

The ordinary man is at a loss to understand this. It is one of the mysteries hidden in the bosom of providence how men who call themselves intelligent can think that it makes any difference whether the country is governed by Democrats or Republicans.

The Bishop of London was unable to see what the difference was between the Republican and Democratic parties.

Occasionally they get together and make platforms. A careful reading of these platforms shows that they meticulously straddle all important issues.

They have one thing that they are in earnest about and anxious for, is to have people vote for them. They want jobs and want them bad. They want everybody to get out and vote. They are continually urging people to exercise their franchise and calling people bad citizens who do not register or go to the polls. Perhaps they are right, although the poor citizen is at a loss to know what he should go to the polls for when he does not care a hang who is elected.

There is always a large number of absentee voters and these are laboriously belabored by all public speakers and writers.

However, there is something to be said for them, and if there ever comes a clean cut issue and parties are lined up one on one side and one on the other it might result in getting out a rather heavier vote than usual.

It is interesting to see a religious speaker tear his shirt over the importance of advancing Methodism or Presbyterianism or Roman Catholicism. We often wonder how men as intelligent as Montaigne or Michael Angello or Francis Bacon should have been so earnest in their defense of the church. But the process by which a man reasons that his denomination is best seems to be about the same as that by which a man reasons that his party is best.

Perhaps the country will always be divided into two great parties, although those who are afflicted with the plague of thought often wonder what the two parties are about, aside from the desire to hold office.

How to Play BRIDGE

A new series of lessons by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1926, by Ely te, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 7

What is the most puzzling point of the play at auction bridge? That is a pretty broad question and probably every player has his own opinion, but to the writer there seems only one answer and that is "The Lead." When your partner hasn't bid or sometimes when he has, it is very difficult to determine the proper lead. Many a game or rubber is won or lost by the opening lead and as it is always a guess, the writer feels that, for that reason alone, it is always the most puzzling point of play. One lead will win and one lead will lose, but which shall it be? No one can be right always, so the only thing to do is to learn what should, as a matter of averages, be right the greater part of the time, and then follow these rules. The following hands illustrate some good points as to the proper opening lead so should be carefully studied. An analysis will be given in the next article.

Problem No. 7

Hearts — 7
Clubs — A, 9, 7, 3
Diamonds — Q, 8, 4, 2
Spades — K, 7, 5, 4

No score, first game. Z dealt, bid one heart and all passed. What should A lead?

Problem No. 8

Hearts — 6
Clubs — K, 7, 6, 2
Diamonds — K, 8, 4, 3
Spades — K, 10, 7, 4

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid four hearts and all passed. What should A lead?

The following hands are given as examples of the type that cause a wide difference of opinion and should, therefore, be very interesting:

Hand No. 1

Hearts — 7
Clubs — J, 4
Diamonds — A, J, 10, 8, 7, 3
Spades — A, 9, 8, 6

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one diamond. A doubled, Y bid three diamonds and B bid four clubs. What should Z now do? Should he bid four diamonds or pass? Z should pass. His partner's bid of three diamonds shows that he has diamonds and nothing else, so why should Z take a chance of being doubled? He has two aces so that if he and his partner can win them and one more trick they will save the game at clubs. It is an excellent example of passing when there is a good chance to save game and no chance to make the overbid. In the actual play, Z bid four diamonds, was doubled and lost 200 points while A-B could not have made four clubs.

Y
A B
Z

Hearts — Q, 9, 7, 5, 4
Clubs — Q, 8, 6, 3
Diamonds — 9, 2
Spades — K, 7

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed. A bid one heart, Y one spade and B passed. Z passed and A bid two hearts. If Y and B passed, what should Z now bid? Z should pass. He hasn't any reason to bid two spades for he has little help for his partner and good defense against two hearts. In the actual game, however, Z bid two spades and his partner lost the contract by two tricks undoubled — a fine example of what not to do.

A B
Z

Hearts — A, K, 10, 9, 7, 3
Clubs — Q, 6
Diamonds — 9
Spades — 9, 8, 7, 5

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one heart. A passed, Y bid one no-trump and B bid two clubs. What should Z now do? Should he bid two hearts or two no-trump? This is a close hand but the writer prefers a two no-trump bid. Z cannot hope to go game in hearts after his partner denies the suit, but there is a chance for game in no-trump. Y has the queen, six of clubs and they will probably help his partner to stop the clubs. Z, however, bid two hearts and made three odd, although he and his partner had a game at no-trump.

Hand No. 4

Hearts — K, 4
Clubs — none
Diamonds — A, Q, 9, 7, 5
Spades — K, Q, J, 8, 4, 2

Z

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one club. If A bid one spade, what should Y now do? Should he double, bid one no-trump or two diamonds? This is a pretty close hand but the writer thinks the bid of one no-trump will produce the best results. It will conceal the spade strength and possibly coax a two spade bid. The bid of two diamonds seems the next best bid but the danger is that the bid may be left in. A double is bad as it gives the situation away. One correspondent has suggested a two spade bid, saying it would probably be doubled and thus give a good chance for game. It is a clever suggestion and might work out but how can you be sure of a double? All in all the writer prefers the no-trump bid.

MAYOR KILLED IN GANG FEUD

Had Been Object of Several Attacks From Gang Gunmen.

CALLED TO DOOR.

BENTON, Ill., December 13. — Canadian Press. — Gang vengeance flared forth late yesterday and took the life of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, near here. Adams was shot and fatally injured by two unidentified gun men who called him to the front door of his house on the pretense of delivering a letter to him.

Adams, who has been accused of being linked with the Shelton Bros.' gang, had been the object of several recent attacks. About three weeks ago his home was dynamited a few hours after midnight, when several men passed by in an automobile and hurled a bamb which broke the windows out of his house and wrecked the front porch.

Several days later the Adams home was machine gunned.

Deputy sheriffs were assigned to guard the home but had gone to get some coffee an the night the house was dynamited.

BACHELOR TAX BOOMS ITALIAN MARRIAGE MART

Eligibles Scan Brokers and Professional Matchmakers' List of Spinsters.

MORE MALES.

Believe Be Excess Demand For Wives Over Available Supply.

ROME, Dec. 13.—(A.P.)—Premier Mussolini's recent creation of a tax on bachelors between 25 and 65 is causing a stir on the Italian matrimonial market.

Within 24 hours of the announcement that male celibates would henceforth be obliged to pay an annual tribute for their single bliss, hundreds of professional matchmakers, who have been suffering hard times because of the high cost of living, began active angling for business.

Simultaneously scores of marriage brokers mushroomed into existence, advertising their services by word of mouth and the newspapers.

Marriage brokers believe that there will be an excess in the demand for wives over the available supply, thus restoring as marital possibilities many elderly maidens who long since resigned themselves to be considered definitely "on the shelf."

It is estimated that at least 100,000 bachelors, a majority of whom are beyond the first blush of youth, are now consulting the lists of spinsters being compiled in the matrimonial bourses.

The actual number of men subject to the new tax runs into several hundred thousands, Rome and Milan each furnishing about 100,000. The male population of Rome and several other large cities, as a matter of fact, far exceeds the feminine.

All classes of women—the most bitter anti-feminists as well as the small brave band of feminists—hail the Government's step joyously, especially since the proceeds of the tax will be used for the benefit of indigent women and children. (The Institute of Maternity and Infancy, which also cares for unmarried mothers and their children costs the Government 50,000,000 lire a year.)

Joy, however, is not confined to the women. Photographers report a greatly increased business in the last few days. One Roman camera artist pointed out with delight that the demand for large "touched-up" photographs is now greater than since the war days. The newspapers also are profiting by matrimonial, personal and furniture-on-the-instalment-plan advertisements.

25 KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Several Injured on South Manchurian Railway Near Tiehling.

OCCURRED ON BRIDGE.

PEKING, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—Twenty-five persons were killed and 58 injured in a collision of a freight train and a passenger train on the South Manchurian Railway near Tichling, reports received here yesterday from Mukden, principal city of Manchuria, through Reuters News Agency, said. The report gave the time of the smash-up as December 8, and described all victims as Chinese or Japanese. The crash occurred on a bridge. Both engines held to the rails, but the coaches toppled into the river, except one, which hung suspended from the bridge.

BOY KILLS SISTER.

Accidentally Discharges Rifle Lying on Table at at Home.

GEORGETOWN, Ont, Dec. 13—Mrs.. Jeanie Comber, wife of Thomas E. Comber, a dye-worker at this centre, was accidentally killed on Saturday when a bullet was discharged from a rifle in the hands of her seven-year-old half brother, John Williamson. Mr. Comber had just returned from his morning's work and had greeted his wife, when he heard the shot, and his wife fell over in his arms. The bullet struck her in the head, behind the ear, passing through to the opposite side. Death was instantaneous.

The rifle belonged to a neighbor, who had loaned it to Comber, and the latter had just brought it home, and laid it on the table. He was not aware that it was loaded. No inquest will be held. Mrs. Comber, who is of Scotch descent, came to this point several years ago, and her brother and mother have been living with her for a number of years. She leaves two small children.

COUNCIL DELEGATES

An important feature of the agreement is a provision whereby all the countries rgpresented in the Ambassadors' Council may attach to their Berlin ambassies a technical expert empowered to negotiate concerning the execution of any agreement bearing on Germany's fulfillment of the disarmament conditions of the treaty. This is regarded as of considerable significance, as it means a sort of mild supervision over Berlin itself. Whether these experts will remain indefinitely is not clear.

The outcome of yesterday's meeting throws increasing responsibility on the League of Nations as the mechanism guiding relations of the nations of Europe. It gives new interest and vigor to the problem of the general limitation of armaments.

At Paris, M. Briand will have the ultra-Nationalists to criticize his work of conciliation, and political enemies seeking to undo him. At Berlin Dr. Stresemann has the Nationalist opposition, which is almost certain to accuse him of surrendering to France.

The following official statement was issued yesterday on the agreement to withdraw the inter-Allied control commission from Germany:

"In the course of a meeting in Geneva today between the representatives of the government of Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan relative to questions still pending before the inter-Allied military control commission and the ambassador's council, it was recognized in the first place with satisfaction that out of more than one hundred questions which divided them in June, 1925, regarding execution of the military, naval and air clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, an agreement has been reached on a majority.

"Two only are still outstanding. It is, therefore, permissible to hope that an amicable settlement of these two questions will also be possible.

"In these circumstances an agreement has been reached and diplomatic negotiations will be continued before the ambassadors' council on the question of fortifications and war material. Fresh proposals will be made with a view to assisting the progress of the discussion and facilitating its conclusion.

"Pending a settlement, all work on the fortifications in question will cease without prejudice to the right of each party to maintain its legal vewpoint. The inter-Allied military control commission will withdraw from Germany, January 31, 1927, and as from date Article 213 of the Treaty of Peace will be applied in accordance with the conditions laid down by the council of the League of Nations."

(Article 213 declares that so long as the present treaty remains in force Germany undertakes to give every facility for an investigation which the council of the League of Nations may consider necessary.)

"If on that date, and contrary to expectation, an amicable agreement has not been reached with regard to these questions, they will be submitted to the council of the League. Each of the governments represented on the ambassadors' council will be at liberty to attach to its Berlin embassy a technical expert authorized to reach an agreement with the competent German authorities with regard to all questions of execution respecting the settlements reached or to be reached."

PARIS, Dec. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—The cabinet met this evening and extended its blessings to M. Briand upon his reaching an accord with Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign secretary, on the question of inter-allied military control. Incidentally, the members of the cabinet gave themselves a little pat on the back in an official communique issued by Senator Raut, giving M. Briand's associates in the government part of the credit.

"The council of ministers," says the communique, "has registered its accord with the foreign minister and congratulates itself on the happy result of the collaboration between the government and Monsieur Briand."

"All goes well," said M. Painleve, Minister of War, on leaving the meeting. Another ministerial council will be held to-morrow.

Antoine of Paris, hailed as the greatest hairdresser in the world, is credited with being the inventor of the modern bob and shingle. His real name is Cierplikowski, he was born in Warsaw, and is a sculptor by profession. Among his models he found that many women had beautifully shaped heads concealed under masses of hair that were not always becoming. So he decided the hair should be cut off that the hidden beauties migt be revealed.

HIAWATHA NEWS

HIAWATHA, Dec. 13. — The friends of Mr. Andrew Paudash will be surprised to hear of his serious accident while working at Nogie's Creek for the Patterson Lumber Company. He was felling a tree in the bush and it swung around and a branch struck him. He is now in the Ross Memorial Hospital at Lindsay, and he is still in a critical condition. Pasker Anderson, a local man, was near him at the time and informed the parents of the injured man of his misfortune.

The ice is steadily forming on Rice Lake, and the Otonabee River. No one as yet has ventured to cross the lake, but three men went over the river at Seven Oaks and came back over at Mr. Wedlock's farm on Monday of last week. They had sticks with them to test their path on the ice. They were after foxes.

On Thursday, Rev. Mr. Garratt spoke at the Public School on the subject of the manufacture of pearl buttons. It was a real interesting lesson in geography. The so-called pearl button is in reality a clam shell button. The clams used are found extensively on the bottom of the Mississippi River between Red Wing Min., and Muscatine, Iowa. Large boats or punts are used to hold the rack, which is let down into the water. From this rack weighted strings are allowed to drag on the bottom, when they touch the open shell, the little animal or organism closes its protection, and the fisherman, when enough of the clams have caught on the strings, pulls them up into his boat and lets down another rack. After he has done this several times, his boat is full. He then goes to his port or town, and to open the shells, he placed them in vats of boiling water, which kills the muscle holding it shut. Mr. Garratt stated that when he visited that part of the country, he was surrounded by men, who were clam fishers, trying to sell him pearls which they had taken from the shells of their catch. These pearls are not as valuable as the salt water ones. Sometimes a very valuable one is found. Around the vats, there is a strong odor.

The main revenue comes from the sale of the shells to the button factories. There they are cut into flat, circular discs, bored, polished, etc, all by machinery. The only hand operation is the sewing of the buttons on cardboard.

Some years ago, there was a similar factory at Trenton, Ont., where they had to import their shells.

DENIES AMERICANS ALL LOVE MONEY

Says Critic In Address To American Club at Oxford.

OXFORD, England, December 11. Canadian Press. — "Of all lies the worst lie is that the American worships money," Gilbert K. Chesterton, the Enlish essayist and critic, believes.

"An American," he told the American Club at Oxford, "never talks of money in the hushed and awe-struck tone that an Englishman employs in referring to financial matters."

Though famed as a humorist, Mr. Chesterton spoke to the Americans for the most part in a serious vein. He frankly discussed the differences which exist between Britain and the United States, and the misunderstandings which so easily arise from them. And his plan was for a newer sort of intelligent understandings between the two.

"I am not anxious to see this unity of spirit that the newspapers and politicians on both sides of the water often refer to," he said, "such beautiful phrases as 'people of one stock,' 'blood is thicker than water,' 'hands across the sea, are bringing us no nearer together."

Far more effective, believes Mr. Chesterton, is the consideration of the United States and Britain as entirely distinct countries. Much of the friction between the two countries, he said, came from the fact that Englishmen expected to find in the United States the same conditions to which they were accustomed in England, and vice versa.

"Although a small number of English fools have done a certain amount of harm by insulting America," he said, "a far greater number have done harm by praising her in the wrong way. Such praise takes form in such remarks as 'look at your fine American courage—you get it from us,' 'Americans love liberty—we invented it.' 'Americans have plenty of optimism—an English quality.' The real question to be considered by those who wish to bring Anglo-American understanding to a higher plane is: What is distinctly American ,which England cannot possess, and what is English that Americans cannot have?"

STRANGE CHANGEABLE ANIMAL

An animal which can change into another animal and then back to its original form, is the startling discovery announced by Dr. Martha Bunting of the zoological department of the University of Pennsylvania.

The "animal" says Popular Science Monthly, is one-celled, resembling a minute drop of jelly, and belongs to the amoeba family. It can transform itself into a complicated flagellate, Dr. Bunting declares, and then effect a retransformation back into its amoeba state.

PLAY PRESENTED FOR COSMOS CLUB

St. James' Young People Repeat "The Afflicted Family."

MILLBROOK, Dec. 11 — "The Afflicted Family," a comedy farce in four acts, presented in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening by the Cognawaga Club of St. James' church, Peterborough, under the auspices of the local Cosmos Club, drew a fair-sized audience, a number of intervening events in the village and vicinity limiting the attendance.

The scene of the play is laid in London, England, three of the acts being in the Crotchet home.

Mr. C. Crotchet (Gordon Richardson) a retired merchant, who imagines himself ill with every disease described in "the Family Medical Book," and his wife (Eva Spurway), who also plays an invalid's role, "nerves" being her supposed malady, call in Dr. G. Linton (Percy Vannest) as the family doctor.

Dr. Linton is too conscientious to increase his income by prescribing for the fancied illnesses of his rich patients and in a sudden "flare-up" when he speaks plainly of their supposed diseases, he is summarily dismissed. Clarence Crotchet (Jack Billingsley) a student and the son of the house, is doted on by his fond parents, and plays on their sympathies, feigning illness from over-study, though it is really the result of too free an indulgence in drink.

Two characters were well taken by Atvah Rooke, "John Henry," the Crotchet's man servant, who has too little to do; and "I Seizer," the constable who removes the "effects" from the shop of B. Frizzy (Arthur Vannest), a barber, who becomes bankrupt and is urged by his sweetheart, Betty (Jean Hamilton), the maid in the Crotchet home, to answer her master's advertisement for a new physician.

Passing himself off as a "Professor of Medicine from America," Mr. Vannest played a difficult role well, causing a great deal of merriment as he prescribed drugs in unlimited quantities his apparent knowledge leading Mr. Crotchet to exclaim, "At last I havea doctor who understands my case thoroughly." In the end the frequent doses cause nausea on the part of the patients and the fake Professor is exposed during a consultation he is forced to participate in which Dr. Linton, who is called in by his erstwhile offended patron for this purpose.

The bashfulness of L. Staple (Fred Cripps) a merchant in love with Daisy Crotchet (Thelma Meredith) and the opposition of her father to his suit, led to some ridiculous situations, while the love affairs of Dr. Linton and Dolly (Greta Welbourne), Mr. Crotchet's niece, also becomes somewhat complicated, but in each case the tangles are happily straightened out in the last act.

The deafness of Miss Dorothy (Lillian Campbell), a maiden aunt, and her devotion to her poodle dog, Fido, interjected a good deal of fun in the progress of events in the Crotchet home. Fido's death, following the medical attention of the fake Professor, occurs in the final scene of the play.

Many ludicrous happenings develop as the farce is carried to a happy conclusion, Mr. and Mrs. Crotchet apparently seeing at last that sunlight and fresh air are practically all the "cure" they need. Betty remains true to her lover, taking her full share of blame when his pretensions are exposed, winning the sympathy of her master by her plucky confession, and urging B. Frizzy to go on the "real theatre stage,' 'since he could play a part so well.

The Sunday School orchestra from St. James' furnished music during the evening; the Misses Martha and Marguerite Lang played a piano duet between the second and third acts and Miss Jean Hamilton was obliged to respond to an insistent demand for an encore after her recitation, "The Obstructive Hat."

Unfortunately financial returns were hardly up to expectations, and the Cosmos Club would scarcely cover expenses by the entertainment.

The Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. L. Ryam, over forty being in attendance.

Mrs. F. H. Howard had charge of the opening business period, during which the treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington, reported a total of $85.55 raised so far this year — a small part of the budget which the Auxiliary is responsible for by March when the year ends. The special offering for the "retirement fund" for missionartes who have served their day in active work, will be taken up at the January meeting

Items from the "Watch Tower," were given by Mrs. H. E. Smith, who reported the Ukrainian work at Oshawa; by Mrs. R. H. Edmunds, who gave news of the safe arrival of a party of missionaries in China though conditions there are still so uncertain; and by Mrs. A. J. Brown, who described "Christmas in Japan." Mrs. Edmunds also told of the letter containing Christmas greetings, with a cheque enclosed, sent to Miss Viola Cardwell, missionary nurse at the Ham Heung hospital, Korea. Owing to over work Miss Cardwell is still suffering from eye strain, to the anxiety of her friends in Ontario.

Group E, Miss Nellie Finnimore convenor, took up the programme the leader reading the devotional leaflet on "Belief and Trust" based upon II Timothy 1:12.

Mrs. Hilliard Lang covered the chapter on "Opening Gateways of Knowledge," in the study book, and Mrs. G. W. Sayles contributed a solo, "Somebody Knows," which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. W. Larmer had the closing reading on "A School in India," conditions being very different to school building and means of study in Canada.

Mrs. W. H. Ryam, the senior member of the Auxiliary, offered the closing prayer.

The hostess, assisted by Group E, served lunch at the tea hour, and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

At the various harness meetings conducted by the Grand Circuit since its organization in 1873, numbering nearly 500 in all, premiums amounting to nearly $16,000,000 have been paid to horse owners.

Sympathy was expressed by the board of foreign missions of the United Church of Canada for the missionaries in West China in their present distress. Four stations along the Yangtse Kiang river are seriously affected. Chungking is the centre of the disturbances, and a large mission staff is maintained there. The hostile attitude of the people, stirred by agitators, has compelled them twice during the last month to evacuate the town and proceed down the river. Many missionaries on the advice of the British consul, left the station. Prof. P. M. Bayne, M.A., No. 5, and his wife, are among those. Prof. Bayne holds the chair of biology in the West China Union University. Among those remaining are: Mr. S. H. Frier (6) and his wife; Mr. Frier is the mission business agent; Dr. W. J. In 1915 he went to Vienna and met Emma, then a Polish dancing girl in an amusement park. Two days late he left the city and never saw the girl again. Last spring he is reported to have gone to Milton, where he died. In his will it is stated he left $20,000 each to the girl and a former friend, plus $5,000 to the latter on condition that he would spend it in finding the young woman. Enquiry in Milton failed to disclose any person who knew Beguitch, or any document which might throw light on the strange tale.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Look at that baby dance!" Bob Hathaway bent his head to whisper into Faith's ear, the tip of which was visible just above his broad shoulder, but his eyes followed Cherry's tiny flashing figure with amused admiration.

"I don't dance very often." Faith's low voice was slightly husky, as if with tears.

"Oh, my dear!" he held her closer with sudden tenderness. "You dance perfectly—like a lady. But Cherry is like the spirit of jazz incarnated."

Faith tried desperately hard to put more real abandon into her own dancing, but she only succeeded in feeling foolish. She drew back a little, flushed with shame, and tried to forget Cherry for one blessed five minutes—give herself over to the dear joy of being in Bob's arms. He danced with superb ease, gradually introducing more difficult figures as he found that she could "follow" him. He had said she danced perfectly—like a lady—dear Bob! Maybe it was one of the innumerable kindnesses of an inscrutable Providence that kept him from reading the hot, torturing envy in her heart—envy of that fairy-light, Cinderella-footed, sparkling little beauty that clung and melted into the staunch, squat figure of George Pruitt.

How the other dancers watched her, whispering, admiring, envying—envying her her miniature perfection of curve and line, the exquisite splendor of her black chiffon and rhinestone dress, the gayety and passion of her effortless dancing, the heart-catching beauty of her.

Of course she adored herself, Faith reflected, with a sudden tender smile that lit up her great, soft dark eyes with a wondrous light. How could she help it, when she had watched the devastating effect of her rare beauty since she was old enough to watch anything.

"You look like Saint Joan in a frivolous moment—doing the fox trot most delightfully, but with her mind on higher things." Bob Hathaway chuckled. "If you keep on looking like that I'll have to kiss you, even if they put me off the floor!"

"What a dreadful punishment for such a—charming offense," Faith surprised herself by retorting demurely.

After that, until the music stopped, she danced more easily, felt the stiff lines of her tall body flow effortlessly into the rhythm of the dance, sensed his gratified response.

"Didn't know you could do the grapevine, old darling," Cherry laughed as the four of them took their places at the table, upon which the Chinese waiter was silently arranging thie meal.

"The grapevine?" Faith asked, startled. "I can't."

"You were doing it—that last half minute," Cherry clapped her hands delightedly. "Oh, heavenly. Chicken chop suey with mushrooms! And egg foo yong! Am she hungry? I'll say she am! Oh, listen, that Chink's making an announcement!" She leaned forward her food forgotten.

"Oh, boy! A Charleston contest! George? Bob?"

"Count me out!" George Pruitt shook his head regretfully, but hastily.

"Oh, Bob! I know you do! You Charlestoned with me at the Palais Royale! Please."

After a glance at Faith's indulgently laughing face, Bob Hathaway nodded rather slowly. "I'll feel like a fool, Cherry, but if that's your idea of a good time!"

"Ah, great! Come on. We can eat afterwards! There are three couples already. I wish you'd look at that corn-fed mama in the skin-tight black satin and—oh, catch me!—that gawky skinny mistake that stepped all over my feet when we were dancing. Shame to take the money!"

There was a scattering spatter of applause when tall, good-looking Bob Hathaway and the acknowledged belle of the evening took their places near the orchestra, that was tooting the first discordant blares of the latest Charleston song.

The five couples on the floor were joined, at the last minute, by Chris Wiley and his lady of the evening—a too-painted, too pert, too-short-skirted, too thin little slat of a flapper, who tossed her bobbed, permanent-waved black hair with great disdain for competitors.

"Come on' Chris, we'll show up this bunch of cheap skates," her nasal, harsh voice carried throughout the dining room.

Cherry stiffened as if she had been shot. Whirling out of Bob Hathaway's arms, she faced the newcomer, stared for an incredulous, stricken moment at Chris Wiley, whom she had somehow escaped seeing until that moment, then flung her proud little head upward.

"Hello, Chris! So 'out of town' means North Second Street, does it? I admire your taste—in streets and girl friends!" The stinging sarcasm of her voice would have told even a stranger to that town what she meant by "North Second Street."

"Come, Cherry, We'd better go back to our seats—" Bob Hathaway, scarlet-faced, took her arm, started to lead her away by force. But a small, black-haired, painted-cheeked tornado flung herself upon Cherry.

"North Second Street! I'll show you, you red-headed devil! North Second Street! You're a fine one to be throwing North Second Street into my face, you—you—" Her venomous tongue poured foul words in a rank, odorous stream, as her fingers locked in Cherry's coppery curls, and her thin legs began to kick at Cherry's unprotected shins.

"For God's sake, Wiley, call her off!" Bob Hathaway whispered hoarsely, as he tugged at Cherry's arm.

In a moment every diner in the place had crowded to the dance floor, the orchestra bleated out one last dying note.

"Lay off, Flo, lay off, I tell you!" Chris Wiley, his dark, dissipated but handsome face mottled with frightened color. "There's a cop, Flo! Can it, I say. A cop!"

REICH MAY HAVE FUEL OIL SOURCE IN NEW PROCESS

Successful Operation of Bergin Invention Would Make Germany Independent.

INTEREST SHOWN.

Possessors of Secret Will, However, Reveal Nothing To Foreigners.

(By Frederick Kuh, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN (United Press).—Germany's operation of the Bergin process for producing oil from coal, it is claimed, may make this country independent of foreign oil supplies within a few years. Construction of a new plant at Nachterstedt near Aschersleben in Central Germany is reported to have started and is scheduled for completion within two years.

Glowing reports to the effect that oil extracted from coal, by the German system, is likely to cause an upheaval in the entire world oil trade, are strengthened by the interest which Standard Oil, Royal Dutch and other immense corporations have manifested for the Bergin process.

It is not yet certain whether any of the great oil combines will succeed in buying an interest in the new oil-from-coal plant in Central Germany. Experts consider it doubtful, however, that the Germany dyestuffs trust, which will control the operation of these works, will allow foreign firms to gain insight into German secret processes, which are calculated to compete with the natural product.

Professor Friedrich Bergius of Heidelberg, the inventor of the process, has attempted to dampen the ardor of enthusiastic prophets. He discounts reports that his invention will evoke a revolution on the world oil markets and, perhaps himself over-zealously seeks to persuade the public that oil-from-coal will not rival the natural product. Other experts suggest that Dr. Bergius is eager to conceal the true significance of his system until he is ready to enter the world market on a large scale. Premature disclosure of the importance of the Bergin process, it is insisted, would put competitors on their guard.

A reckoning of production costs appears to fortify the contentions of enthusiastic Bergin oil advocates. Dr. von Jellinek, of the Bergius laboratories at Heidelberg, has computed that oil products, extracted from coal by the Bergin method, will cost 92 Marks ($23) per ton—or only 78 Marks (about $20) a ton, if electrical energy is generated at the plant. Meanwhile, the world market price of the natural product fluctuates between 140 and 190 Marks ($35-$47) per ton. To compete with Bergin oil, then, world petroleum prices would have to take a big drop.

Whether the development of the Bergin process will emancipate Germany from foreign oil imports, as the German press suggests, is likely to remain undecided for several years. But experts recall that other scientific achievements in Germany during recent years have performed economic miracles. Thus, the inauguration of the Haber-Bosch process for obtaining nitrogen from air not only spares Germany a yearly import of approximately 800,000 tons of Chile saltpeter, but now enables Germany to export 135,000 tons of fixed nitrogen annually.

"This performance," it is asserted, "suggests that a parallel development in the oil industry is not unthinkable."

On the other hand, it is argued that the swift growth of motor-fuel consumption, the increase of automobiles in Germany and German expansion of commercial aviation will augment the domestic demand for oil to such an extent that foreign imports will continue to be essential to meet Germany's requirements for many years. It is estimated that in 1927, Germany will require about one millions tons of fuel-oils.

The Bergin process, around which international oil corporations have centered their interest, is not new. Experiments, starting in 1909, led to the issuance of a patent in 1913. The process depends upon the hydrogenation of coal under 100 atmospheres pressure at 480 degrees centigrade for a yield of about 45 per cent oil which can be refined for gasoline, ammonia and other end-products.

MAGNETIC DEVICE FINDS RAIL FLAWS

Japanese Invention May Go Far Toward Preventing Train Disasters.

While defective rails are known to be responsible for disastrous railroad wrecks involving huge losses of life and property annually, until recently there was no means of detecting the hidden flaws in the rails, which caused these catastrophes. Now a Japanese engineer, M. Suzuky, brings forward an invention perfected in the laboratory of the Japanese Government Railways at Tokyo, to detect such internal defects as transverse cracks, impurities, and so on, in the rails.

The defectoscope, as the new device is called, detects these flaws by magnetism. As described in the December "Popular Science Monthly," it consists of two parts: a powerful electromagnet which creates a magnetic flow in the section of rail under test; and an exploring coil, working on an entirely separate circuit, that records any variation in the magnetic flow. This is the brains of the apparatus.

So long as the flow remains constant, as it will in a perfect rail of uniform cross section and density, the exploring coil will be electrically "dead" and will show no reading on the attached galvanometer, an electrical instrument for measuring minute electric currents. If a flaw is encountered as the magnet moves along on its own wheels, the magnetic flow will suddenly drop and return to normal again, inducing a current in the exploring coil which the galvanometer records. In this way the slightest flaws may be detected before they become dangerous.

With the new aparatus about 100 rails can be tested in an hour.

Belgium's three main political parties are said to be, fundamentally in favor of woman suffrage; but party reasons have kept them from granting women a vote in any except municipal elections. In these latter elections, the number of women's votes is higher than that of the men; and since voting is obligatory, the vote even of women who are entirely indifferent to politics, may have a decisive part in the municipal elections in Belgium.

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet — colds of all sorts.

Alex Graham, Master of the Lodge with a handsome silver cake plate as a gift from the members of the Lodge on the occasion of his marriage. Mr. Casement gracefully expressed the felicitations of himself and brothers on the happy occasion. Bro. Graham was much surprised, but made a fitting reply.

On Friday the Fire Brigade were called to a chimney fire at Mr. M. Allen's, and on Saturday morning, to one at Rev. W. Spencer's. Prompt measures prevented any damage being done.

The Fire Brigade are receiving some one at Rev. W. Spencer's. Prompt measures prevented any damage being done.

The Fire Brigade are receiving some well deserved bouquets in regard to the manner in which they handled the fire at Mr. E. H. Northey's on Monday night. The fire was extinguished with the least possible damage to the furniture and building. This care of unnecessary property damage is a characteristic of the Brigade, and one of which the village may well be proud.

A New Bloomer Dress for the Young Miss

This delightful little bloomer dress, having plaits at both sides of front and back, would be charming if fashioned of flannel with contrasting material for the trim collar and wrist-bands finishing the fashionable long raglan sleeves. Buttons adorn the center front closing and a belt fastening in front completes this chic frock. Bloomers made of the same material as the dress have elastic run through a casing at the top and snug knee-bands finish the lower edge. NO. 1331 is in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 6 requires 3⅛ yards 36-inch plain material, and ⅛ yard contrasting. 20 cents.

Our new Fashion Book contains many styles showing how to dress boys and girls. Simplicity is the rule for well-dressed children. Clothes of character and individuality for the junior folks are hard to buy, but easy to make with our patterns. A small amount of money spent on good materials, cut on simple lines, will give children the privilege of wearing adorable things. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

WAFFLES FOR WINTER

Waffles are a really delicious winter dessert and with a good waffle iron and a little practice anyone may become proficient in their making.

Here is a good waffle batter. Mix well a quart of sifted flour and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and half a cupful of melted butter. Then add three beaten eggs and enough milk to make a thin pouring batter. Pour into the heated iron and bake.

Waffles may be served in many ways, and if different sweets are devised to serve with them, they make a very acceptable dessert a couple of times a month and may also be eaten occasionally for breakfast.

Served with strained honey they are perhaps best of all, although maple syrup is also delicious with them.

They can be slightly salted and served with fried chicken.

They can be sprinkled with granulated sugar and cinnamon, sifted together.

They can be served with butter and sugar.

They can be served with the juice from any sweet, canned fruit.

Any fruit sauce, made of a syrup with chopped, cooked fruit, is also delicious with waffles.

They must always be served soon after they are made, as they become stiff and rather tough as they cool.

HAVE PRACTICAL FROCKS, AND FRIVOLOUS ONES, TOO

(By Henri Bendel, for NEA Service.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Of all the silk family no two materials remain so steadfastly feminine, so alluring and so picturesque as taffeta and moire.

You can make tailored frocks and evening gowns that suggest the sport frock of such diaphanous material as chiffon, or such regal material as lame cloth ,or velvet.

You can make a chemise frock of beads and sequins, and you can subdue lace to the point of muslin plainness, but if you use taffeta or moire, you have to treat it right. You have to make an important frocks. You have to use some material in it and have length as well as width in your skirt.

Fashion's Favorite

With styles more influenced by the Directoire period when women looked their loveliest and dressed with less regard for practical considerations than today. it is logical that these two fabrics should be leading the fashion parade.

For more than a year now, the picture frock, with its molded bodice and full skirt has triumphed, and is constantly being developed in more exquisite color combinations.

Nothing delights me more than to costume a play, or a wedding party, and feature these frocks in rainbow colors—when the women involved are tall and sylph-like. Or nothing is more depressing than the heavy-set figure affecting this quaint style.

Photographed today are two models that are proving very successful with New York debutantes, both developed in moire. The model at the left is of pink moire banded with mulberry colored moire. Its distinctive trimming is a knot of the darker silk which forms a centre panel, with ends hanging down the front. The skirt is short in front, and slim at the sides in spite of much fascinating fullness.

For Brunets, Too

The other model also is pink—incidentally pink is exceedingly smart now in Paris—embroidered in bands of crystals and rhinestones. This one also is short in front and swirls round the heels in a low dip.

After pink, there is a deep ivory shade, positively irresistible in moire, which particularly enhances a brunet's charms.

In taffets, all the pastel shades are fashionable, with an emphasis on the blue shades, and black taffeta is quite the smarest thing you can possibly own. Particularly if relieved with white. White organdie and black taffeta form a classical combination, and of course black taffeat and black lace have been a standby with Spanish beauties ever since it was first introduced ages ago.

French flowers of velvet, silk or chiffon, and the ornaments of beads and crystal, as well as motifs of pearls and rhinestones are perfect trimmings for these frocks, and fancy ribbons of velvet and tissue, and gold and silver laces are very youthful.

No matter how many practical frocks one may own, it is always an evidence of feminine wisdom to own one of these gowns that makes no pretense of being anything but beautiful and ornamental.

Here are two models, both developed in moire, which are proving very popular with New York debutantes

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

By Alma Whitaker.

I am asked two ticklish questions this week. Do I consider the Irish entitled to the popularity they have in this country? Do I believe in divorce?

And of course I want to hedge on both of them. I am very fond of a great many Irish people, but once in a way I want to muzzle a "professional Irishman." When an Irishman is good he is very, very good, but, like a famous little girl, when he is bad he is horrid.

As for divorce, I do and I don't. I can see where there are many cases in which divorce is the only solution of an intolerable situation. I can also see where the privilege is often shamefully abused.

Nina asks me a difficult question too. Nina's fiance has fallen for the glamor of another girl. The other girl is bright and talkative and socially effective. Nina herself is quiet, "and please don't think I am conceited, but my friends do say I am 'sweet'."

But Nina is finding it very hard to remain sweet these days. She must be sweet, because she has avoided describing her rival in an uncomplimentary way.

She has been engaged to her beau for nearly a year. They have been collecting things for their home. They had hoped to be married in the spring. But the gentleman has devoted the best part of the last three weeks to the rival and is markedly cold towards Nina.

You must try to continue being sweet, Nina, dear. You must hold your little head high and make no sign. Try to seem blissfully unaware that there is a rival in the field. Treat her kindly when you meet. Keep yourself nice and trim. Then, whatever happens, you at least will have nothing to regret. It is probably only a passing infatuation. Most of us have been through it, you know. And you are quite right to "give him plenty of rope." All you can do is to meet the situation with what smiling dignity you can muster.

"Mother" is worried because the children don't like their Sunday school teacher," and she is a very unattractive woman says mother, "but there is no other school of our denomination any where near."

Yes, that is unfortunate. Sunday School teachers ought to be pleasant and attractive to children. I should think the pastor whould recognize the importance of this. Could you not have a little confidential talk with him? It must affect other children as well as your own.

Or you might hold a little Sunday School class of your own for a little while. You might enjoy it, mother dear, and gain a great deal from it yourself, too. I often hold Sunday School when we go to the beach and we have a delightful time.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Shapely kid boot with patent fasteners is shown at the top. In the center is shown the new Russian boot with permanent pleats around the ankle, and, below, the new pull-over gaiters made of stockinette with turn-over tops of different colors.

* * *

The woman who goes about this winter with cold ankles does so because she really wants to, and not because she is serving fashion thereby. Grunwaldt, one of the most conservative of French furriers, has been showing fur gaiters with patent fasteners to match coats intended for motor wear. There are also fur rugs to match. For cold, rainy days there are new rubber overshoes that look like glorified goloshes. They come quite high above the ankles, leaving some inches of stocking showing if a short skirt is worn, and they button or otherwise fasten from top to toe and they fit as closely to the shapely shoe as an onion skin. They are of rubberized material in colorful design. The girl who wears these foot overshoes on rainy days will make the girl who follows last season's fashion of going about in cumbersome goloshes look very awkward indeed.

Pull-over gaiters of fine wool are already to be seen and these will undoubtedly become increasingly popular as the winter advances. They are knit so closely that the process of pulling them over the foot does not tend to make them baggy. There is a strap that holds them snug under the instep They have a turn-down cuff usually showing a design in contrasting color, and these too end somewhat below the knee so that there is a glimpse of stocking below the skirt. There are also some over-the-knee knitted gaiters that provide even better protection in cold weather.

The Russian boot never gained so much favor here as in England. We seemed to share the French prejudice. But the new Russian or Muscovite boots are quite shapely. Sometimes they are made of soft kid with shapely toes and fairly high heels and fit fairly close over the ankles. A patent fastening down the front keeps them closed. There are still some of the boots made without opening. But these are somewhat neater than they used to be around the ankles because there are permanent wrinkles there that give the necessary fullness in drawing the boot on without permitting the former sagging. These pleated boots, I believe, are called Lithuanian. Some of the new boots have a rubber inset at the side, after the manner of the old-fashioned congress gaiter. All these devices have been worked out to make these serviceable boots more shapely.

WELCOME W.M.S.

Regular Meeting Held and Reports Received—Welcome News.

WELCOME, Dec. 13.—The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Runnals on Thursday afternoon with an attendance of twenty.

The President, Mrs. E. Martyn, led the devotional exercises. After the reading of the minutes a discussion of an expense fund took place. It was decided that each member pay ten cents; Mrs. John Pearce was made Treasurer of the Expense Fund.

One Dollar for suggestive programs was voted.

A special meeting of the finance committee was called to make a survey of the finances for the year.

The Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. Clare, reported 3 hospital calls, 3 sick calls and 1 call on strangers.

Mrs. W. E. Lewis gave a Christmas reading.

Miss Martyn read a letter from Miss Luella Rorke of Shizuoka, Japan, telling of the opening of their new school and of a series of union evangelistic meetings, which had just finished. She said the splendid spirit of unity shown had been developed in union prayer meetings which had been held during the past year.

She said there were only seven Japanese girls in the school, outside of the first year pupils, who were not baptized.

The temperance secretary read an account of a Temperance Rally in Massey Hall on Sunday.

The President spoke of how great the disappointment to all as mothers and homemakers, was the result of the temperance issue on December 1st, which caused liquor to be legalized. She said they could still pray. She said the fact that more liquor would be sold seemed to be shown by the advance in brewery stock this past week.

Mrs. R. C. Symons read a poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, entitled, "No question is settled until settled right."

Mrs. Arthur Lewis, leader of Group do"C" took charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Crossley read a Christmas message. The devotional leaflet,"Faith and Trust," John 14: 10-17 was read by Mrs. A. Runnals.

A chapter of the Study Book, "New Days in Old India," entitled, "The open Gateway to Knowledge," was synopsized by Mrs. Gerald Pearce.

A vocal duet "Christmas Flowers," was given by Miss Elsie Symons and Mrs. Blake Symons.

Mrs. Clare Symons read a clipping, "The Chinese imperil the Missionary work."

An interesting Christmas story, "The first Christmas Roses," was read by Mrs. B. Symons.

Group "C" were hostesses during the social hour.

An Executive meeting of the Prohibition Union for Durham County was held at Bowmanville on Wednesday afternoon.

Miss McKinley of Plainville is visiting her sister, Mrs. Gerald Pearce.

The pupils of the Public school are writing their Christmas Examinations this week.

Although its written records come back more than a thousand years, it is only within the last few decades that ski-ing has won a place among the popular winter sports in northern Europe and in North America. Even in Norway, where skis have been used from earliest times, the sport was not organized until 1883, when the Norwegian Ski Association came into existence.

The Story Thus Far

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE TEAZEL

One day as Uncle Wiggily hopped from his hollow stump bungalow, his wife sait to him:

"Are you going to the store to get me a loaf of bread as you promised?"

"Of course I am," answered the rabbit gentleman. "But first I am going to stop at the hollow stump school."

"Do you know your lessons?" asked Mrs. Longears, with a laugh.

And then Uncle Wiggily laughed also. For of course he didn't have to go to school any more, being rather an old rabbit.

"Well, there are plenty of things for me to learn, just the same, my dear," he said to his wife as he hopped along. "I wish I had paid more attention to my lessons when I was at school. But what I am going to do now is to stop and see if Baby Bunty's beads are all right."

"You mean her horse chestnut necklace!" asked the lady rabbit and Uncle Wiggily said he did. For, as I told you last night' he had made a necklace of these big brown nuts for the little orphan rabbit child, and something happened, as you may remember.

Bunty was very proud of her chestnut beads—not too proud, you understand, but just proud enough, and Uncle Wiggily wanted to be sure she hadn't lost them. That's why he was to stop at the hollow stump school.

But, no sooner was the rabbit gentleman in front that out came running the Lady Mouse Teacher, quite excited and in a hurry, it seemed.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Is the school on fire, Miss Mouse?"

"Oh, no," she squeaked in answer. "But poor Dottie Fufftail's fleece is covered with beggar ticks, with burdock stickers and all manner of brambles, and I am going to Dr. Possum."

"The little lamb girl isn't ill, is she?" asked Mr. Longears.

"No, not exactly ill," said the Lady Mouse. "But you should see the wool on her back! It is full of stickers, and the children and I have spent half the morning trying to pull them out. There are so many left that we shall never get any lessons done if we have to keep pulling them. So I thought I'd see if Dr. Possum had any medicine he could give Dottie to get rid of the ticks."

"No medicine will do that," said Uncle Wiggily. "But here is something that will," and from a bush near the school he picked a teazel. "I will get the ticks from Dottie's wool with this," he said. "But first tell me how the ticks got in."

"Oh, Dottie and Willie, her brother, were playing tag on the way to school," said the Lady Mouse, "and he chased Dottie into a bramble patch. He didn't mean to, I suppose, but you know how boys are. And being a little lamb girl, Dottie's wool caught and held every sticker she brushed against. There are cow ticks, sheep ticks, beggar ticks and burdock ticks. The poor child's fleece is a mass of them! I wish you could see her."

"I'll take a look," offered Uncle Wiggily, carrying the teazel into the Hollow Stump School. And when he saw Dottie Fluffail he said: "Oh, you poor child!"

"Rat, tat, tat!" went the hammer.

And Dottie bleated:

"What are you going to do to me?"

"I won't hurt you," promised Uncle Wiggily. "I will just gently pull the stickers from your wool with this teazel." Now a teazel is a sort of big burr itself, as large as twenty burdock burrs. And on the end of each spine of the teazel is a natural little hook like the one mother uses to crochet with.

Holding the teazel by its long stem, Uncle Wiggily used it to clean all the ticks from Dottie's wool. The teazel, once soft and green had become hard and dry in winter. And soon the little lamb girl's fleece was as white as Mary's little lamb.

Then Uncle Wiggily tossed the teazel from the window and at once a voice cried: "Ouch!"

Jackie Bow Wow looked out and barked:

"Oh, the Woozie Wolf was there, waiting to come in, and when you tossed out the teazel, Uncle Wiggily, you banged him on the nose. It was the wolf who yelled—'Ouch!'"

"Has he run away?" asked the bunny gentleman, and Jackie said the bad chap had. So everything came out all right. And if the ice pick doesn't make a hole in the sugar bowl so all the salt runs out to play with the pepper, I'll tell you some time about Uncle Wiggily's red box.

THIS CANADA OF OURS

SASKATCHEWAN'S AGRICULTURAL WEALTH.

Q.— What was Saskatchewan's agricultural wealth in 1925?

A.— Saskatchewan farmers in 1925 took in $534,806,480 from the sale of grain, field crops and live stock, according to the annual report of the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture. The grains, including flax, made up $361,990,000 of the total field crops—peas, beans, potatoes, roots, corn, hay, clover, alfalfa, etc., brought $12,687,000; farm products, including butter, cheese, milk, wool, furs, poultry, etc., added another $35,017,480, and live stock $135,117,000. The ten leading industries produced goods worth $26,048,000 in 1924.

FOOD AND HEALTH

WHEN FOOD LOSES ITS LURE

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

The business girl had returned from a trip very much cast down. Kindly hospitality had been too much for her slightly tired digestion.

"There is not a place to eat in New York," she said. As this statement was rather sweeping, it seemed wise to qualify it although one did know what the B.G. meant. One who is forced to depend exclusively on restaurant food does get very tired of it and when there has been any digestive upheaval, many of us have seen days when we would have been willing to agree with the business girl, in saying that "there is no place to eat."

There is more than appetite involved in such a situation. The business girl had not only been tired by her trip, but she had suffered a violent attack of food poisoning. After acute symptoms had subsided there was that sensation of don't-care-a-tive-ness whenever she thought about food. Because there are other business girls and business women who have similar experiences, one is minded to analyze the problem a bit.

When we decide that "there is no place to eat" it means that it behoves us to look about carefully for a certain type of eating place. Not necessarily where the food is elaborate, but a place where certain essentials can be counted upon. This place must be first of all relatively quiet. It must be possible to relax restfully when one enters the dining room. There must be space to move between the tables so that while eating the tired nerves are not rasped by people crowding too close.

Coming to the food certain demands must be made and met. The food must, first of all, be more than fresh when purchased. One says more than fresh advisedly. Certain foods labeled 'fresh' as meaning of fairly good quality, will not do for one who is recovering from such an attack. There is an indescribable flavor or rather lack of flavor in food of this grade that may play havoc not only with the appetite, but with the actual digestion when one is tired. The healthy body can probably take care of it and thrive, not so the one depleted by illness.

These directions for finding a place to eat may seem vague. Actually, they are not. One need only to train one's discriminating faculty so that he is able to recognize these essentials for a restoring diet. It is all very well not to let one's self become fussy or "per-nickety." There is such a thing, however, as letting this philosophical attitude get the better of one's health.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

THAT it does not pay to sit and wait for business.

THAT it is lonesome and unprofitable work.

THAT the best way to do is to create a demand by advertising.

THAT is profitable work.

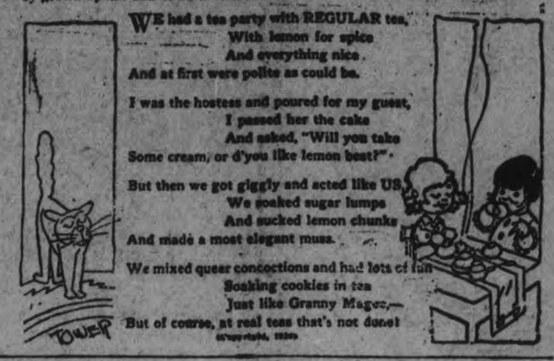
The Tea Party

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

I HAVE a theory that there are times when grown-ups can legitimately shut their eyes and just not see certain little digressions from standard practices. There are so many things which really matter and have to be watched and governed that one might better overlook a few lesser shortcomings so that there might not be constant nerve tension of having to live acording to rule. For instance, we have tea parties. Everything goes according to grown-up tea party law, elaborate play of serving and ladylike behavior. The party progresses and from the nursery come suppressed giggle and signs of fun. I deliberately don't go to see because I know things won't get too bad as a certain amount of careful training will curb them a bit. They're having a wonderful time and what I don't see, I don't have to correct, seeing as how it doesn't matter fundamentally anyway. They know perfectly well what they're doing that is not quite sanctioned by grown-up law and no harm is done.



YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

Jade is today's talismanic gem and brings its wearer riches and success. The Chinese believed that it protected its wearer from danger and diseases and assured him of a long life.

The lapis lazuli is the natal stone for today. This pretty blue stone is a sure cure for melancholy, especially if worn on a gold chain around the neck.

Today's color is lavender, which exerts a calming influence on those wearing it.

The sweet lily-of-the-valley, symbol of unconscious sweetness, is today's lucky flower.

WHERE CHINESE BATTLE

The above map visualizes the present Chineses situation, which is described as having reached a crisis similar to that of the Boxer rebellion. The safety of foreign residents in the cities which have been captured by the Southern Cantonese troops, under the leadership of Bolshevists, is stated to be viewed with alarm. Hankow is now in the hands of the Cantonese, the southern troops now proceeding on to Foochow.

SHORT STORY

"Isn't there someone else you can think of—a sort of last hope?" Daisy McNair suggested.

"I've asked every man I know," Helen Proctor said ruefully. She paused a minute and then ventured: "But maybe you could ask a last hope for me."

The much-heralded Junior Prom at Tilden college for women was just a week off. But Helen wished that junior proms had never been invented. Young and rather shy, she had not liked the idea of asking an escort, but had finally invited Harold Granger, a childhood friend. She had promptly received word from Harold that as he had already accepted an invitation from another girl in another college for a dance on the same night, he could not accept. Then she had written to Walter Drew, who adored Helen's sister, and Walter, not being at all interested in little Helen, had fabricated an excuse. Then she asked Ned Stevens whom she had met the summer before and a letter had soon followed from Ned's mother saying that as Ned had the measles he would not be able to come. There were no more men in Helen's list of acquaintances—not even a last hope.

Daisy thought a minute or two as they continued their way down one of the campus walks. "There's Bob King—Tom's buddy—I could ask him for you—he'd come, but dear me, he's impossible. Last hope just about describes him—perfectly enormous and doesn't give a snap for girls and dances like a walrus. He'd come because Tom would make him."

So it was agreed that Bob should be asked and Bob would motor out from the city with Tom. Bob, Tom told Daisy, had objected but had finally yielded as an act of supreme friendship toward Tom.

The Prom was booked for Friday night. Wednesday afternoon Helen received a special delivery letter from her first hope, Harold Granger.

"Harold is coming after all," she cried in joy to Daisy. "The other girl and he had a scrap—so you can just let that Bob person know we won't need him after all."

Then on the morning mail, next day, came a letter from Walter Drew. He had decided to come, he said, and was now on his way—he as much as said that Helen's sister had insisted on this piece of self denial on his part. "He's on his way," thought Helen, "so there's nothing to do about it. Well, he can just come and find out that he isn't needed. Serves him right."

Friday afternoon Helen went to the railroad station to meet Harold Granger on the train she had told him to take—and as she stood there looking searchingly down the platform, up came the youthful-visaged Walter Drew.

"Well, I came anyway," he said. "I see you got mother's telegram—and were expecting me—I was afraid you mightn't get it in time. You see it wasn't measles after all—just a cold—and I'm all right now and mother said that I'd better come as she was afraid you'd be so disappointed and would miss all the fun without a man——"

But the artless Ned got no further for just at this juncture up stepped Harold Granger with breezy nonchalance. He and Helen greeted each other with great cordiality and then followed an awkward introduction.

Helen showed the boys about the campus, and they went at four o'clock for tea at the Blue Heron, and Helen thrilled at the thought that she was sitting there with two escorts. It did give one an air of great popularity. And just as she was enjoying this situation so rare for her, there appeared a slender, dignified, young man in the doorway of the little tea-room. He looked around and then came toward her. It was Walter Drew. He had arrived by motor, looked for her everywhere and had finally been told that she might be at the Blue Heron.

Helen was standing almost hidden by her bodyguard of three black-clad men when Daisy McNair with Tom and the Last Hope appeared. They caught a glimpse of Helen and came sailing over to her. Daisy explained to Helen in an aside that the message had never reached Tom and so he had brought Bob as he had promised.

Daisy shook hands with this fourth and tallest of her escorts and wondered how anyone could ever have thought him ungainly or dubbed him a last hope.

By all means Helen was the belle of the ball that night—if there are such things at modern college dances. The story of her enormous popularity spread until everyone was talking about this wonderful girl who had four escorts. They didn't know that Harold had come merely because he had had a quarrel with the girl he loved and wanted to make her jealous, that Walter had come because Helen's sister had promised to marry him if he did, that Ned had come because his mother wanted him to and had promised him a new car if he would, and that Bob had come because of his devotion for his buddy, Tom.

But Bob forgot his motive in coming before he had finished the first dance with Helen. Before the evening was over he was in love with her and madly jealous of the other three men who claimed a share of her charming company—of every man in fact whose arms encircled her when she danced.

When Tom and Bob motored back to the city late the next afternoon Bob had received a timid, faltering acceptance to his hasty proposal.

OLD MASTERS

Sleep, sleep, beauty bright,
Dream ing in the joys of night;
Sleep , sleep; in thy sleep
Little sorrows sit and weep.

Sweet babe, in thy face
Soft desires I can trace,
Secret joys and secret smiles,
Little pretty infant wiles.

As thy softest limbs I feel,
Smiles as of the morning steal
O'er thy cheek, and o'er thy breast
Where thy little heart doth rest.

Oh the cunning wiles that creep
In thy little heart asleep!
When thy little heart doth wake
Then the dreadful light shall break.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

MEMORIES

The restless sea, as restless as my heart,
Still softly sighs, although its storms depart.
Its restless soul, as restless as my own,
Still feels the surge of storms that it has known.

The quiet stars, the gentle moon, may rise,
But in the dusk the unquiet water sighs.
So peace is mine, but 'tis the peace of seas,
Within my soul the surge of memories.

Too vast the sea to ever quite be still,
Content it never knows, and never will.
Too vast the soul to never know the tide
Of loves of old, aye, even loves that died.

Thank God for this, we never quite forget,
The storms of life in peace remember yet.
But who has known a sweeter thing than this—
The sob of waves, the memory of a kiss?

The restless sea, although the storm goes west,
Still feels its ebb and flow within its breast.
The restless heart still feels the endless beat.
Of thoughts of old, by memory made sweet.

FERDINAND'S DEATH MATTER OF WEEKS

Rumanian Monarch Can Live Only Short Time, Say Travellers.

PARIS, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—The death of King Ferdinand of Rumania is now a matter of weeks—a few months at the best—in the opinion of most reliably informed travellers reaching Paris from Bucharest.

These travellers affirm that the recent series of operations performed upon the sick monarch were only temporary expedients and that the cancerous growth within the intestines, which is the real trouble, has not been touched. Only the gravest form of surgical intervention, with desperate odds against the royal patient, would insure the King's improvement, and at the present state of affairs, the surgeons decline to take such step on the ground, that it would probably result in the immediate death of Ferdinand. Reports that former Crown Prince Carol will go to Bucharest to bid farewell to his father constantly are recurring, say the travellers.

The "dummies" used in ventriloquial acts sometimes cost as much as $600 each.

How to Play BRIDGE

A new series of lessons by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright, 1926, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 8

A number of readers of these articles, in answering the various problems that are given, want to know if they should try to remember the hands given. Of course not. The hand is of no value whatever, but the principle involved is most important. You often hear players say, after playing a hand badly: "The next time I get that hand, I will know how to play it," but they are only fooling themselves. The possible number of hands that can be held at auction is so tremendous that no player can ever hope to hold the same hand twice. For that reason, don't try to remember any one hand. What you should do is to try to remember the principle involved, for the same principle can be used in numberless hands. The only useful purpose of example hands is the illustration of a principle, and unless you understand the principle involved and its proper application to other hands of a similar character you haven't obtained the lesson from the example hands that they were intended to convey. In the hands given in last week's article, the principle involved is the question of a trump lead. When should a trump be led? Study these hands carefully and try to master the principle involved which is all important.

Answer to Problem No. 7

Hearts — 7
Clubs — A, 9, 7, 3	:	Y :
Diamonds — Q, 8, 4, 2	:A	B :
Spades — K, 7, 5, 4	:	Z :

No score, first game. Z dealt, bid one heart and all passed. What should A lead? This is not the type of hand that justifies a trump lead. The bid of one heart doesn't necessarily indicate great trump strength so that A's partner may very well have one or more honors in that suit. For that reason a lead of A's singleton trump might "kill" an honor in his partner's hand. A should not lead away from his four spades to the king, for by so doing he may lose his chance to make his king. The only two leads left are a lead from four clubs to the ace or four diamonds to the queen. Of these two leads, the latter is the better. If A leads the diamond suit, he should lead the deuce. If he leads the club suit, he should lead the ace. Don't lead away from aces when a suit is trump, if you hold four or more. If you do, you are very apt to have the ace trumped on the second lead. It is also better practice to avoid leading a suit containing an ace if there is as good or a better lead in another suit. The lead of an ace gives up control of the suit and loses the chance of using it to "kill" a high honor in an opponent's hand.

Hearts — 6
Clubs — K, 7, 6, 2	:	Y :
Diamonds — K, 8, 4, 3	:A	B :
Spades — K, 10, 7, 4	:	Z :

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid four hearts and all passed. What should A lead? In this hand, the lead of the singleton trump is obligatory. The other three suits all contain a king, and one of the easiest ways to lose a king is to lead away from it. If you should decide to lead one of the three suits, which one should you lead? Never guess if you can avoid doing so and you can avoid it in this hand by leading the singleton heart. The original bid of four hearts should show a set up heart suit so that a trump lead should not "help" an honor in B's hand, as was the case in hand No. 1. In case A gets the lead later and is forced to choose between the remaining suits, he should lead the spade lead to any other. The preemptive bid of four hearts should indicate weakness in spades.

Here are two interesting hands, both of which illustrate important principles of bidding. Think them over and then compare results with the analysis that will be given in the next article.

Senators Win Eighth Straight Victory in League Chase

LAST MINUTE SCORE SAVES OTTAWA GAME

Senators' Captain Scores Winning Tally Just Before Final Bell.

DISMAL OPENING

Corbett, Denneny and Nighbor Aid in Scoring Toronto Goal.

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press).—The Senators of Ottawa continue to hurl back all opposition in their quest of the National Hockey League title. A green-shirted host from Toronto which in a previous meeting held the locals to a two goal draw—the closest they have come to defeat this season—invaded the Capital Saturday night and threatened to repeat the "no-verdict" performance, but a goal that screamed from the stick of Captain George Boucher less than two minutes before the final bell spelled a 2 to 1 victory for Ottawa. The Senators have now registered eight wins without dropping a game in the league chase.

After a dismal opening period in which neither squad exhibited anything resembling good hockey, the game "bucked up" in the second stanza and from then on the 4,000 odd fans present were treated to a titanic struggle. The fight waged fast and close with ruggedness and slashing tactics sending many to the penalty pen. The dashing Toronto forwards, "Happy" Day, Carson and Corbett Denneny, swarmed about in their usual dazzling style. The stellar defence of "King" Clancy, Capt. Boucher and the invincible Alex. Connell in goal, appeared to be the quarter in which the visitors were outshaded. The Senator forwards refeatedly cracked the Irish defence wide open, only to be turned aside by the redoubtable John Ross Roach who was forced to absorb the heavy total of 40 shots during the match. Connell threw himself in the path of 20 blazing goal attempts.

The Toronto tally which opened the scoring was netted by Corbett Denneny and to all appearance, was aided past the Senator goalie by Frank Nighbor. Referee Cooper Smeaton had called back a play and faced-off the puck to the left and just short of being in a straight line with the Ottawa cage. As the rubber dropped to the ice, Denneny hoisted it goal-wards and as it struck Nighbor's stick in its flight, it glanced past the bewildered Connell.

However, the advantage was not held long, for the Senators immediately opened a sortie on the visitors' citadel that was withering. Just one minute and thirty-five seconds after the Green shirts had gone into the lead, Hec. Kilrea raced close in on Roach after taking a pass that Clancy lobbed over in front of the Toronto goal and the Toronto tender was beat for an equalizer.

With the issue tied, the closing period was productive of some of the smartest combination play seen on local ice this season. Both teams used this form of attack in an effort to reap triumph, but again the Ottawa defence refused to buckle while Roach continued his sterling performance in smothering Senator shots. Boucher's goal came as a fitting climax after 18 minutes and 15 seconds of the period. He scored it on a pass from Cy Denneny, who was playing his first game since being released from hospital where injuries received in a recent automobile crash were patched up.

The double referee system was used for the first time this season and apparently met with public favor. Twenty penalties were issued during the contest, one of them a major which Jack Adams drew for talking back" to Referee Smeaton.

The line-up:

Toronto:		Ottawa:
Roach	goal	Connell
Brydge	defence	G. Boucher
McCaffery	defence	Clancy
Day	centre	Nighbor
Carson	wing	Kilrea
Bailey	wing	H. Smith
Corbeau	sub	A Smith

NEW MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMPION

There was some doubt about the decision at Chicago in which Mickey Walker was declared the winner over Tiger Flowers for the middleweight championship. The decision of Referee Yanger, who was selected just before the bout, was first greeted by boos and then by cheers. Twenty bluecoats leaped into the arena at the end, but there was no disturbance. Yanger told the press he gave the fight to Walker because Mickey did all the punching and Flowers did not close his hands, but was content to hit with the open glove.

COUGARS LOSE TO AMERICANS

Taking Fewer But Surer Shots New York Wins National Fixture.

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 13 (Canadian Press) — Taking fewer but surer shots, the New York Americans beat the Detroit Cougars, 4 to 2, in a National League hockey game last night.

Detroit was credited with 27 tries for goal and the Americans with 23. But when the New York team took the puck down they had another man to follow or receive passes, while the Cougar attackers often were playing lone hands. There were 12 penalties.

BENNY LEONARD TO FIGHT AGAIN

Says Mother's Illness Reason He Refused Bout With Walker.

NEXT SUMMER

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Benny Leonard, undefeated lightweight boxing champion, will fight again.

"I'll fight again. Not right away, but perhaps late next spring or next summer," he said. "I'm coming back to fight because the public demands it; because now I feel that affairs in my home are such that I can go back into the ring without hurting anyone's feelings at home. When I speak of home I mean my mother."

Then Leonard explained why he refused to fight Mickey Walker for a purse of $100,000.

"It was because of my mother," he said. "She was very sick, perhaps nearer death than anyone realized. She asked me to hang up my gloves and the $100,000 didn't appeal to me at all. A million couldn't have tempted me at that time with the situation just as it was."

Leonard retired in 1925, his last fight being with Pal Moran in 1924. The lightweight champion weighs about 145 pounds to-day.

MARLBOROS TO CONTEST S. P. A.

Meet Kitchener or Parkdale C. C. by Defeating North Toronto.

PLAY OVERTIME

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 13—(Canadian Press).—Marlboros of this city earned the right to meet either Kitchener or Parkdale C.C., in the final of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association senior series by defeating North Toronto, 6 goals to 5 here on Saturday night in a game which was in doubt as to the ultimate winner until the gong rang at the end of a ten minute overtime period.

The winners took the lead in the opening period, but North Toronto evened matters early in the second frame. Marlboros forged ahead twice more in this period only to have their tenacious opponents tie the score each time.

Joe Primeau, Marlboros flashy left-winger, put his team in the lead for the fourth time early in the third stanza, but again the indomitable North Toronto sextette tied it up forcing the game into overtime.

Each team scored in the first five minutes of overtime, Primeau scoring for Marlboros in three minutes, while Heintzman evened the score fifteen seconds later. In the second overtime period, Sellars scored the winning tally on a pretty combination thrust with Primeau.

The winners displayed the more finished hockey, they also possessed superior condition over their opposition. The game was not productive of good hockey nevertheless the closeness of the score, and some sparkling individual efforts by Primeau and McPherson of Marlboros, and by Shaw and Heintzman of North Toronto, kept the small crowd of fans in good humor.

COOPER TAKES MONTEREY HONORS

Has Total of 293 Out of 72 Holes in Open Golf Play.

DELMONTE, Calif., Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press)—Playing a steady all around game with the exception of the last nine holes, Harry Cooper, of the El Sereno Country Club Los Angeles, won the $5,000 Monterey Peninsula open golf championship today with a total of 293 for the 72 holes. His score by rounds was 75-70-72-76.

A card of 34 for the first nine holes of the final round carried Cooper through, for on the home stretch he slipped badly to chalk up 42, six over par. Other scores were: Larry Nabholtz, Cleveland, 295; John Farrel, New York, 206.

SILENT SOUNDS GUIDE SHIPS

Instead of baying blasts from fog horns, sounds that no human ear can hear are being employed by a lighthouse at the port of Calais, France, to guide ships into the harbor in thick weather. These inaudible sounds, says Popular Science Monthly, are like ordinary sounds except that they are so shrill they cannot be heard. They can be detected, however, by electrical instruments which make them visible. They travel for long distances under water.

At Calais the lighthouse on shore transmits inaudible sounds in a code of dots and dashes. The signals travel under water and are picked up by amplifying devices on ships nearing the harbor.

LES CANADIENS ARE BLANKED BY THE HAWKS

Both Teams Set Furious Pace in the First Period.

SCORE OF 3 TO 0

Canadiens' Defense First to Crack After Furious Onslaught.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 13 (Canadian Press)—With a brilliant offensive and an impassable defence Chicago Black Hawks skated off the Forum ice Saturday night after blanking Canadiens, 3-0, before ten thousand people, in a National Hockey League fixture.

The game was won and lost in the first period. The pace from the start was furious, and Morenz, Joliat, Lepine and Gagne flashed up the ice in repeated combined efforts, only to be piled up on reaching Fraser and Trapp, and have the puck returned it the same way by Hay, MacKay, Irvin and company. Something had to give way and the Canadiens' defence was the first to crack. Micky MacKay secured and had only the Canadiens' outer guard to pass. He worked through, shot, and his momentum hurtled him into the nets and Hainsworth, and he went to the ice from the impact. When they got to their feet, the rubber was securely lodged in the back of the goal. From then on they presented a massed defence, with often the whole team behind the blue line, while the Canadiens were pressing feverishly and even when they sallied up the ice on occasional forays, there was always a third man hovering around the blue line in front of the regular squad.

The Canadiens skated themselves dead in their frantic efforts to count. They twisted, squirmed, and wriggled with incredible speed, until finally either their own speed beat them and they lost control of the puck or they were bottled up by swarming Black Hawks, closing in and sandwiching them.

Canadiens worked so feverishly that they could not muster the energy to skate back and check the Chicago forwards. When a Black Hawk broke loose with the puck, he was, three times out of four, free, with only the two defencemen to beat. All their goals were scored in that way. MacKay secured the second when he broke clear, in the second period, skated around Gardiner and fooled Hainsworth with a tricky wrist snap. The third and last came, in the final session, when Hay secured in the same way near centre and, outskating the defence, drove the puck into the upper corner with a terrific drive from the left wing.

The difference between the two teams was the difference between the two defences After the first period, in which both teams staked all on the attack, a Canadien sharpshooter never got a clear shot at Lehman in the Chicago nets. If they broke through at all, it was by means of a nose dive, which meant that they left the puck behind them, and if there was a scramble there was invariably a flying Black Hawk to come hurtling from nowhere and clear.

But hen they were baulked by the Black Hawks' defence, Canadiens did not cease to try. Their whirlwind efforts to break through, which brought their supporters to their feet but did not bring a goal, and which became less dangerous as legs refused to work, were intermingled with whistling drives, from farther out. But there was a reason why these attempts, too, met with failure—Eagle-eye Lehman, in the Black Hawks' goal. The former westerner played as big a part as any of his teammates in the shutout.

Individually the Canadiens outstarred the Black Hawks, and probably that was another reason for the result. Morenz and Joliat played flashier hockey than any of the visitors, but their frantic work was futile against the cool-headed, business-like efforts of MacKay, Hay, Trapp, and other Black Hawks, which consumed less energy and brought better results. True Chicago had a larger substitute list to draw from but they literally allowed Canadiens to skate themselves useless.

In future games, the French club will be strengthened with the addition of Izzy Hart, who has been secured from Detroit, and will be used to relieve Joliat.

M'CALLISTER TO SUCCEED 'TRIS' AS TRIBE PILOT

Will Attend American League Meeting as Indian's New Manager.

IS OHIO PRODUCT

Has Wide Experience as Coach and Scout in League.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press)—Jack McCallister, for 13 years scout and coach of the Cleveland Indians, will manage the Tribe during the 1927 season, E. S. Barnard, president of the club, has announced that McCallister has been appointed to succeed Tris Speaker, veteran outfielder who resigned as manager several weeks ago.

The announcement followed a consultation between McCallister and Barnard at Asheville, N.C., last week where they attended the National Baseball Association meeting. He will take charge of the team immediately and attend the American League meeting in Chicago next week as the Tribe's new chief.

Although McCallister never played a game in the big leagues, he was selected over more than a dozen applicants, some of whom have starred under the big top for years.

Wide experience as coach and scout and his knowledge of players in the American League led to his selection, Barnard said.

McCallister's many years' service with the team was given as another reason for his selection.

Jack is an Ohio product. He started in the sand lots of Marietta, Ohio, his home town, and from there went to Columbus, serving under Bobby Quinn, now president of the Boston Red Sox. At Hartford, where he played in the old Connecticut League, he attracted the attention of big league scouts and was slated to go to the St. Louis Cardinals when the season ended.

At the close of the season he played in a benefit game in his home town and while sliding to the plate split his knee cap. The injury kept him out of baseball for two years and he then went to Albany. In 1912 he went to Akron and the following year became scout for the Indians.

When Speaker became manager of the Indians, he became coach and chief lieutenant of the veteran campaigner. He devoted much of his time developing the infield and assisted Matty Matthews, battery coach for the Indians, in coaching the pitching staff.

Jack is well known in the American League and has the confidence of the Cleveland players. His knowledge of the American League players and of the weaknesses of clubs in the league was regarded as particularly in his favor, Bernard said.

MAROONS AND PIRATES BATTLE TO DEADLOCK

Herb Drury Believed to Have Received Fractured Hand in Collision.

ROUGH TUSSLE

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 13—(Canadian Press).— Pittsburgh hockey fans were more cheerful today and the reason was the comparatively good showing the Pirates made Saturday night when they held the Montreal Maroons to 2-2 deadlock in five periods of play. The Pirates had previously lost three consecutive games.

The battle, while one of the most interesting here this season was also very rough and these tactics may cause the Pirates to suffer another relapse as a result of injuries sufferd by Herby Drury, who is believed to have received a fractured hand in collision with an enemy skater. He was led off the ice in the first period and taken to a hospital for an examination.

The game was enlivened by a fist fight between Cotton, Pittsburgh, and Dutton, Montreal. They drew two-minute banishments.

The Pirates and their opponents both scored in the opening period with the Maroons adding another in the second, only to have Buccos deadlock with a tally in the third. In the two extra periods each side enacted some thrilling manoeuvers in efforts to register, but there was no letup or visible strain to the very end of the fray. Rough play increased in severity as the game progressed.

The Pirates' rejuvenation came in the face of rumors of a threatened shakeup which included whisperings that some of the players were to be "sold down river". Time will tell if last night's performance satisfied the Pirate management.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Since my last billydoo the Petes has been in and out of the S.P.A. serious. They clashed with them Kitchener Dutchmen Tues. night, and about all they got out of it was 80 minutes' hard work, and the satisfaction of feeling that when they got into shape the Dutchmen at least won't be unbeatable opposition. The K's had 6 workouts before Tues., and they was in better shape both individual and as a team than Mister Wright's lads, but the blue and whiters gave them 1 tough argument, and the result wasn't settled until the very last minute of the second overtime session. I know because I watched that last overtime with 1 eye on the clock and the other 1 on the game, figgering I was going to miss the last train home and wondering where I was going to kip if I had to stay over, and me with no peejamas neither.

Kitchener got 2 goals in the last 60 secs., and for the life of me I cant remember seeing any Peterboro players left out there but Mister Dwyer when the red lights come on. I know Mister Karges and Mister Dwyer battled for about ½ a minute before the second last goal was shot, and nobody interfered with them. Mister Karges worked his way inside and was neatly fooled by Mister Dwyer, but he picked up the rubber again and steamed in once more, and this time he flung it where Mister Dwyer wasn't. And then Mister Hiller slipped in with no more opposition than the Government control candidates got in Windsor and bagged another 1, 13 secs. after I was making the fastest move of the night Paddocking down Mutual st. looking for something on wheels that was going towards the station.

Mister Wright took a flock of subs with him, and it was well he did such, cause they helped take the blank look off the arena. The attendance when the game opened needed boosting, for they was whole sections without even a usher in sight, but the customers kept dropping in until they was a very respectable crowd there at the end of the 1st period. And they stayed, too, for the battle was interesting enough to hold them. Among the celebrities there was Mister I. Bailey, late capt. of the Petes, who did some lusty hollering for the champs to come through.

Well, Mac, the seniors, if they hold all they got, ain't going to be no light meal for nobody. They is plenty of speed and fight out there yet, and the team what spills them out of the O.H.A. race will be a mighty sweet aggregation. Let 'em get into shape and they're going to make a dint in somebody's reputation before the group is settled.

I can't think of nothing more I want to talk over with the customers this week, so I'll say good-day.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

M'NAMARA-PIETRO WIN BICYCLE RACE

41st Race By Margin of Several Hundred Sprinting Points.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (Canadian Press) — Reggie McNamara and Pietro Linari American-Italian combination, won the 41st six day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden Saturday night by a margin of several hundred sprinting points over the Italian team of Franco Georgetti and Gaetano Belloni. The two teams finished in a tie in distance covered.

A new record for stolen laps was set when 304 turns of the pine saucer were pilfered during the week. The former record was 303 set in Chicago last March.

The final standing of the teams:

Teams	Miles	Laps	Points
McNamara-Linari	2,286	9	884
Georgetti-Belloni	2,286	9	545	(one lap behind)
Winter-Stockholm	2,286	8	625	(two laps behind)

RANGERS WIN SUNDAY GAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The New York Rangers strengthened their hold on the lead in the American group of the National Hockey League Sunday by downing the Boston Bruins, 2 to 1, after four spasms of tough and troublous hockey. The teams were all even at the close of the three periods of regular play, and it took seven and a half minutes of fierce and savage warfare in the extra period before Murray Murdock, a useful Ranger spare, flung a goal and gave the coup de grace to the Boston hopes.

The Rangers were lively and aggressive—too aggressive, at times, for big "Ching" Johnson, their best bet on the defence, who was off the ice five times for penalties. There were 16 penalties all told, both teams sharing, so it can be seen that no quarter was asked or given. But the battling gave a great thrill to the 10,000 crowd, the biggest to watch hockey this year since the opening game of the year. There was not a moment of silence in any one of the spasms of play, and many a husky throat when it was over.

The Bruins can skate, and they are great followers-in, and they had a shade the best of it on team play, too, but the Rangers did the best individual work. Johnson scored the first gaol, unaided, and while this may not be sound hockey it is winning for the Rangers.

Jimmy Herberts, of the Bruins, was fined for using abusive language to the goal judge behind the Ranger net. The teams:

Boston—Goal, Stewart; defence, Cleghorn and Hitchman; centre, Oliver; wings, Herberts and Galbraith; subs, Cooper, Shore, Keats, Brien, Coutu and Stuart.

New York Rangers—Goal, Chabot; defence, Abel and Johnson; centre, Boucher; wings, Bill Cook and "Bun" Cook; subs, Boyd, Thompson, Mackey, Murdock and Rocco.

Officials— Lou E. Marsh and R. W. Hewitson, Toronto.

ENGLISH RACING SEASON MOST INTERESTING THIS YEAR

High Prices Offered By H. H. Aga Khan Feature Year.

CORONACH LEADER.

Lord Woolavington's Horse Wins Derby and St. Leger.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (United Press).—The most interesting racing season since 1913 ended recently. Industrial depression, increase of overhead charges, and other hindrances have made their influence felt, but the "Sport of Kings" is as big a power in the land as ever.

Among the features of the season were the introduction of a betting tax on November 1; the highest price ever paid for a yearling; and the highest price ever offered for a racehorse in any country. Reference is made to the Hurry On colt by Ecurie; which the Aga Khan purchased from the National stud for $80,000, and Solario whose owner refused an offer of $500,000 from the same gentleman.

Solario, Coronach, and Diomedes have been the outstanding horses of the last couple of years. They were horses in whose doings the whole British public were interested, and whom the public hated to see beaten.

Coronach, last season's best two-year-old, won this year's Derby and St. Leger in the style of a really good horse, crediting his owner, Lord Woolavington; the whisky magnate; with $200,000 in sakes. Solario, the unlucky horse in last year's Derby; won the St. Leger, the Coronation Cup at Epsom; and added to his laurels by winning the Gold Cup at Ascot, one of the most coveted honors of a season.

Diomedes, the fastest horse over a sprinting distance since the famous Mumtez Mahal, and Solario have ended their racing careers. Solario was bred in the purple and cost $1,750 as a yearling, but Diomedes was a despised yearling picked up for $1,000 at the Dublin Horse Show.

Among the juveniles it is doubtful if the season showed anything as good as Coronach. Pride of place probably goes to Damon, in the absence of his stable companion, The Satrap; who was sold to go to the United States. Damon, a grey son of Stefan the Great, won the Champagne stakes at Doncaster—a genuine test invariably won by a good horse.

In volume betting and attendances at the meets showed a decrease compared with last couple of years. Bettors fared badly in the majority of big races as the following list will show:

Lincolnshire—King of Clubs, 100 to 1.

Grand National Jack—Horner, 25 to 1.

Newbury Spring Cup—Rock Fire, 100 to 6.

Great Metropolitan—Kyra; 10 to 1.

2,000 Guineas—Colorado, 100 to 8.

1,000 Guineas—Pillion, 25 to 1.

Royal Hunt Cup—Cross Bow, 33 to 1.

Steward's Cup—Perhaps So, 100 to 6.

Cesarewitch—Myra Gray, 50 to 1.

Cambridge—Insight II, 50 to 1.

Insight II, by winning the Cambridgeshire, made a bit of turf history. His American owner, Mr. A. K. Macomber, won this race last year, as well as the Cesarewitch. The only other owners to win the Cambridgeshire twice are Mr. W. C. Whitney, an American, Capt. Forester and Mr. J. A. de Rothschild.

These forlorn outsiders in the betting list most frequently create surprises in handicaps. As far as the list of Derby winners go, a public fancy and a good horse triumphs 9 years out of 1. There have been winners like Aboyeur—a ghastly fluke if ever there was one—but on the whole there is nothing sensational in the great Epsom race.

As in recent years, the same pillars of the turf occupy the leading positions in the owners' list. Lord Woolavington, with the aid of Coronach, occupies the premier place, having won over $225,000 in stakes. Lord Derby, Astor and Rosebery, Sir Abe Bailey, Mr. Sol Joel, and H. H. Aga Khan come next with sums ranging from $150,000 to $75,000.

Racing on a most elaborate scale, these owners are big breeders and occupy position in like order in the scale of successful breeders.

Trainers who have netted most in stakes are F. Darling, A. Taylor, Hon. G. Lambton, Persse Day, Dawson, and the Jervis brothers. These are all "fashionable" trainers; patronized by the big owners. Wootton, the Australian, heads the list of "non-fashionable" trainers, and has nearly twice as many successes to his credit as any other. Reckoned by many acegoers to be the most astute trainer in England, he concentrates on minor events; has a wonderful knack of turning out successful jockeys; and is much feared and respected by the bookmakers who take no liberties when the stable connections are gambling.

Weston, for the first time, heads the jockey's list. Attached to Lord Derby's stable; he rides at a handy weight, and is regarded by some as the most brainy of present-day riders. Wragg, brainy of present-day riders. Wragg, Smirke; Fox, and Elliott followed close on each other's heels. All these, with the exception of Fox; are members of the younger generation; which plays so important a part in race-riding.

Fox is one of the so-called veterans. He was riding before the majority of the present stars appeared in the firmament, and, incidentally; he is going more strongly than ever. Childs and Donoghue, other representatives of the old school, are still conspicuous figures. Donoghue for years monopolized the honours, but these are now going round with a new "champion" at the end of each November.

In the list of successful sires; Hurry On comes first with nearly $300,000 to his credit. Phalaris comes next with $200,000 and Buchan third with $155,000.

Among the performers; Coronach stands supreme, with the great sum of $198,000, won in five races. Colorado; the Derby favorite, comes second with $53,000, followed by Pillion with $46,000. Thence in close order come Short Story (winner of the Oaks), Foxlaw (who defeated his stable companion; Solario, in a sensational finish at Newmarket), Foliation, Comedy King; Priscilla, Fourth Hand, The Satrap; Damon; and Solario.

The yearling sales compared very favorably with former years. Good prices were paid for good stuff, but there was no money for market for middle class horses. At Newmarket the average price realized was $2,835, and at December $5,610. Each time the figures mount and there seems to be no telling at what amount the selling or purchase of bloodstock will end.

A CAMERA HUNTER TELLS HIS TRICKS

Noted Photographer Reveals How to Make Wild Things "Shoot" Themselves.

Always exciting, and sometimes dangerous, is the work of the photographer whose thrill it is to trick wild creatures into having their pictures taken. The inhabitants of forest and field, water and air, are less willing to face the camera than humans, and the men who make outdoor photography their profession or hobby have to be more wily than their quarry.

Some of the secrets of these hunters who find the camera more exciting than the gun, are revealed by William Nesbit, noted amateur photographer, whose experiences are described in the December iss ue of "Popular Science Monthly."

Many of the best animal pictures are taken with flashlight snares. Flash lamps are connected with wires stretched across a trail or baited, so that when the animal takes the bait he fires the flash powder and takes his own picture.

Anyone can set this sort of trap and probably "catch" something right near his own home, says Mr. Nesbit, for more small animals roam about at night than most of us know. Skunks, raccoons, opossums, rabbits are the commonest prowlers.

Most of these animals fall for a cheese sandwich bait. Mr. Nesbit cuts small pieces from the sides of the cheese so that the cheesecloth will be on the two outer sides when folded together. Then wire is wrapped around the sandwich, which is hung from an upright to protect it from mice. Sometimes animals are lured into the "studio" by a bait line, leading in that direction. A trail of salt or vegetables is especially enticing. For an artistic background for the animal to pose against as he nibbles the cheese sandwich, branches, ferns or rocks are arranged. Then the camera is fixed, pointed toward the place the animal is expected to occupy—twelve feet away for a small animal, twenty for a large.

Some animals, like celebrities, get sued to the spotlight and come back for more. One skunk returned to the same trap five nights running, not minding the flash and bang so long as he got his sandwich. Mr. Nesbit had to break a cat of the same habit by a load of salt fired into its whiskers when the flash went off.

There are all kinds of ruses to outwit the birds you want to photograph, says Mr. Nesbit. One is to put a feeding station on your window sill and take the picture from inside. To photograph a woodpecker put suet in the crevices of the bark of a tree, but if you want to get his head while he is pecking you need a shutter speed of 1-300th of a second.

FAMILY NOW PARTED

Above are shown Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, his son, Charles Spencer, and his wife, the former Lita Grey, who has left her husband and declares she will never return. The marital break came when, it is said, Charlie ordered an end to an early morning party at the Chaplin Beverly Hills mansion. His wife say he referred at times to her friends as "common."

"SCANDALS" CHORUS NEARLY STEALS FILM

Beautiful "Black Bottom" Dancers Hired for One Scene Eagerly Apply for Work as Extras.

When Johnny Hines pressed two dozen Broadway chorus beauties into service for his latest First National Picture, "Stepping Along," which comes today to the Regent Theatre, he little suspected that he had twenty-four young women in his picture that were intent on having a movie career.

The girls are all members of the famous "Black Bottom" dance chorus that surround Ann Pennington in her sensational number of George White's "Scandals," and in the filming of the comedy they repeated this number before a battery of cameras on the stage of the Selwyn Theatre

The next day the comedian and his director, Charles Hines, decided to film shots of the audience from numerous angles. A call for extras went out. Much to the surprise of Johnny the "Scandals" beauties made their appearance in evening gowns and took their places in prominent parts of the audience composed of pretty close to a thousand extras.

Wanted More

Not content with this, a half dozen of the girls appeared at the studio to furnish real atmosphere when studio shots were taken of scenes back-stage in the theatre.

And now they're all mobbing Johnny for more movie work.

So Johnny has a new warning about chorus girls: "Don't give them an inch, or they'll take a mile—of film!"

At that Johnny, like everyone else in the unit, is tickled to death at the way the girls enhanced the show.

"George White knows his stuff," Johnny affirms.

Mary Brian plays opposite the star in the gay story of New York's show and political life.

THE WORLD IN PICTURES

BABE RUTH WILL SEEK $150,000 AS SALARY FOR NEXT SEASON

Is Not Worrying About It Now, As He Is Busy.

IN VAUDEVILLE.

"Jake Will Do Right Thing," He Says When Asked.

(By Henry L. Farrell, United Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (United Press).—Babe Ruth, as soon as he gets through with $100,000 worth of vaudeville work, will return to New York and start training for a conversational bout with Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

As has been broadcast thoroughly, the Babe's 52,000 a year contract has expired and upon the genial boss of baseball's greatest player has fallen the burden to prove that the star slugger is not worth a lot more money than he has been paid.

Just after the world's series had finished, a series in which the Babe distinguished himself as one of the greatest players of all times by hitting four homers, getting eleven passes, making two of the greatest catches ever seen in any game and saving numerous runs by perfect throwing, Christy Walsh, his manager and adviser, remarked rather significantly:

"After what the Babe has done this year, he ought to be worth $150,000 a year to any man's ball club."

The remark was just as significant as those made by the well-known "White House Spokesman" in Washington, but the Babe had nothing to say officially. In his characteristic fashion, caring little for money when his pockets were bulging, the Babe said:

"I ain't got time to bother about that contract. I got a lot of exhibition games to play and a lot of acting to do. There's plenty of time. Jake'll do the right thing when we get down to it."

There is nothing stingy about the millionaire owner of the American League champions, but he is a first-class business man, and like the head of any big business organization—and the Yankees are a great business concern—he does not like to throw his money away. When he was told that the Babe might ask for almost three times the salary he has been getting, Ruppert acted very much like Harry Wills did when he was being pounded in the tummy by Jack Sharkey. His wind didn't function properly or regularly.

Leave it to the majority of fans and writers and they will tell you that the Babe is worth every cent of $150,000 a year to—Baseball. Judge Landis, drawing $50,000 as the figure-head high lord of baseball, was credited with saving the fair name of the game after the 1919 scandal, but Landis merely sold a name to the game.

The Babe saved baseball and made the sceptical fans forget about the Black Sox who threw the world's series to the Cincinnati Reds. The Babe was largely responsible for the four pennants that have been won by the Yankees since he was purchased for $100,000 from the Boston Red Sox. And he has returned a huge dividend on the money spent for his purchase and for the money paid to him in salary.

Ruth not only has been the instrument that made possible the million-dollar Yankee Stadium and a fortune to the New York club, but he was the solitary figure that made every club in the American League increase the seating capacity of its park. He made almost as much money in proportion to the investment, for the seven other clubs in the league as he made for the Yankees.

And therein lies an argument for Col Ruppert.

If the Babe is a financial asset for eight clubs in the league, why shouldn't those clubs agree to some plan whereby they should help to pay the salary of the biggest drawing card in baseball?

A New York newspaper conducted a straw vote asking its readers what was a fair salary for Ruth and there wasn't an answer that put the Babe's value at less than $100,000 a year. Many of the replies suggested that the other clubs in the league ought to help pay the Babe's salary. A number of plans were suggested along this line, the most practical of which was that each club outside of New York should pay the Babe a bonus of $500 for each game he plays on other fields.

The baseball that Babe played last season and in the world's series against the St. Louis Cardinals proved that he is one of the greatest all-around players of all time—perhaps the greatest.

COBHAM SCOFFS

to regard an aeroplane crash in the same light as an auto crash, the task of popularizing air travel would be difficult, he contended.

Plans for an air-liner service from Cairo to India, which would reduce the travelling time between England and India from three weeks to eight or nine days were revealed by Sir Alan, who also spoke of other proposed air routes from England and in Australia. Undoubtedly, if the ventures proved successful, Canada, by air-liner from England, would be the next route, he stated.

The private-owner aeroplane was the absolute root of the aircraft industry, Sir Alan asserted, because it killed the stunt in flying. It would make Tom, Dick and Harry fly, and they would not look on the flier as a superman. "I believe it is possible to teach any one to fly, provided they have normal intelligence," the noted pilot observed.

Greater activity in flying in Canada was urged by Sir Alan, who suggested the formation of aero clubs in different centres in the Dominion. These had proved decidedly successful in Australia and Great Britain, he said.

Greeting Cards

IF there is one time in the year when we should think of others, Christmas is surely that time."

So says Ethel Barrymore, one of America's most beloved actresses.

Of course, you will do your part, as always, to spread the spirit of Christmas. Christmas Cards express all the kindly, loving thoughts that are in your heart.

Make your list a large one. Beyond your friends and relatives lies a further opportunity for spreading happiness. Shut-ins, children in hospitals, orphanages, homes of the poor—what a world of happiness you can spread with Greeting Cards.

In The Examiner you will find a fresh, varied and beautiful assortment if you do your selecting early.

After the banquet the brethren returned to the hall, where a splendid exhibition of magic and sleight of hand was given by Bro. C. McDermott, assisted by Bros. A. Jobe and H. Bannon.

WARRANT SENT FOR ORMISTON

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 13. (Canadian Press).—A certified copy of the warrant and complaint on file here against Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive co-defendant in the Aimee Semple McPherson conspiracy case, charging conspiracy to defeat justice and subornation of perjury, has been forwarded by air mail to Chicago where the Angelus Temple radio onerator is now at liberty.

District Attorney Asa Keyes, who is in Philadelphia on private business, has telegraphed that he is taking steps to extradite Ormiston from Chicago to Los Angeles.

In the meantime an examination by Prof. Arthur R. Mass, texacologist, of threads found on an overcoat in Ormiston's automobile, which was recently found in Oakland, revealed that instead of being hairs from a woman's head, they are woollen fibres.

The examination further showed that the fibres were identical to those drawn from the woman's coat which was among the contents of the trunk seized in New York as allegedly belonging to Ormiston. Several strands of auburn hair were found on the seat of the automobile, Prof. Mass said.

The State is attempting to prove Mrs. McPherson swore falsely before the grand jury in telling her story of being kidnapped and taken to Mexico last spring, and that in reality she spent part of the time of her absence with Ormiston in a cottage at Carmel, Calif., an ocean resort.

After the election, impromptu speeches were given by the newly-elected officers and others, followed by refreshments and a social evening which was enjoyed by all present.

OBITUARY.

JOHN MALONEY.

There passed away in the township of Douro on Saturday, John Maloney, aged 84.

The funeral was held this morning to St. Joseph's church and cemetery.

EMMA DAVIS.

The death occurred yesterday of Emma Davis, beloved wife of Melville Jackson, of lot 22, concession 14, Cavan. She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband and one daughter, Erma.

The funeral will be held on held on Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the family residence, Cavan, with interment in Omemee cemetery, Rev. Mr. Weir officiating.

THOMAS HOPKINS

The death occurred on Friday evening of one of Peterborough's oldest resident in the person of Mr. Thomas Hopkins. The deceased was born in Ireland, coming to Peterboro over 50 years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss one son, Daniel Hopkins, Peterboro and one daughter, Mrs. William J. Dick of Brantford. The funeral took place from the home of his daughter to Greenwood cemetery on Sunday afternoon. The late Mr. Hopkins was a life long member of the Orange Society.

JOHN F. BEST.

The funeral of the late John Frances Best took place Saturday morning from the family residence, East Ops, at 9.30 to St. Mary's church, Lindsay, where requiem High mass was celebrated by Rev. C. J. Carroll. Present in the sanctuary were the Rev. Dean Whibbs, Rev. P. J. Galvin, a cousin of the deceased, and Rev. H. A. Black.

Pallbearers were Adolphe Blanchard, Harold Fleming, Harold Hawkins, Cyril Fox, Harry O'Reilly and Leo Tully.

The deceased was a young man of exemplary character, and resided at his home until a year and a half ago, when he accepted a position with Sears Roebuck & Co., of Chicago, returning home two months ago. Since then he has been in ill health. The many spiritual and floral offerings received testify the high esteemed in which the deceased was held by all who knew him. He leaves to mourn his loss, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Best, three brothers and three sisters, Thomas J. of Peterborough, Joseph and Allen, of Port Arthur, Catharine of Chicago, Theresa of Lindsay, and Fabian at home.

Relatives of this city who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Best, and his aunts, Mrs. W. J. Young and Miss Mary Best and Mrs. R. W. Carson.

The sympathy of the entire community is tendered the bereaved family.

IN MEMORIAN

SIMPSON.—In loving memory of Marguerite Doreen Simpson, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Simpson, who passed away December 13th, 1922.

Although the blow was most severe
And almost broke our hearts;
Yet we believe that God knows best;
Though it was hard to part.
Sleep on, our precious treasure,
Upon thy Saviour's breast;
God give us grace to meet you there,
In that sweet land of rest.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Astrologers read this as a most fortunate day, for Venus, the Sun Jupiter and Uranus are all in benefic aspect.

Women who desire positions or employment of any sort should make use of every opportunity to seek the right place while this configuration prevails.

It is a lucky wedding day making for success in marriage and rapid rise to prosperity.

Theatres again come under the best possible sway, for it indicates approval from the most august personages and interest among the intellectuals.

Motion pictures also partake of the good fortune that apparently will affect the stage and many new inventions will promote their vogue.

Amusement of every sort are to become more and more popular in the United States where athletics as wel as other recreations will benefit.

The signs today are most encouraging to persons in the sun, including governors of states of big business enterprises.

Again merchants and manufacturers should benefit, for the stars forecast a holiday expenditure that will bring large profits.

Uranus gives good hope for education and all sorts of intellectual development. Many new college buildings are to be constructed and Universities are to receive large endowments.

There is a sign indicating inventions of a sort little dreamed of, even by the most advanced scientists and cleverest Yankees.

Aviation is under the most stimulating influences and astrologers forecast the comomn use of airplanes within a decade.

Hotel keepers should rejoice for the stars promise them prosperity. They are to harbor many more guests next year than ever before in this country, it is predicted.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of extraordinary progress and prosperity.

Children born on this day are believed to be rarely fortunate. These subjects of Sagittarius usually have no difficulty in finding for their life work just what is most desired.

JUDGE HUYCKE DISMISSES CASE

Judgment Delivered in Case of Wm. E. Stewart Vs. Mrs. Mabel Wood.

Judgment was delivered this morning by His Honor Judge Huycke in an action brought by William E. Stewart, formerly of the Township of North Monaghan against Mrs. Mabel Wood and Mr. S. R. Pearson, for damages for an unlawful and excessive seizure of the plaintiff's goods and chattels and for distress and forcible entry and for an injunction restraining Mrs. Wood as landlord from collecting the rent claimed to be due and owing under the terms of the lease. Mrs. Wood contended that the lease was renewed and Mr. Stewart paid his rent for the coming year under protest.

Mr. Stewart's action was dismissed with costs.

Mr. Coulter of Cayuga appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. G. W. Hatton, K.C., for Mrs. Wood, and Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., for the defendant, Pearson.

IN POLICE COURT.

Two local youths appeared this morning on charges of having stolen a quantity of pork, the property of the American Hotel.

They were represented by V. J. McElderry, who pleaded not guilty on their behalf.

At the request of the Crown the accused were remanded until next Monday, being permitted bail in the meantime.

NOTED ORGANIST IS PLAYING HERE

J. W. Bearder Will Give Recital at St. Paul's To-night.

OPENS NEW ORGAN.

J. W. Bearder, Muc. Bac., F.R.C.O., organist and choirmaster of All Saints Anglican Church, Ottawa, who will present a fine programme of organ numbers at the recital to be given in St. Paul's church this evening, on the occasion of the opening of the new organ, was recently elected president of the Canadian College of Organists. A few facts regarding his career are contained in the following outline:

Mr. John W. Bearder, Mus. Bac., F. R. C. O., was born in North Bierly, Bradford, Yorkshire, Eng., in 1872, his father being the schoolmaster and choir leader of the parish church, and also a well known singer and member of the Handel Festival Choir. His first musical instruction was received at home from his stepmother and at the age of 8 he became a chorister. Two years later he was articled to S. Midgley, a pupil of Reinecke, for piano study, and to W. H. Garland, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O., for organ work. He was also a pupil for seven years with W. Cooke of Bradford, in the study of the violin. Received his first appointment at the age of 12 and at the same time was made deputy-organist at the church at which he served as chorister where for three years he played at four services each Sunday. At 17 he was appointed organist of the Eastbrook Methodist church then the largest church of this denomination in England, with a seating capacity of 3500. Three years later he went to Holy Trinity, Queensbury, the home of the famous Black Dike band, leaving this post after 3 years to go to the beautiful church of St. Matthew's, Chapel-Allerton, Leeds.

Mr. Bearder was the winner of the Mrs. Sunderland open competition for all Yorkshire for pianoplaying, and has been conductor of several choral societies, among them being Bramhope, and Chapel-Allerton. Was organist at the Leeds Coliseum for Messrs. Haddocks and Sheffield Choir concerts, and was the well-known accompanist at the Leeds Art Gallery concerts.

Since coming to Canada in 1907 he has occupied the post of organist and choirmaster at St. Peter's, Sherbrooke, where he gave over 150 organ recitals. Received the appointment at All Saints', Ottawa, in 1913, where he has given over 100 recitals. Since 1915 has been Director of Music of the Collegiate Institute. Mr. Bearder is the holder of diplomas of Licentiate Pianist, Incorporated Society of Musicians, London, Eng.; Fellow of the Royal College of Organists; Hon. Licentiate Dominion College of Music, and Musical Bachelor of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, where he is also Examiner for Degrees. For the past five years he has been chairman of the Local Centre of the Canadian College of Organists.

Of Miss Edith Champion of Toronto, soprano soloist at this evening's recital, Hal Frank, in Toronto "Saturday Night," says:

Miss Edith Champion, pupil of Mr. Carl Hunter, gave a song recital in the Conservatory of Music Hall ast Thursday evening, and indicated that she has a bright future ahead of her. Miss Champion has a soprano of rare purity and of a tender, lyrical quality. She seems happiest in the gentler themes, and it was noteworthy that her program was made up largely of these. I was unfortunate enough to miss the Pergolesi and Wagner numbers which opened the program, so am unable to comment on those, but her singing of the Schubert and Schumann numbers in the second group was delightful. When not striving for too great a tone, there is a flawless liquidity to Miss Champion's voice that falls decidedly pleasant on the ear.

A feature of the program were four songs from a volume by Dr. Willan just published, each a scholarly musical expression of gentle or resigned moods, and each given a splendid interpretation by the singer. Miss Champion was accompanied by Mr. Hunter and by Dr. Willan.

DRIVER ARRESTED.

GALT, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Henry Clements of 31 Todd Street, deaf and dumb, was almost instantly killed on Water Street North Saturday evening about 7.15 o'clock, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Harry Mink of Hanover. She expired a couple of minutes after being carried into a grocery store, which she had left only a few minutes before. With her husband, who is also deaf and dumb, decedent had purchased week-end supplies. As they crossed the street Mr. Clements was a few feet ahead of his wife, and the motorist said he turned to the side to avoid hitting the man and did not see the woman.

Mink, who has been working here for the past six or seven weeks, was on his way home, accompanied by Albert Seip, a fellow-worker from Clifford. Mink was arrested by Sergeant Burtch, and his companion has remained with him ever since. The late Mrs. Clements had been a resident here for many years and would have been 44 years of age had she lived until today. She is survived by her husband and a son, 16 years of age, who is living with relatives in Ingersoll.

Guthrie Criticizes Conference Report In Opening Debate

Will Make More Exhaustive Criticism When Premier Interprets Report—Debate on Speech From Throne Opens in Commons.

REPLY MOVED BY AUGER, YOUNGEST MEMBER OF HOUSE

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 14—In the present session domestic problems will be subservient to constitutional and Imperial issues arising out of the recent conference, if yesterday's debate on the address is indicative of the trend of sentiment in the House of Commons. Next to the Imperial issues will be the problems of the Maritime Provinces, and the remedies proposed in the Duncan report for their rehabilitation.

Concluding his criticsm of the Imperial Conference report, Hon. Hugh Guthrie, referring to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, who helped frame it, declared: "I guarantee that he will not vote this report through this House in its present form. I guarantee he dare not do so; it will have to be changed; it will have to be limited ,otherwise on some future day it will spell disaster to this country."

Mr. Guthrie made an exhaustive criticism, as far as possible, until the interpretation of the report is given by Canada's representatives, and this Premier King did not do last night deferring it until the report is before Parliament for adoption. In his analysis of the report and its probable effects, the Opposition leader claimed the constitutional issue was not on the agenda for the Imperial Conference and no opportunity for discussion or consideration had been given the Canadian people, Canadian Parliament, or the Canadian representatives to the confesence previous to the conference. This, he said, was a departure from constitutional practice, as Confederation, when Canada's constitution was adopted, was the work of a constitutional convention representative of all parties.

Debate on the Speech from the Throne was opened in the House by L. M. Auger (Liberal, Prescott), with the galleries well crowded.

Mr. Auger, speaking in French, expressed the deepest thanks of himself and his fellow French-Canadians in Ontario for the honor conferred upon him by the Government in nominating him as the mover of the address. He expressed a hearty welcome to Canada's new Governor-General, Lord Willingdon, "whose high reputation as a diplomat was well-known."

The work of Premier Mackenzie King at the Imperial Conference was worthy of commendation, stated Mr. Auger. He also congratulated Speaker Lemieux on his re-election as Speaker and Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative leader, on his election as House chieftain of the official Opposition.

The legislation promised in the Speech from the Throne, said Mr. Augur, was wise and proper, especially measures promised for the Maritime Provinces and the re-introduction of the legislation respecting rural credits and old-age pensions.

Reduce National Debt.

Since 1921, the Government had reduced the national debt and taxation and by continuing in office prosperity would continue to increase.

The patriotism and broad-mindedness of Canada's delegates to the Imperial Conference had done much to solve the Empire's problems. The complete autonomy of the Dominions will strengthen the Imperial tie. The appointment of the Hon. Vincent Massey to Washington had been popular throughout the country. It was a consequence of Mr. Lapointe's gesture of 1923 when he signed directly for Canada the treaty with the United States.

A. E. McPherson (Liberal, Portage la Prairie), seconding the motion, asked the indulgence of the House for himself as a new member. He had been chosen, he said, to second the address because of the constituency he represented. It was the only one which had elected two members because the result was a tie and there was no provision for a casting vote.

Portage la Prairie also had Sir John A. MacDonald for its representative, and many other brilliant men. One of these was Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen whom Mr. McPherson described as "a warm personal friend of mine with whom I only disagreed on one thing. Whether he was right, or I was right, posterity must decide," added Mr. Me

Pistol Duel Is Sequel To An Old War Quarrel

DETROIT, Dec. 14.—Hassan Ali, 29 years old, 600 Macomb Street, and Malo Checho, 38 years old, of the Detroit Hotel, are in a critical condition in the Receiving Hospital as the result of a pistol duel between the two men Thursday afternoon in a coffee house at 413 Monroe Avenue. According to the police, the men met the other day for the first time in a number of years and as soon as they saw each other, they drew pistols and began firing at each other. The police say the battle was the result of a quarrel started years ago in Albania.

Ali has a gunshot wound in his chest and Checho has a more serious wound in the abdomen.

KING WELCOMES NEW MEMBERS

Says Source of Gratification That So Many Old Members Returned.

DISCUSSES REPORT.

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—After extending congratulation to Hon. Hugh Guthrie as Conservative House leader, and to the mover and seconder of the address, Premier Mackenzie King, who resumed the debate when the House of Commons convened after dinner last night, said it was a source of gratification that so many old members of Parliament had been returned. He welcomed the new members. Referring to the absence of Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Mr. King said he was not going to pronounce any valedictory, "as I am not sure he will not be back again." He said Canada was fortunate in having so able a statesman as Viscount Willingdon for Governor-General. He then launched into a discussion of the report on the Imperial Conference. After reading the designation of the Governor-General as having the same relationship to the government of Canada as the King had to the Government of Great Britain, he said: "The important thing is that His Excellency is the representative of His Majesty, is a viceroy and not the representative of the British Government or any department of the British Government.

Premier King said he had not yet had sufficient time to give the consideration he wished to give to the Martiime report or of having conferences with his colleagues about it to an extent that would enable him to make a pronouncement as to what the Government's legislation would be as a result of its recomemndations. His announcement would be made later in the session.

The Premier intimated that a day would be set apart for discussion in the House on the Imperial Conference report. Any amendment to any portion of the report would be properly considered. No member of Parliament had been bound, he said, by the report.

Lita Grey Chaplin May Ask Annulment

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Lita Grey Chaplin, estranged wife of Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, has intimated that she may follow the lead of the former Consuelo Vanderbilt and Guglielmo Marconi by applying for a religious annulment of her marriage to the film comedian.

"I know my rights in such matters, such as an appeal to the court of the rota at Rome. I have been informed that because Mr. Chaplin was a divorced man when I married him I am in a position to further these rights," Mrs. Chaplin said.

SMITH TAKES OWN LIFE AFTER KILLING SHERIFF

Seriously Wounds Deputy Sheriff in Attempt To Resist Arrest.

PROPERTY QUARREL.

Had Threataened To Shoot Boule and Beaumont Day Before.

MONTREAL Dec. 14 (Canadian Press)—After shooting and killing High Constable Eugene Messier, of East Farnham, and seriously wounding deputy Sheriff Arthur Jamieson, of Waterloo, Que., a town 60 miles southeast of Montreal, Wilfred Delorme, a blacksmith of Savage's Mills, Que., shot himself in the heart and died in a room at the Brooks House, Waterloo, shortly after 11:45 o'clock yesterday morning. Delorme had just been placed under arrest by the two officers and was leading them into his room in the hotel to give up his weapon when he suddenly turned upon them and blazed away.

Coroner C. P. Verdon, M.D., of Granby, held a jury inquest at which a verdict of murder was returned, followed by a second of suicide.

Deputy Sheriff Arthur Jamieson, who was wounded seriously in the right arm, was able to testify at the inquest and was the main witness. He was forced however, to go home after the session, and it will be a few days before he will be able to get about again.

Evidence which was heard by the jury showed that Delorme had some time ago purchased some property from Alphonse Beaumont and the deeds had been passed before Notary Boule, of Waterloo. Later Delorme conceived the idea that he had been cheated or fooled in the deal and on Sunday afternoon he met Beaumont in Boule's office and there were hot words. The quarrel ended with Delorme drawing his revolver and threatening to shoot both Boule and Beaumont.

Yesterday morning Boule swore out a warrant against Delorme charging him with threatening, and it was handed to High Constable Messier and to Deputy Sheriff Arthur Jamieson, son of Sheriff Jamieson, to serve.

THE WEATHER.

After a few days of mild weather, wintry conditions are again with us. Variety is said to be the spice of life, and changes in the weather ... perhaps after all a good thing It has been said by a number that owing to so much rain this past fall, the snowfall this winter would be light. In this connection I received yesterday a short note from Dan Whetung, written from his wigwam at the Chemong Indian Reserve. He says: "I guess the people begin to see that I am right, so far. I was telling them that there is lots of snow coming this winter. They said, 'No snow this winter. It has been so much rain last summer. Where would the snow come from?' Just wait." All through this part of the country swamps are full to overflowing and every creek and lake is up to high water mark. A heavy fall of snow this winter, if it went off rapidly in the spring, might prove to be disastrous. We will only hope that Dan may prove to be a false prophet.—W. P.

LIBERAL DRIVE AGAINST LEADER IN FULL SWING

Offensive Against Lloyd George Intensified at Dinner Party.

RIFT GREATER.

Baldwin Urged To Tackle Industrial Problem of Unemployment.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The offensive against Lloyd George on the part of dissentient Liberals, led by Viscount Grey and Sir John Simon, was in full swing last night at a dinner party given to express confidence in Vivian Phillips as chairman of the party organization, whom Lloyd George is trying to eject because he is a devoted adherent of Lord Oxford.

Lloyd George has retreated to the south of France for a short holiday, but is still retaining a firm grip on the party funds and is still seeking a working alliance with Labor. Meanwhile Sir John Simon, speaking at Kirkheaton says, "The Liberal party is not likely to be bought, because it has no intention of being sold. I know very well that what the remarkable man Lloyd George says at one time is no sure indication of what he will do at another."

Greater Than Ever

The rift in the Liberal ranks is greater than ever now, but Lloyd George believes that he can win the balance of power at the next election whether Grey or Oxford is with him or not.

Unemployment

An attempt to stir the Baldwin government to grapple with the industrial problem of unemployment will be made by Lord Weir, one of Britain's foremost industrial leaders in the House of Lords today. He calls for establishment of a better spirit between employers and employed in a motion which is before the upper house. The occasion will afford an opportunity for government speakers to reveal exactly what Premie Baldwin's "peace in industy" policy is.

Kingston Aldermen Think Deputies May Have Been Confused.

BY-LAW VOTE.

KINGSTON, Ont., Dec. 14. — (Special). — Believing that the deputy returning officers may have made a mistake as a result of having five by-laws to check up in the recent municipal election, the City Council will ask the County Judge to conduct a scrutiny into the ballots cast on the by-law asking for the sanction of the ratepayers of an expenditure of $25,000 on repairs and alterations to the Fair Grounds. The by-law required a majority vote, and the vote stood, for 851, against 853.

Four Boys Are Killed While Coasting On Hill

LITTLE FALLS, N.Y., Dec. 14 (Associated Press). — Four boys were killed in a coasting accident here last night. Their bob-sled was struck by a motor truck on the steepest hill in the city.

The dead are Philip Casullo, 14; John Casullo, 12; Michael Lamana, 14, and Michael Bucenoa, 13. Three were killed instantly, the fourth died soon afterward.

The truck driver, Claude Eberle, 19, and his companion, Edward Stack, were arrested. They are alleged to have attempted to escape after removing the license plate.

EVERY FARMER BENEFITS SAY COMPANY HEAD

President of United Farmers' Co-operative Co. Addresses Annual Meeting.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Shareholders Hear of Advances and Are Asked To Pass Dividend.

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—"There is no farmer in Ontario who has not, directly or indirectly, derived some benefit from the United Farmers' Co-operative Company," Harry A. Gilroy, of Alvinston, president, asserted in his address to the shareholders in the Massey Hall to-day. The company was maintaining its business at a high volume, Mr. Gilroy stated, and the total turnover was approximately twenty million dollars. "Almost every department shows a credit balance on the year's operations," he declared.

"The board of the company, foreseeing the trend toward pool principles," Mr. Gilroy went on, "started an egg pool, which has been very successfully operated for the past two years. The seed pool was then formed and operated along similar lines. The creamery is operated along pool principles, though not strictly 'pool.'" Mr. Gilroy stated the shareholders would be asked to ratify a board resolution looking to the formation of an Ontario grain pool. Through the co-operation of western grain pools, the company was handling a considerable quantity of Ontario winter wheat for export.

"The board," Mr. Gilroy added, "recommends that the shareholders authorize payment of a dividend of four per cent. on the paid-up capital stock for the current year."

A surplus of current assets over current liabilities, this amounting to $121,072, was reported by H. B. Clemes of Toronto, general manager. Current assets were $713,374 and current liabilities $592,302.

A profit on the year's operations amounting to $60,800 was also reported by Mr. Clemes.

Mr. Clemes stated he believed this, the 13th annual report, to be the most satisfactory balance sheet ever presented to the shareholders.

Total impairment at the beginning of the year, according to Mr. Clemes' report, was $565,801, which was reduced by the net profit of $60,800 to $505,000. This made the net working capital $370,642, which would be reduced if a dividend, as recommended, was authorized by the shareholders.

The first international cable chess match between British and American teams was played just 30 years ago for a trophy presented by the late Sir George Newnes.

England No Country For Seri ous Musician, Says Beecham Advises Infusian of Monk ey Glands in Brain of People

BELFAST, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press) — England is no country for serious musicians, says Sir Thomas Beecham, composer and grand opera impresario. The only people in England who are really serious are those who manage to get on the dole, and they have no intention of getting off it. Asked if he had any panacea, Sir Thomas remarked:

"Extract the brains from the public; pickle them; put them in the natural history museum with a strong infusion of monkey gland, stir hard, and let it simmer for 100 years and take it out again. Something may emerge from the mixture."

Sir Thomas assailed the government for allowing "dirty American films" to penetrate through the Empire. "I would take every one of them and consign them into the sea" the famous musician said. He added that he was going to the United States to stay.

SAYS MERCHANT MARINE SOLICIT LIQUOR TRADE

Director of Consolidated Exporters Seeks To Justify Scottish Importation.

RESHIPPING TO U. S.

Would Handle Shipment For Twenty Shillings More on Ton.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—When the Customs Commission resumed yesterday Russell Whitelaw, one of the directors of the Consolidated Exporters, was examined by N. W. Rowell, K.C. Witness said his company now controlled a brewery, a distillery and a number of export houses. The witness said that, as far as he knew, Consular invoices were unnecessary for liquor shipment to Mexico.

Asked by Mr. Rowell whether he knew of a single shipment or even a single case of liquor shipped to Mexico or Central America ever having been landed in these countries, Mr. Whitelaw said: "I don't know."

Mr. Whitelaw said he did not think the Government of Canada was interested in these shipments as long as none of the liquor came back to Canada. On two occasions, said witness, a former Minister of Customs had stated that he did not care how much liquor went to the United States as long as none of it came back into the Dominion. Also, while other steamship companies had refused to handle in transit liquor shipments for Mexican ports from Scotland to Vancouver, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine had accepted the job.

"They said they would handle the shipment but would want twenty shillings more a ton," said Mr. Whitlaw. "We thought we could not associate with anyone better than the Dominion Government and that we were quite safe."

"Who made this arrangement with you?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"It was made by our London agent, William Wooley, with the London office of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine and confirmed by the Montreal office of the Merchant Marine," said Mr. Whitelaw.

"Who, in Montreal, confirmed the arrangements?" asked Mr. Rowell.

Mr. Whitelaw did not know, but promised to write to London and get the correspondence which would give all particulars.

MEN HOLD MEETING IN NEW BUILDING

George Street United Society Holds Regular Gathering.

At last, after waiting three long months, the men of George Street United Church were able to hold their third regular meeting in the newly modelled Sunday school hall on Monday evening.

During the luncheon provided by Mr. Sam. Oke's committee, and served from the newly equipped kitchen, Mr. C. S. Thompson read the club's paper, the "Gas-Bag," a witty and capricious chronicle bearing out the thought, "Give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you," which was much appreciated.

The programme consisted of musical numbers by the Sunday School orchestra's quartette and Mr. Brian, after which short 'extempore' speeches were given. Among the contestants were the following: Dr. J. E. Middleton, Dr. A. P. Brown, Mr. McGiffin, Mr. Stan. Kerneghan, Mr. H. G. Walker and Mr. G. C. Staples. The speeches varied greatly from "Shouldn't we have compulsory voting in all civic and provincial elections?" to "Is it right to take church holidays and go carriding during July and August?" The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

SAVES A MARK.

Vases of crockery are often so porous that they leave water rings on polished wood, even though the bottom is dry when set down. Use small doilies under them.

Woman Escape Guillotine 41-Year Record Stands

PARIS, Dec. 14 (Associated Press).—No woman has been executed in France since 1886 and the record will not be broken now, President Doumergue having intervened to save Mrs. Lefebvre from the guillotine.

She was found guilty of shooting and killing her daughter-in-law as she rode in an automobile. Jealousy over her son's affection for his wife was said to have been the motive. The sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment.

Only a few women have been sentenced to death in recent years and the Pardons Commission heeded pleas for clemency for all except Mme. Lefebvre.

SAYS COUNCIL IS SATISFIED

Enlargement of League Did Not Distract From Its Harmonious Operations.

EVERYONE HAPPY.

LONDON, Dec. 24 (Canadian Press).—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, returning from Geneva to London last night, expressed the opinion that enlargement of the League Council from nine to fifteen members did not detract from its harmonious operation.

Alluding to the many difficulties surmounted at Geneva, he remarked on the conciliatory spirit displayed and the fact that the attithde of the German Government was not intractible, as had been feared.

"All of us," he added, "have came away happy."

The date, January 31, for the withdrawal of Allied military control, Sir Austin explained, was chosen because it was the anniversary of the evacuation of Cologne.

"No sensational developments," he concluded, "should now be expected, but we may fairly hope for steady progress in the policy begun at Locarno."

U. S. REVENUE STAMP FORGED

Head of B. C. Liquor Export House Admits Using Fake Labels.

AT CUSTOMS PROBE.

VANCOUVER, Dec. 14.—(Canadian Press.)—George Reifel, president of the Joseph Kennedy Company, liquor export house of British Columbia, admitted at yesterday's hearing of the Customs Royal Commission that he had forged the internal revenue stamp of the United States on liquor bottles. During his evidence, Mr. Reifel produced a number of labels which, he said, were used by the British Columbia distillery to cover liquor distilled in this province. One of them testified that the liquor had been distilled under the supervision of the United States' government officers.

The labels purported to cover liquor distilled in the United States.

"And you forged the internal revenue stamp of the United States and put it over the top," Mr. Rowell said to the witness.

"Yes," admitted Mr. Reifel.

Deaf and Dumb Bandit Unable To Get Anything

LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., Dec. 14. — United Press. — A deaf and dumb crime wave rolled into New Jersey yesterday, but did little damage because rural Jerseyites failed to comprehend what all the gun waving was about. Not until Robert Schneider, 17 years old, wrote it all out on a pad, at the police station, did the puzzled natives and police know that he claimed to be a bandit.

Schneider can neither speak nor hear. His apprehension followed a singular experience by Mrs. Benjamin Johnson, an aged widow living in an isolated section between Sergeantsville and Stockton.

"There has been a crazy man here," she told the police.

"He came in and squawked, and waved a gun in each hand. My stars! I was so frighted and —"

"Did he take anything?"

"No; he just kind of sighed after a while and went away."

WON'T ENFORCE POWER FACTOR LAW JUST YET

Utilities Commission Gives Manufacturers Six Months' Notice.

REGULAR MEETING.

Much Business Transacted By Commission—Douro Rate Fixed.

A communication was received from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario yesterday at the regular meeting of the Utilities Commission about enforcing the power factor clause. The Ontario Commission wished this power factor clause to be enforced right away but the Utilities Commission decided to give the power users of this city six months' notice so that the large manufacturers would be able to rectify any loss of power in their equipment and to notify the Hydro Commission that they were notifying their power users that the clause would be enforced in six months.

The clause says that the minimum power factor when operating the consumers' maximum load shall be 80 per cent. for loads up to 10 h.p., 85 per cent. for loads over 10 h.p. and up to 100 h.p., and 90 per cent. for loads over 100 h.p.

Auditor Objects.

The Hydro auditor objected to the Peterboro Commission paying the premiums for the insurance of its employees, and he thought these premiums should not be charged to users of light and power. The Commission looked upon the matter as a private affair and referred it to R. R. Hall, K.C., for advice in the matter.

Vacancy Rates.

A few water users have been objecting to the vacancy rate. Those who have small houses find that when these houses are not occupied the vacancy rate cases is as high, and in some cases higher, than the regular charge. They also have to pay $1.00 for shutting off the water and the same amount for turning it on when the house becomes occupied. The Utilities Commission must have 10 per cent. on their investment, and in many cases the engineer pointed out that it cost more than $1.00 to turn off or on the water, so in these few unfortunate cases it does not seem fair, but the Commission thought they were receiving only what was coming to them.

The different fire insurance policies which the Commission carries were examined and some cancelled or the amount reduced.

A communication was received from the Hydro Commission, giving the rates to be charged in the township of Douro as this township has refused to go in with North Monaghan, Smith and Otonabee and form a rural branch. The rates in Douro will be somewhat greater, power being charged for at 4 cents and 2 cents, with a 10 per cent. discount.

The Little Lake Cemetery water bill was discussed, and it was decided to charge the Cemetery Board $10.00 a month, plus the meter rate, as they come on in the summer when there is the peak load and they have a poor system of distributing water.

The communication re giving the Boy Scouts free light in their toy workshop was refused, as the Commission does not wish to start this sort of thing, as other organizations would desire the same consideration.

The Hydro Commission wrote accepting the valuation of the Commission's lines outside of the city. These lines were valued at $30,386.80 plus $807.91, which was spent on them this year.

A. Coughlin's communication about a water main on Euclid Avenue was referred to the engineer. The engineer reported that much of the trouble of interference in radio on the Commission's lines had been cleared up.

The Commission refused to extend its water mains into the township of Smith and having to issue debentures charging the people of this city for the cost of the mains.

BAILIFF VERY ILL.

Charles St. Charles, Recently Wounded, Stricken With Pneumonia.

MADOC, Dec. 14. — Bailiff St. Charles developed pneumonia last night and is very low today. He was considered well on the way to recovery from wounds inflicted some weeks ago, but now is not expected to live through the day.

LAKE SHIPPING AGAIN IN DANGER

Northwest Gale Sweeps Lake Superior and Tie-up Is Feared.

LOCKS CLOSE SOON.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—With a forty mile an hour northwest gale sweeping over Lake Superior and with some twenty-five boats still up the lake intending to lock down through the Canadian and Michigan Soo canals, the nerves of marine men are again on edge, a repetition of the Neebish tie-up once more threatening them. To add to the troubles of the lake carriers the storm shows no immediate sign of abatement and anxiety is felt lest the vessels be unable to leave their points of shelter in time to make a downbound passage before the freeze-up.

The canals will only remain open for a few days after 12 o'clock tonight, when all craft intending to lock are supposed to have left their ports. The locks will probably close not later than December 16. It is estimated that twenty-five vessels are stormbound on Lake Superior today.

The car ferry Sainte Marie and several tugs are still on duty at the Neebish cut and will remain there until the boats are cleared for the season. Ice conditions favor repetition of the costly tie-up which has just been straightened out.

Mild Spell Broken

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Cold weather, while relenting very little in Western Canada, is gripping Ontario and Eastern Canada today. The mild spell of the past few days in this region was broken today with much lower temperatures. Decidedly cold weather is forecast for every part of the Dominion, particularly Eastern Canada, with the exception of Alberta, where the weather, 20 below zero this morning, will not be so cold tomorrow.

Quebec Province remained this morning enjoying mild temperatures, under the threat of much colder weather tonight and tomorrow. Ontario, particularly Toronto and Sault Ste. Marie, received much colder weather this morning, temperatures ranging down to ten above at Sault Ste. Marie and 21 at Toronto. The Ottawa Valley, where it was 30 above this morning, is due for decidedly cold weather tonight.

NARROW ESCAPES NEAR CODRINGTON

Two Cars Run Into Ditch—None of Occupants Badly Hurt.

ORLAND, Dec. 14.—When Nelson Stone of Campbellford was returning home about 8 o'clock on Sunday evening he had a near escape from what might have proved to be a fatal accident. While driving along a high narrow grade about a quarter of a mile south of here his car took a dive headfirst into a deep ditch which had about three feet of water in it, covered with four inches of ice which the car broke through and nearly overturned. M. J. Moran was called on and soon arrived with a good span of horses which, after some time, were able to draw the car up the steep bank onto the main track.

A few hours before Mr. Stone's accident the McGuire brothers, on their way to Mrs. Lafferty's funeral, had a serious accident two miles north of here at Marsh Creek bridge near the Separate School, Codrington, when their new sedan got beyond the driver's control, rolling down the steep bank and finally landing upside down at the bottom. It was with difficulty that the door was opened to let the occupants out, and then it was found no one was seriously hurt, James McGuire having a few skin abrasions on his leg.

WARSAW U.F.O. HOLDS MEETING

Several New Members Join Club at Regular Gathering.

INSTITUTE MEETS

WARSAW, Dec. 14.—The U.F.O. held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening, several new members came. The members wives and some young ladies were present. After the business part was over, some time was spent in social converse, followed by an interesting bird-naming contest, a short time at euchre, refreshments, and the young people danced for a very short time.

At the next regular meeting to be held on the second Wednesday of the month (January 12), the reports of the delegate to the U.F.O., Mr. David Payne, will be given.

The regular meeting of the Warsaw Woman's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon. Miss Tedford gave the report of the domestic science class. A family in temporary need was reported, and steps taken to help for a time. Those wishing to contribute towards a Christmas box for the Armenian boys at Georgetown, will kindly leave their parcels either with Mrs. Sargent, or in the Institute room by noon on Saturday, December 18. Ther are fifty boys ranging from nine to sixteen years of age, and anything that a boy of that age could wear, play or work with, read or eat would be acceptable; good cast off clothing is all right.

A well prepared, and well delivered, report of the convention at Toronto was given by Mrs. Thomas H. Crowe. Some of the principal institute interests she noted were sending flowers to shut-ins, Christmas parcels to bachelors, schools fairs, school visiting giving of medals instead of money, as prizes, eliminating shams from the home, also superfluous ornaments, the planning of the country home, and efforts to collect stoves of the early days. Many very interesting stories may be lost, if they are not recorded soon. "Put first things first."

Some of the community singing at the convention was introduced into the meeting.

At the close cake and tea were served by Mrs. Sargent, and a pleasant social time was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthews are closing their shop for the winter, and will go to Los Angeles to visit Mrs. Matthew's son, Mr. Kenneth Kidd.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Crowley and Mr. and Mrs. J. Morrissey wer called to Lindsay on Saturday owing to the serious illness of Mr. T. Morrissey.

Mrs. Leahy of Douro is spending a few holidays with her niece, Mrs. R. Hickson.

Mr. John Shannon of Peterboro spent the week end under the parental.

Mrs W. B. Crough spent a few days last week with her niece, Mrs. M. O'Donohue of Peterboro.

On Saturday morning a few cars from here found it difficult crossing the Chemong bridge, owing to the depth of snow. Some went around by the head of the lake.

MILLIONS WALK ON BROKEN-DOWN FEET

Vanity, Golf and Poor Shoes Among Causes of the Nation's Foot Ills.

At least one person out of every five or six in this country is definitely suffering from weak or painful feet—in round numbers, between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000.

When America went to war the medical examiners found that one man in every eight passed upon had fallen arches. And the young male population of the draft constituted the strongest class of men physically, in the nation. Older men are far more likely to have fallen arches or other foot troubles than young men. Among women, defective feet are still more common; women are even prouder than men of having feet that are small and painful.

Undue strain is one of the chief causes of broken-down arches, says John Amid in the December Popular Science Monthly. The average man, conscious of his strength and good health, thinks he can walk when and where he likes without bad effects. As a matter of fact, a single long walk, after months of comparative inactivity, can do serious damage to your feet through breaking down arch muscles unaccustomed to such protracted starin.

Business men who play golf often fall victim to this danger. They feel that no harm will come from eighteen or even thirty-six holes of their favorite game on the one day a week they get a chance to play it. As a result, instead of lowering their scores, they frequently lower their arches. A golf professional who once overtaxed his feet in this way had to play three years in specially made kid shoes with rigidly built arches as a penalty.

The ten leading causes of foot trouble are listed by Mr. Amid as follows.

Sudden breakdown of foot muscles, due to unaccustomed use after long activity.

General aversion to walking.

Long hours of standing, as in the cases of teachers, policemen and clerks.

Overloading—fat people seem often cursed with small feet.

High heels persistently worn.

Any illness that leaves the body in a weakened condition.

Local injuries that cause bad foot habits, such as turning the foot to ease a hurt toe.

Shoe salespeople who don't know how to fit the feet of their customers correctly.

Incorrect walking—"toeing out."

Vanity—which compels at least half of us to buy shoes too short and tight, to create the illusion that we have "small feet."

GUTHERIE CRITIZES

Pherson genially, "and perhaps posterity will decide we were both wrong."

Words of Welcome.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative House leader, stated that it was only fitting that his first utterance in the House in his new position should be words of welcome to Canada's new Governor-General. The people of Canada could well look back with pride to the long list of distinguished men who had represented the British Sovereign from time to time as Governor-General of this country. In the selection of Lord Willingdon, said Mr. Guthrie, Canada was glad to afford a hearty welcome to one who was so well informed in the affairs of the Mother Land and the British Empire in general.

The nearness of the approach of Canada's diamond jubilee was sufficient to arouse the greatest patriotic fervor in the breasts of Canadians, but when coupled with the announcement that the Prince of Wales might reasonably be expected to be in attendance for the celebration on July 1 next, the greatest importance was added to the occasion. No Prime Minister of Great Britain while holding office, said Mr. Guthrie, had ever visited Canada, and Canadians would look forward with great pleasure to the possibility of Premier Baldwin visiting the Dominion for the diamond jubilee.

Business men complained strongly, said Mr. Guthrie, that the sales tax was an injustice. This tax has been increased by the King government and now stood at 5 per cent. While the amount collected in the last year of the Meighen administration prior to 1921 was $73,000,000 the total collected for the fiscal year ended March 31st last was the increased sum of $98,000,000.

Mr. Guthrie believed that the present way to handle the situation was to "boldly strike out," the sales tax and the stamp tax, and keep the country's expenditure down. He wished to declare that during the administration of the Meighen government since July last "tremendous savings" were made to the people of Canada. As a consequence of the economy practiced by the Meighen government, Canada had been able to pay off $50,000,000 of maturing loans without borrowing any money. Economies should be practiced by the government and there was a growing demand throughout Canada that expenditures should be cut down and the national debt reduced. The people of Canada were doubtlessly surprised the other day by the announcement that the national debt on November 30th last was $2,344,436,000. "When are we going to start paying off this first debt?" asked Mr. Guthrie.

Mr. Guthrie referred to the question of the number of people leaving Canada. He feared that the exodus from the Dominion was still going on as rapidly at it had been for the past four or five years. The situation applied also in the western provinces, he said, from which many people were leaving for the United States.

The Prime Minister had had several years in which to learn what Maritime rights were, but it was only in the last Parliament that Conservative members from the Maritimes had compelled the attention of the government and only then did the government act. "I don't know whether the Duncan report meets with the approval of the people of the Maritimes or not, but I know that if any satisfaction is given the credit will be due to members on this side of the house." Mr. Guthrie asked the Prime Minister to give in the course of his remarks some indication of the action proposed by the government on the Duncan report.

Of the Imperial conference, Mr. Guthrie said that one section of the country was inclined to think that there was nothing new in the report while others regarded it as "the most momentous state document ever produced in the Parliament of Canada. I view it as a matter of very great consequence, but I cannot offer at the present time any unalterable opinion because of parts of the report which I do not understand. Mr. Guthrie said he had seen the agenda of the conference last summer and there was nothing of a constitutional nature referred to. He believed that the results of the conference were as much of a surprise to Mr. King and Mr. Lapointe as to anyone.

Mr. Guthrie analyzed the wording of several parts of the report. The House, he said, was not yet in possession of all of the official reports of the conference. It had yet to hear from Canada's delegates a full report of their mission. Until this was forthcoming he would not speak too broadly on the subject. But he did believe that some very serious changes had been made and that the gate had been left open for grave injustice should any government of the future "in its madness" choose to take advantage of it. In the history of the Canadian Parliament so serious a problem as this had never faced this body, he said.

At this point, there was laughter from the Liberal benches. Mr. Guthrie pointed to Hon. Ernest Lapointe and said: "He has had his laugh, but I will guarantee he will not vote this document through the House in its present form. If he does at some future date it will spell disaster for this country."

Dealing with previous Imperial Conferences, Mr. Guthrie said: "Nothing was more emphasized at the Conference of 1911 than our absolute right to govern ourselves, our rights were clear, distinct and well understood."

The next conference was the war conference of 1917 at which Sir Robert Borden moved that the constitutional relations of the component parts of the Empire form the subject to be dealt with by a special Imperial Conference as soon as the war was over. It was pointed out in this motion, however, that the existing powers of self government and complete control of their own domestic affairs should be preserved.

The Treaty of Peace came next and in this Paris Conference the Dominions stood shoulder to shoulder with the other nations, recognized as being on an equality with Great Britain. In the 1921 Imperial Conference the position of Canada had become so well established as the result of her status at the Peace Conference that it was decided it was not necessary to hold a constitutional conference. The resolution adopted then concluded: "Having regard to constitutional development since 1917, no advantage is to be gained by holding a constitutional conference."

Mr. Guthrie quoted Premier Lloyd George on the equality of Canada, saying: "What limitation is now proposed upon us. What can they not do even to encompass their own destruction by sundering the bonds that bind them to the Empire In effect we have all the rights of self government enjoyed by independent nations. That being the position, what is the constitutional conference going to do?"

Mr. Guthrie took exception to a reference in the report to the overseas Dominions and the Mother Country as "autonomous communities within the British Empire equal in status, in no way subordinate one to the other of their domestic or external affairs," and "Every self governing member of the Empire is now the master of its own destiny."

The Opposition leader proceeded to "consider the extent to which this language brings us," he added. "This Confederation (of Canada) was founded upon compromise. We have now every domestic matter placed in our own hands. Can we change the basis of Confederation? Can we change the compromise upon which this Confederation is founded?" Mr. Guthrie stressed the distinction of the two principal races in Canada. He believed that if any government of the future proposed to abrogate the special features in the national constitution upon which Confederation was based that Government would have absolute power to do so under the provision of this conferencereport. He invites the Prime Minister to "consult the leading members of the French Bar," in regard to this statement.

"Sometime in the future, some government of this country may arise and propose to abolish bilingualism in this Parliament—a matter of purely domestic concern with no external application whatever," Mr. Guthrie went on. "We are masters of our own destiny, this document says and nobody can interfere with us; no other power can interfere; we are subject to no compulsion. The British Government cannot interfere; if they tried to we would say no interference. You say in your declaration that we art not subordinate to you, so hands off Canada."

Mr. Guthrie was also of the opinion that "if a Government should arise at some time in the future and in its madness, I would say, propose to abolish the provincial legislatures in this country and adopt a system of legislature union, I submit that under that language they could do so." Nobody could rebuke, nobody could interfere, he added. The power of veto had been done away with, he said, and the right to refuse to assent to a bill, exercised only once about 50 years ago, had been apparently wiped out.

"Now what is the situation?" Mr. Guthrie went on.

"I submit that it is the most serious situation that has ever been laid before the parliament of Canada since Confederation. It is sweeping away the maintenance of those safeguards which the Fathers of Confederation put in the compromise before our Constitutional Act was passed. I would not allow any part of the Dominion of Canada or any section of this Dominion to be exposed to attacks in the future, to take away the rights which we in this country look upon as sacred rights. I would not allow the protection to be taken away from minorities, as it would be taken away if this report were adopted by the House. Why was there not some limitation in regard to Canada?"

In the definition of the status of the Governor-General, why had "Crown" been substituted for the word "King?" demanded Mr. Guthrie. One authority defined the Crown in some cases as being the Government of Canada. Why then make the Governor-General the representative of the "Crown" instead of the King? Had a Governor-General ever been appointed without consultation with the government of Canada, or without its acquiescence?

The atmosphere in the Chamber grew tense when Mr. Guthrie turned to the recent elector campaign. Premier King, he said had gone up and down Canada making statements calculated to give the people of Great Britain an entirely false idea of the situation in Canada. The Premier he said, raised the constitutional question and made "covert threats" as to what would happen if he had his way.

The Prime Minister jumped to his feet and demanded that Mr. Guthrie should say what these threats were.

"My Rt. Hon. friend said we were ruled by Downing street," said Mr. Guthrie.

Premier King challenged him to prove that he had said anything of the kind. "I made the very opposite statement," asserted Mr. King.

Mr. Guthrie said that the general impression gathered from press despatches was certainly along this line. He believed that a great number of people in Great Britain were led by the Prime Minister's remarks "to believe that something was radically wrong in the minds of the people of Canada—that Canadians felt that their necks were under the British heel.' And then after the election, Mr. Guthrie went on, "the applause of the Republican press in the United States caused more uneasiness in Great Britain."

But once the election was over, said the Opposition leader, the Premier had hastened to be reassuring. Leaving Quebec for the Imperial Conference, Premier King had made a statement. The Canadian Press reported this statement and Mr. Guthrie felt sure that it was correctly reported. The Premier had said that Canada, approaching the conference was "in happy position of having no grievance of any kind." But he had forgotten the opposite impression conveyed through the summer months and he had to face when he arrived in London, a bombardment from British newspapermen all of them asking "What about annexation?"

"Tory propaganda," said the Prime Minister from his place in the house. Mr. Guthrie retorted that this was untrue. The anxiety in the British Press had been aroused by the statements of the prime minister himself and the comment thereon in United States newspapers. Mr. King, he asserted, had made it look as if Canada, as well as Premier Hertzog of South Africa, was anxious to claim the right to a degree of independence approaching absolute neutrality. The opposition leader quite realized that Mr. King had only raised that issue as a "smoke" screen to prevent criticism of himself and his government in regard to the customs scandal," but what Mr. King had achieved was the raising of a belief in the minds of the British people that there was a serious constitutional question in Canada. The British people, he added, were naturally puzzled when Mr. King arrived amongst them expressing his content with evolution and his opposition to revolution.

The official opposition, said Mr. Guthrie in conclusion, was anxious to co-operate with the government on any of the problems of this session. This problem, especially, he said, should be approached in a non-partisan way. But the opposition had its rights. On this problem more than any other, it was entitled to the fullest enlightenment and he hoped that the government would realize the necessity for co-operation if this problem was to be solved.

CAVAN PLOWMEN ELECT OFFICERS

Annual Meeting Held and Splendid Reports Presented.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 14.—The annual meeting of the Cavan and South Monaghan Plowmen's Association was held in the township clerk's office on Saturday afternoon, the president, Mr. L. H. Winslow, being in the chair, and a good representation of members being present.

The financial report was presented by the treasurer, L. C. McNeil, showing a satisfactory balance in the bank. The government grant has not yet been received.

The president, in his address, thanked the members for their interest and assistance during the year just closed, and pointed out that the membership roll was one of the largest in the history of the organization — this fact having something to do with keeping up the finances of the Association. The president also referred to the annual plowing match held in October which was as successful as weather conditions would permit.

In order to have seven classes at this annual event, with adequate prizes in each, substantial backing is necessary as usually the three prizes in the several classes amount to $40.00 in either money or goods. This means a total of $280.00 to cover prizes alone, and other expenses are necessarily incurred.

The suggestion to have a special class for boys under 16 to encourage the younger plowmen, which came in for considerable discussion was favorably received, and will be acted upon another year if finances permit. As it is the custom has been to give a prize to every boy who enters the class under 18 years, and this has been a popular feature of the match each year.

Entrance of outside competitors is encouraged by offering worthwhile prizes; the plough donated by the Cockshutt Company this year, and given for the first prize for the first class in sod, and won by W. Shortt, of Woodville, and entrants from the Ontario County Association.

Following a change in the constitution made at the last Provincial executive meeting, all local organziations were asked to hold their annual meetings in December rather than January, in order to facilitate the sending of reports to headquarters, and give time to secure new membership lists for the ensuing twelve months before the provincial convention is held. For this reason Saturday's meeting was fully one month earlier than usual.

Mr. W. T. Donaldson, a veteran member of the local Association, and well known for the keen and intelligent interest which he takes in everything pertaining to agriculture, was present on Saturday, and took an active part in the discussion of business items.

Messrs. R. J. McKnight and David Sharpe were appointed delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Plowmen's Association to be held in Toronto the first week in February, and the president, who is a member of the provincial executive, will also attend.

Officers for 1927 were re-elected as follows:

President—L. H. Winslow.
Vice-President—H. A. Fallis.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Geo. Berry, Jr.
Secretary-Treasurer — L. C. McNeil.

Directors—A. J. Henderson, R. McCamus, J. L. McCamus, W. R. N. Sharpe, A. J. Fallis, G. A. Fair, Gerald Armstrong, R. O. Larmer, L. M. Fallis, L. W. Smith, I. W. Larmer, William Atchison, R. J. McKnight, Jas. Eagleson, H. Tate, I. A. Vance, Dawson Rutherford, John Greer, A. B. Kennedy, Russell Bonner, W. T. Donaldson.

A vote of thanks to the merchants of Peterborough and Millbrook for their generous donations of cash and goods toward the prize list of the annual plowing match was moved by the president and vice-president and carried unanimously The meeting adjourned to meet again at the call of the president.

SALES AND BAZAARS

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 14.—A bazaar and hot supper in aid of the "Star" Santa Clause fund, was held at the home of Mrs. H. J. Armstrong on Saturday afternoon and evening, the affair being well patronized.

The rooms in use had decorations which emphasized the Christmas atmosphere, and afternoon tea was served at the daintily-laid tables, while fancy work, homemade baking and candy were displayed for sale on attractively arranged counters.

Due to the initiative of the Misses Margaret and Alice Armstrong this sale and supper has been an annual event for the past two or three years, the worthy object in view winning a community-wide approval and patronage.

Mrs. H. R. Armstrong, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, and the hostess had a general oversight of the proceedings, and took charge of the hot meal at the supper hour, Miss Elizabeth Russell and the two young hostesses serving the guests.

About $25.00 was realized, and will be remitted immediately to Toronto, the amount making possible material assistance in providing Christmas cheer for some needy families.

Last year the receipts were a little over $30.00, but considering the number of bazaars held recently under church auspices, and others still in prospect, results of Saturday's efforts were loked upon as creditable.

AT BETHANY.

BETHANY, Dec. 14.—The annual Christmas bazaar of the Willing Workers' Class of the United Church Sunday School was held on Saturday evening in the Sunday School room, which presented a very festive appearance with its red and green decoration and evergreen trees. All sorts of useful and fancy articles were to be had at very reasonable prices. Mrs. W. L. Rowan, Mrs. A. Poulter, Miss Sarah McMullen and Miss Elsie Richardson were in charge of the sale of these articles.

Mrs. A. H. Monk was in charge of the home-cooking table. All sorts of appetizing things, such as butter, eggs, cream, fowl, bread, biscuits, buns, cakes and tarts, were offered for very reasonable prices and were quickly sold.

The Young Ladies' Mission Club had a dainty and attractive booth of delicious home-made candy, which sold readily. Mrs. Bert Monk and Miss Priscilla Howden were in charge of this booth.

The tea-room was in charge of Mrs. Otto Spencer and Mrs. Ona Thorndyke. One long table, prettily decorated with silver baskets of fruit and long red candles in brass candlesticks, with a basket of red roses, accommodated about twenty-four, and an appetizing supper of sandwiches, cake, pie and coffee was enjoyed. Miss Helen Byers, Miss Mildred Davis and Miss Marion Fallis waited on those taking supper.

Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Jones had delicious ice cream for sale. They were well patronized.

A large evergreen tree with large golden balls tied to the branches was the centre of attraction for the children. This orange tree was in charge of Miss Hazel Jackson, dressed in a corresponding shade of orange color.

The music for the evening was given by the Misses Violet Jackson, Helen Patton, Winnie Dawe and Helen Byers. Mr. A. H. Monk was doorkeeper and received the admission fee. Rev. A. Poulter officially opened the bazaar at three o'clock with a short address.

W.M.S. MEETING.

Annual of Presbyterian Church Society Held on Friday Afternoon.

LAKEFIELD, December 14. — The annual meeting of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian church, was held on Friday afternoon. Reports of the year's work were read showing a satisfactory year's progress, financially and otherwise. The following officers were elected:

Hon. Presidents: Mrs. A. Fairbairn and Mrs. Richard White.
Pres.: Mrs. J. W. Ridpath.
1st Vice-Pres.: Miss Agnes Fitzgerald.
Secretary: Mrs. J. M. Simpson.
Treas.: Miss Tanner.
Asst.-Treas.: Miss Miller.
Roll Call Sec.: Miss Preston.
Home Helpers' Sec.: Mrs. J. C. Smith.
Glad Tidings Sec.: Mrs. Thomson.
Supply Sec.: Mrs. M. F. Sanderson.

Curling Club.

Skips for the coming season are being drawn on Monday evening at a meeting to be held for the purpose and at a regular meeting to be held on Thursday evening, all rinks will be drawn and any one desiring to play must be signed up on or before that date.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie was in charge of the services in St. John's church on Sunday morning. There was no evening service.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, Dec. 14.—Rev. C. J. Beckley of Hudson Heights was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. Doupe.

Mrs. William Flynn visited relatives in Belleville for a few days last week.

Mrs. M. E. Carscallen left on Thursday for California where she will spend the winter.

Mr. James Bowen has been very poorly for the past few weeks.

Miss Loreen Connor was home for the week-end.

A most successful bazaar and sale of cooking was conducted by the Ladies' Aid of the United Church in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE BIDGOOD.

There passed away at the family residence, Lot 3, Concession 9, North Monaghan, on Monday, George Bidgood. Mr. Bidgood has been a life-long resident of that township, and will be sadly mourned by a host of friends.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing widow, three sons: George H. of Otonabee, William A. and Allie S. at home; two daughters, Mrs. E. Deyell of Fowler's Corners and Miss Della at home; three brothers: Charles of Toronto, John of Cleveland, Thomas of Bedford, Penn., and one sister, Mrs. William Patterson, of Cleveland.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday at 1.30 from the family residence to the Ninth Line of Cavan Cemetery, with Rev. A. H. McConnachie officiating.

VELVET RETURNS.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN PLAYS HIS COVETED TRAGEDY—BUT IT'S REAL LIFE

Charlie Chaplin, wistful screen comedian, wanted secretly to be a tragedian. But the world looked on him as its funniest man instead.

Charlie yearned for love, and Edna Purviance, his leading lady, won his heart. But suddenly in 1918 Chaplin jilted Edna and married-----

Mildred Harris, another beauty of the films. For a time all went well, then-----

In 1920 Mildred divorced him. Chaplin, free, wooed one screen favorite after another. His engagement to Pola Negri was announced. But in 1924 Charlie eloped to Mexico with-----

Lita Grey, dazzling 18 year-old, his new leading woman. Two sons were born, then the other day---

Lita packed up and went home to mother, accusing Charlie of cruel treatment and threatening divorce; so that-----

Chaplin now realizes, perhaps, that his secret wish has been gratified: he is playing the part of a tragedian---in real life.

. . . BEARER OF INTELLIGENCE . . . DISPELLER OF IGNORANCE AND PREJUDICE . . . A LIGHT SHINING INTO ALL DARK PLACES.

EVERY CANDIDATE IS AN ASSET.

George B. Van Blericom, former Peterboro newspaper man, in addressing the local Rotary Club yesterday pleaded for greater consideration for those who offer their services to their fellow-citizens in connection with various municipal positions.

The point which was also emphasized by President C. H. Rogers is well taken.

One of the factors that prevent a greater response to the city's call for service is the knowledge that aspirants for office may expect a certain amount of belittling and ridicule before the election, and a considerably larger amount of criticism afterward should they prove successful at the polls.

There is no logic in this condition.

Every man who offers to serve is putting the community in his debt.

He is volunteering to do what he can to see that the public business is carried on satisfactorily and well.

He is qualifying as a one hundred per cent. citizen; a worker, not a shirker; a doer, not a slacker.

No matter how ill prepared he may be for municipal service, he is a better citizen than the more gifted individual who refuses to serve.

That is a view of the municipal elections that The Examiner would like to feel was generally recognized and accepted; if it were the annual field of candidates for municipal offices would undoubtedly be larger.

MAKE IT WORTH WHILE.

There is one feature of the celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee next year that should not be lost sight of, and to The Examiner it is the most important feature.

The jubilee should be made valuable as a means of educating the people of this country to the historical significance of the occasion and inculcating an interest in the history of Canada.

Calithumpian parades and fireworks and sports are all right in their way, but they should not be given the chief place in next year's celebration.

The programme should include something more solid than these every-day features, something that will serve the desired purpose of arousing the national pride of the people of Canada.

To our shame it must be said that we have almost totally neglected the historical importance of our national birthday.

Newcomers in Canada are told nothing of what it means; by everybody it has been regarded merely as a holiday.

That mistake must be corrected in connection with the Diamond Jubilee, and the task of correcting it should be spread over a considerable period prior to Dominion Day, with a campaign in the schools and through the newspapers that will serve to quicken the interest of Canadians in the history of their homeland.

If the celebration were merely to follow the usual form of holiday demonstrations it wouldn't be worth while bothering about.

A SATISFACTORY REPORT.

The Ontario Government is to be congratulated not only upon the fact that it has presented its financial report covering the fiscal year ending Oct. 31st much earlier than such statements have usually been given out, but also upon the satisfactory nature of the report itself.

The Province has got very close to a balanced budget during the past year, the Provincial Treasurer, Hon. J. D. Monteith, reporting a deficit of only $389,986, as compared with $4,859,375 last year, $8,325,645 in 1924 and $14,722,925 in 1923, the final year of the Drury administration.

Bringing about a reduction of over fourteen million dollars in the annual deficit since 1923 is a financial feat that indicates sound business ability, and this is confirmed by the manner in which the revenues of the Province have been collected.

The previous Government fell down lamentably in its revenue-garnering efforts, but the action of Hon. W. H. Price, who until a short time ago was Mr. Ferguson's Finance Minister, in establishing an audit of receipts has enabled the Province to make a splendid recovery in the matter of receipts.

Not only were collections maintained at a greater rate of efficiency in 1926, but the Government, in spite of new services and greater outlay on rural Hydro-electric lines and northern extensions, was enabled to reduce its ordinary expenditure by $77,000.

With expenditures reduced and revenue expanding, a continuation of the present policy should see Ontario with a balanced budget in the near future.

CUTTING THEM DOWN.

Among the reforms that are to be made in the rules of the House of Commons is suggested a material reduction in the size of the committees.

There is no doubt that in their present strength the standing committees are unwieldly.

Why, in the name of common sense, should there be 129 members in the Railway Committee, for instance!

Twenty could do the work twice as quickly and every bit as efficiently.

When the British Parliament can handle the business of its Public Accounts Committee with from eleven to fifteen members, where is there any justification for 62 in the Canadian committee?

The same unwieldiness is to be found in other committees, and a general reduction would be a business-like move.

And at the same time it does seem that reductions might begin at the top with the Cabinet itself.

We have nearly a score of Cabinet positions, over twice as many as the United States.

Are so many departments necessary?

Would the administration of public affairs lose an iota of efficiency if some of them were doubled up?

The simple truth is that in our systems of government—municipal, Provincial and Federal—we are carrying on business against an overhead that is unnecessarily extravagant and large.

In all three there could be reductions that would cut down the expense and undoubtedly add to efficiency.

AN AMERICAN VIEW.

(St. Louis Post-Despatch)

Ontario, Canada's dry Verdun, has fallen. It has repudiated prohibition by a decisive vote, and adopted the policy of legalizing the liquor traffic under strict Government control.

The result was a foregone conclusion. Ontario has followed the path of many other Canadian Provinces. Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, British Columbia, Quebec—they all tried prohibition under the emotional mood of war conditions. They all had the same disillusioning experience. They saw criminality and corruption organized and operating on a terrifying scale. They saw the effects of this impracticable law permeating all classes of society, undermining temperance, promoting excesses, imperiling the moral stability of the younger generation, which it was especially designed to safeguard, and threatening the very institution of government.

Canada's experience with prohibition has been the same as Norway's, which was discussed in these columns a few days ago, and Canada has done just as Norway has done—pronounced prohibition a failure, rejected it and will henceforth depend upon the common sense, self-respect and moral competence of the people to maintain intelligent standards of temperance, supplemented by enforceable regulation.

Canada's prohibition experience is a duplicate of our American experience. The only difference is one of degree. In our rebellion against this law we have shown the initiative, resourcefulness and efficiency that characterize our industrial record. We have staged a vast and terrible pageant of lawlessness and commensurate with our magnitude and means.

Many specious theories have been spun about our refusal to obey this law and acquiesce in its intolerable tyrannies. Our immigrant population has been pilloried and cruelly indicted. Proscription has been proposed reminiscent of the old alien-and-sedition bigotry which the innate liberalism of America routed in the bright but arduous morning of our constitutional youth. The cities have been maligned in miserably odious and false comparison which strove to paint them black as sin while robing rural United States in shining white. Canada and Norway both expose the fallacy of all such explanation. Neither Canada nor Norway is polygiot, neither is urban. Both are homogenous peoples. Of course, Quebec is French and Catholic, and distinctive in customs and traditions from English and Protestant Ontario, but such racial and hereditary difference, coupled with their similarity of experience and repudiation of prohibition, emphasize the unwisdom and impracticability of this sumptuary law.

The failure of prohibition is not a matter of race or religion or temperament or geography. Prohibition is a fundamental folly, potentially capable of moral and governmental ruin. That is the written verdict of history.

The United States, however, has a far graver problem on its hands than did Canada or Norway. When we put prohibition in the Constitution we burned our bridges behind us. Warnings enough were given as the danger of our course. They were scornfully flouted. They were beaten down with a blare of righteousness. To protest, to question, to venture a doubt as to prohibition, was to be smothered with calumny, to be called unclean and—last depth of infamy in that war-time frenzy—to have your Americanism challenged.

The coercion of that mania has passed. Fanaticism still splutters, but it no longer has an audience. We know what prohibition is now, and dearly has that knowledge been bought. Today thoughtful citizens everywhere, in the quiet little towns as well as in the tumultuous cities, are wondering what we are going to do about it.

In the last analysis there can be but one honest answer. We have got to retrace our steps. We have got to undo the tragic mistake we have made. We have got to repeal the eighteenth amendment. That is the only upright, honorable solution. Until that is done we must do as we are doing now—connive at lawlessness, participate in it, or bow to a tyranny which in itself is utterly lawless and boldly tramples down provisions of the Constitution which are the very meat and drink of liberty.

The alternative is clearly defined. We can repeal the eighteenth amendment and save constitutional government, or we can go on with the nightmare until the crash.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The shopping season is getting rapidly shorter. Better not put it off much longer.

Nominations for municipal offices are scheduled for Thursday of next week. It is time to hear from some of the candidates.

The record of the Ottawa Hockey Club seems to indicate that the secret of how to win games has not yet been exported to the United States.

"Pussyfoot" Johnston reports Europe has too many other troubles to be interested in prohibition.

The tax levied upon bachelors in Italy shows that Mussolini gets them both coming and going.

It really begins to look as if something is to be done this session to eliminate long and irrevelent speeches from Hous of Commons debates. A long-suffering public will not be tardy in its applause of the reform.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Dec. 14. — Trade opened dull, in keeping with the muggy weather, which was not conductive to much snap in cattle buying. There was a heavy run, including too large a proportion of common enough stuff, with which the packing houses are already overloaded. Shippers are being advised to hold back their cattle this week, as prospects are not too promising. Choice handyweight butcher and baby beeves were in demand at steady to firm prices. A few extra choice sold up to $7.75, and baby beeves up to $11.

Export trade only moderately active and prices averaged 10c lower than last week on the heavy export steers.

Lamb market slow and easier for the heavy lambs, with a large number carried over from last week. A few choice black face lambs firm at 12c.

Choice heavy beef steers, $7 to $7.65. Choice handyweight butcher steers and heifers, $6.75 to $7.25. Fair to good butcher, $5.25 to $6.35.

Good to choice butchers cows, $5 Bulls steady, $5.25 to $5.

Calves, strong, $11 to $13.50.

Hogs, 25c higher for yesterday's deliveries on basis of $10.50 f.o.b. For yesterday's trading the bids were 25c lower at $10.25.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday showed no improvement and in consequence business in an export way was dull. There was some demand from local exporters for Canadian Western barley to fill old contracts for export and sales of several loads of No. 3 were made at 72c per bushel, c.i.f. Bay Ports. The domestic trade in coarse grains was quiet and prices were unchanged.

The local and export demand for Sprinb wheat grades of flour was fair and a moderate business was done. The Winter wheat trade was slow but the undertone was steady.

The trade in all lines of millfeed was again active and the tone of the market was firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was also active and prices were firm.

The demand for eggs continued active and prices for fresh and storage grades were well maintained. The receipts were 1,310 cases.

The potato market was quiet but prices were unchanged. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.90 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.70 to $1.75 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, and Quebec White stock at $1.55 to $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The demand for butter abated somewhat, but the undertone to the market was firm. The receipts were 93 packakes.

The only trading of importance that developed in the butter market was a demand for United States buyers for Western current receipts of No. 1 white and colored which resulted in sales of odd cars at 17 1-4c to 17 1-2c per pound. The receipts were 240 boxes.

Produce quotations:

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.84 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.85 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Unexpected big falling off in the United States wheat visible supply did a good deal to hoist wheat values yesterday at the last. Moreover, a severe cold wave was in prospect, with domestic winter wheat represented as virtually bare of any covering of snow to protect the crop. Wheat closed firm, 3-8 to 1 3-4 net higher; corn 3-8 to 5-8 off; oats 1-4 to 7-8 up, and provisions unchanged to 30 cents down.

Corn prices headed downward yesterday in anticipation of a bigger run of receipts. On the other hand the increase of 590,000 bushels shown by visible stocks of corn was less than had been expected. Oats were responsive to a reduction of 2,595,000 bushels in the oats visible supply.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press). — Cattle 30,000; good to choice yearlings firm; best here $12.75; best 1,470 pound bullocks $10.75; most fat steers $8.75 to $10.25; yearlings $9.50 to $12.00; vealers 25 to 50c lower, mostly $10.00 downward.

Hogs 65,000; early bulk better grades, 170 to 270 pound averages, $11.40 to $11.60; top $11.60; 210 pounds down $11.25 or below; bulk packing sows $10.25 to $10.75; heavies downward to $10.00 or below; bulk desirable slaughter pigs $11.25 to $11.50; few above $11.00 late.

Sheep 30,000; top fed westerns to shippers $13.35; sprinkling to all interests $13.25; bulk fat ewes $5.00 to $6.75; yearlings wethers, $9.00 to $10.00.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

"WHEN I'VE SAID I'M SORRY"

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

In the chorus of a sentimental song there used to be the refrain: "When I've said I'm sorry, what more can I do?"

The answer is:

"Don't do it again."

When a shop-keeper forgets all about my order and I call up about it and he tells me he forgot about it because of an extra rush or a shortage of help, instead of blaming the delivery boy or the telephone girl or saying the order must have been lost, I recognize him for an honest man and don't change shop-keepers—the first time.

The first time he says he is sorry I think more of him for telling the truth. But being sorry, or being honest, won't hold his trade if he continues to forget about my orders.

Being sorry is only the first mile.

Not doing it again is the important second mile.

The world in its infinite circumference holds few more irritating objects than the "sorriers"—those who continue to be sorry, at the same time continuing to do the same thing.

It requires only a tongue to say you are sorry; but it takes a backbone to overcome the thing you are sorry for.

Being sorry is just the beginning, and to continue to be sorry without doing more is to stay in the same place without advance.

In a small town in the middle west lived a woman who was known as the prize repenter.

When the visiting evangelist held revivals each spring she got converted each year without a skip.

Being sorry is an emotional state; carrying out the reform requires a cold-blooded determination.

When a person is really sorry the first thing he will do is to make a definite plan with definite steps to avoid a repeating of the thing he is sorry for.

SANDWICHES

About the middle of the eighteenth century an English Earl who was an inveterate card player, invented a new kind of quick lunch. Not wanting to take any time away from his card playing he asked the waiter to bring him a slice of meat between two slices of bread, so he could eat from one hand while holding the cards in the other. Many of his friends started doing the same thing, and this soon became a popular way of using food for a hurried lunch. This combination of meat and bread was given the name of "sandwich," from the name of the nobleman, the Earl of Sanwich.

While the sanwich is not as popular in other countries as in America, if you will go into any drug store during the noon-hour you will come to the conclusion that sandwiches form the principal part of the lunch of an American.

All kinds of mixtures are used for the fillings for the sandwiches, with white, rye, whole wheat or toasted bread used for the covering.

The ordinary sandwich is indigestible, and the reason its use has been continued is because it takes the place of a small meal, and is usually of an agreeable flavor. It is, also, commercially profitable for the lunch counter to put out sandwiches, which may be prepared in advance often of perishable material, such as canned fish which spoils very easily and becomes poisonous.

If sandwiches are used at all, whole wheat is the only bread that should be used, and when I say whole wheat I mean the pure whole wheat and not the imitations usually found on the market.

A filling may be used of ground nuts or nut butter, or minced eggs may also be used. Minced ripe olives, cheese, or chicken may also be used as a filler for these whole wheat bread sandwiched. Leaves of lettuce or cabbage, and finely chopped celery make a palatable and refreshing addition to these more nutritious fillings.

Do not make the mistake of using a glass of milk or malted milk with these sandwiches, as this is a particularly bad combination, and, although, it is the custom to drink malted milks with sandwiches, there is no reason why you should make the same mistake, and suffer from the same toxemia and biliousness which this combination of food will make.

Sandwiches can hardly be called a good combination of food, but if you do use them remember the suggestions I have made in this article.

TWO MEN FINED ON O.T.A. CHARGE

Arrested in Campbellford With Four Cases of Liquor.

YOUTH IN TROUBLE.

CAMPBELLFORD, December 13. —At 1.30 on Saturday morning two men were taken into custody by Night Constable Light on a charge of breaking the O.T.A.

The two were driving in a car when hailed by the Constable, and a search of the car revealed four cases of loquor.

They were arraigned before Police Magistrate Payne on Saturday and the owner of the liquor was fined $200 and costs, while the owner and driver of the car was fined $75.00 and costs for conveying the liquor.

The confiscated liquor was taken to Cobourg on Saturday afternoon by Provincial police.

On Sunday Constable Light and Provincial Police Frewtrell of Cobourg took a young man into custody on a charge of housebreaking.

Robert and Fred Atchison are the owners of the house, about a mile and a half north of town.

When they arrived home from town on Sunday night about 12 p. m., they found the house full of smoke and the floor about to burst into flames. The young marauder had pried up a window at the back of the house and used matches in his search for valuables, and some of them not extinguished had started a smouldering fire which might have proved disastrous.

Evidently after money he had pried open a tin box and looked in every likely corner without success. A watch which he hid in the woodpile was the only trophy of his escapade.

Constable Light on being notified of the affair went to the Atcheson home and following up available clues got in touch with Constable Frewtrell and the two went to the home of the young man, and he admitted his guilt, and accompanied Constable Frewtrell to Cobourg.

LEAGUE MEETING.

Good Attendance of Young People at Petherick's Corners.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Dec. 14. — The reular league service on Thursday evening last was in charge of the convener of the devotional department, Mr. Thomas Fry. Fifty members attended, with the White and Khaki tied for first place. George Brunton acted as leader for the evening and a short programme was given consisting of a hymn by the Whites, devotional talk by Thomas Fry and readings by Mrs. Fred Barnum and Albert Petherick. Beginning with the next meeting the hour of service will be 7.30 instead of 8.00 p.m.

A very happy social event took place on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Milne, 11th concession, when about one hundred friends and neighbors gathered to honor their daughter, Gertrude, who recently became the bride of Mr. William Dunk English Line. That the young couple are very popular in the community was evidenced by the large attendance and the innumerable handsome gifts "showered" upon them. The evening was very pleasantly spent with cards and dancing, music being supplied by Messrs. Ed. Anderson and Roger Lain.

USE "THE NATIONAL"

Travellers to Winnipeg and points west have preferred "The National" since its initial run. Those who are taking the trip for the first time are well advised to commence their journey right by travelling "National."

Splendid service, a fast, interesting trip and convenient hours of departure are a few reasons for "The National's" popularity.

"The National" leaves Toronto nightly at 9.00 p.m., arriving at Winnipeg 10.00 a.m. the second morning. Connections are made at Winnipeg for all Western points. Special sleeper is carried on this train for the convenience of Sudbury passengers.

Was Nearly Crazy With Boils All Over His Body

Mr. S. L. Burke, Barronsfield, N.S., writes:—"For some time I was nearly crazy with boils all over my body. I tried everything I could think of to get rid of them, but to no avail, for as soon as one was healed up another would appear to take its place.

CROWN LAUNCHES NEW CHARGE AGAINST CAMPBELLFORD MAN

T. L. Diamond To Appear in Peterborough on Dec. 21st.

IN POLICE COURT.

Negligence Alleged Against Driver of Death Car.

(Special to The Examiner).

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 14.—The Crown has taken a new tack against T. L. Diamond, owner and driver of the automobile that crashed into a tree on the Keene Road near Peterboro on circus day last summer, causing the death of Mrs. Alice Stillman and serious injury to her husband, William Stillman. A prior charge of manslaughter having been dismissed, another action has been entered by the Crown accusing Mr. Diamond of having caused bodily harm to Mr. and Mrs. Stillman through his negligence.

Local witnesses were subpoenaed yesterday to appear for the preliminary trial of Mr. Diamond before Police Magistrate O. A. Langley at Peterboro on December 21st at 11 a.m. Among those who were handled blue papers are Mr. Stillman, J. C. Birmingham and W. Martin.

Mr. Stillman's suit for $25,000 damages is also hanging over Mr. Diamond, and will likely be tried at Cobourg.

RUMANIA TO ACT AS MEDIATOR

Italy and Jugo Slavia in Controversy Over Albanian Treaty.

PROPOSE PACT.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Rumania is planning to offer its good services as mediator between Italy and Jugo Slavia in their controversy over the Italo-Albanian treaty. This was announced yesterday in diplomatic circles and also published in the newspapers, without eliciting any denial from the government.

Rumania will propose a Balkan pact similar to the Locarno pact. This is a rather delicate situation, owing to the fact that Rumania last September concluded a treaty of friendship with Italy while she was a member of the "Little Entente," in which Jugo Slavia is prominent, and the disruption of which, reports say, is threatened by the Italo-Albanian accord.

The Rumanian Minister at Belgrade, Theodore Emandi, has been requested by the Foreign Office here, the announcement asserts, to present this viewpoint to the Jugo-Slavian cabinet. Rumania is desirous of avoiding a new orientation in the foregn policy of Belgrade, which might place the two countries in two different political camps. Rumania's main aim, it is declared, is to save the "Little Entente" at all costs.

NO OPPOSITION LOOMS AGAINST HESS COUNCIL

Hastings Reeve and Councilors May Be Returned By Acclamation.

SCHOOL BY-LAW.

Proponents Planning To Push Their Project For New Building.

(Special to The Examiner).

HASTINGS, Dec. 14. — Reeve Hess and his Council may be returned by acclamation on nomination day if the present sentiment of acquiescence continues undisturbed. And so far there have been no evidences of prospective opposition. Some of the members will retire rather than go through a contest. One of them is Walter Fowlds, whose attitude is one of willing service, but having gone to the heights in the municipal field there are no attractions in that direction for Mr. Fowlds. If the citizens desire him to assist in the work of the Council, he is ready to carry on, but not to contest for the responsibility. Reeve Hess is not worrying about his position. The other members of the Council, whose stewardship has generally been approved, are Neil MacDonald, R. C. Doxsee and W. Lynch.

The Public School Board is to be elected by ballot this year (or rather next) unless it be given acclamation, and a contest in that field might spread to the Council. For the present all is quiet, and from all accounts may remain so.

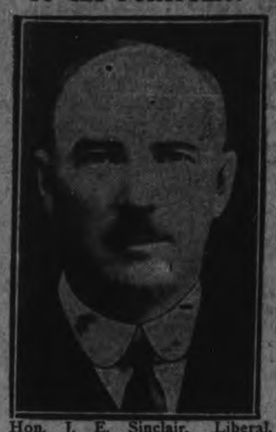
The School Project.

Promoters of the three-room public school project assert that it is neither dead nor dormant but quite alive and up-and-coming. The jolts it has absorbed so far have not deterred those who contend that the school accommodation needs modernization, and 1927 ideas at that. They say they have the support of the chief inspector, and that the by-law will again be submitted to the Council and, if rejected — but that is another story.

What of Nominations?

The school question may jangle the municipal nominations a bit. At least it may be mentioned, and perhaps with a dash of paprika or some other peppery stuff. There has been some pronounced feeling that the relations between the Council and the Board have not been sufficiently co-operative for the public good. And apparently the Board's "nest egg" fund, which it was holding to provide for contingencies in the event of building a new school, by the Council's course of fixing the school rate below the required levy of mills. The Board had laid away $2,000, but, it is understood, the five-mill rate allowed this year has all but wiped out that contingency fund. Last year's rate was ten mills. Much of the blame for the Council's reduction falls upon the Board in failing to requisition a definite rate of mills to meet its expenses. From all accounts, neither the School Board nor the Council afflicted their members with excessive calls for meetings this year, and it is believed that these official lapses contributed somewhat to the breach or misunderstanding between the two bodies. One member of the School Board asserted that the Council's action smacked of discourtesy and could not be endured by self-respect. He intimated that he was through and would not seek re-election.

TO GET PORTFOLIO.



Hon. J. E. Sinclair, Liberal, Queens, P.E.I. who is mentioned as probable first choice for the new presumable portfolio of fisheries which Premier King stated would go to a Prince Edward Island man. He was a minister without portfolio in the last cabinet. Another possibility is that the new portfolio may be of colonization which is now coupled with immigration under Hon. Robert Forke. This might not be so acceptable a post to Hon. Mr. Sinclair.

MIGHT HAVE AVERTED WAR

Says Stresemann, If Statesmen in 1914 Had Met Through League.

ITS GREAT SERVICE.

GENEVA, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press)—The world war would have been averted, Foreign Minister Stresemann, of Germany, believes, if the statesmen in 1914 had been given as many opportunities of getting together as they have at present through the League of Nations.

He voiced this view in commenting to The Associated Press on the success of the negotiations just concluded here which assured the organization of a league system of investigation in place of the inter-allied control of German armaments to which his government objected. Remarking that not only France, but all the former enemies of Germany had contributed to this result, he continued:

"The first condition that made this possible is the existence of the League of Nations, which permits representatives of the governments to confer frequently 'man to man' instead of depending on colorless exchanges of diplomatic correspondence.

"If the statesmen could have met for four or five weeks in 1914, just as the foreign ministers met at Locarno and Geneva and discussed the situation frankly and unreservedly, I am convinced that the great war would have been averted.

"Here, then, is one great service performed by the League of Nations, which henceforth is destined to be a medium in arranging the affairs of Europe."

The league was necessary and useful for the prompt and harmonious reconstruction of Europe he asserted, adding: "Europe simply cannot stand another war."

The Locarno security conference and the meetings in Geneva, he went on, had inaugurated a new system of philosophy in statecraft and that was straight dealing. He paid glowing tribute to all his colleagues representing other countries with whom he had been negotiating.

He had special mention for Foreign Minister Vandervelde of Belgium, who, the German statesman revealed, played the role of mediator in the difficult negotiations.

"And don't forget," he concluded, "that Belgium was the country with which Germany during the war and because of the war was on very bad terms. M. Vandervelde's attitude is indicative of the new Europe, based on co-operation and conciliation."

ORANGE CORNERS NEWS

A very pleasant time was spent on Thursday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Eric Blackwell opened their home and entertained the St. John's congregation and the Omemee A.Y.P.A.

The evening was spent in progressive euchre, contests, games and music after dainty refreshments were served. The Rev. A. T. Weir on behalf of the A.Y.P.A. moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell and Miss Dench, for giving their home and help in making the evening a very pleasant one.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Brian have returned home after spending a few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brian.

The O.C. Club has reorganized and are holding their meetings the same as last year every two weeks.

The young people of the community are anticipating some pleasant evenings during the winter evenings.

Miss Muriel Atchison is visiting with her sister, Mrs. A. Brian.

The W.A. met at the home of Mrs. T. B. Jones on Wednesday afternoon. After the devotional exercises and minutes of last meeting, the secretary read some letters acknowledging receipts of money of the bale sent last month, also a report from Miss Phillips of the diocesan board meeting held in Toronto.

The meeting closed with hymn, prayer, and refreshments.

HAD RHEUMATISM FOR MANY YEARS

Got relief at last with simple home treatment

A martyr to rheumatism for almost a lifetime, a man from Wyocena, Wis., writes that he can always get relief with a simple home treatment.

"As a man of seventy, for years a sufferer from rheumatism, I want to give my recommendation for Sloan's Liniment," he says. "It is a fine remedy and will do all that is claimed for it."

Sloan's has been the standby of rheumatic sufferers for years because it doesn't just deaden the nerves. It helps the body to throw off the germs and poisons that cause the trouble by speeding up the circulation right in the affected spots.

ANNUAL ME TING OF ONTARIO BEEKEEPERS

TORONTO, Dec. 14.—In spite of the large crop of honey in 1925, which was the heaviest on record, the co-operative marketing branch of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association has the problem well in hand, and fully ninety per cent. of that crop is out of the way and the decks are fairly well cleared for looking after the 1926 harvest. According to reports submitted to the annual meeting on Tuesday, new markets have been opened in Europe and the prospects are that regular avenues of sale have been established in certain countries across the Atlantic. Prices obtained for the 1925 crop were approximately two cents lower than for the 1924, for two reasons. The sales netted a cent a pound less than in 1924, on all grades; and in addition there was an added marketing expense running around a cent a pound.

It was pointed out by the co-operative marketing management that owing to the unusual weight of the 1925 crop it had been necessary to spend $25,000 on advertising; and practically the whole credit for moving the crop was given to advertising. Except for that, it was contended the co-operative company would have found itself with the bulk of the 1925 crop on hand at the time it should be handling the 1926. So, while the marketing costs were increased by a cent a pound, owing to the advertising campaign, it was pointed out, except for that expenditure, hundreds of thousands of pounds would have remained unsold.

1926 Crop Small.

There does not appear to be any danger of running into the same difficulties in marketing the 1926 crop. In the first place, the crop for this season was far below normal, owing to wholesale losses in the hives during the winter, and on account of the rainy season. Further, the European markets have been well established, and the prospects are that the ground work in marketing will help the movement of the 1926 crop. In one respect, chance played into the hands of the Ontario beekeepers. The tornado in Cuba cut off honey supplies from that country, and as a result Ontario was able to sell 800,000 pounds of second-grade honey in Holland and Belgium. That meant the opening of the Belgian market for the first time. The co-operative company markets approximately 85 per cent. of the Ontario crop. Membership stands at 1,100, which is an increase of 200 or 300 over the year previous.

At the annual meeting of the Beekeepers' Association at the Prince George Hotel, Morley Pettit, of Georgetown, president, recalled that for the past two years the profits of the beekeepers had been seriously curtailed. In 1925 there was a cut in profits, owing to the size of the crop, which forced down prices; while in 1926 there must be a like reduction in profits owing to the small crop. The swarms had suffered severely last winter, his estimate being that fully 50 per cent. of the bees in Ontario had been killed. In addition, the rainy season had interfered with the efficiency of the swarms which remained. In spite of that, Mr. Pettit advised the beekeepers to hold on, as he felt they would win in the long run.

Need Side-lines.

J. A. McKinnon, first vice-president, told the story of how he had managed to keep up profits by cutting out all unnecessary expenditure. He had kept his costs down to rock-bottom, and in such manner had been able to overcome some of the problems of the past two years. Hector Inch, second vice-president, advised all beekeepers to have some side-line, such as poultry raising, asparagus culture, or some small farm operation which would bring in revenue, but which would not seriously conflict with beekeeping through the busy season.

Prof. Eric Millen, O.A.C., secretary-treasurer, reported an increase in membership, and added that finances were in a sound condition. Some 27 county organizations had affiliated with the provincial body, and the spirit of co-operation was spreading, benefiting all concerned. During the discussion of technical problems, W. A. Weir, secretary of the co-operative company, dealt with fermented honey. His advice was that beekeepers should always leave honey in the hives until it had been two-thirds capped. Otherwise there might be fermentation. Lack of care in looking after the extracting equipment often produced the same problem, while excessive pollen might cause the same trouble. Mr. Weir stressed the importance of uniformity in market product. Lack of that might turn certain citizens away from the buying of honey and that would be a loss which the association could not well afford.

Honey as Anti-Freeze.

Owing to experiments which have been carried on for some time, there are prospects of a new market being opened for amber and buckwheat honey, which, up to the present, has been a difficult product to market. It has been found that honey serves a useful purpose in the manufacture of anti-freeze, as when honey, alcohol and water are mixed in equal parts a serviceable mixture is produced for use in automobile radiators. Tests have demonstrated that the mixture will stand several hours of a 20-below-zero temperature. The beekeepers accordingly hope that a new avenue of sale had been provided for that portion of the crop which hitherto has been the most difficult to market.

ORGAN RECITAL AT ST. PAUL'S

(By Jeanette)

A capacity audience of over twelve hundred people assembled in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last evening for the Organ Recital which marked the formal opening of the new organ and the first event in the Musical Festival of this week. The occasion proved to be one of the most outstanding events in the way of organ recitals ever held in this city, as the new organ of the church and the manner in which it was played last evening by J. W. Bearder, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O., of Ottawa, far surpassed the expectations of those who have been looking forward to this event for many months.

It is only once in a blue moon that Peterborough is favored with an organ recital of any magnitude, and very seldom has it the opportunity of listening to this wonderful instrument played as Mr. Bearder played it last night. He is one of those rare individuals who can give his hearers the strange impression soon that the organ is playing itself. The human tool is lost sight of entirely, and the grand instrument, with its innumerable resources of tone and its orchestral atmosphere, appears to be sending forth its own wonderful melodies. This must have been the sort of music that issued from the flute of the Piper of Hamelin town, when he lured the little children away with him. It was an entrancing web of lovely tone that built up a moving tapestry of rhythmic sweetness for the audience in the "Evening Song," for instance, one of the loveliest of the selections played last evening by Mr. Bearder, with its smooth, flowing legato. In it, as in all of Mr. Bearder's music, appears a fondness for a mildly brilliant type of music, the peaceful dreamy quality paramount, with a constant happy overtone. The sombre mood evidently does not appeal to this musician. His melodies are like a sunny autumn day.

The heavier numbers were the opening Organ Sonata No. 9, a composition of Gustav Merkel, with an agreeable variety in the smooth and melodious strains of the intervening Andante, contrasting with the more massive music of the opening and closing movements, and the Echo organ used quite prominently; the Prelude and Fugue in G Major, by Johann Sebastian Bach, in which the great master's constant, earnest and lofty tone was admirably demonstrated, and the Suite in F, by Corelli, with a charming atmosphere in the delineationsh of old dance forms of music, in the allemande, saraband, gavotte and gigue.

A trio of brilliant morceaux included a "Caprice," played in the pianissimo style of "mezzo voce" music, as a vocalist would term it, with merry little final cascades of melody; the "Chant de Noel," like a lullaby sung by an invisible choir and an "Elfentanz", descriptive and dainty.

A "Serenade," by E. H. Lemare, was an affair of reiterated staccato treble-toned doublets, against a massive smooth background, and the graceful Oriental "Intermezzo" which followed, had an effective renditjon, with a good deal of the vox humana stop noticeable in its recurrent Oriental rhythm and little chiming intervals. The "Evening Song" was marvellously holding in its smooth legato cadences, and the "Bell Rondo" demonstrated markedly the attraction of ascending and descending measures played with tiny silver bell effect. The flute, harp and violin stops were used effectively in this selection.

The final organ number was a vigorous, broad-toned "Triumphal March," calling into play many of the seldom-heard orchestral resources of the beautiful organ.

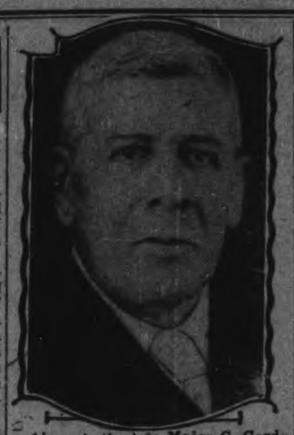
Mr. Bearder played organ accompaniments for several of the vocal solos by Miss Edith Champion, of Toronto, whose soprano voice, of a sweet lyrical quality, combined with a charming delivery of her lovely songs to make her a general favorite with her audience. Her transitions in register were sometimes rather startling, but the general effect of her melodious voice was attractive in the extreme. She was at her best, possibly, in the gentle, reverent strains of Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer," artistically rendered, with a wide range noticeable in the deep lower tones, and the bird like quality of the lovely upper register. The organ accompaniment to the "Ave Maria," of Bach-Gounod, added immensely to its rendition, with a good deal of the harp stop noticeable in the opening, but the beautiful Latin words were marred by faulty pronunciation. "The Magic Song" by Meyer Helmund was a lovely thing, with flute like sweetness in its cadences and the favorite "Danny Boy" was another attractive solo number by Miss Champion, who also sang "With Verdue Clad," from Haydns "Creation," and one of Cyril Scott's tender Lullabies.

Perhaps the most striking number of the evening was the rendition of "Abide with Me," by the Peterborough Male Voice Choir, a wonderfully effective thing, beautifully sung by the massed voices, under direction of Mr. M. B. Chenhall. In this selection the Echo Organ was finely demonstrated, in the refrain sung later from the balcony by four of the Choir's members: Messrs. E. Jones, P. Manning, G. S. Parlour and W. Northrop. The Choir also sang the arrangement of the 24th Psalm, which formed a fitting opening for the evening's programme, following the singing of the Doxology and the Invocatory Prayer by Rev. Mr. Allan, and preluding the reading of the Scripture Lesson.

The singing of "Abide with Me," had an appropriate place on the evening's programme, following, as it did, the Dedication of the Times and Echo Organ by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan, who spoke of the contribution of the latter by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hill, in memory of their son, Harold, who was killed in the Great War. Mr. Allan also included in his brief speech an appreciation of the work of Mr. Bearder, Miss Champion, the Male Voice Choir, and Miss Muriel Bridge, who played very proficiently accompaniments on the piano for several of the numbers on the programme.

During the evening, an interlude in the programme afforded an opportunity for a tribute paid to Mr. D. H. Moore by Mr. James Dutton, who spoke of Mr. Moore's enthusiasm and perseverance in the cause of a new organ, and of the keen interest he had always taken in church and choir affairs during his term of membership, closely approximating half a century, in St. Paul's church. Mr. Moore was presented with a beautifully-bound "Book of Praise," in token of his service of long standing, and replied in a few appropriate words.

At the conclusion of the programme, Mr. Bearder met the organists of the city, also Mr. Parkinson, organist of Trinity Church, Cobourg, who was present for the occasion.



Above is the late Major C. Gardner Johnson, shipping man, of Vancouver, who requested that his ashes be scattered over southern seas by moonlight. His wish was carried out.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 14.—The annual Christmas bazaar of the Ladies' Aid of the Regent street church was held on Friday afternoon in the basement of the church, and with great success. The color scheme was red and green (Christmas colors) and it was carried throughout, each booth having some original touches in the arrangement, California dahlias, poinsettias, bitter sweets and scarlet poppies were used freely and with charming effect. Miss Webster, the President of the Ladies' Aid, received the visitors, giving the hospitable welcome characteristic of the Ladies' Aid functions. The tea room occupied the central space and was entered through a little gate set in a white paling trimmed with scarlet poppies.

Mrs. S. Spence,, Mrs. T. T. Milburn and Mrs. Robert Nugent poured tea and Mrs. F. H. Richardson acted as cashier.

The waitresses were: Mrs. A. C. Carveth, Mrs. Walter Hamblin, Mrs. John Millage, Mrs. A. D. Payne, Mrs. J. H. Payne and Mrs. S. Pearson. Mrs. Frank Darling also assisted.

The fancy work booth was in charge of Mrs. Walter Payne (convenor), Mrs. (Rev.) S. A. Kemp, Miss Milburn, Mrs. McConkey, Mrs. A. Northey, Mrs. J. R. Northey and Mrs. A. V. Hill.

The apron booth was in charge of Mrs. Welbourne (convenor), Mrs. G. H. Spencer, Mrs. D. H. Webster and Mrs. Erskine.

Mrs. Wagar was convenor of the handkerchief booth, assisted by Mrs. Purdy.

Mrs. A. E. Higgins (convenor) and Mrs. H. Dunsford and Mrs. H. Kemp were in charge of the candy stall, a popular place, where every variety of home-made sweets were dispensed.

Mrs. John Charlton and Mrs. Robert Bullock were joint convenors of the woolen table, where all varieties of hand-made woolen articles were for sale. Mrs. J. Reid, Mrs. G. Scriver and Mrs. Murphy assisted.

The home cooking table was laden with tempting cakes, pies, etc., but one of the first to be emptied, home-made baking, is always a popular commodity. Mrs. Albert Darling was the convenor assisted by Mrs. H. J. Abbott and Mrs. J. E. Galvin, with a quantity of attractive wares, not too highly priced and a large crowd of the ladies had a very successful sale in spite of the fact that there is a good deal of sickness in the village. The gratifying sum of $275 clear over and above all expenses is reported by the treasurer.

BIBLE CLASS MEETS.

Mrs. G. S. Collis Elected President of Women's Friendly B. C.

On Thursday the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's held their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Bacon, 202 Edinburgh street. There was a good attendance and the reports were very encouraging, all obligations being met and a good balance on hand. The past year has been the most successful in the class's history. Plans were made for the annual New Year's masquerade, to be held on Jan. 7th. Warm appreciation was expressed on all sides for the work of the teacher, Mrs. F. M. Dela Fossse, to whose untiring efforts much of the success of the class is due.

The following officers were re-elected:

Teacher—Mrs. F. M. Dela Fossse.
President—Mrs. G. S. Collis.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. Vollans.
Secretary—Mrs. W. T. Hake.
Treasurer—Mrs. Budd.
Organist—Miss L. Bacon.
Convenors: Visiting, Mrs. Stanger; Refreshment, Mrs. C. H. Barton; Sewing, Miss Jenkinson; Centenary, Mrs. J. Bacon.

TRUCK DRIVER RUNS INTO DITCH

Does Great Damage To Vehicle in Avoiding Man on Road.

NEAR PORT HOPE.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Dec. 14. — Joseph Hagerman, who is now lying in Port Hope Hospital with a broken leg, owes his life to the prompt action of Carl Johns, driver for the Tanner Transport Company of Toronto. Johns was driving one of the company's heavy transports from Port Hope toward Toronto at about seven o'clock on Sunday night. At the outskirts of Port Hope he perceived the body of a man lying in the centre of the road, and being unable to stop the big truck in time to avoid running over him, took the only alternative course and swerved the truck into the ditch. It was practically broken in two, damage estimated at several hundred dollars being done.

Johns escaped injury beyond a severe shaking up. The man lying on the road was found to be Joseph Hagerman, Cavan street. He was unconscious when removed to the hospital, his right leg was broken above the knee. Owing to the man's condition it has been impossible to ascertain how he was injured, but it is believed that he was struck by a passing car.

When the auto in which they were driving sideswiped a car driven by R. Colbourne, Port Perry, on the Provincial Highway east of here on Saturday, two women, whose names cannot be learned, were badly cut by flying glass and were removed to Cobourg Hospital. Occupants of the Port Perry car, Mr. T. Beare, Port Perry and Benjamin Pullman, Cobourg, escaped uninjured. The women live in Lynn, Michigan, and were motoring to that place from Ottawa.

B. A. Oil Outstanding In Active Toronto Session

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press)—British American Oil was an outstanding leader in the firm movement during this morning's extremely active session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Oil sold up to a record high of 80 and at the noon close was only an eighth below this mark, showing a gain of 1 7-8 from yesterday. Noranda recorded a new high at 23.00, 25 cents higher and Seagram's advanced 3-8 at 37 7-8. In the regular list Industrial Alcohol was the feature, climbing 2 1-2 to a new high at 32 3-8. Winnipeg improved half at 63 1-2 and Atlantic Sugar common a quarter at 30 1-4. Brazilian improved 3-4 at 106.

Wheat Prices Go Down On Advice From Abroad

CHICAGO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices here showed an early downward trend to-day, largely as a result of Liverpool quotations lower than due. European advices of cheaper offerings of wheat from Argentina discounted too as a bearish factor.

Starting 3-8c to 1c off, the Chicago wheat market displayed but little power to rally. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, corn opening 1-8 to 3-8 down, and subsequently sagging a little more.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 137 7-8, May 138 3-4; corn December 73 5-8, May 71 7-8; oats, December 45⅛, May 49⅜.

Several Heavy Gains On Mine Market To-day

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Several substantial gains were recorded in the heavy trading on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, but the advance of yesterday was checked and losses, though not large, were fairly numerous. Noranda was the feature with sales up to a new high of 23.05. It eased to 22.90 at the noon close, ten cents advance. Nipissing gained 15 at 7.15, and Duprat, an active leader, firmed at 3½ at 28. On the weaker side Vipond lost five at 168, and McIntyre eased 10 at 24.65.

Upward Move Resumed On Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Resumption of the upward movement of prices in today's Stock Market carried the general industrial average to a new record high level.

Buying orders were distributed over a broad list, but the motor shares received major speculative attention under the leadership of General Motors and Mack Truck. Chrysler, which was strong yesterday, was subjected to some profit-taking. The brisk accumulation of the low-priced motors in the last few days has been associated with merger rumors, but details of the proposed new combination are lacking.

Another series of "Christmas dividends" in the form of increased and extra payments helped to create bullish enthusiasm. Relatively firm call money rates were regarded as temporary and failed to check the upward sweep of prices.

United States Steel Common crossed 153 to the highest level in over a month. Baldwin staged another of its characteristic rallies by jumping five points to 161¼. More than a score of issues were elevated to new high levels for the year, the list including South Porto Rican Sugar, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Jewell Tea, Dupont, Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, Green Cananea, and Erie First Preferred.

DISSENSION ON ST. LOUIS TEAM

Great Diplomacy Will Be Needed To Smooth Out Troubles.

HORNSBY MAY GO.

(By Henry L. Farrell, United Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (United Press).—Reports of internal dissension on the St. Louis Cardinal baseball club, so close upon the evidence of the wreck that family trouble made out of the Pittsburgh Pirates, put the future of the world's champions largely up to the diplomacy of the majority stockholders.

Sam Breadon, wise as a baseball business man and popular in a wide circle of friends, will hardly make the mistake that Barney Dreyfuss committed last year in going to Europe and letting his club go on the rocks.

While Dreyfuss was trying to get his health back on the other side, his champion Pirates split up into fractions, fought among themselves and reached such a condition of demoralization that three players, a manager and a vice-president of the club became casualties before the storm blew over.

The domestic situation among the Cardinals may not be as bad. In fact there may be no situation at all. Rumors and reports, especially about the inside affairs of a baseball club, usually are not worth the consideration of even a crazy rumor, but so many stories have been heard about the Cardinals that there must be something behind it.

Late in the pennant race, before, during and after the world's series, stories were passed around that the best of feeling didn't exist between Rogers Hornsby, manager of the champions and the officials of the club. And they haven't been denied.

Hornsby is said to be in a condition of disagreement with Breadon, president of the club and in a state of open war against Branch Rickey, vice-president and former manager of the team.

The young manager of the first world's champion club St. Louis ever had a chance to get hysterical about is said to have demanded a three-year contract at 50,000 a year, permission to increase his holdings in the club to fifty percent of the total stock and assurance that Rickey will pass completely out of the affairs of the team, like Fred Clarke did in Pittsburgh.

Before Hornsby would accept the management of the club he insisted that he be allowed to purchase Rickey's stock and it was understood that all but 5,000 worth of the former manager's holdings were sold to him.

Hornsby is said to be demanding the rest of it and it might be construed that he wants to become vice-president and have the same voice in the business affairs of the club that John McGraw has in New York and that Connie Mack has in Philadelphia.

It was heard during the world's series that Hornsby and Breadon had a violent quarrel during the season when Breadon suggested that he was betting too much on horse racing and that it didn't look well. And before the world's series bad feeling again come up when Hornsby was said to have protested vehemently because he couldn't get as many tickets as he wanted.

Considering all these angles, it did not come as a shock to the baseball public when stories were heard that Hornsby might be traded to the New York Giants for Frank Frisch and other considerations and that Bill Killifer, who acted as assistant manager last year would take charge of the club.

It will be a surprise if Frisch is with the Giants next year as he and John McGraw are on the outs and the Giant leader has intimated that he will consider a fair proposition for his former pet.

St. Louis could make better use of Frisch and perhaps could offer better terms for a trade than any other club in the league.

If there really is anything to these stories, Breadon is now in a position where he might feel that he would not break faith with St. Louis if he made a trade for Hornsby.

Breadon has to be admired because, during the lean days in St. Louis, he secured patronage by insisting that he was trying to build up a championship club instead of cultivating players for the market.

He could have made the fortune that Harry Frazee made if he had sold off his player like Frazee sold off the Boston Red Sox but he stuck it out and finally brought his patrons a world's champion team.

Breadon would not have to flee to the hills from the mob if he traded Hornsby as he is not the popular idol that Bucky Harris was and is in Washington and he didn't get the credit that Harris did for winning a championship.

Even the rabid baseball fans in St. Louis think down in their hearts that the St. Louis team and not Hornsby won the pennant. They figure that Branch Rickey left a championship team and it became one when the players had a chance to play their kind of game instead of following Rickey's queer theories.

Thirteenth Lucky Day For Yonkers Woman

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Dec. 14th. — United News. — As for Miss Sadie Rayamka of Yonkers, the 13th will never again hold terrors. A Supreme Court jury awarded her $43,000 while she laid in the White Plains Hospital admiring the beauty of a son born while the jurors were deliberating. She had sued the Pennsylvania Railroad for damages in the death of her husband, killed when the Atlantic City flyer was derailed near Camden, N. J., last July.

When the Jury retired she left the court room for the hospital.

Duelling Not Dangerous Say German Students

BERLIN, December 4. — United Press. — Duelling as a refined sport, having none of the dangers of swimming, riding and boxing, was upheld by medical experts testifying yesterday at the trial of Gerhard Kruschke, whose adversary, Thomas Beer, died of stab wounds, received in a recent duel. Throngs of sabre-scarred students crowded the court room and made evident their disapproval when Kruschke was sentenced to five months in prison.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ISABELLA GLOVER

Attended by a large number of her friends, the funeral of the late Mrs. Isabella Glover took place yesterday afternoon from her late residence at 367 Mark Street. The funeral services were conducted, at two o'clock, by Rev. J. W. Gordon, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, and Rev. R. T. Richards, pastor of Mark Street Church, the latter fittingly referred to the late Mrs. Glover's many years of Christian endeavor, her youthful spirit and enthusiasm, and her active exemplification of the virtues of the best type of womanhood.

Interment was in the Little Lake Cemetery. Pall-bearers were Messrs. James McDonald, H. Morgan, A. Finnie, C. H. Huffman, L. G. Dobbin and A. M. Paton of Lindsay.

The large number of beautiful floral tributes received testified silently to the esteem in which the late Mrs. Glover was held my many friends.

FRANCIS McMARTIN

The death occurred on December 9th, of Francis McMartin, 15-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael McMartin of Otonabee. The funeral took place Friday afternoon at three o'clock. He leaves to mourn his loss his parents, two sisters, Helen and Margaret, and one brother, Gerald.

EMMA AGNEW

The death occurred early this morning of Emma Agnew, widow of the late Frederick J. Agnew, after a short illness. She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. Hugh Hunter, Rogers Street, Miss Margaret, at home; and four sons, Leonard, Cyril, Harold and Gordon, all of this city. The funeral will take place from the family residence, 589 Harvey Street, on Thursday, at 2 p.m. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery, with Rev. J. E. Todd officiating.

RICHARD GILLIS

The death occurred in this city yesterday of Richard Gillis, of 476 Patterson Street. Mr. Gillis was born in the township of Manvers. He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife; one brother, Thomas of Cavan, and one sister, Miss Mary of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday, at 2.00 p.m. from the family residence, Patterson Street to Little Lake Cemetery with Rev. William MacDonald officiating.

JOHN B. JAMES.

The death occurred on Monday morning of John B. James, aged 72 years.

The late Mr. James was born in England, but has resided in this city for the past forty years. He was in the employ of the William Hamilton Co.

The funeral will take place from the funeral chapel of D. Belleghem and Sons, on Wednesday, at 2.00 p.m. Interment at the Little Lake cemetery, the Rev. David McKee officiating.

LESS UNCERTAINTY IN BUSINESS SAYS MONTHLY LETTER OF BANK

Saving of Wheat Crop and Continued Industrial Operations Credited.

PROSPECTS GOOD

Conditions at Home and Abroad Better Than for Some Time.

There is now less uncertainty as to business conditions than for some time past, says the Monthly Commercial Letter, issued by the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The saving of a large wheat crop, the continuance of industrial operations on a large scale and the outlook for better conditions abroad have created a spirit of confidence in the general business situation. The winter season opens with fundamentally sound domestic conditions and with a strong prospect of an improvement in those foreign markets upon which we depend so largely for the disposal of our surplus products.

Agricultural Conditions.

The dairy markets have improved somewhat during the past month, for while exports were not large, domestic consumption was heavy, which, with reduced production, resulted in a decline in storage stocks and a slight rise in the price of butter.

The markets for cattle and hogs have shown further weakness, mainly because of smaller exports to Great Britain and the United States. Cold storage stocks of beef, veal, mutton and lamb increased somewhat during October, but pork products in store were reduced by nearly 7,000,000 pounds. It is thought that fewer cattle will be fed this year, but an encouraging factor is the excellent condition in which cattle will enter the winter period. According to the Dominion Live Stock Commissioner there is no fundamental weakness in the hog situation, as with the end of heavy shipments in sight there should shortly be more stability in prices.

Very little unthreshed grain remains in the West and the farmers are to be congratulated on the exceptional achievement of harvesting their crops successfully in a period of the worst weather encountered for many years. Favourable growing conditions in Argentina and Australia, increased stocks of wheat in the commercial channels of the United States and Canada and a falling off in exports caused a sharp recession in prices, but all indications point to a strong demand for the Canadian product, even if it is not moving to the foreign markets as rapidly as in previous years.

Wholesale Trade.

In view of the extensive production and importation of raw materials and goods of all classes, the question of the volume in which these have been absorbed in the domestic markets has become of more than usual interest, especially as exceptionally bad weather from time to time has hampered trade during the past year. It has been evident, of course, that practically all commodities have been available in larger quantities, and as stocks have not been burdensome at any stage it seemed that the public was purchasing freely, but in order to determine the actual state of trade, as compared with that of 1925, our representatives at the principal distributing centres have made a close analysis of the situation and we summarize their reports below.

Groceries and foodstuffs of all kinds have moved in greater volume, for while sales in some districts have not been higher, wholesalers in other sections, particularly in those where large development projects are under way, report that their business has increased from 10 to 20 per cent. over that of last year. The chain store organizations have extended their representation throughout the country and it is evident that they, also, are disposing of more goods.

In respect of dry goods, wearing apparel and footwear, notable increases have been observed in the sales of blankets, seasonal underwear, hosiery and knitted goods. In spite of keen competition and price cutting in regard to outer clothing, our reports from two of the principal manufacturing centres record a larger turnover in this line, the sales in some cases showing an increase of 25 per cent. Most of the concerns in the wholesale footwear trade report a greater volume of business than in 1925.

As a result of the extensive construction and development being carried on throughout the country, sales of hardware and building materials have increased substantially in all sections, in some cases by as much as 40 per cent. Similarly, house furnishings have been sold in larger volume, the distribution of furniture alone being 10 to 20 per cent. higher than in 1925.

While sales of automobile tires now show a seasonal decline, the volume for the year will probably be the highest on record. Other classes of rubber goods have also been in greater demand and are still being sold extensively.

The dealers handling the products of metal manufacturers also report heavier sales, especially of agricultural implements, automobile accessories and electrical goods. In some districts twice as much farming equipment has been sold as during last year.

A general analysis of wholesale trade in the past year shows an expansion of 10 to 20 per cent, and this can safely be taken as a measure of the enlarged purchasing power in Canada and as a definite indication of the improvement in general conditions. This is a gratifying sign of the welfare of the Canadian public.

for future delivery furnish some indication of the probable course of business during the next few months. Both wholesale and retail merchants are continuing, as far as practicable, the hand-to-mouth policy of purchasing, but their commitments for goods which must be ordered some time ahead are heavier than at this time last year. There was a marked falling off in wholesale and retail trade during the recent uncertain harvest period, but orders are now being freely placed, many factories are operating on an overtime basis to meet the demand for their products and there are prospects that the volume of wholesale trade will continue on an enlarged scale for the remainder of this year and in the early part of 1927.

The Lumber Industry.

Lumbering has been conducted under adverse conditions for nearly three years, for while sales have been large, overproduction and highly competitive markets have forced prices to comparatively low levels, and the only mills which have been able to make good profits are those enjoying exceptional advantages, such as the opportunity to log under the most favourable circumstances or to purchase logs cheaply. From time to time a slight improvement in the situation has been noticeable, but any advances in prices have been only temporary; indeed, the trend has generally been downward, showing that the available supplies of lumber have been in excess of market requirements.

In 1921 the production of lumber in Canada was at the lowest level since 1908, when statistics covering forest products were first compiled. The output of 2,869,000 M feet in that year probably represented the limit of consumption, and had it been maintained on that scale, the industry would not have to contend with some of its present difficulties. Production, however, was increased in each of the three years following, and while statistics for 1925 are not yet available, it is probable that last year's cut was about equal to that of 1924, which was 3,878,000 M feet.

No particulars are available as to the lumber sawn in Northern British Columbia, but the cut of logs is estimated to be slightly higher than that in the first nine months of 1925. The lumber and lath cut in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick in the first six months of this year was estimated 450,000 M feet, a reduction of 275,000 M feet from the production in the corresponding period of 1925. While no figures are available regarding the production in Ontario and Quebec, it is stated by competent authorities that it is somewhat less than that of the previous year.

Construction operations in Canada in 1924, 1925 and during the current year have been on an extensive scale, but there has been a very rapid expansion in the use of substitutes for wood, and therein lies one of the principal causes of the difficulties surrounding the lumber industry. An investigation of conditions in the United States revealed that since 1909 the consumption of lumber had declined by nearly 20 per cent., while the use of substitutes had increased by 190 per cent.; it is probable that a similar change has taken place in Canada, as there is ample evidence on all sides that proportionately less lumber is being used now in construction and in the manufacture of railway cars, automobiles and boxes.

As fully two-thirds of the production of Canadian lumber must be disposed of in the foreign markets, our foreign trade is a most important factor. Compared with the exports of logs, lath and lumber in the twelve months ending 30th September, 1925, those for the corresponding period this year show a slight decline. The United States is the largest outside market for the disposal of Canadian timber products, but the mills in that country provide keen competition in other markets, especially the Australian and Oriental. Shipments of Canadian logs, lumber and lath to the United States for the twelve months ending 30th September show a slight decrease in comparison with those for the same period of 1924-25, and in view of the great construction programme across the border this decrease in sales there might at first be considered a poor record. In reality, the Canadian operators have done well almost to hold their own in that market, as the American mills, particularly some of those on the Pacific Coast which have bond interest to earn, have forced the sale of their products and have thus furnished larger supplies for domestic consumption. A decline in construction in the United States is expected next year, but one of the best authorities points out that while the country's requirements for many classes of building have been met, the present prosperity and the surplus funds available for investment may prevent a marked recession in construction. The necessary reconstruction in Florida is not likely to strengthen the lumber market, as large consignment stocks were held there prior to the recent hurricane.

There is still heavy consumption of lumber for house building in Great Britain, but the market in general has been weak as a result of unfavourable industrial conditions. For the first seven months of 1926 the value of the principal classes of lumber imported into the United Kingdom shows a decline of about 20 per cent. in comparison with that for the same period in 1925; the value of Canadian timber products sold in Great Britain dropped by about 40 per cent. Stocks of hard woods there are large, but those of soft woods are not more than sufficient for current needs. No marked improvement in the demand for Canadian

The orders placed at this season lumber can take place until the return of more normal conditions in the Old Country, and while North American exporters will continue to face severe competition from European mills, it is encouraging to note that firmer prices are quoted for Russian lumber and that the quantity of that product available for export is likely to be less this year than last.

Fortunately, the decline in shipments to the American and British markets has been largely offset by increased exports to other countries, notably Japan, which, in the eleven months ending in August last, bought nearly 260,000,000 feet of Canadian logs, lumber and timber squares; in the previous eleven months its purchases were about 135,000,000 feet. This market seems to have recovered from the weakness caused by excessive importations following the earthquake two years ago, and while competition is keen, it offers excellent prospects for Canadian exporters. The trade with Australia and New Zealand in the past year was of about the same volume as in the previous twelve months, but there has recently been a stronger demand which is likely to be maintained if agricultural conditions in these countries continue to be favourable during the next few months.

While the volume of orders now shows the usual seasonal decline and no improvement in the conditions affecting lumbering can be expected for some time, there are encouraging signs which indicate that the industry will gradually work into a more profitable position. Uneconomical production in the East is declining, while a merger of a number of Pacific Coast mills is under way, which, if consummated, would probably curtail the overproduction in that region and effect economies which would assist in bringing prices to figures more nearly in line with those of other building materials. It is claimed that substitutes have proved unsuitable for some of the purposes for which they have been employed, especially in certain climates, and the lumbermen hope to regain some of the markets lost in the last few years. A substantial building programme on the prairies has recently been delayed by bad weather, but it is expected to be undertaken next spring, and this, with increased immigration, would result in a stronger demand from the Central West than for some years. The consumption of logs in British Columbia in the three months ending 30th September exceeded the production, and while stocks are still heavy, there is a firmer undertone in the market. The foreign trade in timber products, which has been the saving factor in the last few years, can be developed more extensively as new markets are being found, notably in South America.

Monthly Index Number.

Our index number for the wholesale prices of commodities in the export section has dropped to 150.69, due to lower quotations for wheat, cattle, hogs, bacon, flour, oatmeal and hides, which were only partly offset by the increased prices of oats, butter, wool and silver. In the list of imported products, declines were observed in the quotations for corn, pork, raw cotton, cotton shirtings, leather, crude rubber and tin, while sugar and coke rose in price; the index number in this section is shown as 153.14. The number for imports and exports combined is 151.91.

Never Let a Cold Get a Start

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like a "vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

BOY PRINCE NEW CENTRE OF RUMANIAN INTRIGUE

A smiling boy, who hasn't the least idea what it's all about, is the centre of a turbulent political intrigue which threatens in Rumania as Queen Marie speeds home. He is Prince Michael, pictured above with former Premier Bratiano (upper left), Premier Avarescu (lower left), and Prince Carol (inset), Michael's dad. The situation grows out of King Ferdinand's critical illness. Avarescu, Queen Marie and Carol represent one alignment in Rumanian politics, with the powerful Bratiano opposing them. Marie and Avarescu generally are credited with wanting Carol's rights to the throne restored, Bratiano with bitterly opposing the Queen's renegade son. Should Carol fail of restoration, a regency might be established to rule the country until little Michael attained manhood. Then strife over the regency probably would ensue.

PRODUCTION AT PRE-WAR RATE IN SOVIET UNION

Consistent Gains Being Reported on Every Monthly Statement.

LARGE HARVEST

Trade Delegation Now in Canada Furnishes Figures.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 14 (By Canadian Press).—The Trade Delegation in Canada of the Union of Soviet Socialistic Republics has issued the following statement regarding economic conditions in Russia:

The Soviet Union, which began its tenth year of existence this month, has reached the pre-war rate of productivity; and the month-to-month figures of industrial output are showing a substantial and consistent gain.

The Soviet Union enters upon its tenth year since the revolution with the monthly figures of industrial production approximating those of 1913 and showing a steady monthly gain. Five years ago the monthly output was less than 15 per cent of that of 1913. The recovery has been particularly rapid during the past two years, with the exception of a slowing up during a period of financial stringency last winter. For the Soviet fiscal year ending September 30, the value of industrial production was 41 per cent greater than during the fiscal year 1924-25. State industry yielded a net profit for the year of $231,750,000.

Reports of the harvest received thus far indicate a grain crop in the neighborhood of 2,800,000,000 bushels, or about 225,000,000 bushels greater than last year. This is close to the harvest of 1913, an average pre-war year, in the present territory of the Soviet Union. The technical crops, including cotton, sugar beets, oil seeds and potatoes, are well above the pre-war average, with the exception of cotton and sugar beets. Prolonged droughts in the cotton belt reduced that crop below last year.

The foreign trade turnover for the past fiscal year, over the European frontiers, was $648,642,500, an increase of 13.7 per cent over the previous year. The adverse balance for the year was $44,241,500. During the last quarter, however, imports were virtually balanced.

The average daily freight car loadings during August (the last month available) were 24,866 cars, as compared with 19,875 cars during August, 1925, an increase of 25 per cent.

The output of some of the industries for the past fiscal year, with the comparisons of 1924-25 and of 1913, follows, in thousands of metric tons.

Coal—192 5-26, 24,302; 1924-25, 16,107; 1913, 28,358.

Oil—1915-26, 8,348; 1924-25, 6,950; 1913, 9,205.

Pig Iron—1925-26, 2,200; 1924-25, 1,304; 1913, 4,206.

Martin Steel—1925-26, 2,877; 1924-25, 1,865; 1913, 4,247.

Rolled Iron—1925-26, 2,130; 1924-25, 1,335; 1913, 3,509.

Cement—1925-26, 1,286; 1924-25, 716.

Sugar—1925-26, 1,058; 1924-25, 451; 1913, 1,513.

The textile industry showed an output 30 per cent greater than that of 1924-25. The number of workers employed in State industries increased from 1,653,501 on September 1, 1925, to 1,931,487 on September 1, 1926. Real wages increased 16.7 per cent during the year.

Oil exports for the year were 1,450,000 tons, breaking all Russian records. The pre-war average was about 900,000 tons.

Electrification made notable progress during the year. In 1917 electric power stations engaged in general public service had a total capacity of only 394,000 kilowatts. This year they were brought up to nearly 1,000,000 kilowatts. During the summer electrical equipment for 200,000 kilowatts additional was ordered in Germany and for 100,000 in France and England. Nearly a score of regional super-power stations are under construction, over half of which are now in full or partial operation. The big Volkovstroy station, 56,000 kilowatts, near Leningrad, is to be formally opened this month.

American-Russian trade for the year 1926 promises to amount to about $80,000,000, as compared with $108,000,000 in 1925 and $48,000,000 in 1913. Increased credit facilities in Germany and England cut into th American trade somewhat this year.

WHEN COMPANY COMES.

A few cans of salmon, tuna fish, sardines, crabmeat, and some potted cheeses are excellent emergency articles for your refrigerator.

No Bacon? Don't Worry—

If you have a tin of Clark's Veal, Ham & Tongue Paté,—Cut into slices and fry as bacon—serve alone or with eggs on toast—or with browned potatoes, it is a scrumptious dish. Clark's Veal Ham & Tongue is cheaper than bacon—much—and many people will prefer it.

STAR AND CANDLE

"There's Rosemary, that's for remembrance." ACT IV., SCENE V. "HAMLET."

'TWAS the night before Christmas! My big brother, interested in Aspen Deep mining, suggested that I go in with him and see the Mollie Gibson mine, and read the Christmas story to the miners on the graveyard shift as they ate their midnight supper.

"You will have an appreciative audience of real men, gentlemen, too; many of them are well educated, and two are Oxford graduates," he said with pride.

"Talk about a setting for the Chester mysteries! Em, you come and see the underground cavern of the Mollie Gibson; it beats any theatre I have ever seen in England, or on the continent," he added.

I went.

We got into the bucket at the top of the hoist when the whistles were blowing for eleven. Down, down, down, we seemed to drop. Then at the nth level we clambered out of the bucket. By the light of a miner's tallow dip we followed the lead of our guide to the end of a long passage. There we saw a cavern of huge dimensions, filled with men, magnificent looking men, their faces, bared throats and breasts discernible by the light of their candles in miners' candlesticks stuck in the rock.

Opening out of this large cavern was a smaller one where the great vein of ore lay uncovered, and adjacent to this a formation of porphyry, rich in color, and numerous stalactites which caught the rays of light and reflected them with great brilliance. It was a remarkable little alcove and suggested to my awakened imagination the manger with Mary and her Babe.

"Albert, you were right," I said. "What a magnificent setting for the Mystery Play! And look at those men, so rugged and strong, looking towards that light above, suggesti e of the Star! ohey look like the magi and shepherds Tming to offer their gifts."

As we entered the cavern the men turned to welcome us, and such a cheer echoed and re-echoed through those underground caverns and passages of that richest silver producing mine in the world—the Mollie Gibson

My six-foot brother, doffing his sombrero, stepped aside and with great dignity introduced me.

"Gentlemen," he said, "this is my little sister from Canada. She wishes me to tell you that she feels greatly honored to be your guest and to be invited to share your Christmas feast, and will gladly read you the Christmas story."

The pails were produced and the men began to eat their supper. The lid of a miner's pail was passed around and came back to me laden with dainties from every pail. I was hungry, but I knew that I must read before I had my supper.

First I read Oliver Wendell Holmes' "The Boys," beginning with "Has there any old fellow got mixed with the boys?" As I finished reading a voice somewhere near, a lovely English voice, was saying:

"I wonder if your sister knows anything from Shakespeare?"

"Well, I should think she does," answered my brother. "We were raised in a parsonage, and our daily diet was the Bible, Shakespeare, rice and prayer. What would you like?"

"Well, you see, I played Cassius with Benson's company and I love the quarrel scene," he replied.

"All right, sir," I answered. "I'll do my best to read Brutus to your Cassius."

He began the scene in a voice vibrant with emotion. He was an artist. So again Brutus was enacted, not at the Capitol but in that unforgetable underground theatre. Cassius was the star. I did my best to follow his lead and the men gave us a great ovation. I gave them a chance to hear Cassius speak again. Once more I heard a voice and this time it was the voice of an old man.

"Now, boys," he was saying. "It's time for the Christmas story; the whistles will soon be blowing for Christmas morning. Let her tell us about those shepherds. That's the story I love. I've loved it nigh on to seventy years."

"There were shepherds abiding in the field keeping watch over their flocks by night," he began. Then he stopped and there came over us all such a hush, for "Old Dad," as they called him, was standing in the light with uncovered head in an attitude of prayer, his lips were moving but no words seemed to come. At a sign I took up the narrative where he left off: "When suddenly the angel of the Lord appeared unto them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them." One after another the sombreros and caps came off—food was forgotten. Everyone in that underground cavern was bringing incense and myrrh to the Christ Child, and mine was not the only voice audible."

"'Twas not the weight of jewel or plate, or the rustle of silk and fur, but the spirit in which the gift is rich as the gifts of the wise ones were. And we are not told whose gift was gold, nor whose was the gift of myrrh."

That night all brought their gift of myrrh.

I saw those men afterwards on the streets of Aspen and in their homes. I had the pleasure of entertaining some of them in my own home. And now the night before Christmas, as I read the story of the Shepherds abiding in the field, I see again that rock cavern, those reverent men and the star—all by the light of a miner's tallow dip.

For nearly a quarter of a century a little circlet made of silver nuggets holds my bit of table napery for daily use. In my little treasure box is a card which reads: "This little silver ring holds a nugget from each of the men of the Graveyard shift, and is sent to remind you of the night we saw the star and the angel, and worshipped the Christ Child in the rocky crypt of the Mollie Gibson."

SCIENCE OPENS NEW WARFARE ON CRIME

Strange Devices Test Skin, Eyes and Heartbeats to Detect the Guilty.

There is a remedy for the crime "wave" which has become a rising flood in America, and science can help to supply it. The remedy is more prompt and certain conviction of the criminal. Science can aid this through the methods of practical psychology that reveal the innermost workings of the human mind. The same psychological tests that are being used successfully in business and industry can be applied, as several remarkable recent developments have shown, to study criminals and to exact the truth from witnesses.

Such is the statement of Dr. E. E. Free in the December issue of "Popular Science Monthly." There are two ways, he says, in which psychological science can help detect crime. One is by helping to determine when witnesses are telling the truth and when they are lying. The other is by eliminating from a list of suspected persons those for whom that particular crime would be a psychological impossibility.

One way to accomplish the first of these is by means of "lie detectors," which show, automatically, any attempt of a witness to tell a falsehood. Some of these instruments record the heartbeats of the witness; the strain and excitement of trying to lie usually cause a quickening of the heart-beats. Another instrument, devised by Dr. W. H. Bates, an oculist of New York City, measures the exact shape of the witness' eyeballs from moment to moment. Dr. Bates has found that lying may create a bodily strain which tightens the muscles around the eye, and alters the shape of the eyeball. His instrument detects the alteration.

A test of guilt or innocence which the psychological criminologists have found to be even more reliable, depends on another bodily reaction which apparently is absolutely beyond the control of the subject. This is the electric resistance of the skin, which is known to alter whenever the subject experiences any emotion. Many detectors have been constructed on this principle. The most recent one is that devised by a New York psychologist, Dr. David Wechsler. With this apparatus the person to be examined dips two fingers into salty water in small porcelain jars. A small current, too feeble to be felt, is passed between the two jars and through the fingers. Meters connected with this circuit measure the resistance of the skin.

In most examinations of witnesses, Dr. Free declares, the device would prove an invaluable, and utterly unconscious, index of how much the witness was emotionally disturbed from moment to moment during the examination. The notorious Hall-Mills murder case at New Brunswick, N. J., he says, would have been an excellent one in which to try some lie-detecting device like that of Dr. Wechsler. If one knew just what articles or questions were exciting and disturbing to the various witnesses, a theory of the crime would easily be found. The facts discovered psychologically might not actually solve the mystery, but they would be sure to yield valuable clues.

APPLYING ROOFING CEMENT.

Whenever too much roofing cement is used in applying roll roofing, some of the surplus cement is apt to melt and run down the roof, making unsightly streaks. A good way to regulate the cement is to punch two holes in the top of the can and pour it out just as if it were condensed milk. This method is cleaner and easier than applying the cement with a brush.—Popular Science Monthly.

HOLSTEIN CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Field Man and District Representative Address Campbellford Men.

COW MAKES RECORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 14.—Those members and visitors who attended the Campbellford Holstein Club meeting on Saturday afternoon were well repaid for their time spent. The meeting was held in the Ferris block and while the crowd was not large much interest was evidenced and the speakers, Mr. R. M. Holtby, Port Perry, Holstein fieldman, and Mr. Walter Smith of Brighton, district representative, handed out good practical pointers. Mr. Richard Honey, of Dartford, president of the Club, was chairman, and after a few remarks called on Mr. Smith.

The representative dealt for a few minutes with the questions of foodstuffs for livestock and the service that his department could render in figuring out the relative values of different feeds and advising livestock men as to which feeds would be most profitable in their business.

Mr. Honey had stated that certain persons were saying that the bottom had fallen out of the Holstein market and this remark furnished the text of part of Mr. Hotlby's remarks. The fieldman, who is in a position to know conditions as they really are, stated that the market was never better for the right class of stuff and the only dissatisfied breeders were those who were not giving their cattle a fair chance. Registrations and transfers in the Holstein field were higher this year than ever before.

Holstein breeders could be divided into three classes: First, those who took the lead in every forward move and always strive to get the best, then secondly the man who trailed along and imitated the leader when he saw the advantage but was always a little late to pick the real plums of the game. The third class were the ones who kicked about the poor markets but did nothing to improve their stock and so fell behind the other fellows.

On motion of Messrs. Nelson and Ward a message of congratulation was extended to Messrs. Honey and Sons who have raised and developed a cow which now holds the world's championship in the 305 day twice-a-day milking division for three year olds. With 30 days to go she equalled the former world's record and is still going strong. This is a great honor to the Campbellford district breeders and a decided asset to the future sales prospects for this district. Mr. Walter Honey who fed and cared for cow, gave a short outline of his methods of feeding and all were astonished at the economical ration which produced this large flow of milk, 14,677 lbs. at the end of nine months.

A motion of thanks to the visiting speakers was proposed by Messrs. Wynn and Nelson and after a decision to hold the annual meeting on January 12 the meeting adjourned.

MASQUERADE DANCE HELD AT MILLBROOK

Cosmos Club Puts on Successful Social Event.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 14.— The masquerade dance, under the auspices of the Cosmos Club, held in the town hall on Friday evening, provided an enjoyable social occasion though the attendance was less than had been anticipated owing to a similar event being held in the neighborhood the same night.

Quite a number of the dancers came in costume, the prize winners being: Ladies' Fancy Costume, Miss Phyllis Richards; Gentlemen's Fancy Costume, Mr. Chas. Thorndyke; Ladies' Comic Costume, Miss Maretta Gray; Gentlemen's Comic, Mr. D. Sheppard; best representation of character, Mr. J. Guthrie (Santa Claus); Miss Gertrude Gray (Gypsy); best Charleston couple, Miss Elizabeth Russell, and Mr. Lawrence Ingram; Lucky Number, lady, Miss Fisher (Omemee); gentleman, Mr Jas. McIvor. The judges were Messrs. J. N. McGill and J. H. Bingham.

Stewart's four-piece orchestra furnished excellent music, and the floor was in good condition. An interlude for supper came about midnight, the ladies providing the refreshments.

The Cosmos Club is holding its annual Christmas invitation dance in the Armouries on Monday, December 27, beginning at 9 p.m. Music by the G.M.C. orchestra, of Oshawa, which is a 7-piece organization.

Congratulations are being extended to Messrs. Bruce Sharpe, of Ida, and George Bonner, of Cavan, who were listed as winning first and second prizes respectively on their exhibit of wheat at the Winter Fair held recently at Ottawa.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

To Faith, cowering against Bob Hathaway, covering her scarlet face with trembling hands, it seemed that the grinning face of the Irish policeman who rode with them, swaying jauntily from the running board of George Pruitt's car, would be forever engraved on her memory as the most horrible human gargoyle she had ever seen.

On the front seat, Cherry was huddled too, like a large-eyed, frightened kitten. Faith could hear her monotonous wailing bleat:

"They won't put me in jail, will they, George? Don't let them put me in jail, George. Say something, George! Don't sit there like a frozen-faced Indian!! George! Oh, my God, I'm scared to death!"

"Shut up!" George Pruitt commanded in a low, harsh voice. "Nothing more than a fine for disorderly conduct. Quit that whining! You make me so nervous I can't drive straight."

"Disorderly conduct! Oh, George! It'll kill Muggy, if this gets into the papers." Her little hands were clawing at his coat lapels.

Faith, her hand held tightly and comfortingly in Bob Hathaway's said nothing during that short, nightmare drive to the police station. But just as George parked his car, at the direction of the still grinning "cop," Bob whispered to her:

"Don't worry, dear. George and I'll fix it. It won't amount to much. You're not in this mess, you know. And Cherry can give an assumed name."

Chris Wiley's car, also chaperoned by a burly policeman who was not grinning, drew up just behind George Pruitt's, and the black-haired, painted little vixen, Flo, sprang defiantly to the curb, bursting immediately into a vitriolic denunciation of the police force, the city government in general, Chris Wiley and Cherry Lane.

"Shut up, for the luvva Pete!" Chris Wiley, his dark, burnt-out handsome face ash-pale in the light of the street lamp, seized the girl's arm and hurried into the narrow entrance of the three-story brick building that housed the police station.

The two policemen who had escorted the party to police headquarters herded them into a bare inner room, with a curt promise that they'd be called in a minute. Then one left, apparently for a conference with the night chief, but Bob Hathaway and George Pruitt sprang from their seats and followed him. Faith saw the officer hesitate, scratch the day-old stubble on his chin, then pocket something that George Pruitt was offering.

She breathed easier after that, although both George and Bob had left them alone with Chris Wiley and the terrible "Flo."

"I'll be damned if I fix it for you," Faith heard Chris Wiley mutter in a harsh undertone to the defiant, hard-eyed girl. "You got yourself into this mess, now you can get out of it. And I won't say a word against the young lady you attacked—"

"Attacked! Huh!" Flo snorted loudly, her black eyes shooting venomous darts at the cowering, weeping Cherry. "You slay me, honest, you slay me! She attacked me, and I'm here to tell the world! So that's the big-time girl friend! That's why—" she curled her lip with exaggerated disdain at Cherry. "I'm just your sometime, any old time Mama! Well, listen, big boy, she goes down on the police blotter with little old Flo Riplay of North Second Street, and you can roll that under your tongue!"

"Oh, Faith!" Cherry moaned, burying her head despairingly in the mothering curve of Faith's shoulder. "If I get out of this, I'll never do a mean, selfish thing again as long as I live! I swear to God! Don't tell Muggy and Dad, Faith, darling! Promise you won't tell—"

Faith, soothing her shuddering, weeping little sister, thought that Bob and George would never return. But at last they appeared at the door, and beckoned to Wiley. Chris left his seat reluctantly, and joined the two men, still closely chaperoned by a policeman, at the door of the barecell-like room.

After a few minutes of low, earnest conversation the three disappeared again to return after ten minutes, looking vastly relieved, almost jubilant.

"No charge! we're all dismissed," Bob Hathaway bent over Faith and spoke in a low, excited voice. "Night chief was pretty decent. Thank God, there were no reporters hanging around. You don't even get on the police blotter, Cherry. Buck up! No real harm done, though the boys who arrested us proved rather stubborn."

"Say, Flo, better make yourself scarce at Sam Lee's after this," the grinning Irish policeman slouched over to the North Second Street girl and spoke with an easy, insolent familiarity. "Might not pick up friends like this every time you go off on a tear. Soy 'Scuse me' now, to the little lady you pitched into—and beat it!"

"Aw, you slay me!" Flo flipped an impudent hand near his stubby Irish nose. 'Come around—any old time."

Miraculously, Cherry changed from a tear-streaked, frightened child into a pert little flapper, all smiles and glittering teeth and gleaming gold eyes.

"Thanks a million times, boys!" she sprang to her feet, and opened her vanity case, her eyes coquetting shamelessly with the flattered, grinning policeman. "I'll buy a whole bunch of tickets for the next policeman's ball."

As George drove the sedan swiftly toward Myrtle Street, Cherry's gayety bubbled and frothed, and overflowed in jets of tinkling laughter.

"I was never so excited and thrilled in my life! Talk about adventure! And you boys were marvelous—simply a riot. Honestly, I'd have died if my picture had gotten in the papers. The nerve of that little black-headed hussy! I guess that'll teach her not to try to associate with nice people! Wasn't she a scream? 'You slay me!'" she mocked. "And poor old Faith—honestly honey, you looked like Salvation Nell, trying to save the noble gal! So noble and pure! Honestly it was funny, wasn't it, George you old corpse! You and Bob dashing nobly to the rescue—'Fireman, save my che-ild!'" She strangled with hysterical laughter.

"It wouldn't have been so funny if old Bob here hadn't used every ounce of pull to his name, and dragged in his Uncle Ralph Cluny's name to boot? Soon as he told the night chief that Mr. Ralph Cluny, the biggest criminal lawyer in the state was his uncle, it was all over but the shouting, and you're doing enough of that for the whole party! And you didn't seem to think it was a slapstick comedy when you were clinging to Faith and whining to her to get you out of the mess, and not to tell your parents!"

Oddly enough, at the gruff tenderness of George's words about her, Faith burst into hysterical weeping. But it was in Bob Hathaway's arms that she found comfort.

SUNSHINE MISSION BAND.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 14.—The annual Christmas Tree and entertainment, under the auspices of the Sunshine Mission Band, was held in the basement of the United Church on Thursday evening, a large audience gathering for the occasion.

The Christmas spirit was emphasized by the decorations, which were very beautiful, ropings of red and green with an abundance of silver tinsel intermingled, a mantel, with glowing red 'fire,' at which stockings were hung, and the tree, gay with bright ornaments, making an attractive picture. Red shades softened the lights, and the stage had a background of pure white, with two 'thrones,' on a white base, occupied later by the Christmas Spirit, and Santa Claus.

Mrs. Offa Williamson is the efficient superintendent of the band and despite the inconvenience of living out of the village, and the weeks of practice involved in training about sixty children, provided an entertainment each year that is in keeping with Christmas, and with the ideals of the junior missionary organization.

Rev. F. H. Howard was chairman, and Rev. Joseph Wilks offered the opening prayer following the children's hymn, "Jesus wants me for a Sunbeam." The programme was given entirely by the little folk, and the applause which greeted each number showed the keen appreciation of the audience. Miss Annie McMahon was the accompanist for the evening. The items included:—

Opening Chorus—"Hurrah for Santa Claus," by the Band;

Song by the Bunnies—Nine little ones with woolly garments, and tall pink ears, hands held up like little paws;

Recitation—"Christmas Eve," by Martha Earle;

Chorus—"Santa is Coming," by the Band;

Sewing Song, by Bernice Smith, Mary Burnham, Beatrice McDowell, Patsy Richards, Esther Might, Marie Douglas, Kathleen Smith, Dorothy McDowell, Lois Dawson, Bryar Edmunds, Gertie Richards, Myrtle Nattrass, Audrey Garside Margaret Smith, Dorothy Smith and Madeline McDowell;

Recitation—"Dressing Mary Ann," by Bernice Smith;

Song—"Poor Old Maids," (in costume), by Pearl Childs, Bessie Dawson, Janet Dawson, Madeline McDowell, Annie McMahon, Jean Stinson, Dorothy McDowell and Margaret Fallis;

Recitation—"A Missionary Nurse," by Marie Douglas;

Dialogue—"The Missionary Dollies," by Mary Vance, Mary Burnham, Bryar Edmunds and Gertie Richards;

Song, "Last Year's Christmas Dolls," (in costume) by Martha Earle, Charlotte McMahon, Anna Rowland, Janet Dawson, and Madeline McDowell;

Recitation—"Towser shan't be tied to-night," by Bessie Dawson;

Pageant—"The Spirit of Christmas": Characters, Spirit of Christmas, Jean Stinson (robes of white and silver, with shining wand); Fairies, (white dresses, gauzy wings outlined in silver, silver bands in hair) Marie Douglas, Bryar Edmunds, Lois Dawson, Esther Might, Margaret Smith, Myrtle Nattrass, Mary Burnham, Marjorie McDowell; Sandmen (red suits, small pails of sand), Reg. Edmunds, Gordon Might, Stanford Brown, Allen Earle; Selfish Wishes (light dresses hidden under dark shawls), Dorothy McDowell, May Ferrin, Charlotte McMahon, Anna Rowland; Unselfish Wishes (dainty light dresses, silver trimmed), Martha and Marian Earle, Janet Dawson, Gertie Richards; Children (who wish greedily at first and hang up two stockings, but later learn the real spirit of Christmas), Bessie Dawson, Beatrice McDowell, Jack Stinson, Marshal Fallis; Santa Claus, Mr. O. Williamson.

As a concluding number, while the children all clustered as closely round Santa as each could get, the candles on the Tree were lighted and the electric lights turned off. Homemade candy was passed through the audience, and the children left their gifts at the Tree. "White Gifts for the King" was the thought emphasized, the children giving, not receiving, presents, the parcels being afterward packed and forwarded to Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary teacher at Wahstao, Alberta, to be used on the tree at the boarding-school for the Ruthenian children.

Over $20.00 was taken in at the door. The band sends $30.00 yearly for the upkeep of the "Millbrook Sunshine Cot" in the mission hospital at Chentu, West China.

U. S. NAVY ADOPTS TRIPOD TYPE MAST

Abandon Cage Design and Vessels Now Resemble British.

WASHINGTON, December 14.—Quietly the United States navy is giving up a feature of battleship design that has made the United States man-o'-war unique for almost 20 years.

Without any ruffling of drums or gun salutes the cage mast is being discarded for the British tripod mast

It is almost as if the United States man-o'-war, having long wor Uncle Sam's striped top hat, had thrown the old headgear away and clapped on a London bowler.

The first-line battleship Texas has already been "modernized," and the similar New York is in process of putting on an English accent.

When the Texas steamed out of Hampton Roads for Guantanamo her silhouette was so altered that old-timers rubbed their eyes and took a second look.

The battleship Florida was recently modernized and her mainmast—a cage—was taken off and a single short spar stepped further aft. Admiral Edward W. Eberle, chief of the naval operations, informed this correspondent to-day the battleships Nevada and Oklahoma were next on the list for modernization.

This accounts for five of eight of the first line battleships. Four of them will have the tripod masts, fore and main, and the unpracticed eye, seeing them steam past one day off Hatteras, say, might taken them for four bulldogs of the British navy.

It is safe to predict that within the next ten years the remainder of the United States fleet will go into sundry dock yards and the last of the cages will be scrapped.

The noteworthy thing appears to be not that a radical change is in process but that a radical change in the United States navy occasions so little talk and conflicting opinion.

A canvass of the Navy Department from Admiral Eberle on down evinces that nobody has become heated over the alteration.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

The dedication of the new organ constituted a service of deep interest to those who attended the morning service in St. Paul's Presbyterian church on Sunday. Special programmes, giving the order of service were distributed for the guidance of those in attendance. The dedication took place at the close of the regular church service. All members of the congregation were asked to rise and take part. The pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan, led. The service in part was as follows:

Minister: "Unto Thee, O God, Eternal and Glorious Trinity, for the purpose of worshipping and praise."

People: "We dedicate this organ."

Minister: "For the training of choir and congregation in Holy song."

People: "We dedicate this organ."

Minister: "For the ministry of music when in baptism we dedicate our children to Thee, and when our young people shall make public confession of Thee by uniting with Thy church.

People: "We dedicate this organ."

Minister: "For the ministry of music as a herald of the Gospel of Peace by the Cross of Christ to the children of men."

People: "We dedicate this organ."

Minister: "To the glory of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit."

People: "We dedicate this organ."

This part of the service was completed by the playing of the organ for the first time in public worship in the Doxology, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," and a prayer of dedication and the benediction.

The church was crowded at both services, especially in the evening, when a special hymn was played on the organ in which the harp, and chimes, were used as well as the echo organ. At the public recital this evening there will be a special dedicatory service in connection with the echo organ which was a gift to the congregation by one of the members.

The Sermon.

At the morning service the sermon was of an appropriate character, being based on Psalm 66:8—"Sing forth the honor of His name. Make His praise glorious.

'This is a memorable moment in our history as a congregation," said Mr. Allan. "We have been looking forward to it with growing interest, and now we hail its advent with feelings of genuine joy. This organ has not been put in for show but to help us in our worship and praise. In order that our purpose may not be misunderstood I might remind you that we were not dependent upon this instrument in order to get a congregation. Again and again this place has been filled to capacity with no other attraction than the preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

"Have we any conception of the place that music occupies in the Scriptures? It is believed by many students of the Word of God that Satan in his original state was the leader of the praises of those who sang 'When the morning stars sang together, and all the Sons of God shouted for joy.'

"When the Children of Israel were delivered out of the bondage of Egypt the first thing they did was to render a song of praise. We see the power in music when David quelled the evil spirit in Saul as he played upon his harp, and it is the popular belief than when our Saviour was born heaven sent forth its finest choristers to sing the praises of the newly born King. Moreover, we know that when the Lord's Supper was inaugurated they sang a hymn. Then also when Paul and Silas were in prison at the midnight hour, in spite of all their troubles and trials, they sang praises unto the Most High, and when the last book of the Bible shows us the great consumation of the Plan of Redemption, it finishes up with the greatest of all hallelujah choruses.

"This organ is not here to entertain, but to enthuse and elevate. Our praise is a reflection of our feelings and an expression of our emotions. Most of the time it should be joyful, and it should always be soulful and hearty It should be with the understanding as well as with the instrument and our voices. The place of the organ and the choir is to lead the congregation in its praises. Too frequently the anthem gets chief place and becomes a performance instead of an act of worship."

Rev. Mr. Allan in closing expressed the hope that St. Paul's congregation will become noted for its hearty congregational singing to the praise of God.

BROKER FOUND DEAD IN HOUSE

Coroner Doubts Suicide Theory—Rifle Fastened in Niche in Wall.

INQUEST ORDERED.

TORONTO, Dec. 14. — An inquest will be held into the death of William Ferguson, Toronto broker, aged 40 years, who was found dead yesterday morning in the scantily furnished bedroom of his little home east of the Jail Farm in Markham Township.

Wedged between a chair and a bed, the body lay as if in a coffin—perfectly straight, the arms unbent at the sides and the legs extended, a few inches apart. But chair and bed both were flecked with spats of blood and a little red pool had formed on the floor, for a bullet had entered the roof of the man's mouth and had shattered his head. Almost above the body a .22 calibre rifle projected from the wall, pointing downward at a slight angle from a niche which seemed to have been sawed out especially to hold in this manner this particular gun.

Suicide Theory Doubted.

The position in which the body was found led Coroner W. L. Bond to doubt whether it was a case of suicide. The body and the room were left all day yesterday and last night exactly as they were found, and to-day it is likely a post-mortem will be held. It was not decided until late last night whether an inquest would be held, but after a consultation with Dr. Bond, County Crown Attorney Eric Armour, K.C., announced that the decision had been made.

With Husband on Sunday.

Mrs. Ferguson told police that on Sunday at noon her husband had visited her at the Briggs farm, and, at his request, she had accompanied him to their own home. There he told her of some papers that he wished to give to a lawyer. He was leaving the city for a couple of weeks, he said, but he assured her that he would be with her on Christmas Day. He promised her if she returned to the house at 8.30 he would give her the papers, which he wanted her to hand to a lawyer.

Mrs. Ferguson states that she went back to the house at 8.30 p.m., as he had said, but she found it in darkness, and, concluding that her husband had left for the city, did not investigate. She returned again yesterday morning, she says, and found her husband dead. She then returned to the Briggs farm and notified the police.

Dead For Some Hours.

The bed in the room did not appear to have been slept upon, and Dr. Bond stated that he believed the man had been dead for some hours.

A. R. Freeman of the Walsingham Hotel, where Ferguson had been living since the beginning of October, described him as a model guest. "Liquor was never found in his room, and I never saw him when he smelled of it," declared Mr. Freeman. "He was a bright and intelligent talker, and used to chat with me occasionally. As far as I could see, he had no vices."

He had been formerly located in the Wood-Gundy Building on King Street West, but recently he moved to the National Building on Toronto Street.

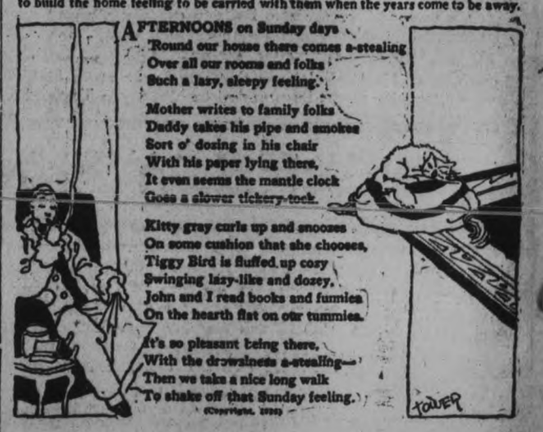
The Sunday Feeling

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

DO you get the Sunday Feeling at your house, that drowsy well fed feeling after Sunday dinner? What do you do then, do you just give in to it and get dumpy? More important yet, what do the children do Sunday afternoons? Have they interesting games and books or do they fret about or seek interests in other homes? Sunday afternoon is an excellent time to build up family companionships, to get acquainted with each other and make an extra special effort to build the home feeling to be carried with them when the years come to be away.



AFTERNOONS on Sunday days
'Round our house there comes a-stealing
Over all our rooms and folks
Such a lazy, sleepy feeling.

Mother writes to family folks
Daddy takes his pipe and smokes
Sort o' dosing in his chair
With his paper lying there,
It even seems the mantle clock
Goes a slower tickery-tock.

Kitty gray curls up and snoozes
On some cushion that she chooses,
Tiggy Bird is fluffed up cozy
Swinging lazy-like and dozey,
John and I read books and fumies
On the hearth flat on our tummies.

It's so pleasant being there,
With the drowsiness a-stealing—
Then we take a nice long walk
To shake off that Sunday feeling.

Bad news for crooks. The New York Police Department has ordered a fleet of armored motorcycles for special detail men, who will patrol the city streets in the vehicles on the lookout for hold-ups and burglaries. BELIEF IN GOD MORE MARKED Newspaper Straw Vote Draws Larger Response in United States.

89 PER CENT BELIEVE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press). — The United States possibly is more religious than England, first returns in a nation-wide religious census indicate, and the rest of the country has greater faith than has New York that there is a God.

Eighty per cent. of the 50,000 readers of 150 newspapers in 40 states have replied in a questionnaire that they believe in God, while in a similar campaign in England only 73 per cent. of the readers of the London Daily News expressed a belief in a "personal God." Commentators call attention to the more limited definition of the London questionnaire.

The United States questionnaires were sent out in connection with a campaign on religion by the church advertisement department of the International Advertising Association and were drafted by 100 clergymen.

Replies to the question, "Do you believe in immortality?" brought a response of 85 per cent. in the affirmative, while this same question in the London Daily News brought 10,161 affirmative answers and 3,718 negative answers.

Make a rule always to pour boiling water down your sink drain once a day. This, in connection with the soap used in the dishwater, will usually keep the drain clear. A little ammonia poured into the sink drain is also helpful. When washing soda is used it is a good plan to place a little with a spoon right over the drain and then to pour boiling water over it. After this has gone down pour more clear boiling water through the drain. When lye is used great care should be exercised so that it does not touch the fingers.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1926.

Jupiter and the Sun are in benefic aspect today, according to astrology, which finds conditions fairly favorable to most activities on the planet earth.

They who delay not in all important matters will benefit greatly, if they make the most of today.

Promoters and salesmen should profit by this sway which encourages confidence in all who are approached.

Under this planetary rule it is held lucky to seek employment or to ask for promotion.

Bankers now come under a direction of the stars which is most favorable to ambitious enterprises.

Women as well as men are to profit greatly from financial projects of gigantic scope, it is prophesied.

One of the seers prophesies that wealth is to be found in waste everywhere in American and predicts that some one will discover this fact.

All the signs appear to presage a violent reaction in fashions and customs from the reign of extreme freedom that has prevailed since the war.

Religion will occupy more attention than at any time since 1917, and while there is to be a return to the churches there will also be conflict among the various sects, it is prophesied.

This is a lucky day for the bestowal of presents and it may be wise to anticipate Christmas in special cases where unusual joy is desired for the donor.

There appears to be a fairly good aspect for the holidays, but many storms may be expected in January.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a yetr in which it is well to protect health and finances.

Children born on this day probably will have extraordinary talents and will be destined for unusual life experiences.

FASHIONS

PENNY WISE AND POUND FOOLISH

By HEDDA HOYT
(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(United Press).—A penny wise and a pound foolish might be applied to the woman who skimps on her meals in order to lose a pound or so of flesh. Many women are dieting today who actually have no need of reducing. Fashions dictate lines and one who follows these lines too closely is apt to get lines in her face while taking them off her body.

It's a very unwise policy to reduce too quickly. When one is overweight one should cut down on one's diet by degrees and let month's take their toll of flesh. There are numerous women who go on ten day fasts during which time they refuse to eat a morsel of solid food. Certainly they lose weight but they also lose vitality and when they resume eating and set the stomach functioning again they find that food does not agree with them.

A reputable physician will tell you that six months or a year is not too long a time in which to lose from ten to twenty pounds. One had better lose weight during that time by sane eating than by insane dieting.

Women who try to lose ten pounds within a month find that nature takes vengeance in some way. The human clothes rack never was and never will be a healthy person. The curves of Eve will only vanish when the female of the specie exist no longer. Why spend a life time fighting fat cheating yourself of healthy normal appetites? It is utterly sickening to hear women speak of "shots in the arm' when referring to injections for fat reducing. Vanity seems to be the supreme god these days and flesh is the devil, or so it would seem.

Fashion Notes.

White near-fox is a fur that is being much used for evening purposes. This fur is nothing more than long-haired rabbit treated in such a way as to resemble white fox. It is used to collar wraps of brocade, velvet and white imitation ermine wraps.

One of the prettiest Period dresses noted this season is made with a silver tafefta bodice long-waisted lines and a full skirt of all-over silver lace bordered with a deep transparent hem of silver net. Beneath the open-work effect of the lace skirt is worn a nile green slip of silk crepe which extends just to the transparent hemline. Silver hosiery and nile slippers are worn with this frock.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

WHEN WOMEN BUILD

By Alma Whitaker.

One of the most tangible evidences of prosperous civilization is fine buildings. No city considers it has attained any standing until it has some fine buildings to point to with pride.

Now new buildings take some largel finance. So it was peculiarly ambitious for women to think of launching out into building programmes. For a long while, the most clubwomen could hope for was to be able to pay rent. A vast majority of women in those early days were dependent upon the gallantry and generosity of husbands to pay their dues and make their little contributions.

It must be confessed that, in the main, husbands proved pretty generous. In addition to that laws began to appear by which women enjoyed more rights over their own money. Husbands could no longer marry rich ladies—and then serenely will their own money away from them when they died.

And women began to earn money for themselves. They began to learn the mysteries of business and finance. Moreover, they had proved peculiarly conservative and wise in their management of their club finances. I have not been able to discover a single woman's club that had to go into bankruptcy. Naturally, under these pleasant conditions, women began to be ambitious. They, too, wanted to erect buildings and contribute tangible monuments to civilization in their towns. Dreams of their own clubhouses began to materialize. In a very short time it was no unusual thing to find the women's clubhouse in small towns the home and center of all important activities. Even the local Chambers of Commerce, the men's Rotarian and other organizations, and very frequently the American Legion, often meet at the women's club-houses to this day. It was not much of a town that did not boast a woman's clubhouse, financed, erected by women.

In large cities today huge magnificent buildings are being put up by women—running into the merry millions. Clubhouses, athletic clubs, women's hotels galore. Three of the handsomest buildings in my town are monuments to women's business and financial ability. And they all pay their way—never a husband has lost a penny through backing his wife in a woman's club project. Never a banker has lost a cent through aiding the women in financing their sumptuous schemes.

And so many of these fine buildings have been financed in nickels and dimes, through fetes and bazaars, through making cakes and jellies, through making pretty fancy work, through cooking meals and serving them to gentlemen's organizations, through the women acting as cooks and waitresses. No honorable way of making a few dollars was considered paltry or petty. Monster deficits that looked like black bogeys were wiped out with fancy work, cooking, service. Which is where we had it all over the men, who would have considered culling dimes by such methods below their masculine dignity. (Men's clubs often become insolvent). We, you see, stoop to conquer.

Wherever I have been lately, I have visited some of these fine buildings erected by women. Nearly every city has several of them to point to. They are invariably the best of their kind—and self-supporting. One woman's club owns a big theatre, the rent of which pays all the other expenses and provides them with a first class club home—besides. It is men's organizations that pay them rent more than half the time.

Heart Palpitation Dizzy, Sinking Spells

Mrs. M. A. Gagnon, Donatville, Alta., writes:—"Some time ago I was very nervous, could not sleep at night, often had dizzy, sinking spells and palpitation of the heart, and was so run down I could not do my housework, but just leave everything and sit down.

I spent a lot of money using medicine from the doctor, but it did not do me any good.

At last a friend told me to use and after using a couple of boxes I was not the same woman. I began to feel so much better, and after a few more boxes I was in perfect health. I always recommend them to all those I know who are suffering from heart trouble."

It was a false prophet who announced last summer that ornate shoes were going out of fashion. To be sure a number of the smartest women in Paris followed the caprice of wearing very simple shoes. Even the buckle was left off for a while. A certain air of elegance, which the French talk so much about, was achieved, but the ornate shoe was not given up.

Evening shoes especially are extremely ornate this winter. Lacking th price of these new slippers some women buy plain slippers and apply the fancy touches themselves. Diamant may be bought by the yard and sewed to the top of black satin slippers or cut-steel beads may be applied to the top and straps. One clever young woman has embroidered gold brocade slippers with colored silks. The design of the brocade is cleverly followed where the embroidery appears. Silver mesh cut in clever angular designs is used to trim slippers of gold or colored kid. Reindeer dyed in bright colors and trimmed with gold on silver is looked upon with favor. Light-colored satin slippers to match the frock are adorned with heads and sequine of gold or silver and sometimes with gold kid. To wear with the velvet evening gown there are matching velvet slippers with gold heels. One of the French shoemaker's has been making crepe de chine slippers for elaborate afternoon wear. Imitation rubies, emeralds and other colored stones are used n regal fashion to adorn some of the metallic slippers.

There is a persistent rumor that lower heels are coming into fashion. This change—if it really exists—is laid at the door of the Charleston. Some dancers say it is practically impossible to perform this dance correctly with high-heeled dancing slippers. On the other hand some of the newest French slippers show heels of enormous height.

Reptile skins are used even more extensively than formerly to trim daytime shoes. The smartest arrangement seems to be the reptile upper and plain vamp and heel section. The calfskin shoe is here to be worn with the calfskin coat or the coat trimmed with calfskin. Sometimes a smart effect is produced by wearing calfskin hat, bag and pumps with a cloth costume.

MILK FOR INTESTINAL PUTREFACTION

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

How pleasant it is to hear from friends who have been following these talks and to have them ask questions.

Here, for example, is some one in Ohio who asks the following questions: First, what is acidophilus milk and how do you make it? Second; what is junket and how do you make that? Third, what foods are most likely to cause putrefaction in the intestines? These are all good practical questions.

Acidophilus milk is milk that has had added to it an extra quantity of a certain organism which is present in all healthy intestines. This organism helps the intestines to keep themselves clean and free from putrefaction. Acidophilus milk cannot be prepared at home. The process is a difficult one and one that must be carried on in a commercial laboratory. Any good druggist if he does not carry it in stock will get acidolphilus milk for his customers. As to its use, I have already indicated this. Those who suffer from putrefaction in the intestines are frequently much benefited by adding acidophlusi milk to their dietaries.

Junket is another product made from prepared milk. Ordinary whole milk is used and to this is added rennet, either in the form of tablets or of liquid. Rennet is one of the digestive principles and it has the power to convert the curd of the milk into a creamy jelly-like substance. Junket is a very digestible and palatable preparation of milk and it may be flavored w th any desired extract. It may be sweetened to taste and served with stewed fruit or fruit juice to make a very wholesome dessert. It is easily made at home and one may get either the tablets or the liquid rennet from the drug store or from the grocer. I suggest that tablets are easier to use than liquid.

Directions for making the junket will be found either on the bottle of tablets or on the bottle of liquid rennet.

Now for the third question. What foods are most likely to cause putrefaction in the intestines? This may be answered in a few words, meat and other animal foods, including eggs. Please do not think from this that I mean one should never eat meat. I approve of a moderate amount as one element in a well balanced diet. There is no doubt, however, that when this condition of putrefaction is present one must cut out animal foods, at least temporarily.

OLD MASTERS

Of Neptune's empire let us sing;
At whose command the waves obey;
To whom the rivers tribute pay,
Down the high mountains sliding;
To whom the scaly nation yields
Homage for the crystal fields
Wherein they dwell;
And every sea god pays a gem
Yearly out of his watery cell,
To deck great Neptune's diadem.

The tritons dancing in a ring,
Before his palace gates do make
The water with their echoes quake;
Like the great thunder sounding:
The sea nymphs chant their accents shrill,
And the Syrens taught to kill
With their sweet voice,
Make every echoing rock reply;
Unto their gentle murmuring noise;
The praise of Neptune's empery.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

THAT newspaper advertising puts life into any business.

THAT lack of advertising will take the life out of any business,

THAT if a merchant has merchandise to sell, how are the people to know it, unless he advertises?

THAT if they don't know it, they won't buy it.

THAT people buy from merchants who advertise.

THAT they read the advertising columns the same as the news columns and then buy from the merchants who make the best offerings.

THAT a business concern that refuses to advertise goes but one way and that is the way to failure.

THAT a merchant's business is in direct proportion to the amount of consistent, persistent advertising he does.

THAT people have confidence in newspaper advertising and always take advantage of the offerings made in the advertising columns.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S ICICLE LADDER

Not far from Uncle Wiggily'shollow stump bungalow, in a little glen, there was a waterfall. That is the water fell in summer, when the glen was beautiful with green leaves and pretty flowers. But in the winter the water that trickled and splashed over the rocks, falling from the top to the bottom, froze. Then there was no waterfall.

One day Uncle Wiggily hopped out of his bungalow, with an extra jolly twinkle of his pink nose, and said to his wife:

"I am going to look at the waterfall."

"Silly!" exclaimed the rabbit lady, calling her husband that just in fun, as a sort of pet name. "You will find no waterfall now. This is winter."

"Yes, I suppose so," said the bunny. "But Mr. Bow Wow was saying, yesterday, that he passed the glen and the water was frozen into queer and beautiful shapes. I want to see a frozen waterfall."

"I am painting a box," answered Uncle Wiggily.

"Be careful you don't have your pink nose frozen," said Mrs. Longears as her husband hopped off down the snowy path. A little while before this all the forty 'leven little bunnies—or forty twelve if you count Baby Bunty—had all gone down this same path to the hollow stump school.

"Heigh ho!" whistled Uncle Wiggily as he hopped on his way. "I hope I shall have an adventure to-day!"

And, he was going to have one. I am allowed to tell you that much, anyhow.

As Uncle Wiggily started to go up the glen, at the far end of which was the frozen waterfall he wished to see, the bunny looked back.

"Perhaps I can invite some of my friends to come into the glen with me," thought the bunny.

But he only saw the Fuzzy Fox and the Woosie Wolf slinking along.

"Ah! Not so good!" murmured the bunny. "I wonder what that means? It looks to me like trouble!"

And, if Mr. Longears had been closer he might have heard the Fox say:

"We have him now!" While the Wolf snarled:

"That's right! If he goes up in the glen he can't get out, for the walls on both sides are too high for him to climb. And, at the far end is the waterfall—he can't climb that!"

"Indeed he can't," chuckled the Fox. "This time he is our rabbit!"

Uncle Wiggily was beginning to think this same thing. The glen was like a long, deep tunnel in between two great rocky hills. Only it was like a tunnel without a top. The side walls were too steep to climb. Once in the glen, the only way out was by the way Uncle Wiggily had entered. And, that was now blocked by the Fox and the Wolf.

"Dear me!" thought the bunny. "It looks as if I were caught. But, I will keep on. If the Fox and Wolf follow me they may be so busy looking at the frozen waterfall they will forget to bite me!"

But alas! When Uncle Wiggily had gone as far as he could go, the Fox and Wolf were close behind him.

"See the beautiful frozen water!" said the bunny.

"We had rather see your ears!", snarled the Fox.

"And, taste them, too!" growled the Wolf.

They slunk toward Uncle Wiggily. He could not run back, without running straight into the jaws of the bad chaps. He could not turn to either side on account of the steep walls. The only other way out was by the waterfall, and as Mr. Longears turned sadly toward that he saw what he had not noticed before—a sort of ladder made of icicles. It was an icicle ladder leading up to the top of the fall. Once up there the bunny would be safe.

Quick as he could, Uncle Wiggily climbed the icicle ladder, before the bad chaps knew what he was doing. At the top Uncle Wiggily took a stone and broke off the icicles so the ladder no longer went all the way up, and the Fox and Wolf could not follow.

"I bid you good-by, bad chaps!" laughed the bunny, hopping home.

"Fooled again!" snarled the hungry Fox.

"Who would have dreamed of an icicle ladder!" growled the Wolf.

But so it goes. And if the little honey bear doesn't get his paws all molasses when he is playing popcorn ball, I'll tell you again about Uncle Wiggily and the Bunty's beads.

EARLY man invented writing when he began to use signs and marks instead of drawing pictures to convey his ideas. From crude signs developed the hieroglyphic writing composed of definite symbols to represent objects. The invention of an alphabet was first made by the Egyptians as early as 3000 B. C. and has been used ever since. The child repeats this history to a certain degree for he first draws pictures, then makes marks which mean things to him, and finally he learns to write by use of the alphabet, and what joy is his when at last he can write his name!

A MONKEY on a grapevine swing
Got tired of just monkeying;
And so developed the obsession
To undertake some nice profession.
He thought and thought for most a year
Then got this extra fine idea,—
A Travelling Correspondence School
Where writing things would be the rule!

He got Jemima Elephant
To take some stock in his new stunt.
She said she'd furnish transportation
If she could have two weeks' vacation.
Then, too, besides to eat and smell,
Her trunk would make a grand ink well,
And they got Porky Porcupine
To furnish quills for pens just fine.

So Porky and the Monkey-Monk
Took seats upon Jemima's trunk,
And all the jungle folk inviting
They gathered quite a class for writing.
Poll Parrott and Sir Jaguar
Were quite the brightest ones by far.
Bill Lion thought it such a lark
He raved and roared when it got dark.

'Twas fine till poor Jemima sneezed
And showered ink o'er all the trees,
She gave old Porky such a fright
He shot his quills both left and right
And frightened Monk to such extent
A-sliding down her trunk he went,
Which, landing him right in a pool,
Broke up the Correspondence School.

YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

About a million weary clerks,
A hundred thousand drivers,
A mighty multitude that works
At duties long and divers,
Have asked of me to ask of you,
Amid the hurly-burly,
If you won't kindly try to do
Your Christmas shopping early?

About a million errand-boys,
A hundred thousand postmen,
Who, anyway, have less of joys,
It seems to me, than most men,
Implore upon their bended knees,
In words more sad than surly,
If you won't try to do it, please—
Your Christmas shopping early?

About a million merchants wait
To show where that or this is.
Why any longer hesitate,
Oh, Mister, Miss or Missus?
Don't think alone about yourself,
But think about the girlie
Behind the desk, before the shelf,
And do your shopping early.

About a million will delay,
Yes, maybe millions of you;
And yet there still remains a way
To cause the clerks to love you:
For one thing still will help them some
If, on some morning pearly,
Although you're late, at least you come
To do late shopping early!

THIS CANADA OF OURS

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA.

Ques.—What is the rate of immigration to Canada at present?

Ans.—Immigration to Canada, for the first nine months of 1926, showed an increase of 66 per cent. over the same period a year ago, amounting to 112,835 as compared with 67,878 for the same nine months in 1925. Of the 1926 immigration 41,419 were British, 16,776 from the United States and 54,640 from other countries. The returns show substantial increases in all three classifications.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The crystal, today's talismanic gem, is sympbolic of spiritual beauty, and should bring good fortune to blondes, particularly to those who are religiously inclined.

Today's natal stone is the jasper. Among the ancients it was believed to awaken love that has cooled. Unrequited affection is never the fate of the owner of a jasper.

Silver is the hue prescribed for wear today. It is believed to bestow great poise and self-confidence on its wearer.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

SHORT STORY

Mrs. Malvina Sharples was having a heart-to-heart talk with her daughter Antoinette—otherwise Nettie. "Now you do as I say, and bring that young man to the scratch before he leaves this house tonight. You have had enough beaux, goodness knows! It's time you got a husband. Here I am, a widow in reduced circumstances, with a daughter too unbusinesslike to get a husband. What's going to become of us?"

"Oh do stop, mother," cried Nettie. "I'll get a husband when I get ready—and I guess I'm about ready now. I like Peter Barrows. It is too bad he hasn't more money—and a little more brains. But I have made up my mind to marry him. So don't nag. Has Mr. Bennet been around about the mortgage? The last time he called and you were out he stayed half an hour, talking, and didn't mention money. He said I had beautiful hair," added Nettie with a sigh.

"You don't suppose—!" cried Malvina eagerly.

"Of course not," snapped Nettie, "he is old enough to be my father—and away out of my reach anyway. Don't dream dreams, mother. Jim Bennet would not marry the Queen of Sheba." It will be gathered that Nettie and her mother were not exactly sentimentalists. The hard struggle they had had since the death of the husband and father had made these two naturally matter-of-fact women more matter-of-fact still. Nettie was handsome, intelligent, Junoesque. Given a larger field and greater opportunities she might have gone far. As it was she had—after high school—become librarian of the public library in the little town. Efficiency was her middle name.

Peter Barrows had long been one of her admirers. He admired her intellect, her looks, her poise. He had got into the habit of calling upon her at frequent intervals. Still he had never seriously contemplated asking her to be his wife. She was good to look at and a pleasant and intelligent companion—that was all. He was employed by a large firm in the city fifteen miles away. Went in and out every day and lived alone with one old servant in the ancestral mansion he had inherited—about all he had inherited except a good name. He was a good-looking, clean-living young man with a sufficient salary. There was nothing brilliant about him, but he seemed to Malvina Sharples the most available young man for her purposes and she issued orders accordingly.

Peter went away from the Sharples' house that night an engaged man. When he entered that respectable homestead nothing could have been farther from his thoughts than that he would leave it in this condition. He was bewildered, frightened when he got home and thought it over. Well, Peter is not the first young man who has unexpectedly found himself in like case. He knew he ought not to feel as he did and resolved to feel as he ought to feel. Yet it was a decided relief to him when, the next week, his firm sent him out to Chicago on a business trip.

In Chicago something happened. Peter fell in love. She was the daughter of the man he had been sent out to do business with—a pretty little thing with hair verging on red; not highly intellectual; of the clinging sort—a clingstone peach. Her name was Flora Lvins. When Peter diagnosed his case and found out what was the matter with him he was as dazed as he had been when he found himself engaged to Nettie—and a great deal more distressed. Honor bound him to Nettie—Love called him to Flora.

By Nettie's request the engagement between her and Peter had been kept secret. But that made no difference, Peter was as fast bound in honor as if their engagement had been announced. Peter and Nettie had promised, when Peter went away, to write to each other every day. But somehow the correspondence had languished. A month went by and Peter's mission in Chicago was ended. He prepared to turn his face eastward toward Nettie, home and duty. The very morning he was to start he received a letter from Nettie. She wrote that she felt that their engagement had been a mistake: they were not suited for each other. She gave him back his troth. She herself had resolved never to marry but to devote her life to library work. She felt herself better fitted for that than for matrimony.

Peter asked his firm by telegraph for a vacation and got it. He spent it in Chicago. When he finally started East he was again an engaged man. This time it was Flora. Arriving at his home town the first man he met as he stepped off the train was Jabez Calender, the town's news budget. "Well, Jabez, what's the news?" asked Peter.

"Oh, not much," replied Jabez, "'ceptin' that Nettie Sharples was married yesterday to old Jim Bennet." Yes, Nettie had married Jim Bennet—and a mighty good wife she made him. Never was a more devoted couple. Malvina was supported in comfort in a separate establishment, complaining bitterly of her daughter's ingratitude.

When Bennet died Nettie grieved deeply, devoted her life to works of charity and never married again. People said that it must have been a love match after all. Who knows? Peter and Flora live in the old Barrows' mansion in easy circumstance—Peter is a member of his firm now—and are on excellent terms with the widow Bennet.

HEALED HIS RUPTURE.

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of recovery was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely healed my rupture. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete recovery without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 599 N. Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N.J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

SIX-FOOT GORILLA FIGHTS LIKE A MAN

Big Game Hunter Tells How He Captured Beasts That Are "Almost Human."

After thrilling adventures and hairbreadth escapes in the heart of Africa, Ben Burbridge, noted American big game hunter, has furnished to scientists the first real opportunity to study the mentality of the gorilla—the beast which, both structurally and in reasoning powers, resembles man most closely. Mr. Burbridge, in his two latest expeditions to Africa, not only obtained the only motion pictures of the gorilla ever made in its native haunts, but captured more live gorillas than have ever fallen prey to any other naturalist, eight in all. He succeeded in bringing three back to Europe and America alive, one of which, Miss Congo, a female about six years old, has lived and thrived since the fall of 1925 in Florida. She is the only living gorilla to-day outside of the African forests.

Some of the experiences in capturing these remarkable man-beasts with the aid of Pygmy warriors are related by Mr. Burbridge to Frank Parker Stockbridge in the December "Popular Science Monthly."

"What I was after was live, young gorillas," he says. "Our method was to watch for a family of gorillas passing through the forest, the old male leading and the young one straggling along behind, and to pick up the straggling infants.

"One day we caught two young gorillas in this way. We thought the rest had gone on, and had begun our march campward, when I heard the roar of a gorilla behind me. I know of nothing more terrifying than the roar of a gorilla when heard the first time. It rivals the roar of a lion in volume, but has a more threatening tone. It is punctuated, moreover, by the beating of the beast's arms against his chest, producing a booming, echoing noise like a big drum.

"The crackling of the underbrush told me that the whole band was after us. Hearing them, the young gorillas we had caught began to squeal, just as I was assembling my motion picture camera in the hope of getting a sensational strip of film. I had three natives with me this time. To one, the gun bearer, I turned over the crank of the camera with instructions to keep turning until I told him to stop. Flanked by the other two, each carrying a squirming gorilla infant, I advanced toward the place where the shaking of the shrubbery and the roaring of the beasts told me the band was assembled. The racket finally became so threatening that my two natives bolted with the captives. And that, it seemed, was what the 'old man' gorilla had been waiting for. I was alone.

"He crashed toward me through the underbrush, a huge, hairy, towering bulk, walking erect, almost like a man, with his great arms hanging to his knees. I fired once. He was so close that I could not miss. He fell dead, almost at my feet, and the rest of his family fled into the forest.

"As he lay there I measured him. Six feet tall he had stood in life. His foot was twelve inches long; his fist, when closed, would have filled a gallon measure. I estimated his weight at 450 pounds. His muscles stood out in great knots, indicating his tremendous strength. He seemed so human, like some prehistoric ancestor of our own race, that if I had gone into the gorilla country for the sport of killing them I believe I would have abandoned my expedition then and there."

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited.

Sunderland Resumes Lead in First Division English League

PHYLE THE CUP WONDER TEAM AWAIT DECISION

Halliday Scores Six Goals in Sunderland's Defeat Over Manchester.

NEWCASTLE LOST.

Motherwell Lose Hold in Scottish League Championship to Rangers.

(By Billy Fenton.)

Rhyl's defeat of Stoke, who have a stranglehold on the northern section, in the first round of the English Cup made the fans talk. The victory by the same club over Wrexham in the second round rendered the fans speechless. It is difficult to associate a Rhyl club with such triumps, but the seasiders have been right there with the goods and now await the result of to-day's draw to learn their fate when their name goes into the hat along with those of the big clubs. Rhyl certainly have been the wonder team in the Cup competition so far. Last year it was Boscombe who defeated Reading in the third round, and held Bolton Wanderers to a two-all draw in the fourth before they met with a 6 to 2 defeat in the replay. Rhyl's victory apart, the other games in the second round of this season's competition ended very much as anticipated. Reading and Grimsby Town, the only two second division clubs engaged, scraped through by the odd goal, the "Fishermen' beating York, and Reading knocking out Southend United. Three of the games which ended in one-all draws will have to be replayed.

Newcastle Unseated.

Thanks to the brilliancy of Halliday, their centre forward, who cored four out of six goals registered against Manchester United at Roker Park, Sunderland returned to the leadership of the English League First Division. Sunderland were always the aggressors, but failed to reach the net in the first period. This was largely due to the absence of Halliday, who was forced into temporary retirement by an injury. He returned after half time and gave one of the most brilliant exhibitions of his career.

While Sunderland were winning, Newcastle United were going down at Sheffield, where Wednesday, thanks to Trotter's trio of goals, emerged with full points. The Sheffielders secured their victory by the odd counter in five. Trotter's play was brilliant and he had the Newcastle defence baffled at every turn. The game served to demote Newcastle into fourth place, their immediate predecessors being Burnley and Huddersfield Town.

Huddersfield Stand Out.

The League champions, Huddersfield are now in an excellent strategical position with a couple of games in hand over Sunderland and only one point in arrears. They were able to get the benefit of the doubt over Bolton Wanderers by the only goal scored in the game.

Capewell's two counters against Blackburn Rovers at Blackburn gave Aston Villa a much needed win, their second in succession.

At the tail end of the division, West Bromwich and [illegible]by County are straggling but some encouragement was accorded to the Albion when they managed to secure points at Derby's expense by a margin of two goals. The failure of the county to maintain the high standard of the previous Saturday when they crushed Sunderland by 4 to 2 came as a surprise to their followers. The game marked Derby's eleventh defeat in eighteen games.

Rangers take the Lead.

Motherwell were forced to release their hold on the Scottish League first division championship, which is now in the care of the Rangers. Motherwell experienced the fate of many another team at Love street, where St. Mirren, the hope wreckers, scored a decisive victory. Rangers were only able to share the points at Dundee, but the single counter was sufficient to place them on top, and now "the old firms" are beginning to reassert themselves, the weaker gradually dropping down the ladder. It was a bad day for the Edinburgh club, both going down to defeat. Hearts to Airdrieonians at Tynecastle and the Hibs at Creenock. The big win of the afternoon was credited to Falkirk, who beat Queen's Park by 6 clear goals.

Dunfermline Athletic, who came up from the second string this season, underwent their eighth successive eclipse when Aberdeen made it 3 to 1 at Pittodrie Park, Dumfermline thus tumbled into the basement position, taking the place of Dundee United, who following their victory over Hearts at Tannadice Park a week ago, were able to split the points with Partick Thistle.

Wrestlers To Clash For Title On Dec. 16

DETROIT, Dec. 14.—Emiel Van Derleenden, who recently won the American middleweight title, meets Chris Jordan, of Cleveland, Dec. 16, for the world's crown. The match will be held at St. John Berchman's School, East Warren and Lakeview Avenues, at 8.15 p.m. In other bouts Farmer Burns, former world's champion, meets James Demos in a finish match and Jack Crooks grapples with Bill Campbell.

DETROIT TO GET BACK PLAYERS

Club Still Retains Franchise as Detroit Entry in League.

CONTRACTOR'S FAULT.

SAULT STE. MARIE Ont., Dec. 14.—Although the Detroit Greyhounds, of which the old Sault team formed the nucleus, have been withdrawn from the American Professional Hockey League, and the team broken up for the season, the possibility that the team will reorganize for next season is contained in a statement made by George McNamara, part owner of the club yesterday. McNamara stated that the club still retained its franchise as the Detroit entry in the League. The club withdrew owing to the fact that the Detroit rink which was to have been ready by February 1st will not be ready until April.

Helen Wills Tells Suzanne She Would Like To Meet Her.

OAKLAND, Calif., Dec. 14 (AP)—Helen Wills made an informal call yesterday upon Suzanne Lenglen. It was the first time they had met since the French tennis star arrived in America to start her professional tour. They exchanged conventional courtesies and each reiterated that she would be "delighted" to meet the other in a tennis match if such could be arranged.

Each expressed extreme doubt that the amateur standing of the one and the professional standing of the other could be reconciled.

EXPECT LANDIS TO BE RE-ELECTED

National League Owners Don't Think He'll Get Increase, Though.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—Judge K. M. Landis, High Commissioner of Baseball, will be re-elected for a seven year term at the joint meeting of the National League club owners in New York for their own league pow-wom to-morrow and Wednesday.

The circuit is expected to vote for Landis as a unit.

The club owners expect that on increase in the $50,000 year salary already paid the commissioner, will be granted at Chicago.

CARNEGIE TO PLAY NOTRE DAME IN '28

University of Detroit Bids For Game on Open Date.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 14—Games with Westminster, Drexel and Western Reserve were added to the 1927 Carnegie Tech football schedule, announced Thursday. Notre Dame, which bowed to Carnegie in the most sensational upset of the season, was missing from the schedule, but Graduate Manager Clarence Overend said Knute Rockne had promised Carnegie a game in 1928.

The schedule contained one open date Nov. 19, which Overend said would probably be awarded to Georgetown. Detroit, one of the teams met this year, has also asked for that date.

The schedule follows: Sept. 24, Westminster at Youngstown, O.; Oct. 1, Thiel at Pittsburgh; Oct. 8, Drexel at Pittsburgh; Oct. 15, Washington and Jefferson at Pittsburg; Oct 22, Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh; Oct. 29, West Virginia at Morgantown; Nov. 5, New York University at New York; Nov. 11, Western Reserve at Pittsburgh.

SAYS BOXING SMARTER SPORT

World's Heavyweight Champion Answers Journalist on Sport Problem.

THAN FOOTBALL.

(By Lawrence Perry)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 — Gene Tunney's future as a champion is yet to be determined. But his intellectual status has been established.

The other day Gene was seated in a Pullman car deep in the perusal of the Meditations of Marcus Aurelius when he was accosted by a Princeton student, representing that daily student organ, the Princetonian.

Tunney was ready for him. In fact, having crossed swords with Bernard Shaw, this young Tiger journalist meant no more to him than a pork and bean heavyweight—even granting that the Princeton journalist was by no means a pork and bean scribe.

In the course of the interview Tunney, who has that habit peculiar to great men in turning the tables of inquiry upon an interviewer, elicited the fact that Princeton does not award the varsity "P" to her boxers.

Astonished the champion thereupon expressed views concerning the relative merits of boxing and foot ball that are entitled to a wider audience than that of a college daily.

"You mean to tell me," exclaimed Tunney, "that Princeton awards no insignia to its boxers when it gives major letters to foot ball men who play a game which demands no skill, no intelligence, no individual thinking—only the faculty to take orders, a faculty which is good in the soldier but never good in the creative mind!"

To fall into the vernacular of some of Gene's ring associates, can you beat that?

"Do they give letters for foot ball?" Tunney went on. "Do they give letters for a sport which does not require creative qualities and then refuse to recognize a sport which demands both physical and moral courage, individual and competitive thinking, years of planning and preparation and true sportsmanship?"

Leaning back in his seat, Tunney stared at the inquiring reporter, who blushed and stammered and admitted that this was even so.

"Well!" Gene paused a moment to marshal his thoughts and then went on. "There is no comparison between the necessary preparation which a boxer and a foot ball player must undergo.

"In boxing a man must always have his eye toward the physical and mental conditions which control his habits and conduct, both psychologically and sensuously, while the foot ball hero trains only for a brief period.

"From my observation of both sports, I would far rather be the best boxer in a university than the best foot ball player.

"As an intercollegiate sport, boxing among the colleges could do no more harm than foot ball. I am positively not in favor, though, of college men taking up boxing as a profession. There is just so much good to be got out of the sport and it is worthless to look beyond that point."

"How about boxing as a means of enabling a man to take care of himself" Tunney was asked.

"Nonsense!" replied Gene. "That is a fallacy; for it is so seldom that gentlemen ever become mixed up in a fight that if this were the only motive boxing would be a waste of time. The one motive should be the development of the great virtues: individual courage, self-reliance, manliness and sportsmanship."

SPORTS UPSET FEATURE 1924

New Champions Established in Every Major Form of Athletics.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.

Unprecedented prosperity and a succession of startling form upsets will record 1926 as a year in sports that never may be forgotten.

Here are just a few of the features of the season:

A new heavyweight, light-heavyweight, middleweight and lightweight boxing champion.

A two million dollar gate and a million dollar football crowd.

The largest fight crowd and largest football crowd on record.

Two new baseball champions and the first world series winner in St. Louis.

The passing of Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills.

America's first home-bred winner of the British amateur golf championship—Jesse Sweetser.

America's first amateur winner of the British open golf title—Bobby Jones.

The passing of Bill Tilden and the succession of Rene La Coste to the world's tennis championship.

Two American girls swimming across the English Channel.

The fall of the New York Giants and the comeback of the Yankees.

The comeback victory of Mrs. Molla Mallory in the women's tennis championship.

The entry of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen into professional tennis.

The falling of Rogers Hornsby as the National League batting champion.

The passing of Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins.

The comeback of Babe Ruth.

The release of seven major league managers.

The breaking up of the "Big Three" by Princeton.

The defeat of Notre Dame by Carnegie Tech and the end of the University of California regime in Western football.

The defeat of Bobby Jones in the American amateur golf championship.

Walter Hagen's victory in the professional golfers' championship and the success of the American team in defending the Davis Cup against France were two of the few performances that ran according to schedule.

Considering, however, what the French players did to the Americans in the national championships it might be recorded as a surprise that the Americans won the Davis Cup.

From a financial point of view and from general interest shown, the outstanding events of the year were the heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney; the Army-Navy football game in Chicago and the World Series games in St. Louis.

The big fight drew 133,000 spectators, and more than $2,000,000, and the Army-Navy game drew 110,000 spectators and a million dollars. The game between Ohio State and Michigan drew 91,000.

SCHAEFER TO PLAY BILLIARDS ABROAD

Young Jake To Visit Europe For Two Months.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (Asscciated Press).—Jake Schaefer, world's 18.1 balkline billiard champion and former king of the caroms at 18.2 balkline, will sail for Europe next week to meet the billiard stars of France, Belgium, Germany and England in a two-month campaign abroad. His visit will be the first of any American star since Willie Hoppe won the world's 18.1 title from Maurice Vignaux in Paris in 1906.

Schaefer said that he might risk his world title while on the continent. Edouard Horemans, who once won the 18.2 title from Schaefer only to lose it in a return match, is now playing in Belgium.

Matches also are in prospect with Roger Conti, of France, former European champion, and Felix Grange, present holder of the 18.2 crown of Europe. Schaefer lost his 18.2 world title to Eric Hagenlacher of Germany in Philadelphia last March.

WARDEN TENDERS SPLENDID BANQUET

Hastings County Council and Others Guests—Many Speakers.

MARMORA, Dec. 14.—The banquet tendered by Warden G. B. Airhart at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville, was of a most auspicious character. Though the Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., W. D. Black, M.P.P. and Hydro Commissioner A Maguire were unable to be present, the company were highly privileged in hearing an immensely interesting address on "Reforestation" by the Hon. William Finlayson, M.P.P., Minister of Lands and Forests.

County Clerk W. H. Nugent made an admirable toastmaster. Following the Royal toast, he expressed his pleasure in being chairman at so auspicious a gathering which was attended by the Hastings County Council, Belleville City Council, Belleville Chamber of Commerce, and members of the County Council of the County of Peterboro. He also mentioned that two other outstanding figures in Hastings County were present in the persons of Colonel S. S. Lazier and Colonel W. M. Ponton. He also said: "One thing Belleville City is noted for is its orators" and then referred to the oratory contest at the Shire Hall the previous day, which revealed a crop of orators was springing up in the County of Hastings, equal to those in the City of Belleville. He told of close friendship with Warden Airhart, who during his term of office had initiated many things and had turned their minds towards reforestation.

Warden Airhart, in his address of welcome, said he knew no time in his life when he was happier than on the present occasion when so large a number of his friends had assembled to do him honor before retiring from his office as Warden. Having declared that in Hastings County the settlers were left a wonderful heritage, he drew the attention of the gathering to a strange coincidence. 24 years ago the village of Marmora sent as Reeve, J. W. Pearce, who was elected Warden. Twelve years ago they sent the late W. H. Hubell who too secured the Wardenship. Twenty-five years ago $50,000 was the total expenditure of the county. The expenditure of the county was in the neighborhood of $750,000 yearly now, which meant that there was a vast difference in looking after its business interests today. He thanked all who assisted in making the banquet the success it was.

Reeve S. B. Rollins, in a neat speech, replied and mentioned the boon it was to him to make the presentation to the retiring Warden of a gold mounted cane on behalf of the County Council, which having done, he expressed their appreciation of Warden Airhart's services for the past year.

Warden Airhart replying, said that never in many years had they had a County Council to work so harmoniously and so free of dissension as the one of the past year.

"The Province of Ontario" toast was proposed by Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P., in place of Hon. J. C. Cooke, who was indisposed. In a short speech, he introduced Hon. William Finlayson and also eulogised G. B. Airhart's occupation of the Warden's chair. He also referred to predictions that the Government of Great Britain would one day be transferred to Canada, and enquired: "Are we not legislating today in Ontario for the whole of Canada with the Dominion Parliament Buildings as the yare in Ottawa?"

Hon. W. Finalyson replying to the toast, dealt lucidly with the Provincial Government's proposals regarding reforestation. Seventy-five years ago, he stated, the Province had the greatest resources of timber in the British Empire. The people of the Province had since then acted like drunken sailors. They had issued silly catch phrases about the inexhaustible wealth of their forest resources and in effect though not by intention they had set about maliciously to destroy. The sooner that it was realized that timber was a crop and not a gold mine, the sooner would the people of Ontario realize the responsibilities of proper wood ranging.

The speaker called for the cooperation of the Reeves in the matter of replanting waste lands, and touching on the matter of decayed northern districts where the human race had deteriorated said, "If we had sand in the Legislature, we should go there and pull those people out and place them in the fatter lands to the south." He concluded a striking address by calling attention to the fire menace and the boon which the air service proved in combatting it.

Others in a lengthy list of speakers were Judge Evan McLean of Picton and W. C. Nickel, K.C., of Belleville.

Mr. J. A. Thompson gave a much enjoyed vocal solo and the Radio Quartette furnished two numbers while Mr. L. R. Burrows led in community singing.

NEW MEMBERS JOIN CURLERS

Semi-Annual Meeting Held By Local Club—Few Vacancies.

SKIPS HELD SESSION.

That the coming season promises to be a record one for the members of the Peterboro Curling Club, was indicated by the large attendance present at the semi-annual meeting of the Club held in the club rooms last night.

Ira D. Moore, the president of the club, occupied the chair.

Many new members were admitted at the meeting, the chairman announcing that owing to the very small number of vacancies for membership that were left, that intending members would have to get their names in without delay.

The meeting later dissolved into a meeting of the skips and Vice-Skips. The personnel of the different rinks will be published shortly.

TRAIN HITS AUTO STALLED ON TRACK

One Wheel and Door Damaged in Crossing Accident To-day.

A local taxi man was lucky in escaping with his life as a result of his car colliding with the Canadian National Railway's yard engine at the corner of Perry and Bethune streets to-day about 11.15.

At the time of the accident the automobile was proceeding along Perry street and apparently the driver figured he had time to make the crossing before the engine arrived. Just as he got across the tracks however, his engine stalled, leaving him helpless in face of the oncoming engine.

One wheel of the car and a door was badly damaged but the driver escaped unhurt.

WATERSPOUT CAUSE OF GREAT DAMAGE

Burst Over Island in Azores This Morning—No Casualties.

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—Extensive damage has been caused by an enormous waterspout which burst over St. Michael's Island in the Azores. Roads and houses were destroyed. Reports received from the island this afternoon mentioned no casualties.

BOWLING SCORES

Y.M.C.A. LEAGUE

George Street turned the tables on Barries' by taking all three games from them, and bowled good games to do it. Outram headed the list with three nice singles of 289, 214, and 194, for a good total of 697. Other high singles were Robertson's 262 and 225, Nels. Routley 216, Norm. Routley 213, Pratt 198, Nicholls 235 and 204, Curvin 228 and Crary 212.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH GALT JURY FINDS

No Blame Attached To Driver of Car Which Killed Woman.

GALT, Ont., Dec. 14.—Coroner Beaven's jury investigating the death of Mrs. Cora Clements, deaf mute, who was killed on Water street Saturday night, found that she met her end accidentally, and attached no blame to the driver of the car, Harry Mink of Hanover. Henry Clements, husband of deceased, also deaf and dumb, was one of the witnesses, and the taking of his evidence took up considerable time. It developed from the evidence that Mr. Clements also had a close call from being run down by another car at the same time.

Mink, who claimed he was not travelling fast, said the headlights of a car approaching rather marred his view and that he did not see Mr. Clements until about 20 feet away from him, and then, swerving to avoid hitting him, did not see the woman until he struck her.

Mink appeared in court yesterday morning, but was assured that if the jury's verdict was favorable the charge would not be pressed. He was still in custody last night, but will likely be freed to-day.

SENATE BATTLES OVER WATERWAYS

Rivers and Harbors Debate Opens To-day at Washington.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—The battle over the rivers and harbors authorization bill began in the Senate today. The measure includes authorization of the Lakes to the Gulf Waterway, and thus has an important bearing on the question of diversion at Chicago. It also has provision for further survey of the All-American Channel, but in view of the adverse report made by army engineers, the board of engineers for rivers and harbors, and the chief of engineers, it is expected the proposed survey will be knocked out. Indications are the advocates of the All-American Channell will for the present direct their attention chiefly to defeating all moves to advance the St. Lawrence project.

NEWSPAPER'S AIM IS TO BE FAIR STATES EDITOR

George B. Van Blericom Addresses Local Rotary Club.

RACE AGAINST TIME.

Mistakes in Papers Should Be Excused Says Newspaper Man.

George B. Van Blericom, years ago a member of The Examiner staff, later an editor of The Peterborough Review, and in recent years a prominent figure in the realm of trade journals, entertained the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon yesterday with a witty address upon the subject of "Human Nature as Seen by a Newspaper Editor."

Enlivened with a number of amusing stories, Mr. Van Blericom's talk was full of optimistic philosophy and good advice. "The livest and the deadest thing in the world is a newspaper," he told his hearers, "It is livest today when it is issued; it is deadest tomorrow. If you won't believe that try and find a copy of yesterday's Examiner."

Newspaper men, he declared, wanted to be fair and accurate. They wanted to get the facts and if mistakes were made sometimes, it should be remembered that it was not possible for newspaper men to be always on the spot and they had sometimes to accept second or third hand information, seeking to confirm it afterward. The haste with which matter had to be prepared for publication was another factor. It was a race against time, and when this feature was considered the wonder was not that there were so many mistakes, but that there were so few.

Newspaper men met all sorts and conditions of men and one type described by Mr. Van Blericom was the individual who wanted to use the newspaper as a screen behind which he could snipe at somebody he did not like, the man who pestered the newspaper to publish letters that he did not have the courage to sign.

The speaker emphasized the necessity of citizens speaking well of their home town wherever they went, and of using their best efforts to make it a better place in which to live. In this connection he paid a warm tribute to the memory of the late revered editor of The Examiner, F. R. Yekome, whom he said had done as much as any one man he could think of to advance the interests of Peterborough.

Mr. Von Blericom also deprecated the tendency to ridicule the men who offered themselves as candidates for public office, and pleaded for more sympathetic consideration for such candidates.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian F. H. Dobbin, who referred to "Van's" excellent service as a newspaper man in Peterborough.

Rotarian Doug. Fletcher announced that he promised to give a Christmas show at the Capital for the poor children of Peterborough and asked the co-operation of the Rotary Club.

Miss MacPhail Says Farmers Want Issues Debated on Merits.

DEFEAT BENEFICIAL.

TORONTO, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—"We do not want power, but we want to elect a group of United Farmers who will represent us—not engage in discussion on one single subject," said Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P. for Grey South-East, addressing the United Farmers of Ontario (Women) to-day. "We want a Cabinet selected from a committee of the Legislature and responsible to the Legislature. We want to have issues debated on their merits. We want the single transferable vote and proportional representation."

Canada's only woman member of Parliament concluded: "Queen's Park is hopeless to-day, but we had to be defeated on this liquor question in order to waken us up."

SMITH SUGGESTS BONDS FOR POWER

Would Have State Develop Water Powers, Rather Than Private Firms.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14 (Canadian Press).—The suggestion that the development of power from the St. Lawrence River and Niagara Falls be financed through bonds issued on earnings was made here last night by Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York in addressing the guests at a dinner given by the publishers of the Survey and Survey Graphic.

The Governor declared that the State must never relinquish control of the water power interests.

GEN. ALVERO OBREGON former president of Mexico, may seek re-election in 1928.

THEATRE

"LOVE'S BLINDNESS."

Elinor Glyn's production of her own scenario, "Love's Blindness," is the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week. There is one thing about Elinor Glyn. She has a style and she lives up to it. She writes a certain story, she arranges it for the screen, then she supervises its production. So that anyone who has ever seen an Elinor Glyn picture knows exactly what to expect, and those who like Elinor Glyn and find her stories entertaining, and there are hundreds of people who do both, know what a picture of hers will be like. She is comparatively easy for a reviewer to write about, because she toes the same line with such exactitude. There isn't much of a moral, perhaps, to her pictures, but they seldom go beyond the bounds of good taste, and if there are rude snickers during some of the episodes, well, that is probably because of the snickering attitude of mind of those who watch. There are still enough low-browed people in the world, evidently, who can find amusement in the spectacle of a pair of rich, young people forced together by circumstances, falling in love, then being compelled to hide their mutual affection because of pride. This is a tragic situation, as anyone knows, and the author does her best to point out the sorrow of it. She lightens it up with the inclusion of a series of bedroom scenes (and we have been told lately that bedroom scenes had gone out of fashion) in which the true Elinor Glyn touch is very apparent. But, after a good deal of harrowing of the feelings and emotions of the watchers, she contrives a happy ending and the pair are left to continue their marital adventures in private.

Vanessa Levy (Pauline Starke) is the young and beautiful daughter of the rich Benjamin Levy (Sam de Grasse) and her unscrupulous father, quite in the manner of old-time romance, marries her off to a handsome but impecunious young nobleman, Hubert, Earl of St. Austel (Antonio Moreno), who is attracted by the girl but does not care for what he thinks are her grasping propensities and has also another charmer in the vampish Alice, Duchess of Lincolnwood (Lilyan Tashman). However, he marries the rich young lady, then starts to treat her in a manner that is guaranteed to arouse the sympathy of the most hard-hearted, and gives the producer an opportunity for the use of the episodes heretofore referred to. Affairs mount to a stormy climax and the eventual return of the lady to her father's roof, where she is coaxed later by the pleas of her repentant bridegroom.

There are some interesting short reels with the feature, in a Grantland Rice Sportlight and a comedy entitled "Sparking Breezes." — Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT

DANCED IN COHAN'S MUSICAL COMEDIES

Johnny Hines Was a "Song and Dance Man" for George M. Before Pictures Found Him.

The career of Johnny Hines, whose latest First National starring vehicle, "Stepping Along," is on view at the Regent Theatre this week, has been as fast moving as his present pictures.

Golden, Colorado, was the comedian's birthplace, but being of a restless nature, at such an early age Johnny packed his carpet bag and picked out Pittsburgh as the place for his education. Later he headed for Broadway and the big city to seek a career behind the footlights.

Johnny spent five years on the speaking stage, singing and dancing in musical comedies, some of them by George M. Cohan.

He made his film debut in 1915 but his first bid for genuine screen fame came when he created the role of "Torchy" in the comedies of that name. Before he knew it, the comedian was headed for electric lights and feature length comedies, his first being "Burn 'em p Barnes," followed by "Sure-Fire Flint."

MAN ENTITLED TO GET DRUNK

Justice Riddell Refuses To Allow Alimony To Mrs. Lang.

CHARGED CRUELTY.

TORONTO, Dec. 14. — (Canadian Press.)—The Court of Appeal to-day dismissed without costs the appeal of Mrs. Victoria Lang, of Kitchener, formerly of Montreal, against the judgment of Mr. Justice Wright, who had dismissed her action for alimony against her husband, Jerome Lang, of Kitchener. Counsel for Mr. Lang was not even called upon.

The declaration of Mr. Justice Riddell that a man "is entitled to get drunk if he wishes to," was an interesting feature of the proceedings to-day. The remark was made when counsel for Mrs. Lang alleged that her husband was "drunk every day," seeking to prove cruelty on his part. "That's not cruelty," Mr. Justice Riddell said. "A man may get drunk every day of his life."

ALDERMAN E. M. TURNER RESIGNS SEAT IN COUNCIL TO ENTER RACE FOR UTILITIES COMMISSION PLACE

Announces Resignation at Special Meeting of Council Last Night.

SERVED FIVE YEARS.

Business of Year Cleaned Up By Council—Change in Highway Opposed.

At a special meeting called for the purpose of passing an agreement with the American LaFrance Company for the pumper equipment to be built for the City, business for 1926 was pretty well cleaned up. Alderman E. Mel Turner surprised his colleagues by his resignation from the Council. His term does not expire until the end of 1927, but Mr. Turner intends to contest the vacancy occurring in the Utilities Commission through the withdrawal of E. F. Mason. Mr. Turner has been a member of the Council for five years. Appreciation of his services was expressed by Mayor Holloway and Aldermen Denne, Phelan, and Cotton.

Other Aldermen whose term expires this year are N. E. Phelan, J. O. Fife, J. W. Meyers J. M. Greene, and R. Denne. Aldermen Phelan and Fife have stated that they will seek re-election, but the others have made no definite announcement as yet. Mayor Holloway will also seek re-election.

A resolution was passed opposing the suggestion of the Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham that the Peterborough-Lindsay Provincial Highway be built by way of Scott's Corners, and a clause added that work be started at the Peterborough end of the road.

The memory of the late Harry Winch will be perpetuated in the name of the new street to be opened through from Crescent to Ware street, near his late residence. This suggestion of Alderman Hancock was passed unanimously by the Aldermen.

The Mayor and Alderman Phelan announced that they had made an arrangement with the Bank of Montreal for better terms for the City's business. This matter was first introduced by Aldermen Denne and Greene and has been under discussion for a year or more. The saving to the City will be in the neighborhood of $2,000 yearly.

A number of acknowledgements and promises of consideration were read, replying to the resolution forwarded to all the members of the Dominion Cabinet, urging the appointment of a Peterborough man to one of the vacancies of the Dominion Senate.

The Canadian National Railways will be required to comply to the fire by-laws of the City in re-erecting a building on their property. This confirmed the decision of the Council, passed at the meeting of December 6, and upheld the action of the Engineer. Work was started without a permit having been applied for.

The City is required to pay over $1,000 to the election board of the City and County of Peterborough as its share of the Cost of preparing the voters' lists for the recent Provincial elecion. The total cost for the two ridings is divided among the municipalities on the basis of population.

Cards will be sent to the voters notifying them where to vote in the municipal elections on New Year's Day. Miss Helen Henry was engaged to fill the place of Miss Primeau, resigned, in the Assessor's office. A resolution of appreciation was passed, thanking the Canadian General Electric Company for power supplied when none was available from the Hydro on two occasions recently. The contract for the memorial gateway at Nicholls Park was re-assigned to Henry Brothers, who already have the material on the ground and will start as soon as the weather is favorable.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee reported as follows:

Your committee had the agreement with the American LaFrance Fire Engine Company prepared for the purchase of a triple combination motor pumper with a Booster tank instead of a chemical tank and omitting the paragraph in regard to turning in the American LaFrance truck in the Fire Hall, at any time, with an allowance of $3,000.00 on the purchase of any piece of apparatus at a price not less than $6,500.00.

We recommend that we do not sell the American LaFrance truck now in the Fire Hall.

SCHOOLS CLOSED IN LAKEFIELD

M. O. H. Orders All Public Gatherings Suspended For Two Weeks.

NO GREAT DANGER.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 15—In order to prevent any spread of smallpox, of which there have been four cases, Dr. J. R. Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, has ordered all public gatherings suspended for two weeks. This has caused the closing of the schools, the churches, the theatre, and the cancelling of various private and public entertainments.

At the present time there are also quarantined two people as carriers of diphtheria. One child died three weeks ago of the disease but there have been no further actual cases.

Dr. Fraser told The Examiner that there was no need for alarm and that he was taking these steps merely as an added safeguard.

Dollies' Clothes Costly Dressed Like "Mistress"

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (Associated Press).—Dolls are simpler and cheaper than ever before, but their wardrobes are more elaborate and costly, the toy counters disclose.

"Little girls are wise to-day—they want their dollies to have everything just like themselves," say the clerks. So just as much fine material, and just as much fine work is going into making dolls' clothes, as children's clothes, and they are just as expensive."

HOLDS DECISION OVER WESTERN COAL RATE CASE

Feel That Petition For Early Hearing Will Be Acceded To.

WOULD FIX DATE.

Application By Ontario and Alberta Governments Before Railway Commissioners.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Chief Commissioner Judge McKeown of the board of railway commissioners, yesterday afternoon reserved his decision on the application by the governments of Alberta and Ontario for an early hearing of the western coal rates case. A decision is expected to-day and the feeling is that the petition for an early hearing will be acceded to.

Before the Board adjourned yesterday afternoon, S. C. Wood, of Edmonton, renewed his application for an early hearing of the case. He stated that he had interviewed the Ontario government officials in Toronto over the week end and they too were most anxious to press the matter. If the Board would fix a date early in January when it reassembled after the Christmas recess, Ontario would at once bring their traffic expert, Mr. Oliver, from Chicago to meet Mr. Mallory of the C.N.R. and Mr. Lloyd of the C.P.R. in Montreal so that everything might be ready to present to the Board. He did not think the case should take more than four days.

Mr. Lasson for the Ontario government supported Mr. Woods' application saying that his principals were ready to at once submit the statistical data they had prepared if a date was set but were not willing to do so while the hearing of the case was indefinite.

Mr. Flintoft for the C.P.R., said it was a matter of indifference to him which case was taken first, but he did not think it fair to his company to break away from the rates investigation to go on with another matter. All the company's statistical men were fully occupied on the big case and it was not fair to them to switch off now to something else.

Alistair Fraser for the C.N.R., declared that he maintained his previous attitude of not wishing in any way to oppose the Alberta-Ontario application, but he could not offer any guarantee that the case could be diposed of in four days.

Commissioner Boyce wanted to know what would happen if the case was not finished in the time set and the Board was unable to extend it. Mr. Woods said they were prepared to take chances on that, his side would do everything to facilitate the proceedings.

After some further discussion, Chief Commissioner Judge McKeown announced that the Board would reserve judgment.

CUSTOMS PROBE SHIFTS FROM LIQUOR QUESTION

Complains of Dumping of C. A. Sugar on B. C. Market.

CHIEF COMPETITION.

Imported Sugar of Inferior Grade Sells Around 3 1-4c. Pound.

VANCOUVER, B.C., December 15.—Canadian Press. — The Customs Commission shifted its attention from liquor to sugar yesterday.

S. J. Johnson, president of the British Columbia Sugar Refinery, came before the commission and complained of the dumping of Central American sugar on the British Columbia market.

Examined by R. L. Calder, K.C., Mr. Johnson said that the principal competitior of his refiner came from Central America.

While the refinery could lay down granulated sugar in Vancouver at $6.42 a hundred pounds, Central American sugar which was not so pure in quality, came in and sold at 3 to 3½c a pound.

"Have you done anything to invoke the dumping clauses of the Customs Act?" asked Mr. Calder.

Mr. Johnson replied that he had taken the matter up with the Customs Department and received a letter from the Dominion appraiser saying that there was no investigation officer to ascertain the value of Central American sugar in the home market. The Dominion appraiser stated that inquiry would be made in San Francisco to find out the value in the country of origin of this sugar.

He had made enquiry through a large house in San Francisco, said Mr. Johnson, and found that the selling price of the Central American sugar in the home market was about $6.50 per hundred pounds. He produced affidavits in support of this statement. This was the same sugar which was being dumped into Canada at $3 or $3.50 a hundred pounds.

The importation of Central American sugar into British Columbia was very considerable, the witness stated. It ran about five million pounds a year.

Mr. Johnson also complained against the treatment accorded his refinery for the past six years in regard to the tare of bags used in the importation of raw sugar.

In this connection, he said, he had a claim against the government amounting to $59,000 prior to 1919, weight of the bags had been estimated at 1½ per cent. of the gross weight of the cargo but subsequently an order was issued that, in the case of his refinery the bags must all be weighed. This regulation applied only to his refinery and constituted discrimination, said the witness.

Chief Appraiser Birmingham, of Vancouver, submitted a letter from the former Deputy Minister of Customs at Ottawa, instructing him in regard to tare on bags. The action in regard to Mr. Johnson's refinery was based on this letter, he said.

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET.

Peterborough U. F. Y. P. O. Club Holds Splendid Social Evening.

The regular meeting of the U.F.Y.P.O. was held on Tuesday evening, December 14th. There were about seventy-five of the young farm people of the surrounding district present. The meeting was under the direction of Allan Milburn, Harry Fowler, Evelyn Darling and Jessie Tully, and a very entertaining programme had been prepared. The first part of the evening was spent in playing progressive euchre, Miss Eulah Hancock carrying off the first prize, and Miss Jean Gillespie, the consolation prize. Stewart's Orchestra then provided music for dancing until one o'clock.

The programme committee appointed to look after the next meeting is Arthur Hancock, Harold Middleton, Mary Huston, and Jean Gillespie.

KING URGES ALL TO HELP EFFACE STRIKE MEMORY

Speaks at Prorogation of British Parliament For Holidays.

LOOK TO FUTURE.

Speaks of "My Ministers From the Dominions" During Address.

LONDON, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Parliament was prorogued February 8.

In his speech of prorogation, King George touched on the situation in China, the recent Imperial Conference, the coal strike, and the forthcoming visit of the Duke and Duchess of York to Australia to inaugurate the new federal capital, Canberra.

The Chinese situation is "being watched by my government with the closest attention," the King said.

For the first time in history the King departed from the formula whereby British monarchs have referred to the cabinet as "my ministers." He spoke of "my ministers from the Dominions," thereby further confirming the autonomous status of the various commonwealths as voiced by the recently Imperial Conference.

Regarding home affairs, he said: "During the greater part of the present year the nation has lived in the shadow of the most protracted and ruinous industrial conflict in its history (the coal strike). When last addressing you, I expressed earnest hope that the report of the Commissioners upon the economic condition of the coal industry would, with the co-operation of all concerned, pave the way to peaceful solution of this great social and economic problem.

"This hope was not fulfilled. It remains to us now to unite in effacing all the bitter memories of the past and to set our eyes steadfastly upon the future, inspired by common impulse toward genuine fellowship and sustained endeavor, upon which alone the prosperity and happiness of my people can be firmly based."

WINNIPEG STATION HEARD IN ENGLAND

Liverpool Man Picks Up C. N.R.W. at Early Hour of Morning.

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 15.—The Winnipeg radio station of the Canadian Natignal Railways has been heard in Liverpool, England, according to a letter which was received yesterday by R. H. Roberts, announcer over CNRW. At 4.40 o'clock Sunday morning, November 21st, the strains of "Mary Lou" being broadcast in Winnipeg at 10.40 Saturday evening, November 20, were heard by Herbert Jones of 50 Monkswell Street, Dingle, Liverpool. Mr. Roberts, in looking over the log of CNRW in verification of the statement, finds that "Mary Lou" was one of the items included in the programme of November 20.

The letter from Mr. Jones reads as follows: "At about 4.40 G.M.T., I picked up a station about 385 metres which we understood to give the call sign CNRW. As the World's Radio does not give the items I picked I should like to know whether I have been successful in picking up a station which, while on a lower power of 500W. is also a great distance away. Unfortunately, although your strength was rather good, I was troubled with fading and missed most of the announcement. However one item I was sure of was an instrumental number called 'Mary Lou'. My receiver is a four-valve straight circuit."

The Radio Department here consulted the radio log kept of all numbers broadcasted, and identified the time of broadcasting and the item. This is the first time that the station at Winnipeg has been picked up in England, although they have been heard before as far south as the Isle of Pines and as far west as Haiku, Hawaii.

PREMIER PLANS CHANGE OF NAME

Would Call Parliament of Britain By Different Title.

LONDON, December 15. Canadian Press. — Premier Baldwin told the House of Commons to-day that, when legislation was introduced to aid the contemplated change in the King's title to be effected, the Government would take the opportunity to propose that the title of Parliament in the future would be "The Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and northern Ireland."

Asked whether the same style and title would apply to the King, the Premier said he must have further notice before replying.

Machinery Is Blamed For Failure Of Home

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (Associated Press). — Many modern women, in addition to imitating men intellectually, have adopted the profanity, vulgarity, skepticism and cynicism of men, in the opinion of Dr. Will Durant, author of "The story of Philosophy."

Dr. Durant, who gave his views in a lecture Sunday night, blamed the introduction of factory machinery with giving employment to women and tending to break down home life. He suggested that the fundamental concern of women should be the rearing of children and the building of homes.

JUDGE HUYCKE COMMENTS ON NEW ADDITION

Will Expedite Matters in Registry and Surrogate Court Offices.

NO CRIMINAL CASES.

One Jury Case in Fall Session of County Court.

There were no criminal cases to be brought before His Honor Judge Huycke at the fall session of the County Court which commenced yesterday afternoon at the Court House. Judge Huycke, addressing the grand jury, commented on the new building at the Court House which was going to expediate matters in the registry office and in the office of the clerk of the Surrogate Court. He drew the jurymen's attention to the poor acoustic properties of the court-room, and as there were no criminal cases to be brought before His Honor, the duties of the grand jury were light.

There is only one jury case, and when the jury had been empanelled for this case, the rest of the men who had been summoned to appear were released.

The jury case, which is that of Miss Cooper against Patrick J. Tangney and Dr. Howson. V. J. McElderry appeared for the plaintiff and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for Mr. Tangney and R. R. Hall, K.C., for Dr. Howson.

Miss Cooper, who is an employee of the J. J. Turner Company, Ltd., is suing for damages caused on the night of November 13th, 1925, when the car which was driven by Mr. Tangney knocked her down and caused injuries which kept her out of work for 14 weeks.

The case is a three-cornered affair as Mr. Tangney claims it was Dr. Howson who, he says, struck his car and forced him up on the sidewalk, striking Miss Cooper and Miss Maybee. Miss Cooper was the first witness called, and she stated that she was an employee in the flag department of the J. J. Turner Company and that her wages were $15.00 a week. On the night of the accident she was coming home from work with her friend, Miss Maybee, along the east side of George Street, and as she neared the Library she noticed a car coming up McDonnel from the west. She crossed McDonnel Street, and was standing talking on the northeast corner of the sidewalk of McDonnel and George Streets, when she was struck. She heard no crash and the car was upon her before she noticed it. She was knocked down and dragged by the car, and the first she remembered was that she was being taken out from under the rear axle of the car.

She suffered a fractured bone about four inches above the ankle and the ligaments on the inside of the ankle were scratched. As a result of this accident she had to lay off work for 14 weeks; since then she has been nervous, and after 13 months one ankle remains thicker than the other. She is not able to control her step, and at times she suffers pains in the ankle, and has to walk with a slight limp.

In her claim for damages is a bill for practical nursing for the 14 weeks which her sister, Mrs. Deyell, whom she was living, with claims and also doctors' services which she claims is due Dr. Howson, although he never billed her.

On cross-examination by Mr. Gordon, the witness said that it was a misty night and that the car approaching on McDonnel Street impressed her as if it was on the north side of the street. In regard Senator Buchanan's Address To Senate on Developments of Conference.

EVIDENCE SHOWN.

Adopt Address Replying To Speech From Throne Without a Division.

OTTAWA, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—The address in reply to the Speech from the Throne was adopted in the Senate yesterday without a division. It was moved by Senator Buchanan, Lethbridge, and seconded by Senator Turgeon, Bathurst. Hon. W. B. Ross and Hon. Raoul Dandurand, the two leaders, spoke briefly on the address. Senator Casgrain drew the attention of the Senate to the serious effect of Chicago water diversion.

Senator Buchanan dealt with the developments of the Imperial Conference. He contended that the equality of status granted to all the nations within the Empire would tend to strengthen the ties of Empire rather than cause disintegration as was feared by elements not in accord with the decisions of the conferences. Already evidence to bear out this view had come from the utterances of President Cosgrave, of the Irish Free State, and Premier Hertzog of South Africa. They had declared that the course followed at London was certain to bind their countries more closely to the other sections of the Empire and make firmer the foundations of the Empire. Leading British statemen who participated in the conference, had no fear that the greater freedom granted to the Dominions or the Irish Free State would in any way weaken the Empire.

Senator Buchanan devoted most of his speech to a consideration of the improved business conditions throughout the country particularly in Western Canada. The steady growth of Canada's export trade and the remarkable improvement in the financial position of the Canadian National Railways indicated that Canada had already entered upon a period of renewed prosperity, evident everywhere throughout the Dominion. The Western harvest would bring a large financial return, but the Senator desired to emphasize that grain alone was not the only measure of the Prairie Provinces position. Mixed farming had been expanding rapidly in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The West was also experiencing industrial development. Pulp mills, sugar beet factories, canning factories were being established on the Prairies, and British Columbia's mineral wealth was rapidly expanding. In East Kootenay alone it was expected that 8,000 tons of silver lead would be produced daily in the near future. One of the greatest lead mines in the world, the Sullivan, was located in Eastern British Columbia and its year's output was worth over $12,000,000.

There was room for countless thousands more people. Immigration should hold a foremost place in the matters receiving the attention of the government. Upon increased population, engaged in productive occupations, depended the maintenance of prosperity.

Canada needed capital. In the industrial development of Western Canada, U. S. capital seemed to be more ready to participate than Canadian capital.

What Canada needed was greater faith on the part of its people in its future. Canadians should not hold

Shaping Babies' Faces To Make Beautiful Race

LONDON, Dec. 15 (Associated Press). — Lady Walburga Paget urges that a race of beautiful people, free from physical defects, be created through parents shaping their infants' faces soon after birth.

She proposes that a special profession of sculptural nurses be trained for this purpose. "The art," she says, "is now known only to some Indian tribes of Mexico. There, the great Spanish families call in an old 'Mammy' when a child is born to shape its plastic head, features and limbs.

"The many women who are sculptors or draw, would at once know where to correct baby defects. We have surgeons now who can restore features to their former shape after terrible defacing accidents; why not, therefore, model babies?"

W. STOCKER TO RUN AGAIN

Seeks Re-election To City Council After 20 Months' Absence.

ANNOUNCES STAND.

The first candidate for aldermanic honors, in the person of Walter Stocker, threw his hat into the ring this morning.

It will be no new sensation for Mr. Stocker to enter the fray, as he has previously served on the City Council for three and a half years. During that time he acted as chairman of the Board of Works Committee and the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

He had decided on taking this course, he told the Examiner, due to many of his friends asking him to let his name go forward. He personally feels that he is in a position to give real service to the citizens as he is able to devote his entire time to the position, if elected.

MINISTERS TENDER FAREWELL LUNCH

Express Regard For Rev. N. R. McLeod, Who Is Leaving City.

On Monday morning in the Y.M.C.A. the regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association took place, with the President, Rev. J. W. Gordon, in the chair. The largest attendance this year listened with the greatest interest to a paper on Modern English Poetry," given by Mr. Alex. Mowatt, Inspector of the Public Schools of the city. Appreciation of Mr. Mowatt's kindness and of the very helpful quotations f the 1234 11 very helpful qualities of the paper were freely and unanimously expressed.

At the close of the meeting the members adjourned to the Paragon Dining Room, where a farewell luncheon was tendered Rev. Norman McLeod of Park Street Baptist Church, who is leaving at the end of the year for Brampton. Expression of affection and deep regard for Mr. McLeod were voiced by all present, and attention was called to his fine contribution to the Ministerial Association as its secretary and as president of the Local Council of Religious Education.

DOCTORS GIVE EVIDENCE IN DAMAGE SUIT

Testify in Claim of Miss Cooper For Recompense For Injuries.

CHIEF CALLED.

Dr. Howson Tells of Accident—Dr. Moir Gives Medical Evidence.

Dr. Howson and Dr. Moir were the two outstanding witnesses at the hearing of the suit of Miss Cooper against Dr. George Howson and Patrick J. Tangney, in which Miss Cooper claims damages when she was hurt in a motor accident at the corner of George and McDonnel Streets on November 13th, 1925.

Dr. Moir.

Dr. Moir was the first witness called this morning. From an X-ray photo the witness would say the ankle bones were in perfect position. He considered seven or eight weeks enough before a person could walk on it, and there would be some stiffness for two or three months. The witness said there should not be any susceptibility towards further injury, and the strained ligaments should become all right again.

In cross-examination by V. J. McElderry, the witness said that in twenty-four years of practice he never saw a cross fracture which impaired the person.

Dr. George Howson.

The witness is one of the defendants in the action. On the night of the accident he was going north on George Street to Nicholls Hospital. The night was misty and rainy, and the lights were lit in the city. His speed was about 20 miles an hour, and after observing that there were no cars in sight, he started to cross McDonnel Street when the Tangney car appeared in front of him. He immediately swerved to the right and struck the car with the left front fender of his car. Mr. Tangney's car jumped across the sidewalk on the George Street Church property. Dr. Howson brought his car to a stop and he returned to the scene of the accident and removed Miss Cooper from under the rear axle of the Tangney car. He then took her home and later on in the evening he set her ankle, and the next day took an X-ray examination. He saw the patient daily until February, and he believed there should be no impairment on the use of the ankle.

Chief Newhall.

Both defendants came to the Chief's office on 14th of November. Mr. Hall went on to ask questions about the interview, but Mr. Gordon objected very vigorously, claiming that the rule in law is that such evidence must be drawn to the defendant's notice when he is in the box. Mr. Hall then called Mr. Tangney to the box, which was allowed by Judge Huycke, as Mr. Gordon had not closed his case.

The last witness to be called upon was Roy Price, the garage mechanic who repaired Dr. Howson's car. His evidence showed that it was only the front left fender which was damaged.

At noon the jurors went down to view the scene of the accident.

DOCTORS GIVE EVIDENCE IN DAMAGE SUIT

Testify in Claim of Miss Cooper For Recompense For Injuries.

CHIEF CALLED.

Dr. Howson Tells of Accident—Dr. Moir Gives Medical Evidence.

Dr. Howson and Dr. Moir were the two outstanding witnesses at the hearing of the suit of Miss Cooper against Dr. George Howson and Patrick J. Tangney, in which Miss Cooper claims damages when she was hurt in a motor accident at the corner of George and McDonnel Streets on November 13th, 1925.

Dr. Moir.

Dr. Moir was the first witness called this morning. From an X-ray photo the witness would say the ankle bones were in perfect position. He considered seven or eight weeks enough before a person could walk on it, and there would be some stiffness for two or three months. The witness said there should not be any susceptibility towards further injury, and the strained ligaments should become all right again.

In cross-examination by V. J. McElderry, the witness said that in twenty-four years of practice he never saw a cross fracture which impaired the person.

Dr. George Howson.

The witness is one of the defendants in the action. On the night of the accident he was going north on George Street to Nicholls Hospital. The night was misty and rainy, and the lights were lit in the city. His speed was about 20 miles an hour, and after observing that there were no cars in sight, he started to cross McDonnel Street when the Tangney car appeared in front of him. He immediately swerved to the right and struck the car with the left front fender of his car. Mr. Tangney's car jumped across the sidewalk on the George Street Church property. Dr. Howson brought his car to a stop and he returned to the scene of the accident and removed Miss Cooper from under the rear axle of the Tangney car. He then took her home and later on in the evening he set her ankle, and the next day took an X-ray examination. He saw the patient daily until February, and he believed there should be no impairment on the use of the ankle.

Chief Newhall.

Both defendants came to the Chief's office on 14th of November. Mr. Hall went on to ask questions about the interview, but Mr. Gordon objected very vigorously, claiming that the rule in law is that such evidence must be drawn to the defendant's notice when he is in the box. Mr. Hall then called Mr. Tangney to the box, which was allowed by Judge Huycke, as Mr. Gordon had not closed his case.

The last witness to be called upon was Roy Price, the garage mechanic who repaired Dr. Howson's car. His evidence showed that it was only the front left fender which was damaged.

At noon the jurors went down to view the scene of the accident.

MIKADO IMPROVES.

Temperature of Japanese Emperor Has Gone Down To-day.

TOKIO, December 15. Canadian Press. — A household department bulletin issued shortly before eleven oclock to-night indicated improvement in the condition of Emperor Yoshihito, who is ill at his villa at Hayama.

A bulletin issued during the afternoon also reported improvement in the sovereign's condition, and said his temperature was decreasing.

ELEPHANT TAKES ROAMING SPIRIT

Strays From Circus Winter Quarters For Four Days.

FRIGHTENS CHILDREN.

OTTAWA, Kansas, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press). — After roaming through four counties in southeastern Kansas for three days, Diamond, a circus elephant, was captured by his trainer late yesterday 18 miles south-east of Garnett.

The trainer and assistants with horses from the winter quarters of a circus at Quenemo, from which the pachyderm escaped last Saturday, overtook Diamond and subdued him without great difficulty.

Diamond recognized the horses and permitted them to approach. Then ropes were fastened about the four-ton beast and he was tied to a tree. A blazing fire was built near Diamond to thaw him out, and the circus men hoped the warmth would save him from threatened pneumonia.

In his self-conducted winter expedition over the countryside, the elephant smashed fences and outbuildings and stepped on a pig. Appearing in a school yard Monday at Garnett he terrorized school children before driven away.

DURHAM HOLSTEIN BREEDERS MEET

Annual Meeting Held in Orono—Much Business Discussed.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 15.—The annual meeting of the Durham County Holstein Breeders' Club was held in the Town Hall, Orono on Saturday, December 11, a representative number of members being in attendance.

The president, Archie Muir, of Courtice, was in the chair, and among the business items discussed was the matter of renumeration to owners of fully accredited herds who may have one or two animals react to the tuberculin test, such animals being sent to the abattoir to be slaughtered. Two specific cases were mentioned, one owner in Cavan township whose herd has been accredited for two years, yet one animal went down under the the test this fall no allowance was made for it when killed. In the other case two head were found infected the excuse for non-payment being that the five-foot fence, recommended for isolation purposes, had not been erected.

The rule followed by the department now is that no animal will be valued higher than $150.00, and of this two-thirds should be paid the owner of cattle reacting to the T.B. test.

Last year the Durham Club protested against the ruling for a five-foot fence round a pasture where an accredited herd is kept, sending its objections, officially, to Ottawa.

The secretary, L. C. Snowden, of Bowmanville was instructed to write the department at Toronto for explicit information on these matters.

The matter for a county herd for exhibition purposes at the Canadian National, and the Royal Winter Fair, which had been decided upon last year, also came up for further discussion. No herd was shown because a sufficient number of animals was not in condition for the purpose.

"To prepare dairy cattle properly for these events one would practically have to begin feeding now. Beef cattle can be ready for show purposes in three months, but a cow that is milking is bound to put some of the fat into the pail", was the way one owner expressed the matter.

Individual exhibits were talked of, but here the question of finance is intimately concerned.

The officers re-elected for 1927 were:

President—A. Muir, Courtice.

Vice-Pres.—H. I. Seymour, Cavan.

Secretary-Treasurer—L. C. Snowden, Bowmanville.

Auditors—Neil Mutton and R. M. Cale.

Directors—Darlington: N. I. Metcalf and J. D. Stevens; Hope: A. J. Runnals and Walter Reynolds; Cavan: Leonard Henderson and W. T. Belch; Clarke: A. A. Gibson and H. Jose; Sales' Manager: R. R. Stevens, Bowmanville.

Sales' Manager—R. R. Stevens, Bowmanville.

Sales Committee—J. D. Stevens, A. L. Pascoe, N. Mutton, A. J. Tamblyn, F C. Paterson, R. M. Cale, with the President and Secretary.

Adjournment was made at 12.30 p.m. to the local hotel where the annual banquet was held, covers being laid for about 50 guests.

The speakers were Professor J. C. Steckley of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, whose subject was, "Holstein Cattle" and who dealt in an illuminating manner with breeding, feeding, and production, and Professor C. B. Sissons, of Toronto, who owns a farm at Orono on which he resides six months out of the year.

Professor Sissons spoke on "The Milk Producers' Association", the practical lesson growing out of his address being concerned with producers, who ship milk to Toronto, having some say in conference with the distributors when prices are set

A County Milk Producers' Association was advocated to protect the rights of local owners of dairy herds in this important matter.

Community singing, led by W. Bickle, of Port Hope, and recitations by Messrs. Pearce, of Bowmanville, and Allan, of Orono, supplied the "lighter vein" necessary to enliven the afternoon's proceedings.

The matter of the Durham Club holding a spring as well as fall, sale of cattle was left with the executive for further consideration.

A. Brady, of Campbellford, R.O.P. inspector, last week paid an official visit to 'Windermere Farm" Cavan, and inspected the pure bred, fully accredited herd of Holstein cattle belonging to W. Fred Fallis.

The result of the test was, in the main, satisfactory, a butter fat content, with the Record of Performance test is alone concerned, of 4.2, 3.6, and 3.4 being labelled "good". The list included:

Lulu Alice 3.1
Rauwerd Alice 3.1
Alice Vale 4.2
Alice Rue Vale 3.4
Alice Vale Rauwerd 3.6

RECORD BROKEN

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 15. — The lobster fishing season of 1925 on the Atlantic coast of Canada closed with an increased catch over the previous year of 7,131,000 pounds. The total catch since the commencent of the fishing season was 33,839,0000 pounds, of which 8,313,400 pounds were shipped in shell and the balance canned, making 127,544 cases.

Tries To Imitate Stunt Found Dead Under Window

LONDON, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Last Saturday a stunt artist released himself from a straight jacket while suspended by his feet from a crane high over Piccadilly Circus. His picture appeared in all the newspapers.

On Monday morning Henry Stovel, 83, a wealthy recluse living on Northumberland Ave., was found dead under his bedroom window, fifty feet above. His feet were tied together with cord.

The coroner yesterday said that from all the circumstances surrounding the death it was probable that Stovel had seen the stunt pictures and, having them on his mind, tried to emulate the feat while asleep. There were no indications of suicide.

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR'S TRAVEL

Throughout the year there is no period so like a magnet for drawing people together as Christmas time.

No matter where you may be, there is an intensive longing for Christmas at home. Long ago, when travelling facilities were limited, people journeyed many weary miles and endured great hardships in order that they might be with their friends and loved ones on Christmas Day, but this has all been changed by the application of modern railway methods, whereby even the Continent may be crossed in safety and with every comfort, in a comparatively short journey.

This year Christmas and New Year's travel promise to be heavy, and with a view to placing every facility at the disposal of their patrons, Canadian National Railways have made their advance preparations and plans for extra trains and additional equipment on regular trains. Full particulars will appear in newspapers, and special time tables will be shortly obtainable from any Agent of the Company.

Those who wish to prepay the fare of relatives or friends from any outside point can deposit the money at any Canadian National Agency and the transportation will be delivered immediately and economically.

The Canadian National Telegraphs place at your service their wonderful facilities for the quick transmission of Holiday Greetings. A special staff is engaged during the Christmas rush in order that transmission and deliveries may be quickened to the highest point. A very attractive design of message form is being prepared for the holiday season.

The Canadian National Express offers the best vehicle for the safe and swift transport of Christmas gifts. That particular feature receives special supervision at holiday time, and this in itself is a guarantee of efficient service. Remember that a Canadian National Express receipt will protect you and will ensure complete satisfaction.

Canadian National solicits your patronage for every branch of its public service utilities. Every effort of each employee is centred on the efficient performance of his or her duty, and those who place their business in the hands of this great merchandising organization may rest assured that they will receive the full value for whatever expenditure they make, plus that measure of personal interest which is the true complement of perfect service.

ROSENEATH NEWS

ROSENEATH, Dec. 15.—Mr. Flex McMillan was home from Peterboro for over the week-end.

The Mission Band bazaar was held last Saturday in the Town Hall here. There was a splendid attendance.

A social evening was given on Friday last when the Loyal Orange Lodge gave a treat to its members and their friends. Owing to the stormy night and bad roads, not as many were present as expected, but those who did come were not sorry as it was evident they all enjoyed themselves. Supper was served by the ladies. Cards and dancing was indulged in and continued until the wee small hours in the morning. The committee consisted of Messrs. James Webb, Frank Coyle, Gordon Parker and ppprptppp SHRDLU CMFWYP D Earl Shearer, who did their part in making a very pleasant evening to the members and friends.

WEDDING BELLS.

McMILLAN—ARCHIBALD.

ROSENEATH, Dec. 15.—The news has been received of the marriage of Mr. Willis S. McMillan, of Aneroid, Sask., to Miss Elizabeth Archibald, which took place on Nov. 24, 1926, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. E. Archibald, Govan, Sask. Mr. McMillan is the oldest son of Mr. John McMillan, of this village, and is well known in this vicinity. His many friends from here extend hearty congratulations.

WINN—MACKLIN.

ROSENEATH, Dec. 15.—Mr. German Winn, of Alnwick Township, and Miss Myrtle Macklin, of the Macklin Settlement, were married on Wednesday, Dec. 8. The young couple have the good wishes from many friends around this community.

OBITUARY.

MISS LUCINDA J. HOGLE.

ROSENEATH, Dec. 15.—The death occurred at the home of Mr. Austin Lean of Miss Lucinda Jane Hogle at the ripe old age of 81 years. Deceased had been living with her neice, Mrs. Lean, for the past seven years and was of a very quiet and reserved disposition. The funeral service was held on Thursday morning, after which Mr. M. McMillan conveyed the remains to Sydenham, near Belleville, for interment.

JACK MORTON.

STIRLING, Dec. 15.—Sadness came to the hearts of nearly everybody in Stirling when it was known that little Jack Morton, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Morton, had passed away at Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday morning last. He was taken sick Monday morning and rushed to the hospital, where an operation was performed, but without avail. Nearly a year ago he was operated on for appendicitis and seemed to have recovered until this attack. The funeral service was held on Friday afternoon in St. Paul's United Church, Rev. Mr. Barrett being the preacher, assisted by Rev. B. F. Byers of St. John's Anglican Church and Rev. Mr. Simpson of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The teachers and pupils of the Public School respected the memory of the deceased lad by attending in a body, marching to the house and thence to the church, taking their place amongst the mourners.

The burial was in the family plot at Wellman's Corners. Deceased is mourned by an aged grandmother, his parents and two brothers and two sisters. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful, the casket being covered, besides those carried by ten of his schoolmates.

ELGIN SNIDER.

The death occurred in this city last night of Elgin Snider. Mr. Snider was born at Norham, and was predeceased by his wife on Monday last.

He leaves to mourn his loss one son, C. J. Snider, of this city, and two daughters, Mrs. O. Kidd of this city, and Mrs. William Dewart, Indian River.

The funeral will be held to-morrow at 2 oclock, from his late residence in Warsaw to the Warsaw cemetery ,with Rev. Mr. Harrington officiating.

MR. CHARLES GODFREY

OMEMEE, Dec. 15.—Friends of Mr. Charles Godfrey, a former resident of Omemee, will be sorry to hear of his death last week at his home in Preeceville, Sask. Deceased had served his apprenticeship in Dr. Thompsons drug store in Omemee in his early days. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and two children; also two sisters, Mrs. William Evans of Omemee and Miss Saran Godfrey of Peterborough, and two brothers, William Godfrey of Peterborough and Hamilton Godfrey of Toronto.

ANNIE MONCRIEF.

There pasesd away in this city last night Miss Annie Moncrief, of 46 Ware street. Miss Moncrief was born in the township of Cavan, and leaves to mourn her loss one brother, Henry of this city, two sisters, Mrs. McCarrol of Emily, and Mrs. Andrew Dunlop, of Cavan.

The funeral will be held Thursday at 2 o'clock from her late residence, 46 Ware street, to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Hughes officiating.

MR. JOHN MALONEY.

The sudden death of the late Mr. John Maloney took place at his family residence in Douro, on Saturday, December 11th.

Although the deceased had been in ill health for some time, his death came as a shock to his many friends and neighbors.

The late Mr. Maloney had passed his eightieth birthday and had still possessed the keenest faculties.

The deceased was the possessor of a kind and always bright and cheerful disposition, which had won for him a multitude of friends.

The high esteem in which the late Mr. Maloney was held by the community was shown by the largely attended funeral, which took place on Monday, December 13th, from the family residence to St. Joseph's church, Douro.

Requiem high mass was sung by his esteemed pastor, Rev. Father McGuire.

The pall bearers were John Hynes, Frank Hynes, George Charlton, Herbert Maloney and George and Michael Maloney.

GERMAN PRICES DOWN

NAUEN, Dec. 15.—The German wholesale food and living prices show a slight decrease for the past week, standing at an index of 129.7.

A Credenza for Christmas!

will bring all the most famous musicians and artists of the whole wide world to your own hearthstone

—where you can enjoy their unique talents really . . . wholly . . . fully. This isolated marvel among new musical instruments, . . . this prince even among Orthophonic Victrolas (made only by Victor, never forget) plays a delicate bird-note on the piping piccolo with the same true beauty as it booms forth the lowest growl of the bluff tuba. Every note from treble to bass is clearly distinguishable.

The full symphony ensemble startles you with its rich yet restrained depth.

"Bravo! Encore!" you cry. Certainly,—all the encores you wish,—no number too many for the illustrious Stokowski when he conducts his Philadelphia Orchestra from the sound chamber of the Credenza.

And what a wonderful sound chamber! Nothing else like it. Years of development in it. The musical surprise of the age. Exclusive, patented, made only by Victor on the principle of matched impedance or "smooth flow of sound".

You may still obtain a Credenza before Christmas from "His Master's Voice" dealers, on convenient terms. Other models, $115. to $430, as you choose.

GLARING HEADLIGHTS.

According to a Toronto dispatch, highway traffic officers have been given orders to check up on motorists who are violating the regulations in regard to glaring headlights.

While the matter is perhaps not so important locally as during the months when motoring traffic is at its heaviest, there will be many local drivers who will applaud the action of the authorities and hope that it will be pressed vigorously enough to chase the bright lights off the highways.

The manner in which the regulations covering these lights has been regarded has added greatly to accident hazards on the roads of Ontario, and probably no other one cause has been responsible for so many accidents.

Highway traffic officers could eliminate many of these glaring lights if the same attention were paid to this section of the act as is devoted to speeding, and it is to be hoped that the instructions reported to have been issued to the officials will have the desired effect.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

Press comment on the election of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux for the third time in succession as Speaker of the House of Commons indicates that public opinion throughout the country is prepared to accept a permanent speakership as preferable to the present method.

The majority of Canadian newspapers seem to favour the change, which is in line with the British practice, and has many advantages that readily suggest themselves.

The only objection that can be offered to a permanent speakership is the fact that in Canada there is the problem of two great races, and that this condition has been recognized since Confederation by the election in rotation of English-speaking and French-speaking presiding officers in order to ensure that both races should be certain of representation.

This is the point that was raised by Mr. Guthrie in the House the other day, and his objection on that account to the appointment of Hon. Mr. Lemieux has brought the question before the people.

It all hinges upon whether the continuous service of a good Speaker is to be preferred to a method that guarantees a fair representation to the two official races of Canada.

IS IT A HOPELESS TASK?

In several cities in which the annual municipal elections were held early in the month a special campaign was conducted by Chambers of Commerce and other organizations to arouse public interest in the matter of voting.

It cannot be said that the results showed these campaigns to be very markedly successful, the percentage of active voters in most cases being lamentably small.

The slogan, "Vote as you like but vote," was used as the keynote of the drive, but apparently it did not make the desired impression upon the electors.

From year to year as the date of the municipal election drew near The Examiner has endeavoured to stir up the people of Peterboro to make use of their ballots.

We have had the feeling that we have been butting up against a stone wall, so manifest is the indifference of many citizens to municipal affairs, and yet a newspaper that did not attempt to remedy a condition that obviously calls for discussion would be falling down on its job.

For that reason The Examiner again reminds its readers of the approaching municipal elections and emphasizes the desirability of citizens generally discharging their responsibility to the community by making use of their ballots.

BATHING ACCOMMODATION.

The swimming pool is given credit for the fact that for several years there has not been a drowning accident either in the lake or river at Brantford.

Undoubtedly the providing of safe bathing facilities has played a part in creating this good record.

The community that pays careful attention to furnishing its people with an opportunity to learn to swim under safe conditions is going to be rewarded by a smaller list of drowning accidents than the city that refuses to provide bathing facilities.

With a municipal election in the offing, the question of bathing accommodation in Peterboro should come to the fore.

It is apparent that next year's Council will have to deal with this matter, and the appropriations drawn up early in the year should contain an item covering the cost of further accommodation.

The facilities hitherto provided have been the source of much enjoyment to many citizens, but the fact that it became necessary because of the pollution of the water in the lake to close the Lake street beach before the season was over, suggests that a change in the programme may be needed next summer.

Aspirants for the Council should study the situation and have something to offer as to their attitude towards bathing accommodation.

SUBSIDIZING THE MARITIMES.

The most radical feature of the report of the Royal Commission on the Maritime Provinces is the recommendation of a 20 per cent. decrease in railway freight rates on all traffic originating and terminating within the Atlantic division of the Canadian National Railways (as far west as Levis, Que.), including export and import traffic by sea to and from that division. It asks that the same reduction apply to the Atlantic division portion of rates on traffic originating in that division but destined to points outside.

Such concessions would go perhaps the full way toward meeting long-continued Maritime complaints as to railway discrimination, complaints which have become intensified since the merging of the Intercolonial in the Canadian National system. The Commission recommends that the cost of the relief afforded by rate reduction be borne by the Dominion Government. If it is to be carried at all, it should not fall on the National Railways, now struggling to make both ends meet, but in either event the favor, which the Maritime people prefer to call a right, would be paid for by the rest of the country. It would be equivalent to a direct Federal subsidy. On this point the Commission says it has come definitely to the conclusion that the railway rate structure as it has been altered since 1912 has placed upon the trade and commerce of the Maritime Provinces a burden which it was never intended they should bear, and which is in very considerable measure responsible for the depression in those Provinces today. It does not appear how rates can be lowered on the National lines without a corresponding reduction on the C. P. R. in the same area. The Commission says the C. P. R. is entitled to equitable consideration if it finds itself prejudiced as the result of rate reductions. It is evident that the C. P. R. will file a claim if the proposal goes through.

Almost equally important from a national point of view are the Commission's recommendations on steel and coal. It advocates Dominion aid in establishing plants at Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Port Colborne and London for the coking of Cape Breton coal. It favors a bounty on steel when Canadian coal is used in its manufacture, to offset the present drawback of 99 per cent. of the duty on coal imported for metallurgical purposes. As to coal and steel duties, the Commission points out that these questions are before the Tariff Board, but it asks consideration of the requests for tariff revision on coal, anthracite coke, and primary iron and steel products. Obviously Ontario industrialists have a direct interest in such proposals.

A large part of the report is devoted to the argument for increased Federal subsidies to the Maritime Provinces. The Commission sympathizes with the desire of the Maritime people for the development of their ports, but contends that grain traffic alone will not build them up or do much for general business. Harbor commissions are advised for Halifax and St. John, the aim being to create a diversified traffic all the year round so as to reap the full advantage from trade treaties, the British preference, immigration and railway service.

One of the most significant passages of the report urges that steps be taken to negotiate a treaty with the United States so as to secure easier access to the markets of that country for pulp and for high-grade paper (newsprint already being duty-free), fresh fish and manufactured fish. The Yarmouth fishing fleet has greatly diminished since the present United States duties went into effect. As the Commission shows, Boston and New York are the nearest, largest and most natural markets for Maritime fishery products. The Commission, of course, does not remind the Maritimes that they voted against the reciprocity agreement of 1911, which would have given them these boons. It may now be impossible to get them.

Altogether the report is a document that should gratify the Provinces down by the sea. It assents to nearly all their demands in full. It also presents a problem to the Dominion Government and Parliament, for it frankly asks for special treatment and special favors for one section of the country. Representatives of the other Provinces will have to study these proposals with sympathy and unselfishness, bearing in mind that national unity can be maintained in a country so scattered and diverse as Canada only by bearing one another's burdens.—London Advertiser.

SPLENDID FARMING.

Reference was made recently in The Journal to the success of an Alberta farmer in winning, at the International Live Stock Show in Chicago, prizes for the production of the best wheat and oats in the world. It was remarked that Mr. Herman Trelle, the successful competitor, had been originally a civil engineer. He had no capital to start with, when he took up free land, 160 acres, in the Peace River country in 1911. Now he farms 480 acres. The Edmonton Journal says:

"The last Alberta winner of the wheat championship, Mr. H. G. L. Strange, was also an engineer before he embarked on farming. He was wholly new to farm life, as was Mr. J. C. Mitchell, the winner of the trophy on several occasions, prior to locating in Saskatchewan."

Successes of the kind show that education and brains count for as much in farming as in other things. But it is interesting to know also from Mr. Trelle that expert assistance made available by sensible government contributed much to his success—and, incidentally, the merit of the Peace River country. A correspondent of The Regina Leader who interviewed Mr. Trelle in Chicago writes:

"Asked what factors contributed to his success, Mr. Trelle replied, 'the Peace River country and its wonderful climatic conditions, together with pure seed, cultivated under rigid scientific conditions, with the assistance of advice of Government experts. Much credit for my success is DUE to L. H. NEWMAN, DOMINION CEREALIST, and to J. H. Reed, Superintendent of the Lacombe Experimental Farm. These men and the Provincial Field Crops Commissioner, W. F. Stevens and D. W. Albright of Beaver Lodge Experimental Farm, gave me the benefit of their experience, while Mr. Newman was my daddy in the grain growing business.'"

The gain to this country of our system of Experimental Farms, and of the able and attentive men who are connected with them can hardly be overestimated.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Last-minute shopping is never satisfactory. Get it done this week.

Mr. Guthrie doesn't like the report of the Imperial Conference. And as Acting Leader of the Opposition he couldn't be expected to do so.

Miss Agnes MacPhail says that Queen's Park is hopeless. Perhaps she means so far as a return of the Drury party to power is concerned.

Col. Biggar's suggestions in regard to the voters' lists are so sensible and business-like that we are afraid they'll not be adopted.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 14,000; strong; spots 10 to 15 cents higher; best Christmas yearlings $14.35; next highest price $13.75; bulk yearlings $10.50 to $11.10; best heavy steers $10.75; several loads scaling 1,500 to 1,575 pounds $9.50 to $10.00; most vealers to packers $10.00 to $11.00; outsiders $11.50 to $12.00.

Hogs 46,000; better grade hogs averaging 180 to 270 pounds late mostly $11.25 to $11.35; top $11.35; bulk desirable slaughter pigs $11.00 to $11.65; bulk packing sows $10.10 to $10.30; heavies downward to $10.00 or below.

Sheep 23,000; top fed westerns to small killers and shippers $13.35; top natives and packer top $13.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Wheat underwent a substantial downturn in value yesterday whereas corn closed virtually unchanged and oats scored a new high price record for the season. Favorable harvest weather in Argentina, together with cheapness of Argentine wheat offerings to Europe did a good deal to pull the wheat market down. Wheat quotations here finished 3-8 to 1c net lower; corn unchanged to 1-8c off; oats 1-8 to 3-8c up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 17 to 20 cents.

Corn prices were steadied by shipping sales to Indiana and Michigan. It was pointed out in this connection that Indianapolis corn prices are relatively higher from Chicago.

Oats derived their strength from active speculative buying. May and July oats both scored a new high prices record for the season.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Aside from a few odd loads of Canadian Western barley that was worked overnight by local exporters with Continental buyers yesterday, business in grain with foreign houses was again of a very limited character and the market was quiet. The trading in coarse grains on spot was also rather slow, but prices were unchanged.

A feature of the export trade was the further weakness that developed in the ocean freight market and rates to most United Kingdom parts were reduced another 6d. to 1s. per quarter which was attributed to the continued very limited demand for room and the more liberal offerings since the coal strike settlement. Room from West St. John and Portland for December loading to Glasgow, Leith and Avonmouth is offering at 4s. 6d. per quarter, and for January at 4s. per quarter, while rates to the Continent have declined 2 to 4 cents per hundred pounds to 18c to 20c per hundred pounds.

There was a moderate amount of business transacted in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour and prices were steady.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued unabated and values ruled firm. Standard grades of rolled oats continued in good demand and the undertone to the market was steady.

Prices for all fresh grades of fresh and storage eggs were well maintained under a good demand. The receipts were 567 cases.

Owing to the continued inactivity in the potato trade a weaker feeling has prevailed in the market and prices have been reduced. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.80 to $1.85 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.55 to $1.60 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, and Quebec White stock at $1.45 to $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk.

There was no change in the market for beans, prices ruled steady with a fair trade passing. Sales of car lots of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.75 per bushel, and smaller quantities at $3.00 per bushel.

The feature of the butter trade was the further strength and prices scored another advance of 1-4c per pound, which was attributed to the increased demand. The receipts were 443 packages.

The export trade in cheese was quiet, but the local demand was fair and a moderate amount of business was done at unchanged prices. The receipts were 464 boxes.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

SOWING SEEDS
By Dr. Frank Crane.

Mr. Edison in an interview states that it was The Youth's Companion and a dictionary of science that first fired his imagination and started him in scientific pursuits.

It is always a little difficult for a successful man to briefly state the secret of his success.

As a rule his success is no secret, but follows the well-known line of hard work, ability and opportunity.

This reminds us of the old story of the newspaper editor who said he was retiring on fifty thousand dollars. This sum he had accumulated by industry, hard work and integrity, and also by means of an uncle who had died and left him $49,999.00.

Soberly speaking, the element of luck enters largely into one's career. A man can plug along and do good, faithful work and never get his chance. Another man may have his chance and not do such good work. But these instances are probably scarce. Taking it by and large a man generally gets about what is coming to him. This is not invariably true, but it is a safe average statement.

Mr. Edison's remark about The Youth's Companion shows the influence of a certain kind of literature.

The Youth's Companion is an old publication, I think about a hundred years old now, and has always maintained a steady high level of instruction for the youth.

People are fond of talking down to children. This is a mistake. The best way to talk to children, as to women, is on the level.

The notes and articles and stories in The Youth's Companion have uniformly been clean and wholesome and by its success it has demonstrated the widom of sticking to this kind of literature.

It has never pandered to sensationalism and it may safely say now what Thomas Hood said when he was about to die, that it has never published a line that might do anybody any harm.

Literature for children in America exceeds that of a similar character in any other country. Children's books, stories and magazines abound here. St. Nicholas, The Youth's Companion and similar publications have been in many households for generations.

Some of our best writers have devoted their attention to writing for boys and girls.

The ideas presented to the children are of vast importance. Henry Ford was reported recently to have bought a McGuffy's Reader. The influence of McGuffy, an obscure school book editor, has been very great. Many men now in prominence and great productivity draw from a store of wisdom which was begun by seeds planted by McGuffy's Reader.

It is hard to exceed in importance the work of those who instil right ideas into the minds of youth without attempting at preaching, but merely by leading them to think upon the right themes.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Just to make myself clear re J. J. Duffus for the Senate. Let me say that Toronto is laying claim to the appointment by suggesting names for the same. One is the name of one Karnaghan, who it is said to have large interests in a brewery, and another is one by the name of McGuire, who is a lawyer; both of the same religious faith as the late Senator McHugh. Now this appointment belongs to Central Ontario and Peterboro. Now, J. J. Duffus is the most outstanding possibility. We don't expect McKenzie King to do anything but follow the practice that has been carried on since confederation by both parties.

Thanking you, I remain, yours etc.

MUCOUS COLITIS

One of the most common evidences of digestive trouble is when quantities of mucus are found in the stool. The mucous membranes of the intestines, of course, throw off mucous the same as any other mucous membranes, but when the intestines are irritated more than usual by toxic material, the intestines to protect themselves against this irritation pour out excess quantities of mucous.

The irritation present usually produces pain or distress through the lower abdomen, which will come and go according to the amount of irritating fecel material which presses on the tender, inflamed spots in the colon.

Some of these sore spots may break down into ulcers and develop pus. This cannot usually be seen in the stool, unless the ulcers are near the rectum, as the pus becomes mixed with the rest of the feces.

Mucous colitis is often mistaken for appendicitis or ovaritis (inflammation of the ovaries), and, of course, these other diseases may really exist in addition to the colitis, but in so many cases the irritation of the colon by poisons and the distension by gas cause all of the distress which is attributed to some other abdominal organ.

In the majority of cases, there is a complete sagging of all of the abdominal organs, and usually adhesions will be found to have bound down the colon, making the bowels still more sluggish and obstructed. The whole alimentary canal is sluggish and there is always a reduced amount of bile production. The stool will be occasionally quite light in color when the bile does not flow, and then in a day or two will become foamy and yellow, as it finally pours out into the intestines.

Colitis is not an acute disease, and cannot be cured quickly by any known method. The underlying cause, of course, is in faulty habits of eating, using improper food and particularly bad combinations of food; lack of exercise, which produces a general asthenia with a subnormal temperature, poor circulation and a general lack of muscular tone throughout the whole alimentary canal.

The cure, consequently, lies in raising the muscular tone of the entire abdomen, developing better peristalsis action of the colon and using the utmost care in selecting the proper food combinations.

While bad habits are being changed to good ones, it is a good plan to take a daily enema, using one quart of warm water to wash out the poisonous substances from the lower bowel, which will temporarily straighten out the kinks in the colon. The enema will offer immediate relief from the distressing symptoms, but you must expect it to take several months, and even a year or two to bring about a complete cure.

OF course, you have remarked the quick connection you are now getting on Long Distance calls. In the great majority of cases you get a Long Distance answer about as quickly as you would on a Local call.

This almost revolutionary speeding-up of Long Distance service has come about so quietly that you may have overlooked its vital significance. It has taken many months of preparation and organized effort to bring it about. In a few localities the changes necessary to effect this high-speed service have not been completed.

Your co-operation in giving the Operator the distant number will help, but whether you know the distant number or not, the Long Distance Operator will do her utmost to get the party you want while you hold the line.

CABLE RATE WAR MAY BE RESULT PROPOSED CUT

Substantial Cut in Rates Between Canada and Australia.

INCREASED CAPACITY.

Proposed New Rate Would Be Around 38 Cents Word.

LONDON, December 15. — A substantial cut in the cable rates between Great Britain and Australia and also between Canada and Australia, via the Pacific cable, was considered yesterday at a meeting of the Pacific cable board, but no final decision was reported, although it had been hoped that the reduced charges would be put in effect on New Year's day. The delay is due to the necessity of securing the formal assent of both the British and Australian governments.

The proposed reduction while applying between London and Australia would involve the proportionate reduction of the cost of transporting those messages across the Atlantic route. It was felt that this would eventuall mean the cutting of the ordinary Atlantic cable and wireless rates and would in all prabability lead to a rate war between the Imperial cable which is owned by the British government and independent companies.

Increased Capacity.

The greatly increased capacity of the new Pacific cable is given as the reason for the movement for reduced rates, because it is expected that under existing conditions there will soon be insufficient traffic to keep the new duplicate cable busy.

Meanwhile the success of the beam radio experiments is stimulating the cable people to preparedness for increased competition. The proposed reduction in Australian rates would involve at the beginning a loss of revenue amounting to about $28,000 yearly but it is believed that increased traffic would compensate for this.

New Rates.

The proposed new rates between Canada and Australia for ordinary and commercial messages would be 38c per wrd, instead of 50c per word, and 19c a word deferred rate instead of 25c.

The rate to New Zealand provides for a reduction of 6c per word in ordinary messages and 3c per word reduction on deferred rate messages. From the eastern states of America the rate would be 50c ordin and 25c deferred, thus allowing Canada to continue the existing preferential.

From England to Australia the rate was to be 50c instead of 62c per word ordinary rate and 25c deferred, instead of 31c.

WEST IN GRIP OF COLD SNAP

Manitoba Temperatures Fallen at Some Points To 35 Degrees.

BUSINESS DECREASES.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press). — With forecasts for continued cold weather to-day, Western Canada continued last night in the grip of the most sustained cold waves experienced for many years.

Manitoba temperatures had fallen last night at some points to 35 deg. below zero. Portage La Prairie and Brandon reported temperatures at that point, while at Winnipeg the thermometers registered 22 below. The fire departments of the western cities were hard pressed to cope with an epidemic of fires which have followed in the wake of the cold. Railway services were hampered. Business interests in the cities, which had been growing to the pre-Christmas peak, has taken a sharp fall. Telegraph wires in many sections have snapped, and communication with rural districts is hampered.

The total of deaths in the West as a result of the cold wave rose to three yesterday, and fears are expressed that this total will be raised when reports are received from country points, many of which are virtually isolated following the blizzard which inaugurated the cold wave in Saskatchewan and Alberta over the week-end.

Five prospectors are missing in the Red Lake mining district, and search parties are preparing to start out in an effort to locate them.

The men became lost in the blizzard which swept the district on Monday.

Shipping at the head of the lakes was reported held up by the cold, and a storm which was raging on Lake Superior.

MRS. A. CHRISTIE FOUND AT LAST

English Novelist Identified By Husband in Harrogate Hotel.

LOSS OF MEMORY.

LONDON, Dec. 15 (United Press) —The Evening Star yesterday said that Agatha Christie, the missing noveltist, for whom 15,000 persons searched the Sussex Downs, had been found.

"It has been definitely established," said the Star, "that Mrs. Christie was found at the Hydro Hotel, Harrogate, and Colonel Christie, her husband, identified her."

Mrs. Christie disappeared a week ago last Friday.

Mrs. Christie, who is the daughter of the late Frederick Miller of New York, was identified by her husband, Col. Archibald Christie, who came to Harrogate on the request of the police, who found Mrs. Christie at a hotel here.

Mrs. Christie left her home in Surrey on December 3 and her automobile was found abandoned on the Surrey Downs on the following Sunday. A wide search, which included the use of airplanes and caterpillar tractors, was conducted, every inch of the lonely Surrey Downs being combed by hundreds of men.

Garden Hill W.M.S. Gives Programme at Bailieboro.

BAILIEBORO, Dec. 15.—The members of the W.M.S. of the Garden Hill United Church brought their pageant, entitled, "Bearing the Saviour's Cross," to the evening service in the United Church here on Sunday.

The church was packed to capacity, many being present from the Garden Hill congregation.

The pageant was wonderfully well presented and illustrated very clearly the necessity of bearing the Saviour's cross willingly and bravely, whatever cross the Saviour should see fit to ask one to bear.

The music, sweetly rendered by the Garden Hill church, was also very much appreciated.

The offering was in aid of the local W.M.S. organization.

JAPANESE RULER POINT OF DEATH

Makes Hard Fight Against Pneumonia Which Developed on Saturday.

FED THROUGH TUBE.

TOKIO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—The Japanese nation is prepared to hear of the death of its Emperor Yoshihito. For days oxygen and heart stimulants have been used by the six physicians in attendance on the Emperor. He is being fed through a tube.

Yoshihito's temperaure has reached 104. His respiration is very rapid, and he fights against pneumonia which developed Saturday after weeks of bronchitis.

The Royal Family maintains continuous attendance at the bedside of the monarch, having joined the Empress Sadako, who had ministered to him devotedly for weeks. Only his second son, Prince Chichibu, is absent. He has been recalled from England.

The Emperor lies in his villa at Hayama, a seashore town some 40 miles from Tokio. Should he expire, his death might not be announced immediately. Several years ago the Empress Haruko died outside Tokio, and her death was not announced until her body had been taken to the palace at Tokio.

Crown Prince Hirohito, eldest son of the Emperor, is constantly with his father. Since November, 1921, he has been regent of Japan, having lifted the burdens of office from the Emperor, whose several years of illness had incapacitated him.

The Emperor was born August 31, 1879, and the Prince Regent on April 29, 1901.

Loulou Shows King Solomon of the Bench That She Knew Who Was the Owner o f Her

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 15.—Unable to decide who was the owner of the object under dispute, a big collie dog, which later proved to be named "Loulou," Judge Lacroix, in Police Court here yesterday, like King Solomon, put the case into the hands of the disputants. He did not order the dog's neck to be severed, however, but placed Albert Corbeil, who claimed he owned the dog, and that its name was "Loulou," on one side of the court-room, and Mrs. Alice Paquin, who charged Corbeil with theft of the canine, and who maintained that the collie's name was "Prince," on the opposite side. The dog was then led to the middle of the room and the judge ordered the two claimants to call the dog.

"Prince," Mrs. Paquin cried, and "Loulou," Corbeil shouted, both putting in their voice all the command, love and emphasis they could muster.

With two bounds the dog was across the room, barking and whining at the feet of the accused, Corbeil.

"That settles it," Judge Lacroix remarked, at the same time dismissing the charge of theft against Corbeil and ordering the rog be given in his care.

"You can take the dog home, can't you," the judge asked the now jubilant Corbeil.

"Oh, yes; he will drive in a taxi," answered the owner of "Loulou."

SCHOOL PUPILS GIVE FINE PLAY

Ambitious Programme Attempted at Owenbrook School.

HOSPITAL PLANS

OWENBROOK, Dec. 15. — An ambitious entertainment was essayed by the pupils of S. S. No. 5, Chandos, under the tuition of their teacher, Miss Clyta Sarginson, on Friday evening, when they presented the three-act play, "The Elopement of Ellen," in the school house to a crowded audience. Handicapped by the lack of stage facilities and scenery, the youngsters nevertheless gave a highly creditable performance, their memorization of the dialogue being practically perfect. A short programme was rendered between the acts, and the whole entertainment went off with a snappy vim, with no hitch or delay. The Rev. C. Spence filled the role of chairman and took the opportunity of explaining the Red Cross Outpost movement, and appealed for a liberal response to the canvass for funds when it reaches Owenbrook. The proceeds for the evening, which will be devoted to improved equipment for the school, amounted to over $17. The following was the cast: Mr. Ford, a devoted husband, Clifford Walke; Molly, his wife, Miss Clyta Sarginson; Rob, Molly's brother, Leslie Walke; Max Ten Eyck, Rob's friend, Jack Rosebush; Dorothy March, Max's fiancee, Miss Hilda Woodbeck; Mr. Hume, rector of St. Agnes, Kenneth Mace; June Haverhill, graduate '26, Miss Viola Prouty. Incidental programme: Chorus, the pupils; recitation, Morris Woodbeck; song, senior girls; wand drill, four pupils; recitation, Jack Rosebush; pantomime song, Ettie Winters; "O Canada," the school.

Hospital Advances.

The Advisory Board Committee elected at the public meeting held last week to discuss the Red Cross Nursing Outpost met on Tuesday evening last with all members present. The board decided to form themselves into the Apsley Red Cross Outpost Association, and the following officers were elected: President, Rev. C. A. C. Spence; Hon. Secretary, Rev. J. W. Ogden; Hon. Treasurer, Mrs. J. Downing. The members inspected the house recently built by Ben. Coones on Apsley hill and decided to purchase it for the nurses' residence and hospital for $1,200. The building was inspected by the Red Cross representative when on her visit here and she declared that it was eminently adaptable for the purpose. The question of securing a charter was discussed, but the matter was adjourned until next meeting when fuller information will be available. A canvass of the whole district to be served was organized. Rev. J. W. Ogden was allotted that part south of Apsley, Rev. C. Spence and Mrs. Downing East road and the Tucker line and Reeve Scott Clydesdale and Glenalda. The following additional subscriptions have been secured: Mrs. Robbins, New York, $10; Messrs. Anderson, Hemphill, Moore and Worton, of Duquesne, Pa., per George Kilborn, $16; George Stephens, $10; Miss Howlette, $10; Simon Windsor, $5; Alex Woods, $5; Archie Downing, $5; V. Windsor, $5; Roy Brown, $5; Sam Carr, $5; Philip Tanner, $5; W. and R. Hales, $5; Dan Whitmore, $5; Dave Tucker, $5; Robert Scott, $5; W. E. and J. McKay, $5; Dennis Hendley, $5; C. Tanner, $5; Robert Tanner, $5; Ed. F. Tanner, $3; Will McColl, $2; Mrs. Beggs, $1; Mrs. Patterson, $1. Total to date, $646.

WANT M'ARTHUR TO ASK NEW TERM

Friends of Cobourg Mayor Would Have Him Re-elected.

COBOURG, Dec. 15.—With municipal nominations only about a fortnight away, an effort is being made to have Mayor F. J. McArthur accept the honor for another year. The Council this year accomplished much good work, and gradually Cobourg is getting back its status as an industrial town. It is felt that it would be a nice thing for Mayor McArthur to remain in harness and help complete the good work.

"Was Soon Able To Sleep Well"

The usual experience of nerve-racked people who use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

When the nerves are starved and depleted you become restless, irritable and suffer from loss of sleep. The regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food soon lifts you out of this condition by supplying to the system the elements of Nature from which nerve force is created.

Mrs. H. N. Tardell, Harrowsmith, Ont. writes:—"My nerves were in a very bad state, and I did not know what it was to have a good night's rest. I could not eat, and never felt well. After taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a few days I was able to sleep well at night. My appetite also returned, and I felt stronger and better, and after taking three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was quite well."

BOARD RECEIVES REPORT ON SCHOOL

Norwood Trustees Hear Inspector's Findings—Routine Business.

NORWOOD Dec. 15.—The Norwood Board of Education met on Thursday evening with the following members present: F. Fry, chairman; T. Lumsden, J. F. Elliott, J. A. Stevens, Edgar Buck, J. F. Marks, I. H. Webster, J. A. Finlay, D. B. Cutcliffe.

The chairman reported the resignation of Miss D. E. Howes of the High school staff, on account of illness, and the subsequent engagement of Miss Twiss to fill the vacancy at a salary of $1,700.00 per annum.

Moved by Mr. Marks, seconded by Mr. Buck, that the action of the executive as reported by the chairman in the engagement of a teacher be approved. Carried.

A letter was read from Miss M. E. Carter of the Public school staff asking for leave of absence for the first six months of 1927 on account of ill health.

Moved by Mr. Marks, seconded by Mr. Webster, that Miss Carter be granted six months leave of absence and the Board advertise in the Register for a teacher to fill the vacancy for that time and that the said teacher be engaged by the executive. Carried.

The report of the Public School Inspector, R. Lees, was read on the work in the Public school and also on the teaching of Agriculture in the Public school.

The report of High School Inspector Levan was also read.

Both inspectors reported that favorable conditions prevailed.

Moved by Mr. Finlay seconded by Mr. Marks, that the reports of the two inspectors be received and that the Property and Supply Committees look into recommendations made by Inspectors. Carried.

Accounts.

BUILDING CROWDED AT SCHOOL CONCERT

Good Programme Put on at Stone School at Wooler.

WOOLER, Dec. 15. — The old stone school house, which has a record of always being packed, was no exception on Wednesday night when Rev. H. B. Neal, chairman, called for the first number of the programme, a chorus by the school children. There followed a recitation, Lucille Sharpe; duett, vocal, Lucille Waite and Ada Whitney; monologue, Eva Masters; solo, Laura Vosburg; darky quartette, Marie and Mabel Forbes, Gwendoline Elford and Elsie Irvine; recitation, Lucille Waite; vocal duett, Lucille Waite and Lucille Sharpe; an address by Julia Spencer; a few remarks by the school teacher, Mr. Dudley. At this period Percy Gooding took charge of the social part of the programme.

Mrs. Clarinda Terrill, a lady past her seventy-seventh birthday anniversary, composed three stanzas and a chorus and sang them to the tune of "Home Sweet Home." Her voice was sweet and clear and as strong as the younger class.

A real enjoyable evening is derived from a box social. The different artistic minds are developed in planning the shape, color and decoration, making a wonderful collection, such as boxes square and deep with bright shades of crepe paper, ribbons and tinsels, heart shape in one color only, baskets with strong handles, baskets in shapes of hats, barrels and crescent, trimmed in artificial flowers and every shade of the rainbow. Then there are the large flat boxes beautifully decorated and attractive. These are placed on a table ready for the auctioneer, and Percy Gooding soon aroused an enthusiasm among the young men, and these young men were willing, and did pay, from twenty-five cents up to three dollars a box. Then opening the box to find the lady's name who prepared the lunch and eating it with her, was the real feature of the evening.

SAYS THAT EQUALITY, ETC.

back from participation in the country's development.

The Senator trusted that some solution would be found for the peculiar problems of the Maritime Provinces. He hoped that the Duncan Commission's report could be used to build upon a new foundation. He wondered why the Maritimes did not concentrate, in agriculture, at any rate, upon the raising of the products like livestock and dairy products, that found such a ready demand in the British market.

Senator Turgeon stated that Canada was now prosperous as evidenced by official reports from high authorities. Another evidence of our continuous prosperity is the increase in immigration.

Ralway statigtics point to a new era of prosperity and for the first time since its inception the Canadian National Railways will this year pay all its obligations wthout askng a contribution from the Treasury.

Senator Turgeon spoke at length on the Duncan report, which he approved entirely. He hoped the Government would take measures at this present session to remedy the uneasiness in the Maritimes.

The appointment of an ambassador in Washington will be a contribution as to a greater harmony between Canada and the great Republic to the South, Senator Turgeon said, adding that he wished success to Hon. Vincent Massey in the diplomatic field.

Concluding his remarks Senator Turgeon stated that the Imperial Conference was a great success as it will lay the basis of better relations between the Dominions and the Mother Country.

Hon. W. B. Ross, in speaking of the Imperial Conference, said: "I don't believe the conference changed conditions in the slightest degree in our relations to the Mother Country and the sister Dominions." It will be found, he said, that when conditions required action the same spirit of Empire would arise as did in 1914. Canada's status was different from what it was in 1914 ,and this was due to the sacrifice Canadian soldiers had made in France. He believed that no matter what theories might be propounded as to the Dominion's status in the Empire there must be one Government having the final say.

Senator Ross hoped the Government would redeem its pledge by implementing with legislation the recommendations of the Duncan report.

Senator Casgrain said he intervened in the debate to urge upon the Government to at once take action through its ambassador at Washington to secure redress for the harm done Canada through the diversion of water by the Chicago canal.

Senator Dandurand referred to the statement of Senator Ross, that all the powers in the declaration of the Imperial Conference had previously been enjoyed by us. He felt this might be true and was recognized within the Empire, but not not recognized without the Empire, and therefore the definite declaration of Canada's status of equality was timely and necessary.

Woman's Happiness

Rests largely on solving their oldest hygienic problem this new way

TO be fresh and charming every day, to live every day unhandicapped, to wear sheerest frocks without a second thought, any day, anywhere . . . you can now do all a new way.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! Deodorizes, too. And thus ends ALL fear of offending.

As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying, "KOTEX"; you ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. 8 in 10 better class women employ it. Proves the folly of old ways.

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 15.—The Sunday School Christmas tree and entertainment is to be held Thursday night, Dec. 23, at the church.

The Public School annual Christmas tree and concert, under Miss Blakley's instruction, takes place Monday night, Dec. 20, at the school. The programme will be varied, consisting of choruses, drills, dialogues, organ instrumentals by some of the younger pupils and recitations.

Mr. Jud Davidson has returned and opened up the blacksmith shop again.

Mrs. E. Wilkinson and Miss Margaret left for Toronto on Tuesday to visit relatives.

Wondered Why Breath Was So Bad

Brooklyn Miss Rose Dittmar writes:—"Even though I brushed my teeth and used a mouth wash, my friends turned away when I talked and I wondered why my breath was so offensive, while people less careful were not troubled. After taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for a while the trouble started to disappear. I also noticed my face had better color and was clearer, my eyes brighter, my appetite more hearty and I had no constipation." Bad breath must be reached at the source of the trouble. MARMORA CHURCHES

Splendid Sermons Given at United and Anglican Services.

MARMORA, Dec. 15.—A large congregation assembled at the United church on Sunday evening on the occasion of the return visit of Rev. C. J. Beckley of Hudson Heights The reverend gentleman delivered an eloquent discourse taking of the parable of the Prodigal Son which he said some had named "The Parable of the Elder Brother" and asking his hearers to think of it under a third title as "The Parable of the Loving Father."

"What should be our thoughts concerning God?" he enquired. Sincere postulates a first cause. Human hearts of men crave for God and because they find God in some sense or other it does not necessarily mean that they have the Christian concept of God. Having spoken of plagues, fate and other things being regarded by sections of humanity as Gods, the preacher mentioned that the God of the Jews was a fearsome creature, just yet terrible. "The one thing that marks Christianity above all other religions is its concept of God," he continued. "The Christian concept of God is that He is a spirit. What is a spirit? Let us go back to Genesis. God formed man of the dust of the earth and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul. When we came to that melancholy day as we are laying the body of a loved one to rest there is something within us which refuses to believe that we are laying that one to rest. We say "Absent from the body" and mean that the spirit has left that person. Isn't it another name for spirit life or self? Self is that which thinks and knows, desires and wills, rejoices and sorrows. Man is a rudimentary soul, a soul in the making, never completed in this life. In God we find that power which is perfect. God cannot do everything. He cannot make two and two to be five for He cannot do impossibilities. God knows the sin I purpose to do and brings all the resources of Heaven to bear upon me but if I use my free will against Him He is powerless to change the effect." Man's knowledge of God is too limited for man to pass any valued judgment upon God. Christ is the express image of the living God. God sent forth His Son to teach us what God is like. He taught with a wisdom not of earth. He healed the sick in wondrous manner. He made His way to Calvary with His eyes open and all this He did for the explanation of the will of God and the salvation of men. He drew the untouchable unto His thereby.

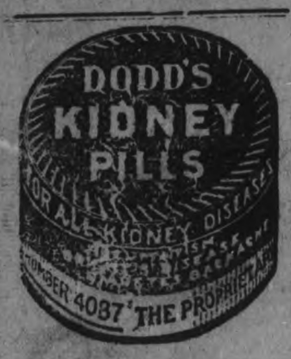
Proceeding the Rev. Mr. Beckley said, "Those who are fathers in the flesh can best understand God in His Fatherhood." He here explained that there was much in the Divine saying "It is not meant that men should live alone." Out on the prairies, he, the preacher, had lived where 75 per cent were bachelors and he had noticed many a man wind himself into a self circle. With marriage and fatherhood such began to live for others. We should realize that God as our Father lives for us and not our good. Children will not always be what their parents cherish in their hearts for them. As the earthly parent treasures and regards the broken incomplete sentences of the child, so will our prayers, if sincere, be listened to by our Father above. What is our attitude to God? Should it not be one of trustful obedience?

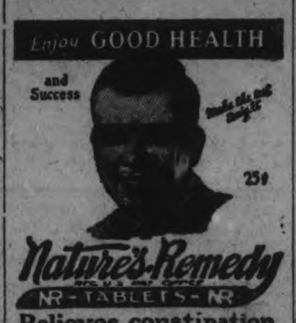
The choir rendered the anthem "O How Amiable Are Thy Dwellings", Mrs E. C. Prentice being soloist.

AT ST. PAUL'S.

Canon F. W. Armstrong of Trenton made his final visit as Locum tenens to the Anglican parish of Marmora on Sundays preaching at its three appointments in turn. There have been splendid congregations for the Sundays the revered Canon has been in charge of the services and Sunday morning at St. Paul's proved no exception. Mentioning the matter of the new rector's arrival in the course of this week, the speaker appealed for loyal co-operation with him on the part of all the city.

Canon Armstrong gave one of the best of his timely sermons on the text "with whom there is no variableness neither shadow of turning" contrasting the changeableness of the scenes and occupants of earth with the unchanging character of their Creator.





CANADIANS SCORE MUSICAL TRIUMPH

Three Young Artists Acclaimed by Rochester Musicians.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Dec. 15.—(By Canadian Press)—Three young Canadian arists scored pronounced individual successes last week singing leading roles with the Rochester Opera Company in its performances of the Leoncavallo opera, "Pagliacci." They are Ethel Codd of Vancouver, Reginald Hallilay of Winnipeg and Allan Burt of Toronto. Miss Codd sang the principal soprano role of Nedda; Mr. Hallily the featured baritone part of Tonio and Mr. Burt the role of Silvio. Vladimir Rosing, well known throughout Canada through his concert tours directed the performances with Eugene Goossens, the famous British Composer-conductor conducting.

All three were enthusiastically praised by the Rochester critics. Writing in the Rochester Times-Union of Miss Codd's performance A. J. Warner said: "Her voice showed itself to be an organ of dramatic and brilliant quality which is used with intelligence and musical feeling. Miss Codd sang with variety and beauty of tone and gave a performance that was marked by compelling histrionic beauty and lyric charm."

"Reginald Hallily" wrote S. B. Sabin in the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, "gave an admirable performance of Tonio; of course he can sing the role splendidly and he plays it, too, which helps greatly in its dramatic value. Allan Burt's Silvio is good enough for any 'Pagliacci' cast."

Miss Codd is now rehearsing the role of Micaela in "Carmen" which she will sing at Rochester Feb. 7, with Mary Garden in the title role.

PLAY AND CONCERT AT CAMPBELLFORD

St. Andrew's Young People Give Good Programme in Hall.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 15.—The young people of St. Andrew's church gave their entertainment on Friday evening in the Sunday school room. A very large crowd was in attendance and an excellent programme was given. "The Trouadour" entertained the audience before the entertainment and during recesses and are excellent musicians.

Rev. Mr. Grier, pastor, before opening the programme spoke a few words of welcome on behalf of himself and the Society.

The first number on the programme was an instrumental selection, guitars, by Misses Grace and Bertha Blue, followed by an encore. Mr. John Brown, whose musical numbers are ever a treat to his audiences, gave two very fine violin solos, accompanied by Mr. Arthur Collison, piano.

Miss Lillian Hay then brought a number of talented artists to the stage, the first being two Spanish ladies in costume. This was taken by Miss Mable Fry and Miss Bertha Blue, who sang "Juanita." Miss Hay next introduced Mrs McPherson from Edinburgh (Miss M. Storie) who sang "Annie Laurie." The next famous singer was Brother Jackson from Tennessee (Jim Dickson) who sang "Old Black Joe." Mr. Jack Storie then appeared as Ike, the Jew, singing "My Name is Solomon Levi."

Mr. L. J. Elliott then favored the audience with several jokey sayings after which he gave a monologue "The Bridge of Sighs" followed by an encore, an Italian drama, "La Rosa". These were highly received. Mr. Elliott, although a new resident of town, is rapidly becoming a favorite for his ready ability and help at all time. The Troubadours then played another selection after which came the play "Squaring it with the boss." This was wonderfully portrayed, each artist acting his part in a fine manner. The play centres around a young married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Greening (Miss Freda Nelson and Mr. Earl Stephens) who each had an old maiden aunt who were the bane of their lives. Aunt Hortense (Miss Hazel Atkinson) whose speciality was cats and Aunt Clarissa (Miss Mary Watson) who had a beloved parrot, Jerusha. These old maids were bitter enemies since their youth because they both fell in love with the same man, Cornelius Dunn. Jimmie Greening had received a raise in pay from his employer, Mr. Dunn, on pretext of raising a baby. Jimmie borrowed a neighbor's boy, Johnny Bender (Jack Brown) on the promise of theatre and baseball trips if he would lie in the cradle when the employer came to call. About the time Mr. Dunn (Dr. O. C. Watson) came to call on the Greenings, Aunt Hortense and Aunt Clarissa also came to stay and found their old love, Mr. Dunn, who was Jimmie's employer. Aunt Hortense's cat killed Aunt Clarrissa's parrot and Jimmie then killed the cat. The old ladies were very wrath until Mr. Dunn, who had been left a legacy by an aunt gave them the parrots and cats and so ended the quarrel. Mr. Dunn had forgotten that Jimmie said they had a baby at the house so everything turned out like a fairy tale and Jimmie said, "I swear, no more lying for me, never again."

Mr. Grier expressed the Society's indebtedness to the artists of the evening, also to the audience and he felt sure that everyone had enjoyed the entertainment.

The Society realized over $100 for their efforts.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

On Thursday noon Cherry made a flying trip home, arriving in a taxi piled high with bundles. With an imperious wave of her hand, as if taxis were the most ordinary convenience in a pampered life, she bade the driver wait after he had lugged parcels into the living room.

"Yoohoo, Fiath! S'prise!" she called out gaily, as serene as if she had not narrowly sidestepped disgrace the night before. "Hello, Muggy, darling! Feeling better? I brought you a bag of the most marvelous black figs! Just look Faith—" she began to tug at the cords of the bundles. "Cretonne! Yards and yards of it! The furniture and the curtains look so absolutely hopeless against this gorgeous new wall paper, that I simply couldn't stand it. Like it?" she caught up a fold of the cretonne and displayed it like an expert salesman.

Against an ivory white background, jungle foliage, brilliant plumaged parrots and exotic flowers rioted in a blaze of color.

"Won't slip covers for the davenport made out of this gorgeous stuff simply transform it?" she went on breathlessly, as if she did not see the cloud that had settled on Faith'stired face. "And we can cover the cushion of the old wicker chair with it and make new curtains—"

"You don't mean we," Faith interrupted with quiet bitterness. "You mean I can. You must think I'm made of iron or steel, with ten pairs of hands, Cherry."

"Get Aunt Hattie to help you," Cherry suggested airily. "Just four pairs of curtains—for living room and dining room—and the slip covers and cushions. You can just run them right up on the machine. And oh, look, I bought some cans of paint and lacquer. That old wicker chair is too horrible for words. Dad or Junior can give it a coat of this black lacquer paint and trim it with red. Won't that be stunning? And here's an unfinished side table with a book trough that you can paint with the black and red lacquer. We can put my Tennyson and your two volume Shakespeare—I think leather-bound books look swell in a living room, don't you—and that set of Michael Arlen that Bill Warren gave me for Christmas. Books make a room look so—so highbrow, don't you think?"

She cocked a bright, untroubled topaz eye at Faith's frowning face as she shucked the brown paper wrapping from the cheap piece of white pine furniture. "Junior or Dad can paint this, if you haven't time, darling. I do want everything to look spiffy for tomorrow night. Please be a good sport and help me, Faith."

"What's all this about, Friday night?" Mrs. Lane demanded, testing the quality of the cretonne between wetted forefinger and thumb.

"S'prise!" Cherry patted her mother's hand. "And Faith, if you have time, darling, you might wash and iron the collars and cuffs on Muggy's blue foulard. She's got to be all dressed up for Cherry's surprise party! Gotta go now, darlings. Please be nice, Faith!" she flung her arms about her sister's stiff, unyielding form and planted a swift butterfly kiss on her stern-set mouth.

When she had gone, Faith threw herself upon the shabby old davenport, with its worn red velvet cushions, and began to weep stormily.

"Now, what in the world's the matter with you?" her mother demanded, coming to bend over her. "You use the parlor as much as Cherry—or nearly as much, if you've got to jerk me up on everything I say—and I should think you'd be glad she spends her hard-earned money to fix it up. Not a word of thanks out of you—just stood there, lookin' like you could bite nails in two, and if looks could kill—well, the poor little thing, tryin' so hard to make a good showin' with her friends, would be layin' stark and cold at your feet right now."

"But, Mother," Faith sat up suddenly and dabbed angrily at her eyes. "She brings in enough work to keep me busy for a week, with all the housework and everything to do, and expects me to have it all done by tomorrow night! And me right in the middle of a week's ironing! And I'd promised Joy I'd go to the mothers' meeting at her school tomorrow. Miss Spencer sent me a special invitation—"

"Well, it ain't goin' to mend matters any for you to whine around about it," her mother told her sternly. "Go right now and phone your Aunt Hattie to come over and help you. If I could peddle a machine I wouldn't let you touch them drapes and slip covers—"

"I know you can't run the machine, Mother," Faith rose, tried to smile. "I'l do the best I can. It's just that—I've worked so hard lately, there's been so terribly much happening—I'm sorry, Mother, I was cross."

Mrs. Lane's stern face softened, like dark ice breaking in a spring thaw. "You're a good girl, Faith. Me—sick and all—you got a right to complain—"

"No, Mother, no!" Faith, touched to the heart by this rare burst of affection and appreciation from her mother, flung her arms about the massive body, laid her head against the vast breast.

"Don't carry on, now," her mother told her gruffly, to hide her unwonted emotion. "You get the slip covers cut and I'll stitch them up by hand. Hattie can hem the drapes and valances on the machine. 'Twon't be such a job, if we all pitch in, and Cherry'll be real pleased—"

Because her heart had been made incredibly light by her mother's shy, awkward kiss on her cheek, Faith's body seemed electrified with energy. Aunt Hattie arrived, scolding but actually pleased at being needed, and "pitched in" with a will, gossiping and snipping and basting and treadling with indefatigable vigor at the old "drop head" sewing machine.

Mrs. Lane took great pride in the smallness and evenness of the stitches she put into the slip covers for the dusty old davenport, and personally with much groaning, supervised their installation. That night, while Cherry danced somewhere, as usual, "Long" Lane, with many flourishes, and an endless monologue on just how expert interior decorating should be done, painted the old wicker chair until it gleamed a lustrous black, trimming it artistically with the vermilion red lacquer.

to paying her sister board, she said she gave her sister all she was able and that in this case she had made no agreement with her sister for nursing her.

Mr. Hall tried to ascertain the position of the Tangney car at the time when the two cars met, but the witness said she only saw the car once, and that she never saw Dr. Howson's car.

Mr. Hall—Did you hear the collision that took place?

Witness—I guess I did.

Mr. Hall—What did you do?

Witness—The car was upon us before we had time to save ourselves.

Dr. McPherson was the next witness, and he said that he had examined the plaintiff on December 8th, 1926, and in his opinion her nervous condition was not very serious. He examined the ankle and found considerable swelling which is to be expected after fracture, but he thought the results very good from such an injury. Her movement was fairly good but slightly impaired. He would judge that there would be some lack of control especially on the inner side. In the doctor's opinion there would be a certain amount of aching but no severe pain.

Mr. Hall, in cross-examination, wanted to know if the witness had made an X-ray examination of the fracture which he had not.

Miss Maybee.

Miss Maybee said she was accompanyihg Miss Cooper on the night of the accident, and when it occurred they were standing on McDonnel Street, a little east of George Stret, and without giving any warning, she was struck in the back and knocked on the ground and dragged 10 or 15 feet. She was unable to say which side of the street the Tangney car was approaching on.

Dr. Holloway.

The witness was walking north along George Street, and when he came in front of the Library he heard a crash but was unable to see the cars. When he reached the corner he saw one car on top of the flower bed of the George Street United Church and the other car near the curb. Herbert Rush, who was with Dr. Holloway at the time, corroborated the doctor's statements.

The Defence.

William Watson, a resident of Lakefield, was the first witness called by Mr. Gordon. Mr. Watson was in the Tangney car at the time of the accident, as Mr. Tangney was driving he and his wife from the C.N.R. Station. Mr. Watson said the car in which he was in approached the corner very slowly, and the driver blew the horn three times. As they crossed the street car tracks they were struck by another car, and the impact was strong enough to drive them up on the sidewalk and onto the church lawn.

In the cross-examination by Mr. Hall, the witness said he was sitting on the right hand side of the car, and he would judge their car was going five or six miles an hour, while the other he estimated to be going 25 or 30 miles an hour. After the accident the witness got out of the car and pulled Miss Cooper from underneath the rear axle.

Mrs. Watson.

The witness said she did not notice any lights on the approaching car and that it was coming fast. On being examined by Mr. Hall, she said it was a wet night, but that she had not a very distinct recollection of what happened.

Patrick J. Tangney.

Mr. Tangney, one of the defendants, said he was a taxi driver and on the night of the accident was taking Mr. and Mrs. Watson to the home of their daughter on Water Street. He drove a Ford sedan. As he came along McDonnel he noticed a car approaching from below Murray Street, and when above Murray Street he noticed it again, and then about 15 or 20 feet away he saw the lights shining on the side of his car. When the cars came together the back wheels of his car had just crossed the street railway rail. The impact knocked his feet off the pedals and shifted his body so as he lost control of his car. He was unable to do anything to prevent the accident, and he would judge the other car was travelling 40 or 50 miles an hour.

In the cross-examination Mr. Hall wanted to know if the witness meant to tell him that a car going that speed and striking another car, the second car would not be smashed to pieces. Mr. Tangney said he had about 25 feet to go when the other car had about 250 feet, and he travelled in low gear. The repairing of his car cost $13, and no windows were broken. Asked why he did not give Dr. Howson the right-of-way, he said there was no car there at the time to give it right-of-way.

The twelve jurymen are: George Davis, W. H. Gilgour, James Curtis, Robert Leack, James Wilson, Carl Copping, Philip Fitzpatrick, Frank Darling, W. H. Fife, George Foy, Charles Hewitt and W. H. Cunningham.

LITERARY SOCIETY

Good Programme Given at Meeting at Norwood.

NORWOOD, Dec. 15.—The Norwood High School Literary Society held its first meeting for the winter season on Friday, December 3. Principal Lawlor officially handed over the meeting to the president, Keefe McLaughlin and the meeting opened by singing, "The Maple Leaf Forever"

Following short addresses by the president and the vice president, John Brackenridge a report of the Finance Committee was given by the convenor, Ford Stinson, for the 'At Home' held in November. The report showed a balance after all accounts were paid.

Wilson Riseborough played an instrumental, "Berceuse" after which Ruth Harper gave a paper entitled "How to Look at Pictures". This paper was very helpful to the students in view of the fact that the Society were having the Elson Art exhibit shown in High school on Thursday and Friday, December 9 and 10. A humorous recitation entitled "Bachelor's Hall" given by Una Elliott closed the program and the critic, Miss Swiss, B.A., gave her report.

CHINESE LEAVES $300,000

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 15.—An estate of $300,000 was left by Fong Toog, Chinese capitalist of this city, who died recently in San Francisco. The estate is bequeathed to the widow and five children, three daughters not being mentioned in the will because of the Chinese custom of leaving all to the sons.

FINAL PROGRAMME BY FRANCIS SUTTON

Organist Leaving Murray Street Gave Recital on Sunday.

Mr. Francis Sutton, organist and choir leader of Murray Street Baptist Church, completed his work on Sunday evening. During his all too short period of service he has shown himself a competent and most successful musician. The choir of Murray Street now numbers over forty and the attendance has been uniformly good.

Dr. Rose read the following resolution at the Sunday evening service, which had been passed unanimously at a previous meeting:

"Resolved, that we, the people of Murray Street Church, express our appreciation of the excellent work done by Mr. Francis Sutton during the time that he has been in charge of the musical department of the church; for his agreeable and helpful manner in the work connected with the choir itself, and for his self-sacrificing efforts in connection with the work among the young people of the church, the good results of which we will be reaping for many years to come.

Mr. Sutton gave the following organ recital at the close of the regular service.

Prelude and Fugue in F Min. (Bach).

"Gesu Bambino," the Christ Child (Yon)—An Italian Christmas song.

"Evening Chimnes" (Wheeldon).

First Movement of Sonata No. 6 (Mendelssohn)—A fantasy on the Lutheran choral, "Our Father Which Art in Heaven."

"Christmas in Sicily" (Yon).

"Swing Low, Sweet Christ" (Arranged by Lemaine).

"Grand Choeur" (Grey).

YOUR HOME AND YOU

In some households lemons are never to be found to save on those rare occasions when some one or other has been definitely asked to afternoon tea and the preparations have been made. If some one just happened in at four or there-abouts and tea is served in impromptu fashion, then the guests have to take it clear or with cream.

Now, honestly, every household would be better off if lemons were a staple in the pantry. It is merely a matter of habit. With our recent increased knowledge of the vitamins, we are beginning to realize why lemons have proved for centuries such a valuable preventive of scurvy. They are as rich in important vitamins as oranges, which we consider an almost daily necessity with young children.

PICKLED CAULIFLOWER

Two cauliflowers, cut up; one pint of small onions, three medium-sized red peppers. Dissolve half a pint of salt in water enough to cover the vegetables, and let these stand over night. In the morning drain them. Heat two quarts of vinegar with four tablespoons of mustard, until it boils. Add the vegetables, and boil for about fifteen minutes, or until a fork can be thrust through the cauliflower.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1926

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

Uranus in benefic aspect dominates this day, according to astrology. Mercury, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn are all adverse.

It is a day in which to be exceedingly cautious about whatever savors of speculation.

Stocks and bonds are subject to sudden and sharp variations in value, astrologers forecast.

Under this sway whatever pertains to the spiritual and mental benefits, while material interests suffer.

There is to be a tremendous religious awakening, owing to world conditions that turn the mind away from frivolities.

The holiday season is to be extraordinarily gay and the stars indicating prodigal spending, especially for feasts and entertainments.

This is not an auspicious rule under which to take stock of the year's accomplishments, as the sway tends to disappointment and even discouragement.

There may be at the beginning of the year a period of unusual inactivity in business, but this is but a pause before big undertakings that mean prosperity.

Today the aspects indicate a cessation of building in various places owing to uncertainty, regarding land values.

While the rule prevails persons who have won success may be subject to much envy and the objects of unfair treatment.

Discontent in industry and misunderstandings between labor and capital are presaged by the stars.

Again an extraordinary volume of winter travel is foretold and it will greatly benefit steamship lines as well as railways.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of remarkable good fortune in the coming year, which will be a time for the realization of ambitions.

Children born on this day probably will enjoy life to the fullest. These subjects of Sagittarius are usually cheerful, generous and prosperous.

FOOD AND HEALTH

"WITH THE MEAL OR AS A MEAL"

(By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.)

The national advertiser who points out that his soup "with the meal or as a meal belongs in the daily diet" si touching upon one of the most interesting points of dietetics! In this instance the dish in question is soup but there are others which fall in this category, dishes so "hearty" in character as to furnish the introduction to a "real meal" or the "main dish" of a light one.

The reason why it is important for the home dietitian to understand fully about this matter is because she may otherwise crowd too many "hearty" dishes into one meal. Since it was a soup advertisement that furnished my text, I suppose it is a matter of noblesse oblige to begin by discussing soup!

Even a few sips of piping hot liquid at the beginning of the meal sets the digestive fluids stirring in their haunts! Light soups are valuable chiflv for this tonic effect. Heavy or rather thick soups on the other hand are real food in themselves. Made usually with a cream sauce as the basis and combined with vegetable pupl, a bowl of such soup provides body building material, vitamins and mineral salts in appreciable quantities. And that is the very point I am striving to make. The wise housekeeper is the one who lets the hearty soup wait until luncheon or supper, serving it "as a meal" instead of "with the meal." Otherwise said meal will be all out of balance!

Milk is another outstanding example of this type of food. With the meal, milk may easily overburden the digestive system, as a meal it can hardly be rivaled!

There is then the entire philosophy of food combinations involved in this one simple statement. Something besides instinct dictates the serving of a green salad instead of one made from eggs or chicken, when the soup has been thick, the main course one of meat or fish and the dessert is announced as pie!

Speaking of pie, it too should be made to take its proper place in this diet scheme. With an over-hearty meal pie may cause indigestion, as a meal, that is, as one of the main dishes, where the middle course has been, let us say, a light salad, or a sandwich, pie may supply valuable and needed food elements.

Of course, all this is merely another way of setting forth the possibilities of the "popular one-dish meals." Popular, that is, with the housewife who wishes to save labor. And, as I am incorrigibly concerned chiefly with the nutrition aspect of any food question, remember that when you serve a one-dish meal, composed of a number of different foods, the dish is for the adult and vigorous members of the family, not for the children and weaklings!

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

THE RIGHT WAY TO SAY IT

By Alma Whitaker.

Every so often I am called to order in this column for imperfect grammar and sentence construction. One gentleman this week makes the flat statement that:

"There are accepted rules for grammar, punctuation, pronunciation and spelling and no one who is not informed upon them should dare to write for publication."

Fortunate man if he has decided al these matters satisfactorily for himself. But alas, we find even the highest authorities disagree on many points—and even dear Shakespeare can often be cited as a precedent for phrasing and spelling that a Princeton professor would consider wrong today. And few English compositions could get by in college on Shakespeare's punctuation.

The British Broadcasting Company has been having a dreadful time about pronunciation. They decided that their announcers must use a uniform system of pronunciation and published in the newspapers the way in which certain words would hereafter be pronounced over the radio by their announcers.

Here is one list they decided upon:

Congratulatory	Congratulaytory.
Indisputably	Indisputably.
Indissolubly	Indissolubly.
Inextricably	Inextricably.
Vagary	Vagay-ry.
Quandary	Quandary.
Piano	Pianno.
Soldier	Sole-jer.
Finis	Fie-nis.
Opus	O-pus.
Project	Project.
Precedent	Pressedent.
Unprecedented	Unpressedented.
Via	Vie-a.

And then their troubles began. Authorities started writing in them from all quarters. They were submerged in letters disputing their decision in the matter and offering mountains of references to endorse their claims. Some of these letters were published, which brought forth furious defense for the chosen pronunciation, if they did not prove both pronunciations wrong and suggest a third.

So now the company is meekly expostulating that it does not claim its selection of the way words should be pronounced is the correct way, but they are going to adopt it anyway, so that all announcers shall say 'em the same way.

Here in America we often pronounce words very differently from what is customary in England, and we often use words in a different sense altogether. We certainly have a brand of punctuation all our own, and what would pass for good grammar with us would probably make an Oxford professor have a stroke of apoplexy. But we have our "Better English" weeks, which the clubwomen are fostering. Nothing, positively nothing, is more dangerous for a speaker to make an address at a "Better English" meeting. The poor things know this and usually speak with frightful caution. But even so, someone in the audience is sure to sniff sarcastically and point out some painful error of speech afterwards.

We can only hope that spelling, punctuation, pronunciation and grammar will be ultimately accorded the same latitude as religion. In a general way we concede that a Presbyterian, a Methodist, an Episcopalian, a Catholic or any other form of Christian stands as good a chance of getting to Heaven as each other, even when we do maintain that their brand is inferior to our own. So may be if we just struggle along and earnestly do our best in script and diction we shall be forgiven. Otherwise—ahem—it is going pretty hard with some of us.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The Ruby is today's talismanic stone, and its natal stone as well. Consequently, it exerts great influence on its wearer, if the ancients are to be believed. They claimed that it was indicative of the moods of its wearer, sparkling if he was gay and losing its radiance if he was unhappy. As it is symbolic of riches and good health, it should bring these gifts to one who owns it.

Yellow is today's lucky hue. It brings happiness and good cheer to those who wear it.

The yellow rose is today's special flower. It is symbolic of pride and disdain.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S QUESTIONS.

SHORT STORY

THE LOVE OF THE HIGHBROWS

(By H. Irving King.)

It was delightful to see how perfectly Minerva Martin and William Minturn got on together—how perfectly they understood each other; just as two young people engaged—or as good as engaged—ought to. But then Minerva and William were not ordinary people; far from it. They were both "superior"; no sentimental and emotional nonsense about those two young highbrows—they dwelt in an atmosphere of pure reason and brought intellect to bear upon all the relations of life.

As to marriage, they were agreed—after prolonged discussion—that while it was rather an antique institution it was well to preserve it as an antique. William had once collected old furniture and Minerva had collected old china; antiques had their place in life. Yes, the institution of marriage should be continued—as they proposed to continue it—calmly and deliberately.

How they laughed at the novelists and poets of the Scott and Byron era, and pitied the simple and uninformed writers of the Victorian. Once Minerva caught William reading Byron. He looked as guilty as a New England boy of the last century caught reading a "dime novel," and explained with a blush that he was only trying to see to what depths of sentimental slush the human mind could descend. But William had his revenge; he caught Minerva reading Tennyson, and she had to explain that she had simply been amusing herself with the appalling shallowness of the Victorian mind.

Matters went along in this pleasant and highly satisfactory manner for—oh, a long time. Then, somehow, Pure Reason slipped a cog—and there was a disagreement. It is no matter what they quarrelled over; it was some intensely complicated and profound subject which the reader would not understand if it were mentioned—any more than William and Minerva understood it. Suffice it that they parted, each disappointed in the intellectual capacity of the other. But they had so long been used to each other's society, so long accustomed to the intercourse of mind with mind, that they were both intensely unhappy.

"It is that infernal Tennyson that I caught her reading," thought William, "that has weakened the fibre of her strong and lucid mind."

"It's that awful Byron I saw him with that has ruined the symmetry of his once perfect intellect," sighed Minerva. Then William got a volume of Tdnnyson and began to read it, seeking to discover the virus hidden therein that he might perfect an atitoxin for it and restore Minerva's mind to normalcy. And she did about the same with regard to Byron. Neither had any idea that themselves might become infected. And it would not have made any difference if they had realized the danger. They were hero and heroine. It is highly proper to take some risk for the sake of the person you want to marry—and each felt they could not get along through life without the other.

After about two weeks of Tennyson—picking out the poems with the most love in them and reading them over and over—William suddenly one day had a new idea. "Jimmy crickets!" cried he, his culture slipping from him like a bathrobe. "I really believe there is such a thing as love. But what is it? Pure Reason certainly has nothing to do with it."

It was at just about the same time that Minerva caught herself repeating those lines of Byron, "Oh, Love! what is it in this world of ours that makes it fatal to be loved?"—and stopped with a gasp of apprehension. Love? oh, if William had not been so obstimate about that little matter of sociology how he might help her to comprehend, through his clear, colo mind, what was puzzling her so. She was alarmed at her own mental condition. She found herself unconsciously regarding love as an actuality when any schoolgirl could see that it was absolutely opposed to Pure Reason.

Yes, in spite of their little difference she must have the benefit of William's assisance in considering this matter—and she wrote to him a very prim letter so stating. She had come to the conclusion, she said, that there was a possibility of such a thing as love existing, and she would be obliged if William would write her an essay stating how, if he consudered such a thing to be possible, the said actuality called love could be reconciled with Pure Reason.

William's answer was brief and to the point: "It can't be," he wrote, "and that is the beauty of it. I am coming 'round to see you to-night."

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

INCORRUPT

I have broken my soul to harness,
I have taught it to toil for me,
I have driven it over the farness
Of river and hill and sea;
I have taught it a tale to utter
For recompense line by line—
I have bartered for bread and butter
The things of my inmost shrine.

Yet, Soul, I have not degraded
The Soul of myself within—
Yea, Soul, I have never traded
And given you into sin;
I have made you no painted woman,
The sport of an idle song—
For the wants of the flesh are human,
But the wants of the Soul are long.
I have led you by rein and halter,
I have peddled my strength and youth,
But never a bribe could alter
The thing that I thought the truth;
And, when I shall loose the tether,
When we wait at the final place,
When we stand before God together,
I may look at you face to face.

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

THE child who can assume that everybody is his good friend has a great gift. Folks then just naturally are his friends. "The art of making friends is the art of being a friend." It's the same principle as forming one's lips and face to look like a smile, and, all of a sudden, one's body has the feeling of a smile. Try it.

Famous hockey Stars everywhere will wear the New C·C·M's

THE NEW C·C·M· SPECIAL

Here's our latest triumph—a hand-made skate to make Champions! Rocker blades to give pep and speed in quick turning and dodging. Here's a skate specially designed for brilliant, lightning hockey—a rocker blade with a semi-elliptic, specially reinforced tube. The blade is of Sheffield Chrome Nickel Steel, with flint-hard running edges and toughened core. Electrically welded, not rivetted. Velvet nickel finish. Price, seven dollars ($7.00). Be sure you see them!

THE NEW C·C·M· OLYMPIA EXTRA

And here's another rocker blade, with the new semi-elliptic tube—the Olympia Extra. Slightly lighter than last year's famous Olympia, but, nevertheless, of unusual strength. Hockey players who wore C·C·M· Olympia Skates last year will not hesitate to recommend this new C·C·M· Model at five dollars ($5.00) per pair. Same Sheffield Chrome Nickel Steel blade as the New Special.

If you play fast hockey, you need C·C·M· Skates. More C·C·M·'s are used by hockey players than all other makes combined. C·C·M· Dealers are showing these new rocker blade models. See them.

LITTLE SPENT IN THIS COUNTRY

Dominion Highway Grants For 1926 Total Nearly Twenty Millions.

42,131 SPENT HERE.

The annual report of the Dominion Commission of Highways just issued for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, shows that 7,018 miles of highways have been constructed under the Canada Highway Act at a cost of $48,426,713.00, the Federal department having made payment to the extent of $18,429,107.00. Out of this amount there was $5,774,005.63 spent in Ontario and Peterborough County received the small sum of $42,131.13 spent on the roads in this county.

In his report A. W. Campbell, the Commissioner, says that during the year very little change was made in rates paid for labour and materials. Most of the work was performed by residents of the locality, many of whom were connected with the works for the past three to five years. Their training and experience so fitted them that more and better work was secured with the same amount of labour and with no greater outlay. There was a largely increased use of bituminous emulsions for road dressing and dust laying during 1925, materials used being calcium chloride, light asphaltic road oils, tars and medium asphalts. These materials were used successfully where carefully and properly applied.

During 1925 the improvemnt as in former years, was carried on along progressive lines, the development being in proportion to the importance of the highway and the character and extent of the traffic it is called upon to accommodate at the time or within a reasonable future. Departments are becoming more seriously impressed with the importance of moving carefully from step to step until the best and most economical construction is obtained, realizing that stronger and higher types of road are necessary to carry the rapidly increasing volume and weight of traffic both passenger and heavy truck. The regulating of dimensions and loads to be carried by the motor truck is pressing itself more and more upon improvements being made in balloon tires, broader wheel treads, shock absorbers and other improvements it is believed have decreased considerably the wear and tear on the highway surface. More and more have surveys on the ground been studied to secure the best practical location, as well as the rectification of alignment to better, more satisfactory and more economical construction and maintenance. These locations are being selected largely with a view to present and future requirements.

The matter of maintenance of the several types of road up to the standard of construction is impressing itself more each year upon road authorities until now it is receiving scientific study.

Mr. Campbell states that considerable progress was made during 1925 in the naming and numbering of roads, erecting direction and warning signs and danger signals, together with the standardization of the higher type of specifications.

ABOVE are shown two views of the hulk of the crack passenger freight steamer "Montreal" as it lies on the mud near Sorel, after being gutted by fire. Three men were reported missing of a crew of 40, who escaped by leaping into the icy waters of the St. Lawrence. The smoldering bow of the Montreal shows the wreck made by the cabins by the flames. The bath-tub in the centre evidently came from the state-rooms on the upper deck, the supports of which are shown twisted like wind-driven reeds.

Wheat Gains Slightly After Opening Downtown

CHICAGO, December 15. Canadian Press. — Wheat scored moderate gains in price today after a downturn at the start. Buying was based more or less on the fact that Chicago wheat stocks are small and that there is but little apparent chance to draw shipments from other centres. Opening at ¼ decline to 1-8 advance wheat underwent a slight general set back, and then rose all around. Corn and oats also provisions, developed firmness, corn starting unchanged to ¼.

Opening prices were Wheat, Dec., $1.38 1-8; May $1.38 3-8; corn, December, 73 3-4; May, 82 1-8; oats, December, unquoted; May 49 3-4.

Profit Taking Stops New York Upward Move

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—Heavy profit-taking temporarily checked the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, but all offerings were well absorbed and the market was headed upward again by early afternoon. A heavy return flow of funds previously withdrawn by interior banks for mid-month payments resulted in the lowering of the call money rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent, facilitating the operations of professional traders.

United Steel moved up nearly two points to 155. The weekly trade reviews reported little change in mill operations, but stress the promising outlook for further railroad buying.

Early declines ran from one to three points, but many of these were made up and converted into gains when the afternoon rally got under way. Commission houses reported a further erpansion of public interest which was noticeable in the broadening demand for stocks.

Atlantic Refining soared nearly five points on buying influenced by expectations of an early resumption of dividends. Texas and Pacific Land Trust jumped 100 points on a few odd lot sales to a new record high at 14.50.

Industial Alcohol Gains Featuring Toronto Market

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press) — Industrial Alcohol and British American Oil dominated this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Alcohol recorded a new high at 34 1-4 and at the noon close of 34 1-8 was a point higher. Oil sold up to a new high of 81 1-4, then eased to 80 1-2 a net gain of a quarter point. Weaker issues, for slacking of the recent upward movement was in evidence, included G. and W., down a quarter at 39 3-8, Noranda, down 35 at 22.65, and Atlantic Sugar 3-4 lower at 30 1-4. A feature was the activity of Smelters, which sold up to 263 following the dividend announcement, subsequently easing to 261 a net gain of more than ten points from yesterday. Nipissing sold up 40 at 7.40.

Mine Market Active Several Sharp Declines

TORONTO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press). — Conflicting movements prevailed during the Standard Mining Exchange's session to-day, when the heaviest trading for many weeks resulted in several sharp declines. The volume of sales came appreciably near the million share mark. Duprat and Nipissing led the upward movement, Duprat reaching 55 and easing to 30 2-3 for a net gain of three points, and Nipissing advancing 40 at 7.40. The weaker side was led by Argonaut, selling down at 48¾, and Noranda, which lost 30, at 33.60. Teck Hughes eased three at 482.

JAIL TERM AND FINES IMPOSED

Lindsay Couple Charged With Perjury in Securing Marriage License.

HAD ELOPED.

LINDSAY, Ont., Dec. 15.—At a session of the Police Court this morning, Charles Butterfield, a local printer, agted 33 years, and Bernice Francis, aged 15 years, were charged with perjury in connection with a marriage license issued in their behalf in Lindsay on Saturday last, the girl swearing jointly with Butterfield that she was eighteen years old. The couple were married in Toronto on Monday. Butterfield received two months in the county jail with a fine of $50 and $10 costs, with an additional two months if fine and costs are not paid. The girl was sentenced to ten days in the county jail with a fine of $25 and costs and an additional month in default of payment of fine and costs. This is the aftermath of a week-end elopement that had created considerable excitement.

33 MEN INDICTED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Accused of Taking Part in Landing at Edgewater, N.J.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press)—Thirty-three men, including Mayor Wissell and Chief of Police Winan of Edgewater, N.J., a U. S. Customs inspector and a N.Y. City Marine Police sergeant, were under indictment today as a result of an eight months' investigation of the landing of a $2,000,000 liquor cargo from Canada at Edgewater from the steamer Eker. The mayor, Henry Wissel is alleged to have receivd $50,000 from the rum runners and the marine police sergeant, John J. Lowery, $20,000, Assistant U. S. Attorney, Herman T. Stichman, said yesterday. All those named in the indictment returned November 24 by the federal grand jury are charged with conspiring to land the liquor in violation of the prohibition law.

TAKES POISON AFTER DROWNING CHILDREN

Sudden Attack of Insanity Cause of Tragedy at Waltham.

WALTHAM, Mass., Dec. 15. — (United Press). — A 27-year-old mother died in a hospital here on Tuesday, the third victim of a family tragedy that occurred when she became suddenly insane. Earlier in the day, police, after battering down two doors at her home, discovered the bodies of her two babies in the bath tub. The mother, Mrs. Phillip Lecasce, had swallowed several poison tablets after drowning the children, Betty Anne, two years, and Pauline, five months.

The tragedy occurred while the father was at work. Mrs. Lecasce apparently had been bathing the younger of the two children when the attack overcame her.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BREAD AND BUTTER

Once upon a time Mrs. Longears, the rabbit lady wife of Uncle Wiggily, had a beautiful diamond bracelet. Another time and she lost it, and still another time and it was found in a most strange way, not to say peculiar. I am going to tell you about it.

In the beginning, Uncle Wiggily bought the diamond bracelet for his wife at the five and ten cent store. Don't laugh. They have the finest bracelets there you could ever want to see. My, how they sparkle!

"Oh, that's a love of a bracelet!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears when Uncle Wiggily hopped home with it. "I shall always wear it and think of you my dear," and she gave her husband a kiss on his pink, twinkling nose. "Not that I need a bracelet, though, to think of you," she said with a smile. "But it is lovely!"

"And now, having given you this bracelet, I think I shall go out and look for an adventure," said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose. Not to get rid of his wife's kiss, oh, my, no! But just for fun.

Sticking in the butter was the diamond bracelet.

Over the fields and through the woods hopped the rabbit gentleman, and pretty soon he reached a bush which was jiggling and joggling and shaking.

"This is queer!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "The bush is shaking but there is no wind to blow it. Very strange! I had better see about this. Perhaps there is an adventure hiding under that bush, trying to get out. If there is I'll help it, for I need an adventure."

Hopping closer to the bush, Uncle Wiggily brushed away the snow around the bottom and looked under it. And then he received a big surprise.

For beneath the bush was the Fuzzy Fox, and it was the Fox, shaking his tail to brush off the snow, that had caused the bush to jiggle, joggle and tremble as though the wind blew it.

"Oh, excuse me!" exclaimed the bunny gentleman. "I didn't know you were here."

"It's all right! I'm coming right out!" barked the Fox, "I'm coming out after you!" and he did. But Uncle Wiggily had a head start in the race that followed, and managed to keep ahead of the Fox, though the bunny had to run very fast to do it. But at last Uncle Wiggily safely reached his hollow stump bungalow and the Fox turned back.

All out of breath, Uncle Wiggily hopped inside, but there he found more excitement. For Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, Mrs. Longears and some of the little bunny rabbit children were turning things upside down, looking under chairs and tables and even inside the piano.

"Whatever has happened?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, Wiggy!" exclaimed his wife. "I have lost the beautiful diamond bracelet you gave me! I had it on, but, all of a sudden, I noticed it was gone. Oh, dear!"

"I'll help you look for it," said the bunny gentleman, as soon as he could get his breath, which had nearly gotten away from him in the race with the Fox. So Uncle Wiggily looked all around the bungalow, but the diamond bracelet could not be found. Mr. Longears was just going to say he would get his wife a new one when, all at once, there was a knock at the door.

"Maybe, a Police Dog has found your bracelet, mother!" said Jingle.

"I hope it isn't the Fox after me," thought Uncle Wiggily.

But Nurse Jane came in to say it was only a poor old tramp cat who wanted something to eat.

"I'll get the tramp cat a slice of bread and butter and a glass of milk," offered Uncle Wiggily. "You stay here, Nurse Jane, and help look for the diamond bracelet." Uncle Wiggily cut a thick slice of bread, which he spread thickly with butter. This he took to the back door to give to the tramp cat. But the bread slipped from the bunny's paws and fell, butter side down, on the ground near the steps.

"How careless of me!" said the bunny.

"No harm done!" mewed the tramp cat. And when he picked up the slice of bread, there, sticking in the butter, was the diamond bracelet!

"Oh, hurray! It's found!" joyfully cried Uncle Wiggily, dancing as he picked the bracelet out of the butter. "My wife must have dropped it outside here in the leaves. Only for you, Tramp Cat, we never should have found it. Come in and have a good meal!"

This the tramp cat did, and when the butter was washed from the diamond bracelet it was a s bright as ever. And wasn't it lucky? Anyhow the tramp cat said so. And if the tack lifter doesn't take off the front door to go sliding down hill with the ice pick, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily again.

Prisoners Produce Revue At Sing Sing

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 15. United News. — "Oh, if I had the wings of an angu-u-ll," sang a young man with great fervour, and the Sing Sing Indigent Prisoners Fund revue, was under way to a flying start.

The opening performance was held right in Sing Sing.

Since it was also announced that the "Bits of 1926" will close on Friday without going on the road, an audience recruited largely from New York city, made the historic trip "up the river" to see it.

The ushers were provided with comptometers to give the management an exact count of the number arriving and an equally exact count of the number leaving the scene of the prison.

Prisoners doing time for offences ranging from grand larceny to aggravated assault, wrote, produced and acted the "bits." One of the skits, a travesty on the death chair, was ruled out sorrowfully by Warden Lawes before production.

"Its the cleverest thing in the show," the warden was quoted as assuring the inspired numeral, who was its author. "But—"

The audience, however, enjoyed what was left, and not one member left the hall until the final curtain; in fact, none left for some moments after the curtain, the comptometers were clicking.

LEAF SOUTHPAW MAY BE SOLD TO ST. LOUIS

Transaction May Be Put Over at American League Meeting.

GET CATCHER.

Rube Marquard and Eddie Holly Successful Candidates For Managership.

By Charlie Good

One of Lee Fohl's first acts as manager of the Leafs will be to protect the Toronto club's interests in the sale of Walter Stewart, southpaw extraordinary, who wound up a large career as an International leaguer by shutting out Louisville in the final game of the little world series, 8 to 0.

Stewart thinks he is of major league calibre, and so do many of the so called experts, including Dan Howley; but it is significant that he did not arrive at that opinion until the latter caught on with St. Louis. At any rate Stewart declared at the close of the season that he was through from a Toronto angle and asked that he be sold to the majors. On the heels of his request came bids from the Browns and the Yankees for his services and at the present American League meeting in Chicago these two clubs will fight it out for his services.

Involved Affair

As the situation stands, the Browns have a player wanted by Miller Huggins of New York, and the trade before it is finally concluded is apt to be far reaching. The Leafs are counting upon getting three players, including a catcher, presumably Hargraves, from St. Louis, and a large bundle of cash for Stewart, who at this writing is probably the most desired pitcher in the game.

Lucky to Get Lee

Fohl will represent the Toronto club in the negotiations, and President Solman has the greatest confidence in his ability as a bargainer. In fact the local magnate believes that he was extremely fortunate to get a manager of the calibre of the ex-Clevelander, considering everything. He points out that the Jersey City club had the utmost difficulty lining up a successor to Pat Donovan, and finally had to take Spencer Abbott, who was a failure at Reading and Kansas City. Incidentally, Abbott was a candidate for the job with Leafs.

Marquard and Holly

It has leaked out that Fohl's closest rival for the chieftainship of the Leafs was Rube Marquard, who was a southpaw of parts in the majors for many years and who last season managed the Providence club of the Eastern League. Marquard, who at one time was with Pittsburg, being purchased for what was then considered the record-breaking price of $22,000 by Barney Dreyfuss, made a strong play for the berth at Asheville and was much disgruntled when he was passed up in favor of Fohl.

Another man who was much in the running and who might have filled the bill with credit to himself and all concerned, was Eddie Holly, who shortstopped for the Leafs some seasons ago. Holly, who is scouting for a big league club, had more than an outside chance of getting the position until the friends of Fohl massed their influence behind him.

All Like Fohl

President Solman didn't engage the former Red Sox manager without much deliberation. He wired several big leaguers who are closely associated with him in business regarding Fohl's qualifications and the assurances that he received were most flattering to the new Toronto leader. Mr. Solman is positive that the fans will like his managerial acquisition, whom he says is as different in his style and methods from his immediate predecessor as a summer zephyr is from a winter gale. Fohl does not rush at conclusions nor does he let the whole wide world know his business, but keeps his thoughts to himself and is a doer.

Mr. Fohl will not come to Toronto until after the first of the year. It is his intention to take up his residence here.

The only deal in the player line transacted by the Toronto club at Asheville was the sale of Del Capes to Detroit. The latter club has a deal on involving a player in the Western League, and Capes will be used by the Tigers in the trade.

Doyle May Return

It is more than likely that Jess Doyle will be back with the Leafs again. He is now the property of the Detroit club, who drafted him last fall in order to protect the Toronto club's interests. Both Cleveland and Chicago had designs upon the smart right hander, and President Navin of Detroit negatived their intentions by beating them to the pitcher. Doyle will be returned to the local club providing waivers can be secured upon him. It was these two clubs who prevented Frank O'Rourke from coming to Toronto. They are both in need of a second baseman and Detroit was unable to get them to waive. O'Rourke was eager to take over the job and the old-timer was peeved when he was informed that it was impossible to get him out of the majors.

MACK EXPECTED TO GET COLLINS

Cleveland Looks For Man To Replace Tris Speaker.

AMER. LEAGUE MEET.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(A.P.)—Little fuel remained for hot stove deliberations as American League club owners gathered for a week's sessions.

Managers to succeed all the deposed pilots have already been announced, though the future plans of some of the former field generals have not been disclosed. Commissioner K. M. Landis apparently has only to count the vote to learn his plurality for another term as baseball boss.

The player trading activities of some of the seven new major league managers promises to be the principal activity of the week. The recent minor league gathering at Asheville resulted in very little dickering, so apparently the majors will have to fall back on swapping players among themselves.

Collins To Speak.

The promised announcement of Eddie Collins, former manager of the White Sox, that he would name the American League club he will play with next summer, isone of the few definite events o n the programme That he will rejoin Connie Mack, his old manager, is considered likely National League owners meet in New York Tuesday and President Heydler will bring his magnates here for a joint session Thursday. Hovering around these two groups will be other club owners ready to buy and sell.

Three of the five new American League managers, Ray Schalk of the White Sox, Jack McAllister of Cleveland, and George Moriarity of Detroit, will at least need some high class players to fill the vacant shoes of the three playing managers they succeeded. The Sox lost Eddie Collins, premier second baseman, the Indians lost Tris Speaker and the Tigers lost Ty Cobb.

One Playing Manager.

Dan Howley at St. Louis and Bill Carrigan at Boston are the other new faces in the Johnson circuit, and with the possible exception of Schalk, none of the five will be playing managers.

The first open talk of a trade to fill the yawning holes in the line-up left by the departure of these stars is the rumor of a White Sox dicker for Aaron Ward, the Yankee second baseman, in exchange for some pitching talent.

ENDORSE LANDIS ANOTHER TERM

At Opening of Annual Session of American Leagues.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (Canadian Press).—The American League's approval of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, voted unanimously at the opening of their annual session last night, was qualified by a move to restrict the Commissioner's authority.

The league magnates appointed a committee to confer with Landis, assure him of their endorsement for another term, and ask for a conference on certain undisclosed changes the league wishes to effect in the terms of the Commissioner's contract.

The job of presenting the proposition to the Commissioner was given to Col. Jacob Ruppert, of the New York Yankees; Phil C. Ball, of the St. Louis Browns, and E. S. Barnard, of the Cleveland Indians. They were delegated to assure Landis that the League first will vote to re-elect him, and then ask for a conference on the modification which the Leagues wishes, at some later date.

The magnates opened their session with the formalities of awarding the pennant to New York, adoption of the annual report of the treasurer and then took up the Landis matter which was quickly approved.

The Landis committee then started in search of the Commissioner.

LENGLEN GIVES SHOCK TO GAME

Bill Tilden's Fall Was Another Notable Development.

SEASON OF UPSETS.

(By Henry L. Farrell.)

France furnishes the big headlines of 1926 in tennis, a year that will go down as perhaps the most historic of the game.

The first serious attempts to establish professional tennis will always make 1926 an outstanding year.

France's part in contributing to the biggest events of the season was played by Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, who turned professional and invaded the United States, and by the team of French men stars who swept the honors in Paris, Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

The season also will be memorable because of the possibility that it brought about the fall of William T. Tilden, world's champion, and generally admitted to be the greatest player ever developed.

All French Final.

Tilden was beaten at Forest Hills in the national championships by Henri Cochet, one of the French four horsemen, but he was not able to win the title. For the first time in memory the final round was an all-French affair at Wimbledon and at Forest Hills in the same season. Jean Borotra and Reno La Coste were the finalists in each classic.

La Coste won the American title, and his victory may have brought him to the form where he will be able to reign as long as Tilden did.

Tilden's fall may be due to one or two of three reasons. He was interested in a Broadway play all season, and paid little attention to tennis and when he did get down to the game he hurt his knee. He may have been the victim of over-confidence, a bad knee, or may have passed his peak. He is going to try and come back next season and the result will tell.

France also drew the big international attention through the sensational match between Mlle. Lenglen and Helen Wills for the world championship.

Molla Comes Back.

Miss Wills not only was beaten by Mlle. Lenlen but she broke herself down and had to be operated on for appendicitis. She had to retire for the season and Mrs. Molla Mallory, a former champion won the title.

Some medical experts were of the opinion that Miss Wills never may be able to regain the form she had before the operation.

The European invasion by American tennis players was not altogether successful. The woman stars won the Wightman Cup from the British team but Mary K. Browne, who later turned professional, was beaten by Mlle. Lenglen and Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey, who also turned pro. later, were defeated in Paris and at Wimbledon.

The American men's team succeeded in winning the challenge round for the Davis Cup against France, and it was one of the few big events of the season that followed expectations. It however may have been a form reversal in view of what the French players did in the singles championship later.

CONTINUE USE OF RESIN BAG

Zack Wheat, of Brooklyn, May Go to the Phillies.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(A.P.)—National League club owners in annual session yesterday decided to continue use of the resin bag during the 1927 season. In his annual report, President Heydler said that he believed use of resin contributed generally to a better grade of baseball.

The trade market was dull. The prospect of a deal by which the New York Giants would send Firstbaseman Bill Terry to Boston in exchange for Pitcher Joe Genewich apparently fell through, when Manager John McGraw vetoed the proposition. McGraw indicated he would want more than Genewich before parting with Terry.

Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Brooklyn Clubs figured in the trade docket, but all apparently had difficulty reaching any definite basis for negotiations. There were various reports that Zach Wheat, Brooklyn outfielder, would go to the Phillies, and that his teammate, Pitcher Burleigh Grimes, would go to the Pirates.

LARGER CLUBS LUCKY IN DRAW FOR 3RD ROUND

First Division Teams Clash in Only Four Games.

MAY TOUR STATES.

London's Clubs Each Draw Opponents From First Division.

By Billy Fenton

Luck was with the big clubs during yesterday's draw for the third round of the English Cup competition, first division clubs being bracketed in only four of the 32 games scheduled for January 8. Curiously enough, the London clubs drew opponents from the first division, West Ham United being slated to meet Tottenham Hotspurs at Upton Park, and Arsenal being provided with an engagement at the Sheffield United ground. Rhyl, victors over Stoke and Wrexham, have been pitted against Darlington, and have a chance to go further in the series, while Poole, the only other outsider, a club in the Junior Southern League, must travel to Everton. The cup holders, Bolton Wanderers, will face a second division club at Blackpool, and Manchester City, who go as far as the final round, have the task of playing Birmingham at Birmingham. The league leaders Sunderland, engage with another first division team in Leeds United, while Cardiff City, who want into the final against Sheffield United two years ago, are drawn against Aston Villa at Cardiff.

The draw resulted as follows:
Reading vs. Manchester United
Bristol Rovers vs. Portsmouth
Fulham vs. Chesterfield
Barnsley vs. Crewe
Sheffield Wednesday vs. Brighton
Coventry City or Lincoln City vs. Preston North End.
Darlington vs. Rhyl
Everton vs. Poole
Hull City vs. West Bromwich
Birmingham vs. Manchester City
South Shields vs. Plymouth
Newcastle United vs. Notts County
Southampton vs. Norwich City
Southport vs. Blackburn Rovers
Cardiff City vs. Aston Villa
Burnley vs. Grimsby Town
Chelsea vs. Luton Town
Carlisle vs. Wolverhampton
Bristol City or Bournemouth vs. Liverpool.
Walsall vs. Corinthians
Exeter City vs. Accrington
Clapton Orient vs. Portvale
Leeds vs. Sunderland
Middlesborough vs. Leicester City
Swansea Town vs. Bury Milwall vs. Huddersfield Town
Oldham Athletic vs. Gillingham or Brentford.
Sheffield United vs. Arsenal
Bradford City vs. Derby County
Blackpol vs Bolton Wanderers
West Ham vs. Tottenham
Ashington vs. Notts Forest.

Celtics May Tour U.S.

It was reported in New York yesterday that a tour of the U. S. next spring by a team from the famous Glasgow Celtic Club was more than a possibility. All the clubs in the American League are pulling hard to encourage Celts to come over, but how the S.F.A. will regard the proposition in view of the decision to send a representative Scottish team to Canada at the same time is something to ponder over.

GRANGE'S TEAM WINS SEASON'S LAST GAME

Defeats Chicago Bulls 7 To 3 in Closing Contest.

CHICAGO, December 15. -- Red Grange and his New York Yankees completed their first season of professional football, by defeating Joe Sternaman's Chicago Bulls in an American League game 7 to 3.

The Yankees scored their touchdown after Grange intercepted a pass deep in his own territory and carried the ball 20 yards. Larry Marks soon afterwards ran 43 yards for the touchdown.

Sternaman scored for the Bulls with a field kick.

The following are the members of the team: Kenneth Weaver, Stirling No. 3; Donald Sharp, Stirling No. 3; John Crookshank, Frankford; Harold Thrasher, Belleville No. 2; Leo Mulvahill, Frankford; Percy Smith, Holloway; John Wright, Ivanhoe; Henry Morton, Moria.

The Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held a combined meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Harper Rollins, with a large number present. After the usual programme, the Nominating Committee reported re-election of officers, the only change being that of Secretary of the Ladies' Aid, Mrs. A. G. McKenzie to succeed Mrs. Thomas McGee, who resigned. At the close of the business a pleasing event occurred when a beautiful floor lamp, accompanied by an appreciative address, was presented to Mrs. Simpson for her valuable assistance as a member of the choir, W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid. Lunch was served and an enjoyable social hour spent.

The ladies of St. John's Anglican Church held a profitable bazaar in the agricultural rooms last Thursday afternoon and evening. Afternoon tea was served, as well as a sale of cookery.

A successful sale of Mrs. S. Badgley's household effects was held on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Badgley has moved to Barrie, Ont., and will reside with her son there.

Rev. Robert Simpson, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church preached his farewell sermon on Sunday evening. The church was filled to capacity. St. Paul's United Church withdrew their service in the evening, and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Barrett, and a great many of his people were present, as well as those from other churches. The preacher took as his text, Proverbs 18-10, and his parting message to those who had the pleasure of hearing him will be long remembered. Mr. Simpson and family will leave for Woodville this week, and he will be inducted into his new charge on Thursday afternoon. Rev. Mr. McKenzie, of Burnbrae, will occupy St. Andrew's pulpit here next Sunday morning, declaring the same vacant. Mr. McKenzie is the interim moderator of this charge.

Mrs. George Eggleton has returned from Bowmanville, where she was visiting her daughter.

Mr. G. G. Thresher, barrister, who formerly resided here, arrived in town from San Diego, Calif., where he spent the past two years, and intends resuming his practise of law here.

Mr. Thomas Solmes and mother, Mrs. M. Solmes, accompanied by Mrs. D. Sailes, of Minto, visited Mr. and Mrs. Van Allen, at Warkworth, one day last week.

Mr. R. P. Coulter, who has been seriously ill for the past month, was able to be at his store last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hough and son, Douglas, of Madoc, were week-end visitors here.

Mrs. Hatfield and son, Archie, of Campbellford, visited her sister, Mrs. George Bailey, on Sunday. Mrs. Bailey has been seriously ill for some time, but is convalescing slowly.

MAROONS BREAK LOSING STREAK

Shut Out St. Pats 3-0 — Bailey Hurt—Boston Wins.

ANOTHER FOR OTTAWA

MONTREAL, Dec. 15—Montreal Maroons broke the long sequence of games in which they have failed to win when they blanked the Toronto St. Patrick's here last night, 3 to 0. It was the first victory for the world champions in seven games and marked what is anticipated as a turn for the better in the play of the Stanley Cup holders.

Roach played a brilliant game in goal for the visitors. The score might have been bigger, but for his good saves. The Irish team worked well individually. They tried steadily to score, but could not get the necessary snap and co-ordination into their play when at the opposing defence.

Honors in attack went to the Montreal team in the opening exchanges with Siebert, Stewart and Broadbent buzzing around the Toronto goalmouth, but without material success, as shots missed the goal-posts by inches or were stopped cleverly by Roach.

Bailey and Brydge Injured

St. Pat's were handicapped early in the third period when Bailey was injured in the leg. He had to be helped out but resumed play later.

Montreal went to defensive hockey to hold their lead. St. Pat's went desperately to the attack. Carson, Bailey and Day were the best combination, but they could not get going together.

Montreal — Goal, Benedict; defense, Noble and Munro; centre, Stewart; wings, Broadbent and Siebert; subs, Phillips, Rothschild, F. Carson, Dutton and Holway.

St. Patrick's—Goal, Roach; defense, Corbeau and McCaffrey; centre, Bill Carson; wings, Bailey and Day; subs, Bellefeuille, Dennenay, Bourgeault and Brydge.

Referee—Cooper Smeaton, Montreal.

BOSTON 7, DETROIT 2.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 15.—Boston broke their losing streak here last night by defeating Detroit 7 to 2 in a fast National Hockey League contest that was far from one-sided, despite the top heavy score.

Poor shooting spelled defeat for Detroit, while Boston were caging the disc from all angles. Boston scored twice in each of the first two periods, and three times in the last. Sheppard prevented a whitewash for the visitors by slapping home two goals within 18 seconds in the last two minutes of play.

Boston—Goal, Stewart; defense, Shore and Cleghorn; centre, Herberts; wings, Cooper and Galbraith; subs, Hitchman, Keats, Oliver, Stuart, Coutu and Briden.

Detroit—Goal, Holmes; defense, Loughlin and Halderson; centre, Frederickson; wings, Arbour and Gordon; subs, Walker, Hart, Foyston, Sheppard, Kitchen and Oatman.

Referee—Lou Marsh, Toronto; Ed. Enright, Boston.

OTTAWA, 2; AMERICANS, 0.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. — Two goals in quick succession in the first period by Cy Denennay on passes from Hooley Smith gave Ottawa a 2 to 0 victory over New York Americans in a National Hockey League game here last night.

Eleven thousand spectators saw a fast first period followed by two session in which the visiting Ottawa squad displayed nothing but airtight defensive hockey, against which the luckless local attacks broke time after time. The game was clean, only four minor penalties being imposed.

The first five minutes of play in the opening session found both teams tearing up and down the ice, in efforts to force a break and obtain the first goal. The Senators were finally successful, a neat pass from Hooley Smith to Denennay at the Yankee blue line resulting in the first goal. A face-off and almost identically the same play gave Ottawa another eight seconds later.

Ottawa—Goal, Connell; defense, Clancy and Boucher; centre, Nighbor; wigs, Dennenay and H. Smith; subs, A Smith, Kilrea, Adams, Halliday and Gorman.

New York Americans — Goal, Forbes; defence, Simpson and Langlois; centre, Burch; wings, "Red" reen and McKinnon; subs, Roach, Hines, Scott, Reise, Bouchard, Boucher

Officials— Jerry Laflamme and Robert Hewitson.

KITCHENER OUT OF S.P.A. SERIES

Parkdale Eliminates Petes' Conquerors in Fast Game.

SCORE 5-4.

TORONTO, Dec. 15. — Parkdale Canoe Club elbowed Kitchener out of the S.P.A. Senior series by the score of 5 to 4 at the Arena last night, and thus qualified to meet Marlboros on Friday night in the series finals.

Last night's game was a battle between two teams evenly matched. The contest was in doubt until the final bell. Parkdale had a slight edge on the visitors in the matter of team work, and to this may be attributed the victory. The teams emerged from the first two periods with the score tied, and the only goal of the third period was the winning one. It came at a time when Parkdale was playing five men against six, and was rather unexpected. Morris had carried the puck down centre ice to relieve the situation around the Parkdale net, the Kitchener forwards having buzzed around Humphries like angry bees without result. Morris shot when he was outside the Kitchener defense, and the rubber bounced into the nets of Frie's skate. It seemed like an easy shot, and one that Fries could have handled without trouble, but it slipped in.

Kitchener Misses Hiller

The game was one of the best of the Senior games played in the S.P.A. so far. The teams played fast and, for the most part, clean hockey. The players were busily intent on getting goals, and they attended strictly to business. Kitchener was without the services of that sterling centre ice performer, George Hiller, and George was missed. The Green Shirts were not effective around the nets, and they did not combine well. They tried to play too much individual hockey, and this style of play was not successful against the strong defence pair, Lount and Radke. The Parkdale forward line back-checked well, and at times showed more speed than the visitors. This advantage in speed broke up many attacks on the Parkdale goal, and was an important factor in Parkdale's triumph.

Parkdale Forward Line Smooth

Parkdale showed a forward line that worked smoothly. The team is strong in subs., and Armstrong, Miller and Morris form just as strong a combination as Clayton, Heffernan and Paul. These players have speed and they work well around the nets. On the defence, Radke and Lount are a strong pair. Radke seems a litle awkward in stopping the man with the puck but he usually manages to stop him. The offences for which he drew penalties were not all deliberate, but he should use more discretion in body-checking players near the boards. Heffernan and Karges had a spill just before the game ended. Both players were penalized, but Karges hurt his leg and had to retire.

Again the fans passed up a good, fast hockey game, only a small crowd turning out to see the game.

The teams:

Referee—Harold Farlow.

SALES AND BAZAARS

AT NORWOOD.

NORWOOD, Dec. 15.—The bazaar held in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was a great success in every way. Afternoon tea was served by some of the ladies and others had charge of the different booths. The candy booth was in charge of the members of the Y.W.A. The Christmas tree, in charge of Mrs. John E. Roxburgh, President of the Mission Band. The home-made cooking booth, with Mrs. Dickens and Mrs. Rogers in charge, did a flourishing business. Mrs. T. Borland and Mrs. John MacNaughton were kept busy in the dairy booth, while Mesdames Tedford and Edwards in the apron booth and Mesdames W. Robb and Hutchinson in the fancy work booth were pretty nearly cleared out of articles for sale quite early, so great was the demand. Mrs. T. Lumsden and Miss C. Calder, who had charge of the parcel post booth, were unable to supply the demand. The proceeds were exceedingly gratifying to all who had labored to make it a success.

FORT DUCHESNE, Utah, Dec. 15.—Augusie, six-foot Ute Indian buck, for 38 years has worn the garb of a squaw and has been entirely ignored by fellow males of his tribe —because in 1887 he was a "conscientious objector," and refused to take part in a tribal raid. He now is more than 80, but he will remain a "squaw" for the rest of his life.

COULDN'T EAT, COULDN'T SLEEP TOO MUCH GAS

"I suffered from gas, indigestion and stomach trouble. Nothing I ate agreed with me. Since taking HERB JUICE I feel fine."—Mrs. Eva Chambers, Windsor.

HERB JUICE is a restorative for the whole system. Unlike most medicines it acts upon the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Just one dose will relieve gas, taking away that bloated feeling so that you can eat and sleep well. Stomach trouble often causes serious consequences such as nervousness, indigestion, constipation, headache and sleeplessness. Try a bottle of HERB JUICE and you will be delighted with the results. Thousands of people are voluntarily testifying as to the benefits derived from HERB JUICE.

MUCH BUSINESS AT PRESBYTERY

Ministers and Laymen of This District Meet in Lindsay.

UNITED CHURCH.

LINDSAY, Dec. 15.—A meeting of the Lindsay Presbytery was held in the Queen Street church yesterday with a goodly number of delegates present. The President, Rev. R. F. Stillman, of Norwood, presided during the sessions.

With a view to securing a correct roll-call of the delegates at this and future Presbytery sessions, cards were distributed to those present by Rev. J. J. David, of Kinmount, the Presbytery Secretary.

The introduction of Rev. Arthur Latter, the new pastor of Oakwood church, and formerly of Mount Forest, followed. Rev. David Wren, of Peterborough gave a brief resume of Rev. Mr. Latter's pastoral activities in the ministry.

Rev. Mr. Latter expressed his deep appreciation of the cordiality and warmth of the welcome tendered and expressed his pleasure at coming into Lindsay Presbytery.

The report of the executive, carrying with it the adoption of the suggestion that the minister at Minden on certain occasions exchange pulpits with the Carnarven minister, in order that the sacrament might be administered in the latter field, was approved.

Relative to the transfer of six pastoral charges out of the Lindsay Presbytery Bay of Quinte Conference, into the East Presbytery Toronto Conference by the General Council of the ing resolution was adopted:—

Moved by Rev. Harston, of Woodville, and David of Kinmount—"That whereas the General Council of the United Church of Canada, did, at the General Council held at Montreal, June 1926, duly transfer six pastoral charges, namely Uxbridge, Epsom, Goodwood, Vroomanton, Sandford, Zephyr and Sunderland out of Lindsay Presbytery of the Bay of Quinte Conference int o Toronto East Presbytery of the Toronto Conference: and whereas such transfers were made without the recommendation, consent or approval of the last named pastoral charge, the Lindsay Presbytery and the Bay of Quinte Conference, by the General Council of the United Church of Canada, contrary to the procedure laid down by the United Church of Canada for the transfer of pastoral charges from one Presbytery to another Presbytery; therefore, be it resolved that this Lindsay Presbytery desires to place itself on record as protesting against the action of the General Council of the United Church of Canada in the transfer of these pastoral charges, as being most irregular and opposed to the policy of the United Church of Canada.

The Lindsay Presbytery would also recommend in the future no pastoral charges be transferred from one Presbytery to another Presbytery except the same be done through regular channels provided by the United Church. We also recommend that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Bay of Quinte Conference and to the General Council of the United Church of Canada.

In a report made by Rev. R. T. Richards it was proposed that there be three Presbyteries in the Cobourg-Lindsay area, now comprising two Presbyteries, Lindsay and Cobourg. This division would make it more convenient and inexpensive for many of the brethren to attend Presbytery meeting, and would tend to more interest in the activities, it was contended. On motion of Rev. R. T. Richards, of Peterborough, and Rev. Kemp, of Lakefield, the proposals in the report were approved and will be submitted to the Cobourg Presbytery.

The action of the executive relative to the removal of Rev. Dr. Morrow, a former pastor at Oakwood, to another Presbytery, was confirmed.

The supervision of charges under probationers followed, and the request of Rev. Arther, of Havelock, granting to the probationer at Cordova Mines the privilege of administering the sacrament, led to the adoption of a motion which opened up this question which had been disposed of at a past session of the Presbytery. At that time it was decided to take no action. Revs. Archer, Havelock, Holling, Lindsay and Carmichael, of Dunsford, were named a committee to draft a memorial that Rev. Archer administer the sacrament at Cordova Mines.

A motion was also passed requesting the minister of the United Church at Lakefield to supervise the administering of the sacrament at Hall's Bridge.

A resolution was adopted relative to the appointment of interim superintendents in the event of vacancies. The expenses of a minister acting in this capacity will be met by the charges.

Mr. J. R. McNeillie, of Lindsay, addressed the Presbytery relative to revision of the session records and communion rolls. This work will be recommended to the executive.

Rev. Archer introduced a resolution that a memorial be forwarded to the General Conference recommending a special license to the probationers to administer the sacrament in isolated places. The resolution provoked considerable discussion, and was finally adopted.

The afternoon session opened with the presentation of the Committee on Maintenance and Extension. The Home Missions Committee also presented its report, both of which were adopted.

The following resolution was received from the Official Board of the Queen Street Church, Lindsay:—"That this Board extend to Rev. J. J. David, of Kinmount, a very earnest invitation to become our pastor at the end of the present Conference year, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Lindsay Presbytery, praying that it may receive heartiest approval and co-operation, so that the present spirit of unity in our congregation may be recognized and confirmed."

This resolution will be forwarded to the Settlement Committee.

Arrangements for the induction of the Rev. Mr. Latter at Oakwood were submitted for approval.

The request of Rev. Mr. Pope of Coboconk, for settlement in another pastorate was received and will be forwarded to the Chairman of the Settlement Committee.

Field Secretary F. A. Lawson, representing the Lord's Day Alliance, briefly reviewed the conditions leading up to the formation of the Lord's Day Alliance and of the Lord's Day Act passed in 1906. He outlined certain work and needs of the Alliance. Save our Sabbaths, save our sanctuary; save our sons, save our state were all linked in the work of the Alliance. A desire for pleasure was tending to break down the Sabbath. The churches should co-operate with the Lord's Day Alliance. Every minister was a keynote in this work.

A resolution touching upon the relation of the church to the Alliance will be drawn up by Rev. McLellan, Beaverton, and Rev. Holling, of Lindsay. The latter explained the financial difficulties which come up in connection with the church's co-operation with the Alliance, the W.C.T.U. and other worthy bodies.

A deputation of the Balsam Lake Boys' Camp Association, Revs. Harston, Woodville; Rev. Holmes, Baptist Minister, Lindsay and W. J. Carlisle, Lindsay, waited on the Presbytery and to frame a resolution relative to the Lord's Day Alliance submitted the following:—"This Lindsay Presbytery, having heard Rev. Mr. Lawson, Field Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance places on record its appreciation of the work of the Alliance in the preservation of the Lord's Day as a day of rest and worship, and commends to the ministers and congregations this good cause. We assure Mr. Lawson that wherever practicable, the ministers and churches of this Presbytery will co-operate with him in raising funds for the maintenance of the Lord's Day Alliance.

The remit from the General Council was next considered. It had three divisions—1, Standard of salaries for ministers; 2, the Christianizing of industry; 3, military training. A resolution endorsing the Council's remit was adopted. A committee to handle the returns from the charges will be appointed.

The second remit was referred to the Committee on Social Service, the third remit was referred to a committee to be named by the chair. Messrs. Denike, Havelock; Walls, Beaverton; Downey, Peterborough; Robb, Norwood; F. G. Sandy, M.P.; R. J. McNeillie, Lindsay and Geo. E. Pentland, Haliburton, were appointed a committee to deal with the first remit.

Revs. Harston, Woodville; Seymour, Fenelon Falls; McLellan, Beaverton, and Messrs. Denike, Havelock and C. J. Moase, of Lindsay were appointed a committee to deal with remit 3 of the General Conference.

The time and place of the next meeting of the Presbytery was left in the hands of the executive.

The following ministers and laymen attended from Peterborough district: Revs. R. Garrett, Hiawatha; A. H. Maconachie; Springville; D. Wren; Peterborough; E. D. Snelgrove; Hall's Bridge; J. E. Todd, Peterborough; H. B. Herrington, Warsaw; W. R. Archer, Havelock; J. W. Gordon, Peterborough; R. F. Stillman; Norwood; R. T. Richards; Peterborough; S. A. Kemp, Lakefield; F. W. Wesley, Lakefield. Laymen—A. E. Denike, Havelock; Hugh Robb, Norwood; A. Stewart, R. F. Downey, A. Brown, R. J. Kidd, Peterborough; G. E. Garbutt, Warsaw; A. E. Higgins; Lakefield; George Dandash; Hiawatha; James Walton, Lakefield; Thomas McIndoo; Springville; J. E. Adams, George Evans, Peterborough.

ART STUDY CLUB HEARS FINE PAPER

Madonna in Art Subject of Interesting Talk By Mrs. Kidd.

There was a good attendance at the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Art Study Club of the Women's Art Association, held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. F. C. Neal, when a Christmas quotation formed the answer to the roll call, and a very interesting paper on "The Madonna in Art" was given by Mrs. R. J. Kidd. Several of the ladies brought copies of the picture of their favorite Madonna, giving reasons for their choice.

The next meeting of the Club will be held on January 4th, at the residence of Mrs. E. R. Shirley, when Mrs. H. W. Morphet will give a paper on Sir Henry Raeburn, and the response to the roll call will be a quotation from the works of Sir Walter Scott.

Mrs. Kidd opened her address with a reference to the first appearance in art of the effigy of the Madonna, about 886, when she was inscribed on the coins of the Greek Empire, and in the following century, when representations of the Virgin were included in the Roman coinage.

"In the ecclesiastical history of Nicephorus Callixtus, he inserts a description of Mary, declared to have been given to him by Epiphanius, who lived in the fourth century, and who had his information from an ancient source. She is described thus: 'She was of middle stature; her face oval, her eyes brilliant and of an olive tint; her eyebrows arched and black; her hair of a pale brown; her complexion fair as wheat. She spoke little, but she spoke freely and affably; she was not troubled in her speech, but brave, courteous, tranquil. Her dress was without ornament, and in her deportment was nothing lax or feeble.' To this ancient description of her person may be added the Scriptural and popular portrait of her mind; the gentleness, the purity, the intellect, power and fortitude; the gifts of the poetess and prophetess, the humility which exceeded that of all womankind. Lastly, we are to engraft on these personal and moral qualities the theological attributes which the church from early times assigned to her, the supernatural endowments which lifted her above angels and men; all these were to be combined into one glorious type of perfection."

Certain devout writers argued that the Virgin must have been of a very dark complexion, quoting from the Canticles in support of this theory: "I am black, but comely, O ye daughters of Jerusalem." But others say that her complexion had become dark only through her sojourn in Egypt.

Mrs. Kidd went on to describe some of the characteristics of the Madonna in Art, as seen through the eyes of various portrayers. Botticelli's Virgins have intense spirituality of expression and much decorative charm. He also helps us to realize her youthfulness and invests her with a certain melancholy sweetness which touches the beholder.

Raphael also excelled in the expression of his Madonnas, none of which were portraits, the artist painting from an idea in his own mind, and attempting the delineation in his pictures of the Virgin, of the supernatural element.

The speaker referred here to the ancient Byzantine Madonnas and the Italian mosaics, also to the very ancient picture of the Virgin sent in the year 431 by the Empress Eudocia, when travelling in the Holy Land, to her sister-in-law, Plucheria, who caused it to be placed in a church in Constantinople. The dark-colored, olive-skinned ancient Greek Madonnas are still admired by Italians and Russians, and it is said that Guido, who himself painted lovely Virgins, went every Saturday to pray before the little black Madonna della Guardia, near Bologna, and held this Eastern relic in great veneration.

Before the end of the fourteenth century, the Madonna was always represented in a seated position, and the Virgin was placed in different attitudes, her mantle usually of blue, the color of constancy and heavenly purity, and her tunic of red, the color of love and religion. The Venetians were the first artists to cut off the lower portion of the figure.

The finest Madonnas of the seventeenth century were those produced by the Spanish school, because of the intensely human and sympathetic character imparted to their representations of the Virgin. Dark-haired Madonnas appeared first in the Spanish school, of which Murillo was one of the greatest exponents. Great circumspection was used in the delineation of the Virgin by the Spaniards, who never painted her with knees crossed or with uncovered feet.

Mrs. Kidd spoke of the better-known Madonnas painted by Murillo, Raphael, Mignard, Van Dyke and Fra Angelico, giving graphic descriptions of their beauties in conception and execution.

THEATRE AT THE CAPITOL

DAREDEVIL DIX SCORES IN "THE QUARTERBACK."

The trickiest, funniest, fastest football game ever played. That's what you will see in Paramount's latest Richard Dix comedy, "The Quarterback," which arrives at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

Richard and his pal, David Butler, are working their way through Colton by means of a milk deliver route. To speed matters up they utilize their football knowledge and send their bottles whizzing through the air. Then—when they actually get in the game—action starts and never stops till the final whistle blows.

But there's much more to "The Quarterback" than just a football game! W. O. McGeehan and William Slavens McNutt have provided Director Fred Newmeyer with a real story. And in its transfer to the screen, nary a thing has been lost.

"The Quarterback" opens with an 1899 prologue. The star quarterback of Colton College, aHrr·· Beresford, has proposed to Mona Palma. She accepts with the proviso that he remain at school until Colton beats her ancient rival, State. Some twenty-seven years later, he is still one of "the boys," Mona has died and his son now plays dad's old position.

AT THE REGENT

HARLAN IN "THE SAP."

The Warner production of "The Sap," featuring Kenneth Harlan, is a gentle, humorous, psychological exposition of the struggle of a pampered sissy man to escape the stigma of cowardice.

When he went to war, via the draft, and came bac' with a chestful of medals, the town bully, who had kept him licked into shape when they were kids, knew that something was wrong. He was the only doubter and scoffer in the whole hero-worshipping town.

He proved to his own satisfaction that "that sap" was still afraid to put up his dukes and that cats scared him to death.

"The Sap" knew his old enemy was right, so after a crushing humiliation, Rickard is infatuated with Esther Ralston, a State co-ed. Their romance flourishes until the day of the big game. Then—comes a series of startling surprises. Things start to go wrong and — well, why try to describe it?

See "The Quarterback." Richard Dix has never had a better vehicle! when the town had turned as quickly against him for his obvious lack of manhood as it had turned to him for his false war record, he determined to discard his medals, his tokens of esteem, and his soft- mother-pampered existence and win back the respect of his associates.

And what a fight it was! He was big enough and strong enough, but he had an inferiority complex. He had never used his fists. Then he conquered his old fear of cats, and being suddenly provoked into a framed fight, discovered that he could fight. Oh, boy! Then he proceeded to clean house!

Besides Harlan, the cast includes Mary McAlister, as the heroine, Heinie Conklin, Dave Butler, Eulalie Jensen and John Cossar. The scenario was adapted by E. T. Lowe from an original story by E. T. Lowe and Philip Klein. Erle Kenton directed.

"The Sap' is opening tomorrow at the Regent Theatre.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

(By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.)

That the lack of home loyalty has done much to keep many cities back; it is bad for the city.

That to buy at home should be preached in every community; to do so, shows loyalty.

That no person, single-handed, can make a city a progressive city.

That in order to do so, it takes the undivided support of every citizen.

Where the citizens show courage and a patriotic desire to be up and doing, and then do it, they get wonderful results.

Greeting Cards

IF there is one time in the year when we should think of others, Christmas is surely that time."

So says Ethel Barrymore, one of America's most beloved actresses.

Of course, you will do your part, as always, to spread the spirit of Christmas. Christmas Cards express all the kindly, loving thoughts that are in your heart.

Make your list a large one. Beyond your friends and relatives lies a further opportunity for spreading happiness. Shut-ins, children in hospitals, orphanages, homes of the poor —what a world of happiness you can spread with Greeting Cards.

In The Examiner you will find a fresh, varied and beautiful assortment if you do your selecting early.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

A great number of preachers claim they believe in the resurrection, but, according to their creed and teaching, they in reality deny the resurrection. They say the good who die go to heaven, and the bad into eternal torment; that both the good and bad at and after death are consciously alive. It is contrary to reason and common sense to say an individual can be resurrected, who is already alive. These preachers must either back down from the doctrine of the resurrection, or admit they are preaching untruths. When individuals accept Satan's original lie, "thou shalt not surely die," other lies must follow. Those who (rightfully or wrongfully) pose as religious leaders, hold extremely responsible position. All people should lay aside their prejudices, and diligently seek for the truth that is found in the Holy Scriptures, and not be hoodwinked by those who assume authority. The truth brings gladness to the heart. Let us all seek truth and follow it. — M. T. Butcher. 1d-141-1813

NO CESSATION OF COLD WAVE

Saskatoon Has 36 Below During Night—Probs Say Cold.

MANITOBA WARMER.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 15. Canadian Press. — Continuing throughout the Western Provinces the cold wave which has swept the prairies since Sunday, showed no inclination to moderate over night and to-day's forecast still stands as "decidedly cold to-day and Thursday."

Temperatures ranging all the way from 12 below zero at Calgary to 36 at Saskatoon, were recorded during the night; while Edmonton in northern Alberta had a low mark of 34.

In Manitoba there was some relief from the record low points on Monday night but the mercury in many districts still ranged around the 20 below mark.

ST. JOHN'S W. A.

Large Attendance at Regular Business and Devotional Meeting.

There was a large gathering of St. John's Women's Auxiliary on Tuesday afternoon, December 14th, when they held their monthly devotional and business meeting. It was a memorable occasion, as it was the first W. A. meeting in the new room in the beautifully remodelled parish house. The president, Mrs. A. W. Turner, was in the chair. The absence of Dr. Blagrave through sickness was regretted. The treasurer reports all tees and pledges for the year were met and everything for the year 1926 was wound up in a very satisfactory manner.

Nomination of officers for 1927 was dispensed with, through it being the unanimous wish of all present that the present officers be re-elected by acclamation.

The meeting was closed with the members' prayer and benediction.

Tea was served by Mrs. Budd's refreshment committee.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Christmas Meeting of Society is Very Well Attended.

The Christmas meeting of St. Andrew's W. M. S. was held on Tuesday afternoon and was quite well attended. The president, Mrs. J. John, opened the meeting with prayer, after which routine business was attended to.

The Bible reading was contributed by Mesdames Fanjoy, Mathieson, Saltman and Miss M. Ferguson.

A very special feature was a Christmas story by Mrs. Barns, entitled "The Signs in the Christmas Fires." This was most appropriate to the Christmas season, and was accompanied by Christmas carols sung by several of the members. Mrs. H. Doig favored the meeting with a beautiful Christmas hymn, which was much enjoyed.

The meeting was brought to a close by the repetition of the Lord's Prayer.

Splendid Programme Given at Regular Meeting of Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the George Street United Church was held yesterday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. S. Armstrong, president of the Society, conducted a short business session after which the meeting was taken charge of by Group F of the Society and a delightful programme was presented.

Mrs. Spencer, group leader, officiated and preparatory to the programme announced that Group F would hold a birthday tea early in January.

The feature of the programme was Mrs. L. J. Pettit's version of "The Christmas Story" given in her most pleasing graceful and dramatic style to a large and appreciative audience. Mrs. V. Walker gave a vocal solo accompanied by Miss Bessie Elcome and the Misses Alda Bartlett and Pearl Carruthers gave an instrumental duet.

A vote of thanks was tendered those taking part in the programme.

ENGLISH BOYS TO BE TRAINED

Nine Hundred Will Be Placed in Ontario Next Week.

100 EVERY MONTH.

TORONTO, December 15. — Canadian Press. — Nine hundred English boys for Ontario farms will be brought out next year, it was announced to-day by Hon. John S. Martin, the Ontario Minister of Agriculture. The boys will be given a short period of training at the Vimy Ridge Farm, near Guelph, for nine months. About 250 English lads have been brought out since the inception of the plan this year. The experiment of training these boys at Vimy Ridge Farm and placing them on Ontario farms, has proved so successful, that it was decided to bring a larger allotment next year.

CURE DISCOVERED FOR DRUG ADDICTS

Restores Nerves and Kills Toxins, Without After Effects.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (United News). — A cure for narcotics and drink is believed to have been discovered, according to the current issue of The New York Medical Journal. The article describing the cure is signed by Dr. Alexander Lambert of Bellevue Hospital, who says the treatment known as "Narcosan" was developed by A. S. Horovitz, a biochemist who immigrated to this country from Hungary. Here are some of the things claimed for the new treatment:

That it leaves the addict perfectly normal;

That it destroys his desire for drugs or alcohol;

That its effect is permanent.

Dr. Lambert says the unique contribution to the treatment of drug or alcohol addicts has been tried on 366 cases at Welfare Island, with only one relapse.

"Narcosan" is said to neutralize the toxins which form in the body when narcotics are suddenly withdrawn. It also restores the fatty substances around the nerves which narcotics have destroyed.

IN MEMORIAM

FORSYTHE.—In loving memory of Olga Frances Forsythe, who died December 15, 1925.

No stain was on her little heart,
Sin had not entered there;
And innocence slept sweetly on
That pale white brow so fair.
She was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay;
And so God's holy angel bore
Our darling one away.

—Greatly missed by her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Forsythe.

HOUSE PASSES SUPPLY BILL FINAL READING

Commons Adjourns For the Christmas Holidays to Reconvene on Feb. 8th.

DIVORCE CASES.

Labor Objects To Money Spent on Cadet Training.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—Final reading was given in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon to the Supply Bill totalling $64,590,350, representing the balance of the amount of the estimates for the fiscal year ended March 31 next. Business of the House was then suspended until 3.15 o'clock, when the Commoners adjourned to the Senate Chamber, where the royal assent of the Deputy Governor-General was given to certain bills. The Royal authority given the House then adjourned until February 8.

Cadet Training.

In the course of the brief discussion on the bill, J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre), declared that protests had already been made by organized bodies of labor and farmers against the policy of Cadet training. He asked the Minister of National Defence (Hon. J. L. Ralston) to take these protests into consideration in the preparation of next year's estimates.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16. — When the House of Commons opened yesterday afternoon the motion fixing the date when the members would reassemble after the Christmas recess as February 8th was carried.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative leader, suggested that the date be made earlier, but Premier King explained that the intervening time was required by the Government to prepare the business to be proceeded with when the House reopens.

The House went into committee on supply and there were a series of questions by several members as to Government expenditures in different ridings. This occupied considerable time.

The speed of the Senate on the 34 divorce applications was found to be of no avail and they cannot be given Royal assent until next year when the House reassembles.

Mr. Church's Bills

At the opening of the House, T. L. Church introduced two bills, one having to do with declarations of ownership and clear marking of advertisements in newspapers and the other respecting special rates on coal. In explaining the Newspaper Act amendment, Mr. Church said that the object of the amendment was to provide for uniform law.

Mr. Church, in explaining his bill on coal rates, said:

"The object of this bill is to provide a remedy for the existing problem of supply coal to the central and other portions of Canada and render Canada independent of foreign supply. The present coal situation is grave and demands an immediate solution. The bill is an effort to establish a national policy for the carriage of Canadian coal and coke on the same basis as is provided by the special tariff on grain and flour.

SEVERAL HURT IN COLLISION

Slow Freight Hits End of Standing C.N.R. Passenger Train.

DAMAGE SLIGHT.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.— When Canadian National Railways passenger train number 4 was struck at Longlac, Ontario, by a freight train at 10.45 a.m. today, a few passengers in the observation car were shaken up and some suffered slight injuries. The passenger train was en route from Winnipeg to Toronto and the rear trucks of the observation car were derailed when the freight coming up behind at slow speed struck the coach.

A special train was immediately made up at Nakina, a few miles away with a doctor and nurse aboard, and was despatched to the scene of the accident. The train due in Toronto at 7.35 p.m. tomorrow, is expected to be two hours behind scheduled time.

DANVILLE, Ill., Dec. 16 (A.P.).—In a demonstration of a bullet-proof chest protector yesterday before the local Rotary Club, fragments of bullets, which were shattered on the protector, glanced and hit three members, Walter C. Spitz, baker, received a scratch on his neck; John Telling, banker, received a bruise on his head, and H. V. Streeter, reporter, suffered a cut lip and a leg bruise. The man wearing the protector was uninjured.

NO ABOLITION OF PREFERENCE FOR VETERANS

Decided Stand Taken By Leader of Empire Service Legion.

WILL SOLVE ITSELF.

Matter Will Come Before Dominion Meeting Held at Winnipeg.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Any proposal by parliament to abolish the preference to returned soldiers in civil service appointment, will be fully considered by the Dominion convention of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, which meets in Winnipeg next month. A motion was tabled in the House of Commons Monday by Frank S. Cahill, Liberal, Pontiac, calling for the abolition of this preference.

T. C. Lapp, acting superintendent of the service bureau of the Legion, established here in Ottawa to protect the rights of ex-service men, has issued the following statement:

"At a time when rehabilitation committees in the principal centres of Canada are still constantly engaged in an effort to place handicapped war veterans in positions in the commercial world, where they will be able to carry on effectively, it would be a striking commentary on the attitude of Parliament towards handicapped veterans if there was any appreciable interference with the privileges at this time.

Qualifications Noted

"While the preference has been the means of assisting many ex-service men in finding suitable employment, it must not be overlooked that these men first had to demonstrate their qualifications for their position and, second, were not permitted to undertake employment in positions where disabilities would interfere with their effectiveness.

"The civil service preference to ex-service men was, at the same time, a gift and a practical re-establishment measure. As long as there is a qualified ex-service man applying there is no justifiable reason for the elimination of the preference. The process of time, in any event, will render the preference non-operative. Already, the per-centage of appointments going to ex-service men is on the decline, and there is every reason to believe that this percentage will shrink rapidly from this time on."

ASKING PAROLE FOR YOUNG MEN

Frank M. Field, K.C., Will Present Case To Attorney-General.

BURGLARY CHARGE.

COBOURG, Dec. 16.—Mr. Frank M. Field, K.C., yesterday applied to Attorney-General W. H. Price for the parole of the three young men of Seymour Township who were convicted last week in a County Court trial here before Judge Huycke of stealing goods from Alex. Milne's store at Menie. Among those who endorsed the petition are Mayor F. G. McArthur. The young men are W. J. Crossen, W. Dunk, and Clarke Haig. They were sentenced each to three months in an Ontario reformatory, with an additional fifteen months indeterminate, which would probably be cancelled by good conduct.

Kirkwood Makes Fun For Friends and Foes

LONDON, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—David Kirkwood, the fiery Scotch Labor M.P., who likes to call a spade a spade, has come a cropper in the House of Commons that is giving his political friends and foes alike a chuckle.

It happened in the course of a discussion on the appointment of two judges with Indian experience on the judicial committee of the Privy Council at £2,000 a year.

Mr. Kirkwood thought this was far too much, and didn't mince his words. "What have these judges got that I haven't?" he roared.

"Brains!" came a stentorian voice from the Conservative benches.

The House collapsed. Kirkwood roared back that he would take the others on, one and all, on any kind of brainy prowess, but even his political friends laughed heartily.

OIL SCANDAL GOES TO JURY

Three Alternatives—Conviction, Acquittal or Report of Inability to Agree.

OVER FOUR WEEKS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. — (Canadian Press.) — Court and counsel in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial yesterday gave the labors of four arduous weeks to a fagged and weary jury.

With the echo of final argument and voluminous instructions from the court still ringing in their ears the twelve young men filed into their jury room prison.

Three alternatives were before them —conviction, acquittal, or a report of inability to agree.

The defendants, Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, wealthy California oil man, were inseparably linked together in the blank verdict forms which the jurors carried with them to their drab quarters. The two had to be convicted or acquitted together, although in the discretion of the court the penalty could be different as between the two.

The penalty is fixed by law at two years' imprisonment, a fine of $10,000, or both.

More than twelve hours of argument by counsel ended shortly before noon with the last word of former Senator Atley Pomerene, of Ohio, in behalf of the government. He closed with a plea that the jury consider Doheny's $100,000 loan to Fall on Nov. 30, 1921, in the light of its potential influence upon government in the event of an acquittal.

During the trial it was the contention of Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts also a government prosecutor, that this transaction was a vital factor in the award to Doheny interests of the Elk Hills, Calif., naval oil reserve lease and the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, oil storage project, while Fall was in the cabinet. Pomerene's argument followed that of Mark B. Thompson, a New Mexico friend of Fall, and Wilton J. Lambert, also of defence counsel, and Frank J. Hogan, chief of the defence corps of attorneys.

Thompson went directly to Fall's own statements to the Senate oil committee regarding the $100,000 loan from Doheny.

"He lied, gentlemen, of course he lied! He lied to shield a friend from a pack of politicians led by Senator Walsh, that little gray wolf from the hills of Montana!

"Of course he lied—and gentlemen, every red blooded man in New Mexico is proud of him for it."

At another point Thompson said: "That was the cleanest money that ever passed from one man's hand to another's."

TRADES COUNCIL DISCUSSES 'BUS SERVICE IN CITY

Members State Hydro Men Have Better Pay and Shorter Hours.

MANY OPINIONS.

Members Favor Exclusive Franchise For H.E.P.C. System.

The regular meeting of the Peterboro Trades and Labor Council was held in the Labor Hall, George street, last evening, with a large number of delegates in attendance, and President T. McMurray in the chair. A large amount of routine business was attended to and various subjects discussed.

Under general business, one of the delegates brought up the matter of the independent buses running in the city in competition with the Hydro vehicles, stating that it was unfair competition, inasmuch as the independent concern paid lower wages and worked its employees much longer hours, than the Hydro Commission. It was also stated that in the event of an accident, in which passengers on these independent buses were injured, the Railway Board would give no protection to the injured passengers, on account of the drivers of these vehicles working more than 54 hours per week.

There was a number of opinions given, amongst them the suggestion that the Hydro lines should serve exactly the same parts as the independent buses were serving, and for the Hydro then to apply for an exclusive franchise from the city. Of course it would mean more buses, but it was thought that if the Hydro Commission wou'd prove that they could do as well as the independent concern in actual practice, then there should be reason why they should not get an exclusive franchise. They pay fair wages to their employees and work them only the stipulated number of hours as required by the Railway Board—rather less in fact.

Then again the passenger on the Hydro system has the privilege of transferring to another car for any part of the city limits, while the independent concern merely carries them to the centre from the south end.

It was felt by some of the delegates that there was need of better facilities for travelling from the south end.

It was felt by some of the delegates that there was need of better facilities for travelling from the south end or the independent concern would not have been able to continue, but if the Hydro would supply that need and show that they are able and willing to cover the whole of the city then the travelling public would depend on them and patronize them accordingly, and they would have earned the right to an exclusive franchise.

The matter was left at that until the next meeting on Jan. 5, 1927, when it is expected there will be further particulars brought before the Trades Council.

HARBORS BILL STEP FORWARD IN U. S. SENATE

Disputants Come To Agreement in Project For Improving Illinois River.

MAIN DIFFICULTY.

Bitterly Fought By Great States For Three Years.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Waterways, farm relief and prohibition occupied the attention of the legislators of the United States yesterday.

The cumbersome Rivers and Harbors Bill, which provides for expenditures of $60,000,000 on the waterways and ports of the country moved a long step forward with an agreement by disputants in the Senate, making it clear that nothing in the project for improving the Illinois River should be construed as permitting further diversion of water from Lake Michigan. The Illinois scheme has been bitterly fought by Great Lake states other than Illinois for three years, and Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio, had served notice that it would be a large bone of contention. Yesterday's agreement was felt to have ironed out the main difficulty. Representative William E. Hull, who introduced the measure, said: "I feel convinced that we will now be able to build the waterway between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi River within the next three and a half years. It will be the greatest inland waterway in the world."

Farm relief hit its full stride in the House of Representatives yesterday and the old threat of party division made itself immediately felt when Representative Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, declared that if the new McNary measure were not passed, middle western Republicans might seek to ease the rural situation by a downward revision of tariff.

While proponents were trying to decide who was going to introduce the new McNary measure into the House, the bill was attacked as containing seeds of tariff legislation. Senator Harrison meanwhile introduced a bill of his own, providing for loans to farming interest of one billion, two hundred and six millions through Federal sources.

The prohibition affair went through the Senate quickly when wets made no attempt to block the appropriation of $12,000,000 for enforcement, and Vice-President Dawes declared the half million dollars which would have been used for "under cover" agents without return of expense accounts, as out of order.

The Senate wets began organization, Senator Edge issuing an invitation to 200 senators to attend a wet conference at some indefinite date.

COLD SPELL HITS ENTIRE PROVINCE

Temperature Drops Suddenly During Night— Cold at Sault.

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Ontario and Quebec today shivered in the cold snap and strong winds which have been experienced in Western Canada during the past few days. Strong northerly and north-westerly winds continued to-day after amounting almost to a gale during the night and early hours of the morning. The temperature dropped sharply overnight until it was six degrees below zero at Sault Ste. Marie this morning and two below at Ottawa. Kingston and Montreal had temperatures of six degrees. It was ten above at Quebec and 12 above at Toronto. The weather was milder in the Maritime Provinces.

The cold spell will last for another day or two. Fair and cold weather is forecast for all eastern Canada to-morrow, with gales in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Gale on Lake Superior.

FORT WILLIAM, Dec. 16. — (Canadian Press).—Improvement in weather conditions at the head of the lakes is reported to-day, with the temperature considerably higher. The wind, however, which reached gale proportions two days ago, is still strong, and grain-laden boats, numbering fifteen, which have been in shelter in Thunder Bay, are to-day coming back into port.

Had Hair Bobbed at 103 She Danced at Age of 104

PARIS, Dec. 16.—Mme Rectitude Touzet, who has just died at the age of 104 at Aux de Chateau, near Arras, is supposed to have been the world's oldest disciple of modernism in women's fashions. When she was 103 years of age she adopted the popular coiffure of today. She had her white locks bobbed according to the approved Parision model.

Mme. Touzet, until the end of her life, maintained a gay and youthful disposition. She never missed an opportunity to attend a dance, where she outdid in energy many who might have been her great-grandchildren.

RAILWAY BILL FOR NEXT YEAR IS PRETENTIOUS

Canadian National Programme Includes Tap To Peace River Area.

C.P.R. IN WEST.

Hubbard Interested Again After Red Lake and Northwestern Road.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16—Canada is likely to see a pretentious program of railway construction work next year. In spite of the constant talk of too much railway mileage, Ottawa hears that there is to be a regular wholesale push into the wide open spaces The Canadian National railways program is said to include a tap into the Peace River area, which has sprung into so much prominence lately. If the C.N.R. gets the right from parliament to build this line it will probably be a regular main line job, as the authorities have come to have unbounded faith in this new country. Other C.N.R. proposals are not yet ready for presentation to parliament but as the three-year program of branch line construction has been practically wound up, it is expected that another three-year plan has been drawn, which may include as many as a dozen branches in the west.

Red Lake Road

The C. B. Hubbard interests are again seeking power to build the Red Lake and North Western railway into the new mining area, near the western boundary of Ontario, and rumors are heard here that the T. & N. O., the Ontario-owned road will, under the privy council decision of this year, again attempt to push across the Quebec border into Rouyn However, the C.N.R. line there is almost completed and will shortly be in operation. The bill for the Red Lake railway was talked out several private bills nights running last session by T.L. Church Northwest Toronto, and Mr. Church is back here again with all his old determination.

C.P.R. Plans

The C.P.R. is confining itself almost exclusively to western work this year. Among the lines it proposes to build, and for which it is asking the sanction of parliament in a petition presented to the senate yesterday, are several in Saskatchewan.

Its program for the west follows:

For the following branch lines:

(a) From a point of connection with its proposed Rosemary North branch in the province of Alberta.

(b) From a point at or near Lloydminster, on its Cutknife-Whitford Lake branch in the province of Saskatchewan.

(c) From a point at or near Un-

$1,400 DAMAGES AWARDED LADY HURT IN CRASH

Miss Cooper Given Verdict against P. T. Tangney and Dr. Howson.

$700 From Each.

Lawyers' Arguments Conclude Case at Yesterday's Sitting.

Compensation to the extent of $1,400, $700 from each of the defendants, was awarded to Miss Cooper, the plaintiff in an action against Patrick J. Tangney and Dr. G. Howson by a jury empanelled in connection with an automobile accident which occurred at the corner of McDonnel and George Streets on November 13 last year.

V. J. McElderry appeared for the plaintiff; R. R. Hall, K.C., for Dr. G. Howson, and the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for Patrick J. Tangney.

The case was heard before His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke at the County Court-House.

At the time of the accident Mr. Tangney was coming east on McDonnel Street, and Dr. Howson was proceeding north on George. The two cars collided at the corner and Tangney's car overran the sidewalk, knocking down Miss Cooper and dragging her ten or fifteen feet, breaking her ankle.

The entire afternoon session was taken up with the arguments of the various counsels.

G. N. Gordon, K.C.

This is a case rendered common by the vast amount of motor traffic now on our highways," declared Mr. Gordon.

"The facts are these," he continued. "The laws contained in the Highways Traffic Act say that a person approaching an intersection must not cross at a greater speed than ten miles per hour unless he has a clear view of the approaching traffic.

"On this occasion there were two reasons why Dr. Howson should not have gone at a greater speed than ten miles an hour—one is his own evidence and the other is that the public library, while not actually on the corner, obstructs the view.

"That itself is evidence of negligence and brings in another breach of the law which says that a man must not drive his car in a manner, or at a greater speed than is necessary for the safety of the public.

"On this occasion on a wet night, with poor vision, he had every reason to proceed very carefully, but failed to do so.

"On this occasion the lady was standing on the sidewalk talking to a friend. Mr. Tangney, who has driven an automobile for many years, without an accident was coming east on McDonnell street.

"His passengers gave evidence that on approaching George street, he slowed down and blew his horn three times, and even put his car into low gear. That evidence was not contradicted.

"The swiftly moving car of Dr. Howson struck Tangney's and propelled him across the sidewalk striking Miss Cooper. Up to that point Tangney was guilty of no negligence.

"I ask you to find that Tangney was not responsible for this accident when he did all he could to avoid the collision, and that he is not liable in any degree for it."

R. R. Hall, K.C.

"You have heard evidence that flatly contradicts Mr. Tangney's assertion that his car was over the tracks when the collision took place.

Fighting Fit

That's the only kind of fitness that gets you anywhere, these days. Fighting fit — ready for anything — for you never know what's going to happen next.

It may be a romp with the children. It may be business with a hard-boiled crowd, ready to take your last cent away. The details don't matter. It's life. It's fun, when you're fit.

Are you like that? Do you tingle from head to foot with overflowing vitality? No? Then you do need Kruschen. If you live the average city life, you must have Kruschen. Every day. There's no mystery about it. The plain fact is that the human inside was not designed for the sort of work you are giving it. You get constipated. You begin to think life's hard — and it's only your liver.

The reason why Kruschen puts you right and keeps you right is just as simple. Each little tasteless pinch is a full day's supply of six mineral salts — the salts that your inside must have — salts that Nature sees you get if you give her a chance. This little dose stimulates the liver and kidneys to the proper performance of their duty, thoroughly cleanses all impurities from the system, and sends clear, healthy blood streaming to every part of the body.

You become, in fact, an entirely new being; cheery, energetic, self-reliant; bubbling over with that glorious "Kruschen feeling." It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

The dose to cover a 10-cent piece taken every morning is found in practice just the right amount for a most invigorating daily tonic. The medicinal dose for persons suffering from pains of rheumatism, gout, lumbago, or sciatica, or habitual constipation, with inactive liver, etc., is half to one teaspoonful in a tumbler of hot water before breakfast. Every druggist sells Kruschen A 75c. bottle lasts three months. This works out at half a cent a day for health and happiness. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day and start to-morrow. It's the little daily dimeful that does it!

JURY ADVISES IMPROVEMENTS IN COURT ROOM

Better Ventilation and Sanitation Needed in Cobourg Building.

COUNTY COURT.

Judge McGlade Congratulates Jurors on Splendid Report Given.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, Dec. 16.—Sweeping improvements in the court room of the Counties' Building here are recommended in the presentment of the Grand Jury, which was delivered to His Honor Judge McGlade at the General Sessions of the Peace held yesterday. Provision for ventilation, sanitation, and the comfort of the public needs a complete overhauling the Jury suggests. The condition of other public buildings is praised in high terms and the presence of only eight prisoners in the jail is mentioned as a matter for public commendation. There were thirteen inmates a few days ago, but five were removed from the jail the day before the jury visited it.

Judge McGlade thanked the jury for the thoroughness with which they had performed their duties, remarking that their report was one of the most comprehensive he had ever heard. He spoke of the necessity of the Grand Jury as an institution, and said that although their remuneration barely covered their expenses, jurors made a sacrifice for the general good of the community that was fully appreciated by all thoughtful citizens. The report follows:

To His Honour, Judge J. E. McGlade:

We, the Grand Jurors for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, at the present sittings of the General Sessions of the Peace, beg leave to make the following presentment:—

We thank your Honour for the very helpful address and instructions given to us at the opening of the court, which aided us very much in the discharge of our duties.

We visited the various institutions as suggested by your Honour, and beg to report as follows:

The jail for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham at Cobourg we found in most excellent condition in every respect, the sanitary and heating arrangements were perfect; the ventilation was of the best, the prisoners evidently receiving careful and proper attention; everything was clean and appealed to us that the officials were attentive to their duties. We found them courteous and were glad to see there were so few prisoners in the jail, being eight men and one woman and affords to our minds positive evidence of the observance of law and order in these united counties.

House of Refuge

We visited the House of Refuge for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham and found 85 inmates apparently receiving kind and generous treatment and everything being done by the officials for their well being and contentment the inmates appearing to be satisfied, happy and free of care.

The officials were very courteous, giving us every opportunity or not only looking over the premises but also conversing with the inmates as to their well being.

We also inspected the Cobourg Hospital and were shown over the premises by J. D. Hayden, Esq., and were glad to see that Cobourg had such a completely equipped institution of this kind. Everything in connection with it appealed to us as a perfect home for the sick and ailing. We cannot speak too highly of this institution and also of the doctors and nurses.

The Court House

We also inspected the court house at Cobourg and found the ventilation very imperfect. If the windows are used for ventilating the court room, they should, by a system of pulleys, be lowered from the top; as under present conditions they allow a draft of air to strike the jurors on the back of the neck, and this constitutes a menace to their health. The sanitary condition of the Court Room, would, in our opinion, be improved with the use of linoleum instead of carpets, as at present used on the floor. The Court Room is also badly in need of a thorough cleaning and painting, as it its present condition it does not reflect very well on our United Counties. The seating arrangements are not conducive to the comfort of witnesses nor to the comfort of the general public in this court of justice.

The Ontario Hospital

We visited the Ontario Hospital and were received very courteously by the officials.

The work carried on in this institution we viewed with very great interest. The methods of treatment of the patients and the exceptional care meted out to them by the doctors and nurses were an inspiration to every member of your Grand Jury, and we would like to say to your Honour, that, in our humble opinion, the work being carried on in this institution is deserving of much more publicity than it at present receives.

We would further recommend that the facilities at the House of Refuge for drying the clothes are totally inadequate, and that a new enlarged drum be installed to cope with this situation. In two or three of the rooms the plaster is in very dilapidated condition, and should be repaired at the first available opportunity.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Geo. H. Huff (Foreman).

ELGIN COUNTY DISCHARGES ALL POLICE OFFICERS

Action is the Outcome of Attack in Aylmer Recently.

TO RE-ORGANIZE.

Payment of County Crown Attorney Straight Salary Recommended.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Dec. 16.—Without discussion, the Elgin County Council Tuesday at the special session, passed the following resolution: "On the opinion of this County Council the County Crown Attorney should be paid a salary and it is recommended in future that the Crown Attorney be paid a salary instead of depending on fees, and that copies of this resolution be sent to the legislative representatives for East and West Elgin."

Members of the Elgin County Council conferred with Judge Ross and the general sessions of the Peace Board at the opening of the session with regard to the reorganization of the Elgin constabulary, and a resolution was passed calling for the discharge of all constables in the county, with the exception of High Constable Ostrander.

Following the adoption of this resolution, another motion was made and carried that the representatives of the various municipalities go into consultation with the high constables and make recommendations to the Board of Sessions for the reorganization of the force. As a result of this drastic action between 30 and 40 constables are out of service, including some of the oldest members of the constabulary.

As the nucleus of the new force, the representatives from each municipality will name one or two men. It was arranged that names shall first be submitted to the Councils of the municipalities from which the appointee comes for approval.

The reorganization is the direct outcome of the mob attack on Constable Soper at Alymer on the night of November 13.

PASS RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

Members of L.O.L. 36 Sympathize With Bereaved Brother.

CAMPBELLFORD Dec. 16.—The following is an expression of sympathy received by Mr. W. I. Stillman from his fellow members of L.O.L. No. 36:

To W. I. Stillman:

Dear brother:

We, the officers and members of L.O.L. No. 36, wish to express to you our heartfelt sympathy because of the great trial through which you have passed. You have suffered great material loss, your health has been impaired, but above all you have lost one who was dearer to you than life itself.

Words cannot properly express our sympathy to you, dear brother, but we do want you to know that we really care. Your noble Christain fortitude has made us glad, your misfortunes have awakened in us a very real and profound sympathy. Our hearts go out to you brother. We commend you to Him who has never failed in one of all His good promises, and we commend you to His loving care.

Yours fraternally,

Robert Innis, J. I. Adams,
W.M Rec. Secty.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S.

The regular meeting of the young peopel of St. Andrew's was held in the Sunday School room on Monday evening. The following programme was given:

Duet "Mother's Prayers", by Miss A. MacArthur and Miss B. Blue.

The topic, "The Value of the Church," was taken by Miss Violet Patrick and was well given.

An impromptu debate, "Resolved that the church is of more value in the community than a Literary Society," proved very interesting and many well thought ideas were expressed.

The meeting closed wth the Mizpah Benediction.

Mrs E. Craig of Brighton spent a few days of the past week at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs. John Plumpton.

Tangney says that the centre of his car was struck—the chances are if that had happened, his car would have been upset. The evidence was that the Howson car had the left front fender bent; that its lights were intact and even the tire was not damaged although it hit the Tangney car.

"Tangney has attempted to show that his car was beyond the east rail. As a matter of fact, if his car had been east of the rail it would have been impossible for him to hit the lawn where he did.

"The reason I point this out is that it has a very important bearing on the law of right of way. The law is founded upon common sense and obviates as far as possible all accidents. The law states that the vehicle on the right has the right of way.

"I submit that Tangney never looked to his right at all and did not see the lights of Dr. Howson's car as he claims he did.

"I submit that the accident would never have occurred if Mr. Tangney had not disregarded the rule of the road regarding the right of way. When he reached the centre of the road, he should have stopped, just that second or two, and permitted Dr. Howson to proceed in safety.

"Why if he was so cautious, even to change gears, did he not continue? It looks as if he did not change gears at all.

"I submit that Dr. Howson had the right of way and therefore was not responsible for the accident."

V. J. McElderry

"I will be a brief as possible in bringing this case to your attention," declared Mr. McElderry. "That there wasn egligence, is no doubt. There was negligence on the part of Tangney and Dr. Howson and after the accident this poor woman was found underneath Tangney's car.

"Both of these men are guilty of negligence," he declared. "This poor woman standing on the sidewalk where she had a right to be, and the automobile was where it had no right to be. In the flash of an eye the car was upon her and she was hurled down and dragged a distance of ten or fifteen feet, and sustained a fractured Dr. McPherson that the injury is ankle.

"You have heard the evidence of likely to be permanent. She was away from her work for fourteen weeks. That was the result of this accident.

"This lady has to earn her living and has nothing more than what she earns between her and destitution She is entitled to something—the law allows her that—but you gentlemen must settle the amount."

OBITUARY.

PHILIP McCONNELL

NORWOOD, Dec. 16—The sudden death of the late Mr. Philip McConnel took place at his family residence in Asphodel, east of Norwood on Tuesday, December 14th.

The deceased had been ill with pneumonia but had so far recovered as to be able to be up and around the house On Tuesday morning about five o"clock he got up and shortly after he returned to bed. In a few minutes his wife heard a strange noise and on going to his bedside discovered he had passed away.

The late Mr. McConnell was in his 69th year, had lived in this district for the past few years, and during his residence here had made many friends who will extend their sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives. Prior to moving to Norwood the deceased lived at Springbrook, Ont. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Maitland Kirk of Dummer and one son, Mr. Victor McConnell on the homestead.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from his late residence and interment will be made in the Norwood cemetery. Rev. R. F. Stillman of the United Church will have charge of the service at the home and at the grave.

WILLIAM GARDNER.

NORWOOD, Dec. 16.—The death of William Gardner occurred at his home in Dummer on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased, who had been an invalid for a long time, had been confined to his bed for the greater part of two years, and had borne his suffering with Christian fortitude. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one small daughter, also one brother, Mr. Fred Gardner, of Chicago.

The funeral will be held this afternoon from his late residence, and burial will be made in the Norwood Cemetery.

To the bereaved wife and daughter is extended the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Fighting Fit

That's the only kind of fitness that gets you anywhere, these days. Fighting fit — ready for anything — for you never know what's going to happen next.

It may be a romp with the children. It may be business with a hard-boiled crowd, ready to take your last cent away. The details don't matter. It's life. It's fun—when you're fit.

Are you like that? Do you tingle from head to foot with overflowing vitality? No? Then you do need Kruschen. If you live the average city life, you must have Kruschen. Every day. There's no mystery about it. The plain fact is that the human inside was not designed for the sort of work you are giving it. You get constipated. You begin to think life's hard — and it's only your liver.

The reason why Kruschen puts you right and keeps you right is just as simple. Each little tasteless pinch is a full day's supply of six mineral salts — the salts that your inside must have — salts that Nature sees you get if you give her a chance. This little dose stimulates the liver and kidneys to the proper performance of their duty, thoroughly cleanses all impurities from the system, and sends clear, healthy blood streaming to every part of the body.

You become, in fact, an entirely new being; cheery, energetic, self-reliant; bubbling over with that glorious "Kruschen feeling." It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

The dose to cover a 10-cent piece taken every morning is found in practice just the right amount for a most invigorating daily tonic. The medicinal dose for persons suffering from pains of rheumatism, gout, lumbago, or sciatica, or habitual constipation, with inactive liver, etc., is half to one teaspoonful in a tumbler of hot water before breakfast. Every druggist sells Kruschen. A 75c. bottle lasts three months. This works out at half a cent a day for health and happiness. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day and start 6)-morrow. It's the little daily dimeful that does it!

JURY ADVISES IMPROVEMENTS IN COURT ROOM

Better Ventilation and Sanitation Needed in Cobourg Building.

COUNTY COURT.

Judge McGlade Congratulates Jurors on Splendid Report Given.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, Dec. 16.—Sweeping improvements in the court room of the Counties' Building here are recommended in the presentment of the Grand Jury, which was delivered to His Honor Judge McGlade at the General Sessions of the Peace held yesterday. Provision for ventilation, sanitation, and the comfort of the public needs a complete overhauling the Jury suggests. The condition of other public buildings is praised in high terms and the presence of only eight prisoners in the jail is mentioned as a matter for public commendation. There were thirteen inmates a few days ago, but five were removed from the jail the day before the jury visited it.

Judge McGlade thanked the jury for the thoroughness with which they had performed their duties, remarking that their report was one of the most comprehensive he had ever heard. He spoke of the necessity of the Grand Jury as an institution, and said that although their remuneration barely covered their expenses, jurors made a sacrifice for the general good of the community that was fully appreciated by all thoughtful citizens. The report follows:

To His Honour, Judge J. E. McGlade:

We, the Grand Jurors for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, at the present sittings of the General Sessions of the Peace, beg leave to make the following presentment:—

We thank your Honour for the very helpful address and instructions given to us at the opening of the court, which aided us very much in the discharge of our duties.

We visited the various institutions as suggested by your Honour, and beg to report as follows:

The jail for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham at Cobourg we found in most excellent condition in every respect, the sanitary and heating arrangements were perfect, the ventilation was of the best, the prisoners evidently receiving careful and proper attention; everything was clean and appealed to us that the officials were attentive to their duties. We found them courteous and were glad to see there were so few prisoners in the jail, being eight men and one woman and affords to our minds positive evidence of the observance of law and order in these united counties.

House of Refuge

We visited the House of Refuge for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham and found 85 inmates apparently receiving kind and generous treatment and everything being done by the officials for their well being and contentment, the inmates appearing to be satisfied, happy and free of care.

The officials were very courteous, giving us every opportunity or not only looking over the premises but also conversing with the inmates as to their well being.

We also inspected the Cobourg Hospital and were shown over the premises by J. D. Hayden, Esq., and were glad to see that Cobourg had such a completely equipped institution of this kind. Everything in connection with it appealed to us as a perfect home for the sick and ailing. We cannot speak too highly of this institution and also of the doctors and nurses.

The Court House

We also inspected the court house at Cobourg and found the ventilation very imperfect. If the windows are used for ventilating the court room, they should, by a system of pulleys, be lowered from the top; as under present conditions they allow a draft of air to strike the jurors on the back of the neck, and this constitutes a menace to their health. The sanitary condition of the Court Room, would, in our opinion, be improved with the use of linoleum instead of carpets, as at present used on the floor. The Court Room is also badly in need of a thorough cleaning and painting, as it its present condition it does not reflect very well on our United Counties. The seating arrangements are not conducive to the comfort of witnesses nor to the comfort of the general public in this court of justice.

The Ontario Hospital

We visited the Ontario Hospital and were received very courteously by the officials.

The work carried on in this institution we viewed with very great interest. The methods of treatment of the patients and the exceptional care meted out to them by the doctors and nurses were an inspiration to every member of your Grand Jury, and we would like to say to your Honour, that, in our humble opinion, the work being carried on in this institution is deserving of much more publicity than it at present receives.

We would further recommend that the facilities at the House of Refuge for drying the clothes are totally inadequate, and that a new enlarged drum be installed to cope with this situation. In two or three of the rooms the plaster is in very dilapidated condition, and should be repaired at the first available opportunity.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Geo. H. Huff (Foreman).

ELGIN COUNTY DISCHARGES ALL POLICE OFFICERS

Action is the Outcome of Attack in Aylmer Recently.

TO RE-ORGANIZE.

Payment of County Crown Attorney Straight Salary Recommended.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Dec. 16.—Without discussion, the Elgin County Council Tuesday at the special session, passed the following resolution: "On the opinion of this County Council the County Crown Attorney should be paid a salary and it is recommended in future that the Crown Attorney be paid a salary instead of depending on fees, and that copies of this resolution be sent to the legislative representatives for East and West Elgin."

Members of the Elgin County Council conferred with Judge Ross and the general sessions of the Peace Board at the opening of the session with regard to the reorganization of the Elgin constabulary and a resolution was passed calling for the discharge of all constables in the county, with the exception of High Constable Ostrander.

Following the adoption of this resolution, another motion was made and carried that the representatives of the various municipalities go into consultation with the high constables and make recommendations to the Board of Sessions for the reorganization of the force. As a result of this drastic action between 30 and 40 constables are out of service, including some of the oldest members of the constabulary.

As the nucleus of the new force, the representatives from each municipality will name one or two men. It was arranged that names shall first be submitted to the Councils of the municipalities from which the appointee comes for approval.

The reorganization is the direct outcome of the mob attack on Constable Soper at Alymer on the night of November 13.

V. J. McElderry

"I will be a brief as possible in bringing this case to your attention," declared Mr. McElderry. "That there wasn egligence, is no doubt. There was negligence on the part of Tangney and Dr. Howson and after the accident this poor woman was found underneath Tangney's car.

"Both of these men are guilty of negligence," he declared. "This poor woman standing on the sidewalk where she had a right to be, and the automobile was where it had no right to be. In the flash of an eye the car was upon her and she was hurled down and dragged a distance of ten or fifteen feet, and sustained a fractured Dr. McPherson that the injury is ankle.

"You have heard the evidence of likely to be permanent. She was away from her work for fourteen weeks. That was the result of this accident.

"This lady has to earn her living and has nothing more than what she earns between her and destitution She is entitled to something—the law allows her that—but you gentlemen must settle the amount."

OBITUARY.

PHILIP McCONNELL

NORWOOD, Dec. 16—The sudden death of the late Mr. Philip McConnel took place at his family residence in Asphodel, east of Norwood on Tuesday, December 14th.

The deceased had been ill with pneumonia but had so far recovered as to be able to be up and around the house On Tuesday morning about five o"clock he got up and shortly after he returned to bed. In a few minutes his wife heard a strange noise and on going to his bedside discovered he had passed away.

The late Mr. McConnell was in his 69th year, had lived in this district for the past few years, and during his residence here had made many friends who will extend their sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives. Prior to moving to Norwood the deceased lived at Springbrook, Ont. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Maitland Kirk of Dummer and one son, Mr. Victor McConnell on the homestead.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from his late residence and interment will be made in the Norwood cemetery. Rev. R. F. Stillman of the United Church will have charge of the service at the home and at the grave.

WILLIAM GARDNER.

NORWOOD, Dec. 16.—The death of William Gardner occurred at his home in Dummer on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased, who had been an invalid for a long time, had been confined to his bed for the greater part of two years, and had borne his suffering with Christian fortitude. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one small daughter, also one brother, Mr. Fred Gardner, of Chicago.

The funeral will be held this afternoon from his late residence, and burial will be made in the Norwood Cemetery.

To the bereaved wife and daughter is extended the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends.

Was So Nervous The Least Noise Made Her Jump

Mrs. W. H. Yates, Ashern, Man., writes:—"I was bothered very much with my heart and nerves, and the least noise would make me jump and almost stop my heart beating.

I told my mother about it one day, and she said that she had been bothered the same way and told me to get a box of

THE CONTROL ACT.

According to a statement from the Attorney-General, Hon. W. H. Price,, Ontario will have to wait until the Legislature meets before it will learn the details of the Government control policy.

The bill is in the process of being drafted at the present time but it is the intention of the Government to keep the provisions secret until the measure is brought down in the House.

There will be ample time then for a discussion of the regulations, which it is hoped will be made as rigid as possible, in compliance with the Government's pre-election promise.

The people of Ontario, as a whole, are looking for a bill that will surround the Government sale of liquor with safeguards against abuses.

There ar many points that will require careful consideration, but the experience of other provinces affords an opportunity to eliminate doubtful features from the Ontario control act and to incorporate those portions of other provincial acts that have been found by actual test to work satisfactorily.

WINTER TOURISTS.

The efforts of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, to interest tourists in the delights of the Canadian winter deserve support.

There are features of the winters in this country that should attract our sport-loving neighbors, if their attention was drawn to them.

To some extent this has been done and the cities of Montreal and Quebec benefit by an influx of visitors attracted by the opportunties for ski-ing, skating and tobogganing that are to be found in those centres.

There is no reason why this winter touris; traffic could not be materially increased with great benefit to Canadians, not only because of the immediate financial results that would follow, but also by reason of the fact that a large number of visitors would remove a lot of the misunderstanding that exists elsewhere as to Canada's winter weather.

The prevailing impression that Canadians have to endure an Eskimo existence for six months every year has done a great deal of harm to this country, and if the Minister of the Interior succeeds in correcting the idea that the people of other countries have of our climate, he will have done a great deal for Canada.

WHAT ABOUT THE OTHER FELLOW?

All Peterborough is busy with its final preparations for Christmas.

In the homes of Examiner readers plans are being perfected for the happy celebration of the year's most joyous festival.

Loving hearts are planning pleasant surprises, details of the Christmas feast are being arranged, childish hearts are aglow with the thoughts of Santa Claus.

But there are homes in which the coming of Christmas is being awaited more with dread than with joy dread that the hopes of children may be blasted, dread that there will not be enough to eat at Yuletide, dread that even fuel may be lacking.

The Examiner asks its more fortunate readers to think of these homes

It is true that there are societies and organizations that intend to do what they can to bring the Christmas spirit into the home of every needy family.

But it should not all be left to these societies and organizations.

In your own neighborhood there may be a chance for a helping hand, an opportunity to make Christmas happier for some unlucky family.

In the fascination of mapping out your own Christmas programme don't forget the other fellow.

MUNICIPAL POLITICS.

The resignation of Ald. E. M. Turner from the City Council and his entrance into the race for the Utilities Commission, not only ensures a four-cornered fight for the Utilities vacancy, but makes it necessary to elect another alderman in place of Mr. Turner, whose term of office was not due to expire until the end of next year.

There are now four candidates definitely in the field for the Utilities Commission, ex-Alderman Turner, ex-Mayor G. H. Duncan, Fred Hills and E. R. Shirley, and one of the most interesting campaigns in the history of the Commission is ensured with so many well-known and well-qualified aspirants offering themselves.

There is unfortunately not the same enthusiasm evidenced in regard to the Council—yet the opportunities for service as an alderman are undoubtedly greater than are offered by the Utilities Commission.

The latter body deals only with two public services while the Council has to concern itself with almost every phase of municipal government, and good men are needed.

It is to be hoped that something of the interest shown in the Utilities election will make itself felt in connection with the Council before next Thursday.

A CHRISTMAS TERCENTENARY.

A special significance attaching to the observance of Christmas this year on this Continent is pointed out by The Montreal Herald. It marks the three hundredth anniversary of Santa Claus' first migration to America. In the absence of other definite Christmas anniversaries of this nature this anniversary carries special interest.

"In 1626 Peter Minuet purchased the island the Indians called Manhata and the Dutch founded thereon the colony of New Netherlands and the town of New Amsterdam," says The Herald. "With them to the New World the Dutch colonists brought their sturdy qualities of character, the customs of their homeland, and most blessed of all, that patron saint of childhood, Santa Claus.

"In the beginning December 6 was St. Nicholas' (Santa Claus') Day, and was so observed in New Amsterdam. It was not until 150 years later that the day of Santa Claus' visit was shifted to New Year's Eve and then, finally, to December 25, the present day of observance.

"Three centuries ago the little Dutch children on the island that is now the heart of New York City put out their shoes, with hay, straw and a carrot for Santa Claus' white horse, for at that time Kris Kringle had not yet acquired his eight tiny reindeer. When they awoke in the morning, if they had been good, the fodder was gone and in its place were toys and sweets.

"When the English captured New Amsterdam in 1664 and re-named the town New York, they abolished the public observance of Santa Claus' Day, but the children of Dutch descent continued to believe in their patron saint and converted the English-descended children to their belief."

Children in America and in other countries are largely indebted to the Dutch for the modern interpretation of Santa Claus. The name is from the Dutch Saint Nicolaus. St. Nicholas was an early bishop of Asia Minor and a popular saint in the Roman and Greek churches, being considered the patron of sailors, travellers, merchants, parish clerks, virgins and children. His feast day fell on December 6 and was elaborately celebrated in England before the Reformation, after which the practice largely died out. As the result of a legend connected with St. Nicholas it was long a custom in some European countries to keep St. Nicholas' Eve by placing gifts in the shoes or stockings of children. In time this custom was transferred to Christmas Eve, but St. Nicholas has continued the presiding spirit as Santa Claus and his special interest in children has waxed, rather than waned.

AN AMBASSADOR OF PEACE.

Quietly, almost unobserved amid the stir of events of less importance, there has just passed from the stage of European diplomacy a figure eminently worthy of public recognition for the part he has played in international affairs during the past few years. A brief official announcement that Sir Ronald Lindsay has entered upon his duties as ambassador at Berlin is Britain's way of intimating to the world a change in her diplomatic relationship with Germany that is of no little moment, and that is especially noteworthy as marking the completion of a term of brilliant statesmanship by one who deserves to rank among the greatest of Britain's pro-consuls.

Seldom has an ambassador been called upon to face a task more delicate and responsible than that which confronted Lord D'Abernon when, six years ago, he took up his residence in Berlin as Britain's representative. Germany, beaten to her knees in the great war she had precipitated, and in a state approaching anarchy, was sullen and revengeful, still seething with hate of the country she blamed most for her downfall. To the humiliation of defeat were added the terrors of revolution and the menace of industrial ruin and economic destruction. And encompassing her was a Europe in chaos, driven near to bankruptcy, suffering untold misery, and almost in despair of recovery from the appalling effects of the war.

Under such conditions, the duties of the British Ambassador at Berlin called for, not only exceptional tact and diplomatic skill, but faith, vision and statesmanship; and these qualities Lord D'Abernon proved himself to possess in abundant measure. Realizing from the first that the only hope of Europe's recovery and the assurance of future peace lay in a policy of conciliation and co-operation between the three great western powers—Britain, France and Germany—he unobtrusively set to work to promote the spirit essential to the attainment of that end.

As a preliminary step, Germany had to be convinced that her recent enemies could and would be her friends in helping to restore her economic structure, provided she played the game. France had to be persuaded that in her own interests, as well as in those of all other European countries, rapprochement was more to be desired than an attitude of suspicion or vindictiveness. And even in Britain, where passion cried aloud for vengeance, a change of spirit had to be invoked to ensure the reconstruction needed.

To destroy the weeds of rancour and distrust, and sow in their place the seeds of good-will and understanding was the purpose to the accomplishment of which Lord D'Abernon devoted himself with a zeal regarded at first in some of the chancellories of Europe as quixotic. How well he succeeded, history has already attested in her approval of the Dawes agreement, the Anglo-German commercial treaty of 1924, and the still more inspiring treaty of Locarno, for it is officially recorded, and generally recognized, that to him belongs much of the credit of making possible these achievements.

If further testimony to Lord D'Abernon's great work as an ambassador of peace and good-will were needed, it would be found in the fact that six years ago he entered Berlin amid scowls, jeers and insults, and he left it the other day, not only in an atmosphere of friendship, but with the blessings of President Hindenburg and his counsellors, and amid a remarkable demonstration of gratitude and affection on the part of the people.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The municipal nominations are only a week away and six aldermen will have to be elected, but aspirants for the Council are not crowding forward.

Miss Agnes MacPhail wants to make it necessary for a Prime Ministr to get the consent of a majority of the House before asking for dissolution. That's one idea from Canada's only woman member that contains some merit.

Safety first principles should be followed in regard to Christmas trees and decorations. Beware of inflammable materials and lighted candles.

Premier Ferguson is to spend ten days at his home town, Kemptville. Ontario's premier will be able to forget the cares of state in the warmness of the greetings of his ain folk.

Having missed the Provincial election, Jimmy Simpson bobs up again as a candidate—for the Toronto Board of Control. He is rapidly outdistancing Hon. E. C. Drury.

No opposition to a second term for Mayor Holloway has been suggested. It looks very much as if the municipal elections will not include a mayoralty contest.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here yesterday was again of a very limited character and business was dull, the only sales reported being a couple of loads of Canadian Western barley. In sympathy with the renewed strength in Winnipeg for oats yesterday, the local cash market was stronger and prices were advanced 1 cent per bushel, but the demand was quiet.

The weakness that developed in the ocean freight situation on Tuesday was again in evidence yesterday and the rates to all the United Kingdom ports for December loading were reduced another 6d. per quarter and now room is offering at 4s. per quarter with the exception of Hull, which is 5s. per quarter.

Owing to the renewed strength in the cash wheat situation at Winnipeg, a firmer feeling prevailed in the local market for spring wheat grades of flour, but prices showed no change. A moderate amount of business was done.

A feature of the flour trade of late has been the weaker feeling in the market for ocean freight space from Canadian Winter ports and a further decline of 2 cents per hundred pounds was announced yesterday. The rate to Liverpool and London was quoted at 28c per hundred pounds, to Avonmouth at 29c per hundred pounds, and to Glasgow and Leith at 30c per hundred pounds for December-January shipment.

The demand for Winter wheat grades showed an improvement and the prices were steady.

An active business was transacted in all lines of millfeed and values were firm. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was good and the tone of the market was firm.

Considerable business was again transacted in fresh and storage eggs and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 1,067 cases.

The trade in potatoes was quiet, but prices ruled steady. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.80 to $1.85 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.55 to $1.60 ,and Quebec White stock at $1.45 to $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

Owing to the continued small offerings of beans the tone of the market was firm under a steady demand. Car lots of choice white handpicked sold at $2.75 per bushel, and broken lots at $3.00 per bushel.

The butter market was quiet but firm. The receipts were 36 packages.

The demand for chese was inactive but values were well maintained. The receipts were 244 boxes.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 3-8.
Sterling cables $4.85 3-4.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Vigorous upturns in wheat values yesterday resulted from more attention being given to domestic conditions and less to reiterated reports of world surplus stocks.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1 1-8 to 1 5-8c net higher, with corn 1-2 to 3-4c up; oats showing 3-8 to 1 1-8c advance, and provisions at gains 5 to 70 cents.

Corn went up in value with wheat but lagged a little on account of possibility of larger corn receipts.

Oats displayed independent strength, both May and July touching a new high price record for the season.

Country advices indicated that oats were scarce and the crop quality low.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 10,000; best yearlings $14.35 for Christmas trade; best heavies $11.25; bulk fed steers $9.00 to $11.00; vealers closing 25c or more higher; mostly $11.00; outsiders $12.00 to $12.50.

Hogs 12,000; top $11.55; bulk desirable hogs on early rounds $11.40 to $11.50; late sales 170 to 230 pounds $11.25 to $11.35; mostly; most packing sows $10.35 to $10.75; most slaughter pigs $11.00 to $11.25.

Sheep 15,000; top fed westerns and natives to all interests $13.00; strictly choice heavy lambs $12.35; most heavy lambs around $12.00; good fed clipped lambs $11.25; fat ewes $5.00 to $6.50; yearling wethers $9.00 to $9.75; to $10.00; load lots downward to $6.75.

FRUITS VALUABLE BUT DANGEROUS

All health authorities are today preaching the need for the use of more fruit. While I am for the "Eat more fruit" slogan, I believe that often so much harm is caused in using fruit in improper combinations with other food, that all the good effect is destroyed, and one is often made to suffer an excess amount of hyperacidity of the stomach, because of using large quantities of fruit and not knowing how to use the fruit properly with other foods.

Ripe fruits can sometimes be used with a meal, especially if they are in the acid class of fruit, such as oranges, grapefruit, peaches, cherries, apricots, etc.

A great deal of trouble is caused if these fruits are used at a meal containing starches, and many a case of acute indigestion has come from using one of these acid fruits after a hearty dinner which contained bread and potatoes. These acid fruits are best used by themselves—an entire meal being made of one kind of fruit. If this does not seem enough for a meal, it is often a good plan to use two or three glasses of milk at the same time, as this combination of fruit and milk makes a very nourishing and palatable meal.

The practice of using grapefruit with breakfast along with a cereal, is a custom which cannot be too strongly condemned.

If grapefruit or oranges are used they should be used at least one hour before breakfast, so sufficient time will have elapsed for it to have left the stomach before any food, such as a cereal, is used.

Great care should be used in selecting fruit to see that it is properly ripened. Green fruit contains too large an amount of acid, while over-ripe fruit ferments too easily and sets up abnormal fermentation of other good foods.

Modern methods of transportation and refrigeration have made it possible to enjoy fruit all the year round; of course, some fruits are rare at certain seasons, but can usually be purchased even though at a high price.

However, the best time to use fruit is in season, and my advice is for you to use all you can during the summer season by taking a furit meal a day, such as lunch, using one of the following fruits: Apples, apricots, peaches, nectarines, pears, grapes, oranges, grapefruit, plums, loquats, cherries, berries, pineapple, tomatoes and melons.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE THIRTEENTH ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITTANICA

By Dr. Frank Crane.

The thirteenth edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica is being prepared.

Few people have an idea of the immense research and labor that this involves.

Almost every distinguished authority in his line is asked to contribute.

Professor Einstein will discuss time and space, Professor Aston atomic energy, Sir Ernest Rutherford the constitution of matter, and Mme. Curie radium.

Twenty winners of the Nobel Prize are contributors on scientific and medical subjects.

There is an article on household appliances and pictures of the electrical devices for solving the servant problem.

Mr. Reith of the British Broadcasting Company writes on broadcasting and Marconi on wireless.

An idea of the way in which chemists are improving on nature will be found in the account of the production of artificial silk.

Mr. J. L. Garvin edits that section which deals with contemporary history and politics. He and Bernard Shaw discuss socialism and capitalism.

Presidents, prime ministers, and government officials of half the countries of the world will contribute. These include Caillaux, Streseman, Colonel Bethlen, President Masaryk, Colonel House, Trotzsky, and about five members of President Coolidge's cabinet.

Turning to the lighter sides of life, jazz, the Charleston, crossword puzzles and mah-jongg will be treated.

Altogether it will furnish a compendium of information and authoritative facts gathered from all parts of the world and will be a remarkable publication.

CREW FEARED FOR OWN SAFETY

Tried Force Captain To Keep Distance From Shoal Waters.

NOT MUTINY.

WILMINGTON, N.C., December 16. — Canadian Press. Fear for their own safety and not mutiny, led the crew of the four-masted schooner Charles A. Dean to seek to induce Captain A. W. Albert to keep the vessel at a greater distance from the shoal waters about the North Carolina Capes than he wanted to, members of the crew said yesterday at the Oak Island coast guard station.

Coast guardsmen said that the crew members told them that they thought the Captain was hugging the shore line too closely with the 1475 ton vessel on Monday night and that they asked him to go farther to sea. Instead, they said, he drew a pistol, and peremptorily ordered them into the bow of the boat and defied them to disobey his orders.

On Monday night the vessel went aground on Frying Pan shoals, and when coast guardsmen and pilots attempted to board her Captain Albert ordered them off and showed his weapon. Last night when the guards men returned with arms he permitted them to board the vessel and took off the crew of three white men and five negroes but refused to leave himself.

The crew was returned to the ship to-day and four tugs from this port and Southport are trying to pull the schooner off the shoals.

Attaches of the coast guard station said that they had been informed that there has been some drinking among the members of the crew but when they boarded the vessel last night no liquor was found. Members of the crew however were quoted as saying there had been liquor on board but that "it had been disposed of."

SENATE GRANTS MANY DIVORCES

Does All In Its Power To Play Santa To Applicants.

HOPES DASHED.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16.—The Senate is doing everything in its power to play Santa Claus to the applicants for divorce whose hopes were dashed when the last parliament collapsed. There were 38 divorce bills through the Senate and the House, and awaiting royal assent. In three or four of these cases opposition has been signified, and they must stand over for the taking of evidence after the Christmas recess. The Senate will not reassemble until near the end of February. In one case the wife has died and the case is withdrawn. The remainder of cases, if it is at possible, they will be given royal assent today. The sudden shortening of the session of the commons may interfere again in the programme, but it is not thought likely now.

LABOR QUESTION AGAIN BEFORE HOLY VATICAN

Agitation of Minor Employees Over Apportionment of Wage Increase.

CAUSED FLURRY.

Deny Rumor There Would Be Any Change Among Vatican Officials.

ROME, Dec. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—Labor troubles have broken out in the Vatican. The agitation among minor employes of the Holy See based upon discontent over the apportionment of the new wage increases culminated this evening with the report that Monsignor Samper, papal major and prefect of the apostolic palaces, had tendered his resignation to the Pope after a special meeting of high prelates.

The Vatican denied that Mgr. Samper had tendered his resignation or that there would be any change among the vatican officials. The report, however, was given wide circulation and caused a stir in ecclesiastical circles because for a long time Mgr. Samper has been mentioned as a possibility for the College of Cardinals.

Discontent among the minor vatican employes has been manifest for several months but it seemed to have disappeared in a measure recently after the Pope granted wage increases, with the provision that these should be retroactive. A few days ago, however, discontent broke out anew, when a group of workers refused to accept the wage arrears handed to them by the administration of the apostolic palaces. They declared that those intrusted with the task of distribution had failed to carry out the work properly and that they did not consult the foreman of the laborers although expressly expressly ordered to do so by the pontiff.

The discontent affected the Museum attaches, gardeners, cleaners, sweepers of the Pope's chambers, and several other classes of employes, They maintain that their increases amounted to much less than what the ushers and doormen had received.

An appeal was made to the Pope, who created three new classes of workmen with sufficiently higher wages to meet the request of many of the malcontents, but others were not satisfied and virtually went on strike.

The report that it would be necessary for the salary committee of the vatican to resign was followed by the report of Mgr. Samper's imminent exit which was interpreted to mean that he had decided to accept personally full responsibility.

UNDER INDICTMENT.

Kenneth G. Ormiston Faces Charges of Conspiracy To Obstruct Justice.

LOS ANGELES, December 16. — Canadian Press.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio man in the Aimee Semple McPherson case, was indicted on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice by the Los Angeles county grand jury yesterday.

Officials who had asked the action to facilitate his return from Chicago found their plans legally blocked, however, since Ormiston is yet in the hands of private investigators.

BUYS LONDON HOUSE.

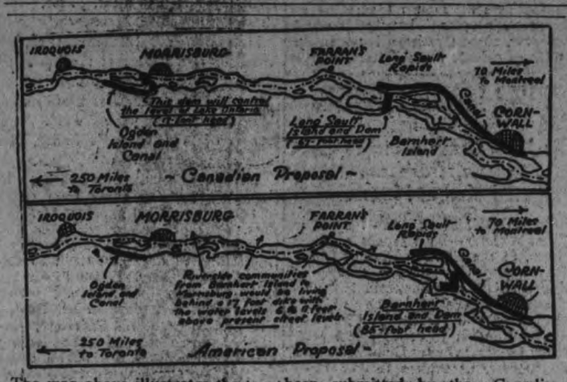
A royal romance has developed between Princess Irene of Greece, LEFT, and Prince Aymon, Duke of Spoleo, nephew of the king of Italy, and their engagement is expected to be announced shortly. The fair Grecian princess is a younger sister of Princess Helen, wife of Prince Carol of Rumania. The young couple met recently when Prince Aymon was visiting Rumania in quest of a bride for Crown Prince Humbert of Italy.

Above is Robert Johnson, Sr., a veteran settler of Muskoka, Ontario, and his son, Robert Jr., with large bear and cub which they shot. The cub was found while Wm. Johnson, Sr., was hunting rabbits on an island and the larger bear was seen swimming in the lake. A couple honeymooning assisted in heading the bear toward shore where two shots did the trick.



The map above illustrates the two plans of power development on the St. Lawrence river, which have been submitted by the Canadian and United States sections of the joint board of engineers, which studied the project.

Miss Aileen Hughes, daughter of Lady Hughes, widow of Sir Sam Hughes, former minister of militia for Canada who is to be married to James Freeman Clarke, of Boston, Mass. Mr. Clarke is very prominently known in Boston. Following the wedding, which is to take place in the late winter, he will take his bride to Boston to reside. Mr. Clarke is the son of the late Eliot C. and Alice Devermandois (Sohier) Clarke, and is a grandson of the late Rev. Dr. James Freeman Clarke, founder of the Church of the Disciples. He is a graduate of Middlesex school and of Harvard class of 1910. During the world war he was captain in the 101st U.S. field artillery and saw considerable laison service at the front. He is connected with a prominent banking house in Boston, and is a member of the Union Club Oakely Country Club, Union Boat Club, Boston City Club and the Harvard Club of Boston. Miss Hughes, who is internationally known as a big game hunter, admitted today that the romance dates back three years when she and Mr. Clarke met while members together of the British East African hunting expedition. She returned to Canada with "Luce Kenya Simba,' live lion cub. The photo, taken on her arrival, shows Miss Hughes and "Luce." The animal, which is now dead, has been stuffed for museum purposes.

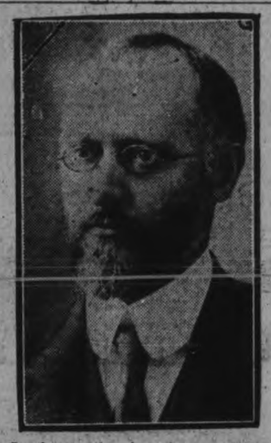
Last week Senator William Marconi, wireless wizard, was in audience with the Pope. Reports were that his holiness wished to have the "inside" story of the new secret short wave. It has since become known that the inventor is seeking ecclesiastical annulment of his marriage.

Marconi was married in 1905 to the Hon. Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of the fourteenth Baron Inchiquin, and was divorced from her in the civil courts a few years ago. Although both are Protestants, application was made recently to the Catholic Curia of Westminster, for annulment on the ground that defective legality was involved. The annulment was provisionally granted. Final annulment requires confirmation by the sacred congregation of the Rota in Rome. Three children were born to Senator and Mrs. Marconi. According to the precedent in the Marlborough case their legitimacy would not be affected. It is reported that Marconi now desires to marry a Rome society woman. UPPER LEFT is his former wife, with her daughter, Gioio Yolande. LOWER RIGHT, she is shown in a photo taken during her visit to this continent. She was at one time lady-in-waiting to the Queen of Italy.

Lady Arthur Pearson, widow of Sir Arthur Pearson, who was blind, has set herself the task of a journey round the world to visit all St. Dunstan's branches in the empire that she can get into personal touch with the various sightless men trained at these institutions. Like her husband, Lady Pearson spends the whole of her time working in the interests of the blind.



Inadvertently the above picture of G. T. Bell, veteran Canadian railwayman, was sent out on November 10, with lines to the effect that he had died, while as a matter of fact, he had merely retired from active railway service.

ANNUAL ELECTION L.O.B.A. OFFICERS

Star of Bethlehem Lodge Holds Well Attended Meeting.

Star of Bethlehem, L.O.B.A., 650, annual election and installation of officers was held last evening in Victoria Hall, when the reports for the year just closing were presented. The election of officers for 1927 was duly conducted by Bro. F. Brown, Deputy County Master, assisted by M. Wright, W.M. Vimy Ridge; E. Brown, W.M. Eastern Star; Sisters R. Sexsmith, F. Brown and M. Frost. The officers are:

W.M., E. Tate; I.P.M., C. Burnham; D.M., Z. Thorne; Chap., E. Shurety; Rec Sec., J Thorne, re-elected; Fin Sec., E. Langton; Treas., A. Wigg, re-elected; 1st Lecturer, M. Clee, re-elected; 2nd Lecturer, G. Godfrey; Deputy Lect., G. Langton; D. of C., J. Pattison; Committeemen, 1st, M. Fowler; 2nd, Terrace; 3rd, Cheu; 4th, Anderson; 5th, Godfrey; I.G., C. Smith; O.G., Bro. E. G. Clarke; Guardian, Bro. F. W. Burnham; Pianist, F. Shurety; Captain, Bro H. Sunman.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Bro. F. Brown and assistants for the splendid way in which the election was conducted.

Sister Staples, R.W.P.G., Deputy Secretary, was then called on to install the officers, assisted by Sister A. Henley, R.W.P.G., D. of C., and Sister Moore, W.M. Victoria, L.O.B.A, Lindsay

At the conclusion of the installation, the newly elected W.M. called R.W. Sister Burnham before the altar, where Sister Jean Thorne read the following address:

Dear Sister Burnham.—As you are passing on to a chair of honor, we the Sisters and Brothers of 650, wish to present you with this jewel as a token of our appreciation for your untiring interest taken in the lodge since we organized just one year and ten months ago. Signed on behalf of the officers and members of Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A., 650.

W.M. E. Tate, Rec. Sec. J. Thorne.

After which R.W. Sister Henley presented the P.M. jewel. R.W. Sister Burnham, although very much taken by surprise, responded in a very able manner. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered R.W. Sister Staples, Henley and Moore for the efficient manner in which they carried out the installation.

The visitors were then called on for speeches. Sister Moore, W.M., and R.W. Sister Henley carrying greetings from Lindsay L.O.B.A. Short speech from each of the new officers followed. Refreshments were then served by Sisters Shurety, Terrace, and Townsley.

HOCKEY DISPUTE STILL UNSETTLED

Conference of League Heads This Morning Has No Result.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—A conference of Frank Calder, of Montreal, National Hockey League president, with A. H. Warren, head of the American Association, has failed to settle the dispute between the two groups over the two Canadian amateur players, Marvin Wentworth and Teddy Graham, signed by the Chicago American Association club.

Warren said he expected to meet E. J. Livingstone, head of the Chicago club, to-day, and confer again with Calder, but meanwhile the whole American Association stands under the "outlaw" order of Calder. The Windsor and London clubs of the Canadian amateur loop have not been paid for funds advanced the two players, Calder said, and Livingstone has refused to pay for their contracts, contending they were amateurs.

Wales Finds Misery In Slums Of London

LONDON, Dec. 16 (United Press).—The Prince of Wales has been slumming again, but instead of gaiety on his second visit to the dismal end of London, Wales this time found misery. Accompanied by two friends, Wales visited the Somerstown, North London, slum area. His Royal Highness's coming was unannounced. He entered several datk hovels and remarked heatedly upon the conditions he found within.

In one house of four rooms and two attics Wales found twenty-one persons living. In another house he saw the sodden bed of a woman and learned that the roof was no protection against London's usual weather, which is damp or rainy.

A week ago Wales visited the tough Stepney district of the East End and delighted a group of his future subjects by going behind a public bar and drawing a glass of beer.

PETERBORO' U.F.O. ELECTS OFFICERS

E. A. Scott Again Chosen President—Successful Year.

The Peterboro Branch of the United Farmers of Ontario held its annual meeting in the club rooms on Tuesday evening, with a good number present. The local organization is in a very thrifty condition. Both the membership and the finances are growing from year to year. E. A. Scott, president, gave a report of the year's work, taking each meeting in turn. J. H. Lewis, secretary-treasurer, reported on the finances. Mr. C. S. Brown, secretary for the shipping board, gave his usual good report, the board shipping many more head than last year. Mr. Earl Petrie gave a splendid paper on the best methods of sheep raising. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—E. A. Scott.
Vice-President—C. E. Moore.
Secretary-Treasurer—J. H. Lewis.
Directors—Smith: Albert Armstrong and W. R. Shields. Douro: Walter Garbutt. Otonabee: W. J. Tully and W. W. Dawson. Monaghan, Cavan, Carman Seymour.
Auditors—V. S. Milburn and Roy Sanderson.
Members to Shipping Board—C. S. Brown, C. E. Moore and James H. Shields.
Delegates to Provincial Convention — W. R. Shields and E. A. Scott.

BOOTBLACKS ASK FOR SUNDAYS OFF

Seek Police Ruling Closing Shoe Shine Parlors on Sunday.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Dec. 16. — (United Press).—The left wing of the bootblacks will shine themselves up to-day to appear before Police Commissioner McLaughlin and ask him to close up every shoe shining establishment in New York on Sunday.

The Radicals are sick and tired of spending their Sundays shining the shoes of persons with nothing but time on their hands. As occasionally happens when extreme measures are contemplated, the insurgents have formed a coalition with one of the most conservative bodies in the world.

The Rev. Dr. Harry L. Bowlby, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, has agreed to present their claims.

BAILIFF BETTER.

Took Turn Yesterday Morning, Improving All Day.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 16.— After hovering for hours near death from septic pneumonia, Bailiff Charles St. Charles of Madoc, rallied toward morning yesterday, and all day was much brighter, his temperature being near normal and breathing much freer. Dr. Eagleson, his doctor, remained at the bedside all night. St. Charles is, however, still in danger.

Empire Pudding Made For King's Christmas Dinner

LONDON, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—His Majesty the King has accepted an "Empire" Christmas pudding, the ingredients of which are solely of an Empire nature and are recommended to the public by the Empire Marketing Board for Christmas puddings generally. The donors of the pudding are especially interested in the Empire Day movement.

The King's pudding consists of Canadian flour, Australian and South African raisins, Australian sultanas and currants, Demarara sugar, English and Scottish beef suet, English apples, English eggs, Indian spice, and Jamaica rum.

LADIES' GLEE CLUB MAKES ITS DEBUT

Public Performance Given at Meeting of Women's Music Club.

The Ladies' Glee Club of the Peterborolgh Women's Music Club made its debut in a public performance yesterday afternoon in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, on the occasion of the Christmas Gathering of the Club, which proved to be a very happy and successful event, imbued with the spirit of Christmas in every detail of the programme and the decorations of the big hall, which was made cosier than usual by the erection of a tall screen which shut off the lower portion. This screen, contrived of red paper over a framework, with a slashed red paper lattice, was decorated with the evergreens which were also placed in the windows, along with holly wreaths centred with little red bells. Christmas trees with glistening ornaments and tinsel festoons, were placed in each corner of the room, and wreaths of glowing immortelles, scarlet poinsettias and lighted red candles, added to the Christmas note in the decorations of the hall and stage.

The members of the Glee Club were in choir gowns of black, with white collars, and presented a very attractive appearance, the majority of the members of the Club, which has a total of nearly forty ladies in its personnel, being present for the occasion. Led by Miss Mabel Clarry, they sang in tuneul voice, with a smooth delivery and pleasing volume of tone, several of the lovely Christmas carols, including two old Sixteenth Century composition; "At Solemn Midnight" and "Sing Nowell"; "When the Sun has Sunk to Rest," the latter forming an intermission in the reading of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," and "In Reverent Awe and Silent Night," from the "Adoration," by Nevin, this selection demonstrating the Glee singers' proficiency in its unaccompanied rendition. Solos in two of the carols were sung by Mrs. H. F. Doig, whose attractive soprano was heard to great advantage in the pretty carols.

Mrs. G. E. Porter acted as accompanist for the Glee Club's numbers. During the entertainment, the leader of the club, Miss Mabel Clarry, was presented with a basket containing roses and chrysanthemums, the presenation being made by the president, Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, who said that the success of the organization was largely due to Miss Clarry's proficiency and untiring endeavors as a director.

The reading of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by Mrs. Jack MacNab was a much-appreciated portion of the programme, the reader bringing out in pleasant fashion the picture of the immortal Scrooge, with his companions, Bob Cratchit and Tiny Tim.

Mr. Maurice H. Park sang, in his usual pleasing style, two Christmas carols: "A Christmas Tree" and "Mr. Wardle's Christmas Carol from "Pickwick." Accompaniments were played by Miss Agnes Logan.

The community singing of three Christmas carols, led by the Glee singers, in which the audience, numbering over one hundred ladies and several gentlemen who came as guests of the club, joined in heartily, concluded the musical portion of the programme, which was followed by the service of Christmas refreshments which included fruit-cake and shortbread, doughnuts and sandwiches tied with tiny red and green ribbons.

FALL AND DOHENY FOUND NOT GUILTY

Acquitted To-day of Conspiracy Charge—Face Other Counts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press). — Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny were acquitted to-day of the conspiracy charge which grew out of the Senate oil disclosures.

Nineteen hours after the case was placed in its hands, the jury in the Criminal Court here decided there had been no proof of criminal conspiracy in the oil leasing negotiations of 1921 and 1922, resulting in the award of Government leases to the Doheny interests.

The verdict ended the conspiracy proceedings against the former Cabinet official and the oil magnate, as no appeal is possible. Both still are under indictment for bribery, however, as a result of the $100,000 transaction.

Fall and Harry Sinclair, with whom he negotiated the Teapot Dome oil lease loan, are also under indictment on conspiracy and bribery charges.

The defendants and their relatives received the verdict with undisguised emotion. Mrs. Fall wept in happiness. Fall himself said that his confidence in the courts "had been justified."

"I have said all along that I would leave it to the courts and that I had confidence in them,' he said. "I have never liked to try a case in the newspapers, and I have nothing else to say now."

Doheny said he was "gratified," and that the "ordeal has been a terrible one."

"After a life time of honorable effort, I have seen my principal work, which was to make a good name to hand to my son and my grandchildren, almost destroyed," he said. "I hope that the American people whose belief in trial by jury amounts almost to religion, will accept the verdict of this typically American jury."

CROWD ATTACKS NEWSPAPERMEN

Accuse Reporter of Sneering at Labor Candidate's Meeting.

WOMEN IN LEAD.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press Cable)—Newspapermen reporting meetings being held in the Smethwick by-election by Oswald Mosley, rich Labor candidate, have become involved in a tumult said to be due to righteous indignation of Mosley's supporters because of personalities levelled against the Labor candidate.

When a member of the press box was accused of sneering at a meeting in the local theatre last night a crowd of the Virago type attempted to storm the press box and one woman thrust her hand through a thick pane of glass in an effort to assault newspapermen.

Mosley endeavored to pacify the women with the remark that newspapermen were only wage slaves of capitalists, while Ellen Wilkinson, M.P., who was on the platform, appealed to the demonstrative members of her sex to "sit quiet and smile."

Alluding to the press men whom the crowd exhorted to note Miss Wilkinson's sentiments, the woman member of parliament remarked: "They will put it down only if I tell them why I bobbed my hair."

BOARD HEARS CASE OF HORTICULTURISTS

Changes Asked in Tariff on Vegetables, Fruits and Plants.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—The hearing by the Tariff Advisory Board of the reference from the Canadian Horticultural Council asking for changes in the tariff on vegetables, fruits and nursery stocks, which opened here today brought interested representatives from all parts of Canada.

Hon. George Graham, chairman, explained that the requests of the Horticultural Council had in a partial manner been laid before the board last October, but he proposed to give them ample opportunity now to submit their case as they saw fit.

LABOR SUBMITS MANY PROPOSALS

Premier Promises Consideration By Cabinet After Hearing Delegation.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Your submissions for proposed legislation will receive the careful consideration of the members of the Government, Premier W. L. Mackenzie King informed a deputation from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada this morning, who presented to the Prime Minister and his Cabinet a programme of legislative proposals covering approximately forty subjects.

Each Minister of the Government, stated Premier King, would make a careful study of the legislative proposals affecting his particular department, and the whole legislative programme proposed would subsequently be discussed at a meeting of the Cabinet, with a view to seeing what could be done toward carrying out some of the suggested measures.

Legislation for the relief of unemployment, a system of unemployment insurance, giving of effect to the "eight hour day convention," in so far as it lies withi the jurisdiction of the Dominion authorities, new legislation insuring one day's rest in seven, amendments to the Criminal Code to permit peaceful picketing in the course of a strike, full reimbursement to Home Bank depositors, a national fuel policy, reform of the Senate, amendments to the election of Cabinet ministers upon appointment following general election, a federal pension scheme of not less than $30.00 a month, payable upon reaching the age of 65 years and after 15 years domicile in Canada, alterations to the immigration act, measures respecting the registration of union labels, and the establishment of Christmas and New Year's Day as legal holidays for letter carriers, were among the legislative proposals submitted by the deputation.

Stock Pirces Go Down Despite Dividend Rumors

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (Canadian Press)—Despite widespread rumors of a special "Christmas dividend" to United States Steel stockholders and lower call money rates, stock prices turned reactionary this afternoon after an opening display of strength.

United tSates Steel common, which touched 157 1-4, was hammered down to 155 3-8 in the early afternoon. Commercial Solvents "B" broke nearly eight points and Baldwin, International Harvester, Pullman, and United States Cast Iron Pipe sold three to nearly five points below yesterday's final quotations. Oils also tapered off quickly. Call money dropped from five to 4 1-2 per cent with plenty of funds available at the lower figure.

Wheat Prices Rise After Drop At Opening

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press). — Wheat tended upward anew to-day after a little set-back at the start. Argentine exports of wheat were expected to be larger but Black Sea shipments had a big falling off. Opening unchanged to 5-8 cent lower, wheat sagged a little all around and then scored a moderate general advance. Corn, oats, and provisions were easy, corn starting at ¼ cent decline to an equal gain, and then holding near to initial figures.

Opening figures were: Wheat, December 138 7-8, May 139 7-8; corn, December unquoted, May 82⅛; oats December 46 3-8, May 50 3-4.

Nipissing and Noranda Leaders Of Mine Market

TORONTO, December 16. Canadian Press. — Nipissing and Noranda's advances were features of this morning's session of the Standard Mining Exchange. Noranda climbed up to 22.95 and at the noon close of 22.90, was 75c higher. Nipissing advanced 50c at 8.00. The market was generally firm and trading remained heavy. Hollinger advanced 30c at 19.45, and Argonaut recovered another point at 51½. Duprat was active but held within a narrow range and closed at 30. Various other advances were recorded.

B. A. Oil Is Feature On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—British American Oil dominated this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange with rapid climb in heavy dealings, to record high of 85 1-4. It closed at the top, a gain from yesterday of 3 3-4 points. The new British American Oil stock made its appearance at 21 1-4 and firmed a quarter in the session. Industrial Alcohol and Nipissing were other active leaders. Nipissing advanced 65 cents at 8.05, but Alcohol, after touching a high of 34 1-4, eased to 32 3-4 at the noon close, a net lossof a point and an eighth. Seagrams firmed an eighth at 17 1-2 and Noranda advanced 74 cents to 22.99. Brazilian improved 3-4 at 107. Nickel at 38 1-4 was easier.

THE ROMANCE HUNTERS.

Rollicking Comedy Put On By A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church.

Well acted and well staged, the three act comedy, "The Romance Hunters" was successfuly presented last night in St. John's Parish Hall under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. Those taking part showed careful and painstaking practice, although in a few places there was hesitancy as lines were forgotten for the moment. Little nervousness was displayed and the audience concurred with Mayor Holloway when he said that the young people had displayed great talent.

The play concerns a certain maiden lady, Miss Amanda Armen, who desires for her niece, Margaret, the romance which she herself had never had. Her idea of romance, however, is centred about lords and ladies, theatres and balls, and when Howard Vanter, a somewhat crooked young man, introduces a wandered fhom he has defrauded as his cousin, Sir Clement she decides not to go to Europe. Howard's idea is that his relationship Sir Clement will secure for him the lady's favor in his suit for her nieces hand.

Jim Harrison, whom Margaret loves, leaves for the west on the same day as Enoch Westervelt's money is stolen and is suspected, as he is the only one who knew where it was hidden. Howard is the thief, however, and is exposed in the end when the supposed Sir Clement confesses that he has no title and has never been in Europe.

Comedy is added by Cindy, Miss Amanda's colored maid, and her lazy lover, Rufus Green, and Liza Stuben, the village gossip, who always "Wants to know" and likes to tell everything first.

The cast:

Resolution Introduced Urging That House Should Fix Dissolution Date.

TORONTO, Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press).—J. J. Morrison secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, addressing the convention here yesterday, urged that during the next four years Ontario farmers should make a study of their problems and seek an effective way of meeting them.

"There is no sign of any storm on the political horizon for the next three or four years," he said, referring to the return to power of the Conservative administration in Ontario. "This should not mean hibernation politically by farmers for that period, nor does it mean the getting ready for partisan struggle when the next bout is called; but it should mean an intensive study of the economic problems that affect our industry and our people and in finding the most effective way to meet them.

"In the language of the back concessions, let us fix our fences. Farmers are justified in using organized methods to bring about fair treatment and fair representation for their industry and their class. Therefore our duty is carefully to seek the most effective way to bring about what we desire in the interests of our industry and out nation.'

Mr. Morrison's report showed the total membership has increased by 1,549, the total being 19,836.

Miss Agnes MacPhail, M. P., for Grey Southeast, spoke briefly at the convention, saying she had been called to Ottawa, and would not be present tomorrow when certain resolutions would be discussed. This resolution urges that the Prime Minister should not be allowed to dissolve the House of Commons unless a majority of the House were agreed. Miss MacPhail urged immediate adoption of the resolution but Harold Curry of Middlesex thought a great deal of discussion would ensue when the resolution came up.

"It is not a constitutional question" Miss McPhail said. "The Prime Minister would go to the Governor General as he has always done, but he would go only when we tell him and not when he pleases himself. The people's representatives are the people to decide when within the term allowed by law, they wished to dissolve parliament."

Donald McKenzie of the United Farmers of Manitoba, spoke briefly, saying he brought the best wishes of his organizatoin to the United Farmers of Ontario. He is proceeding to Ottawa.

A commitete was selected to draft a resolution expressing appreciation of the services rendered by J. J. Morrison, secretary.

TWO MEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Car Leaps From High Bank Into Creek, Landing Upside Down.

LITTLE DAMAGE.

ORLAND, Dec. 16—Two Toronto men had a miraculous escape from death yesterday afternoon near Brighton. They were motoring down the steep hill on the highway leading into the village, when the driver lost control o fthe car in a rut. The automobile swung sideways across the road and leaped from a high bank to the edge of a large creek, thirty or forty feet away, narrowly missing a tree. From there it jumped into the middle of the creek, landing upside down. The men opened the door of the sedan and walked out little the worse for their adventure. One wheel of the car was smashed but otherwise little damage resulted.

MASONIC AT HOME HELD AT HASTINGS

Large Attendance at Successful Social Event in Hall.

HASTINGS, Dec. 16.—The local Masons held an At Home in the Masonic Hall on Friday evening at which a large crowd attended.

The hall was artistically decorated in red, white and blue, with Yuletide, tinsel stars and bells.

The guests were received by a reception committee and each registered before the activities commenced. Progressive euchre was the first item of the evening's entertainment. Those winning the prizes were: Ladies, Mrs. A. V. German; gentlemen, Dr. E. Wilson.

Lunch was served by the members of the Lodge after which a programme was given. Mr. J. A. Knight played a violin solo accompanied by Mrs. Knight on organ. Worshipful Master W. R. Learmonth acted as chairman and gave a splendid address of welcome to the guests, and gave a brief report of the work of the lodge since its organization a year ago.

Mr. W. M. Fowlds and Mr. Alex Wilson and Dr. W. E. Wilson were also called on for short addresses.

A vocal solo, accompanied by auto harp was rendered by Mrs. G. Faux, and community singing was heartily joined in by all present. Before the close all joined hands singing "Auld Lang Syne."

FACE WOULD SMART TERRIBLY

Hard, Red Pimples Broke Out. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble was caused by eating apples. My face began to break out with pimples that were hard and red at first and then festered and scaled over. They spread all over my face making it very sore. After the scales came off my face would burn and smart terribly.

"I used everything I could think of without any benefit. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and in four weeks I was healed, after using two cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Edith Brown, 37 Fortney Pl., Barre, Vt., Sept. 24, 1925.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

When, on Friday evening Cherry returned a little early from her down-town work and beheld the transformed living room, she seized "Long" waiting rather shyly for her approval, and began to whirl him around and around in a mad dance of joy.

"Like it? I bought the rug," her brother broke her clasp and began to point out improvements for her admiration. "Thought that plain brown velvet with the border of flowers and parrots would go swell with the curtains and davenport. And look at the side table, and the chair! And see—I painted the old pier glass black. Like it? Hey? Watch out for that piano bench! That varnish doesn't dry as quick as the lacquer does. Pretty swell, huh?"

"You said it!" she clasped her hands like a delighted child. "New paper that looks like a million dollars, that old wicker chair looking as if it had come right out of Robinson's, at forty-eight smackers, davenport looking like the lap of luxury, in a Cecil de Mille set—oh, boy! Who'd have thought it? You and Faith have been angels, and when I'm lighting cigarets with ten dollar bills, I'll not forget you."

"Is pretty nifty, ain't it?" "Long" shuffled his long legs in strange embarrassment. "Say, Kid, Dad'll gradually get the old homestead fixed up—coat o' paint next spring, wide new porch with a swing. Gonna look pretty good—make a nice fly trap, if you're still—oh, what I mean is, you don't have to marry that old bozo, that rich geezer. Stick and land a real guy. Money ain't everything—" he paused, defeated by the gathering storm in her lovely, suddenly hard little face.

"Mind your own business!" she commanded him sharply. "I'm sick of being poor! How many chances do you think a working girl has to land a rich man? And I'd die before I'd marry a garage mechanic or a counter-jumper or a bookkeeper. I may be young but I wasn't born yesterday! I know when I've got something good, and I'm not going to let it slip through my fingers."

"Aw, well, it's your funeral," "Long" flushed angrily and swung out of the room.

The quicksilver temper of the girl veered suddenly. With a pleased smile, she went about the room, touching the new draperies and the black - and - red-lacquered furniture with caressing fingers.

"Not bad!" she murmured. "Sweet old Faith!"

But her tone changed again to anger when the insinuating, nostril-tickling odor of frying onions poured in increasing waves into the newly decorated living room. She flew straight to the kitchen, her eyes blazing.

"Onions! My heavens, Faith, onions! Tonight of all nights!"

Faith went calmly on stirring the fragrant brown discs in the frying pan. "Dad made a special request for steak smothered with onions, and I didn't see that there was any reason to deny him. He doesn't often express a wish for any particular food, and when he does he's going to get it, as long as I am cook on this ranch. If your Mr. Cluny's nose is too aristocratic for good honest fried onions, he can follow it right out of this house, and good riddance."

"Dad did it on purpose, just to aggravate me!" Cherry stormed futilely. "How's Muggy today? I—I've got to tell her—about Mr. Cluny, you know. He's coming at eight-thirty."

"She's had a hot bath and is lying down, resting up for tonight. She's as excited as a child over your 'surprise.' I'd hate to have your job, Cherry. It'll be on your head if this brings on another heart attack."

"Oh, I'll manage her," Cherry retorted airily. "Leave it to me! I'll make her like it."

The rest of the family never knew what took place between Mrs. Lane and her favorite daughter, when the two retired to Mrs. Lane's bedroom immediately after supper. But somehow Cherry made good her promise.

FOUR MEN DIE.

Transients Succumb To Methylated Spirits at Nelson, B.C.

NELSON, B.C., Dec. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Edward Glenn, Robert Cameron, John Matthew Doyle and Clarence Cook, all transients, are dead here as a result of drinking methylated spirits brought to a close a very happy gathering.

50th Anniversary.

The 50th anniversary of Trinity United Church was observed on Sunday, when the services were in charge of Rev. E. O. Seymour, of Fenelon Falls. Mr. Seymour, who is a brilliant speaker, possessing an excellent delivery, based his text on the words found in Philippians ii., 5, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." At the morning service the choir rendered two anthems, "Great is the Lord" and "Hark! the Song of Jubilee."

The evening service attracted a larger attendance, and again the Rev. Mr. Seymour pleased his many hearers with his discourse found in Zechariah ii., verses 1-5. The special music consisted of an anthem, "Crown Him Lord of All," with soprano and alto duet by Mrs. C. Elliott and Miss Lila Parsons and bass and tenor duet by Messrs. C. R. Corneil and J. L. Brooks, also a very pretty duet, "Rock of Ages," by Misses Mary and Vera Lowe.

Y. P. MEETING.

Regular Meeting of Anglican Church Society on Wednesday.

OMEMEE, Dec. 16.—The regular meeting of the Anglican Young People's Association was held in the church on Monday night, with twenty-seven members present. The opening exercises were conducted by the president. At the conclusion of the business session a paper on "Worship" was given by a member. Mr. Weir gave a most interesting talk on the history of the Semitic Race. The meeting closed with the grace.

On Thursday evening twenty-five members of the A.Y.P.A. accepted an invitation from St. John's to be entertained at the home of Mr. Eric Blackwell. A very pleasant time was spent in games and music, after which refreshments were served. A hearty vote of thanks was extended by Messrs. J. Bent and H. Hill to Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell and Miss Dench for their hospitality and ably responded to by Mrs. Blackwell.

Elect Officers.

The members of L.O.L. 113, Omemee, met in their annual meeting in the Orange Hall on Thursday evening, when after the election of officers had taken place, a sumptuous fowl supper was spread to about thirty-five members. There were also present three members of Nassau Lodge, namely, Bros. Bell, Richardson and Walsh, who delivered short but spicy speeches, as did also the newly elected officers.

Other business included the final arrangements for the concert to be given in Coronation Hall by outside talent on Christmas night.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

W.M.—Bro. Charles Davis.
Dep.—Bro. Melville Moncrief.
Chap.—Bro. Fred Parker.
Rec. Secty.—Bro. Hubert Gardiner.
Fin. Secty.—Bro. Cecil Kennedy.
Treas.—Bro. Wm. Magee.
Dir. of Cer.—Bro. Gordon Bradley.
1st Lect.—Bro. E. W. Rowland.
1st Comm. Man—Bro. John White

Annual Visit.

The Bethel League paid their annual visit to the Young People of Trinity United Church on Monday evening, when, according to custom, the visitors provided the evening's programme.

The meeting was opened by Mr. Ross Rutherford, of the Omemee Lodge, and following the hearty rendition of a hymn, followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison, the meeting was given over to the sister society.

Mr. Cecil Casey was chairman.

Community singing, led by the pastor, was then heartily indulged in, and the Sunday school room resounded with real melody.

A musical promenade, in which partners were exchanged each time the bell rang, was the method used to decide the partners for supper, and after the crowd had been thoroughly well mixed, dainty refreshments were passed by the members of the society.

Speeches followed by the pastor and Messrs. D. Weir, G. Bradley, and H. Jackson, after which the singing of the National Anthem

ODD FISHES CLIMB TREES; BURN LIGHTS

New Wonders, Great and Small, Found in the Depths of the Ocean.

What are the greatest wonders of the sea? Ask Dr. Charles H. Townsend, Director of the Aquarium, New York City, and you will hear some strange and interesting things.

"What makes the public wonder most, and what is most wonderful, are not always the same," he says in an interview in the December "Popular Science Monthly." "People who come to the Aquarium are most interested in the little sea horse that climbs trees. He is among the few fishes with grasping tails. Like a monkey, he uses the tail to cling to seaweed and other marine objects.

"Our sightseers like little things and big things. After the sea horse, they like to look at the 200-pound Grouper, one of the biggest of fishes, called Jewfish in the books. They like to watch the shark swimming about with some 'shark suckers' fastened to his under side. These suckers attach themselves by air suction disks, like vacuum cleaners, on their heads. They are bluish fishes, shaped somewhat like the shark, though of course much smaller, and are 'commensals,' meaning that they eat with the shark. They take the scraps that fall from his table. The suction disks are among nature's most remarkable appliances. The whale, the shark, and the swordfish are other of the big things which the public likes.

"But the wonders to scientific men who visit our Aquarium are somewhat different. The two creatures that arouse their greatest curiosity are the horse-shoe crab, or 'Limulus,' and the mud-fish or bowfin, known as 'Amia.' The horseshoe crab, which looks like a flattened beehive with a rat tail, is the only living animal related to the extinct tribolite, whose fossils are so well known. The mudfish, which looks like many other fishes to laymen except for a thickening of the tail, is a descendant of one of the early forms of fish life. It belongs to a line long extinct, dating back unknown thousands of years.

"In the eternal darkness, miles down, under terrific pressure and intense cold, nature has evolved some of the strangest creatures. There is the 'Blind Ipnops,' for instance. It has no eyes, but carries a searchlight on top of its head. Now, what does a blind fish want with a searchlight? Nobody knows, but perhaps the light attracts smaller fishes when the Ipnops is hungry. It is brown in color and of rather small size.

"Then there is the 'Stylophthalmus,' a silver colored, eel-like fish with two long stalks sticking out from its head and eyes at the ends of the stalks. Also, he has a string of lights along either side that makes him look like a subway train.

"Many deep-sea fishes are luminous —'lit up'—to illuminate the surrounding gloom. There is the lantern fish two inches long, yet with nearly a hundred lights. These he can turn on or off as he wishes. They lure small fishes, and help him escape his enemy, the 'Astronesthes,' eater of stars, whose favorite meal is a well-lighted lantern fish."

COUNSELS CLASH IN LIQUOR ROW BEFORE PROBE

George C. Reifel Asked To Explain Meeting of Certain Mysterious Vouchers.

WHISKEY BRANDS.

Counsel Inclined To Believe Companies Had Been Bribing Government Officials.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—The word "bribery" was uttered when counsel clashed before the Customs probe yesterday. George C. Reifel, President of the Joseph Kennedy Company, liquor importers of Vancouver and interested in other Vancouver liquor firms, was being pressed by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Commission counsel, to explain the meaning of certain mysterious vouchers. Each voucher was marked only with an initial, the name of a brand of whisky, and one of the Provincial Government Liquor Stores indicated by a street such as "Powell Street," "Cordova Street," etc. Mr. Riefel could not explain these vouchers beyond saying that they were paid to Mr Wilcox, salesman of the company. He did not know what Mr. Wilcox did with the money. The vouchers bore the initials of the witness. At this point, J. W. Deb. Farris, counsel for the British Columbia Breweries, intervened:

"This is not a matter for investigation by the Customs Commission," he protested.

"If a company operated under a Dominion license is committing a criminal offence either with Provincial or Federal officials, it is our business to look into it," retorted Mr. Rowell.

Mr. Farris disagreed with this. The Customs Commission had been appointed for certain definite purposes, and Mr. Rowell's questions were outside its scope.

"If it appears that these companies have been bribing Government officials I would take the responsibilty of asking the Commission to recommend cancellation of their licenses," declared Mr. Rowell.

Commissioner Wright demurred. He was not sure that the scope of the inquiry would justify this.

Chairman Brown, however, was inclined to agree with Mr. Rowell.

"We are going to get to the bottom of this," he said. "Where is Mr. Wilcox?" the chairman asked.

Mr. Rowell explained that the Commission has been unable to locate Mr. Wilcox to whom Mr. Reifel said the money was paid.

"I think it is my duty to tell the witness that he is not required to answer the questions," said Mr. Farris.

Mr. Rowell then tried to file the vouchers as exhibits before the Commission. Again Mr. Farris protested. Finally, Chairman Brown said the Commission would take time to consider the point raised by Mr. Farris, and Mr. Reifel was allowed to leave the stand.

Mr. Farris told the Commission that the British Columbia Liquor Commission purchased all the liquor sold by the various government liquor vendors. There was no direct evidence given explaining why the amounts which were numerous and about $200 each, shou'd have been paid to the various vendors.

George C. Reifel, President of the Joseph Kennedy Company, liquor exporters, was called to the stand at the Customs Commission hearing yesterday. He produced his income tax returns covering the year 1925, when asked for it by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Commission counsel. Mr. Rowell asked where an item of $11,000 which was paid to Mr. Reifel as one of the directors of the Kennedy Company in 1925, appeared in the returns. "It is not in the return," said Mr. Reifel.

"You received the money in 1925 "

"Yes." The witness said that he understood this was money previously expended in the business of the Regal Exporting Company, and also returned capital.

"There have been three explanations of this amount made to the auditors," said Mr. Rowell, "and this is the final."

"Have you those United States inland revenue stamps which are used on your whiskey?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"I couldn't find them," replied the witness.

"Where do you get them?"

Counsel for Mr. Reifel objected to this question, that it was not pertinent, but Chairman Brown, however, ruled to the contrary. Finally the witness said he knew nothing about where the stamps were obtained. It was brought out in evidence that these stamps were forged and used to cover bottles containing British Columbia whiskey sold in the United States.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today's Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S BEADS

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

Baby Bunty hopped very slowly down the stairs in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. So s owly did the little rabbit girl hop that Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy squeaked to her:

"Hurry, Bunty dear, or you will be late for school."

"I'm not going to school today!" said Bunty in a sort of grunting voice, which wasn't a bit like her own.

"Not going to school!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "Why, what's the matter? Jingle and Jangle and Tingle and Tangle and Bumper and Stumper—all the other little rabbits have gone—forty-'leven of them. Why don't you go to school and be the forty-twelfth, Bunty?"

Bunty's eyes sparkled with delight.

"'Cause," was all Baby Bunty answered. "I'm not going to school today at all! I'm never going to school again! Boo, hoo!" And she began to cry.

Now this was so unlike Baby Bunty that Uncle Wiggily, coming down just then to go adventuring, could hardly believe his ears.

"Are you ill, Bunty, that you do not want to go to school?" asked the bunny rabbit gentleman.

"No, I—I—I'm not azackly ill," sobbed Bunty hiding her face in the tails of Uncle Wiggily's coat. "But I haven't got any beads to wear around my neck, and all the other girls have and I don't want to go to school without some beads. Oh, dear! I want a string of beads!"

"Silly!" Nurse Jane started to say, but Uncle Wiggily held up his paw, patted the little rabbit child on her head and whispered:

"Poor little Bunty. There, now, don't cry any more. Hop along to school and when you come out at noon I will have some beads for you."

"Oh, will you, really?" exclaimed Bunty, smiling and drying her tears. "Oh, how lovely! Now, I'll go to school! What kind of beads will you get me, Uncle Wiggily Daddicums?"

"Oh, you'll see at noon time," was all Mr. Longears would say.

And when Bunty had hopped to school, hurrying so she wouldn't be late, Nurse Jane said:

"You shouldn't humor that child so much."

"Poor little Baby Bunty!" murmured Uncle Wiggily. "She is an orphan rabbit you know, and if I don't humor her nobody will. Now to get her a string of beads."

"What kind are you going to give her?" asked Nurse Jane.

"Well, I've got to think about that," answered Mr. Longears. And he was still thinking as he hopped through the woods. Then, all of a sudden, he saw, in a hollow under a big stump, lying on a bed of dried leaves, a number of big, brown horse chestnuts, or buckeyes as the boys in Ohio call them.

"The very thing for Bunty's beads!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I will make her a necklace of horse chestnuts." No sooner said than done.

In his pocket Uncle Wiggily had a sharp nail and a piece of string. He made holes in the brown nuts and put them on a string. Then he had beads for Bunty.

When she came out of school at noon, Uncle Wiggily met her and gave her the horse chestnut necklace. And I wish you could have seen Bunty's eyes sparkle with delight as she put her queer beads around her neck.

"I never can thank you enough!" she said as she walked along beside Uncle Wiggily, letting the other bunnies run on ahead.

"I am glad you like them," said Mr. Longears. And just then, from a bush beside the path, jumped the Bob Cat, who snarled:

"I am glad I like ears, 'cause I'm going to have yours, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Oh! Oh! cried Baby Bunty. "Throw snowballs at him!" and she and Uncle Wiggily began pelting the bad chap with snowballs.

"Pooh! I'm not afraid of soft snowballs!" howled the Bob Cat.

Then Bunty had a new idea.

"Let's put hard horse chestnuts from my necklace inside the snowballs and pelt the Bob Cat with them!" she whispered. And bravely breaking her string of beads, she took some of the nuts, gave Uncle Wiggily some and these were packed inside snowballs. And when the Bob Cat felt the chestnut snowballs on his nose he howled differently.

"Wowch! Ouch! Smouch!" he yelled and away he ran.

"Oh, but you spoiled your beads," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I don't care! I saved your ears," said the orphan rabbit. But Mr. Longears got more horse chestnuts and made Bunty another necklace so all was well. And if jack knife doesn't take a shingle off the roof to build a boat for the goldfish to sail in, I'll tell you again about Uncle Wiggily.

JOLLY JINGLES

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

TO BE A BOY

It must be great to be a boy,
To look at life through eyes of joy,
With even something to be done,
To hop and skip and make it fun.
Why, even when the world looks wrong
A boy can take a dog along.
Explore a hundred mysteries
His solemn elder never sees.

To be a boy, that must be fine,
To dream of things, and things design,
And, when the dream will not come true,
To start to dreaming something new.
Men's disappointments make them old,
And leave them weary, leave them cold;
Boys' disappointments in an hour
Pass over like a summer show'r.

To be a boy, that must be great,
To play the game without a hate,
And, when you lose, not men to blame,
But think about to-morrow's game.
For what's one game? The game goes on
Again to-morrow with the dawn,
And men might wisely look at life,
As youngsters do at schoolyard strife.
It must be great a boy to be,
By hate untouched, from worry free,
And when we lose, for loss there is,
To have a heart as light as his.
It must be great to be a boy
And look at life through eyes of joy;
And that's the reason I intend
To be a boy until the end.

SHORT STORY

A young man and a young woman in evening dress stood in the shadows of the veranda of the brightly lighted country club.

"You've got to promise before you go in," said the young man rather sharply. "I'm certainly not going to let you carry on the way you did at the Bensons' last week."

"Well, I couldn't help it," protested the girl. "If the men are so foolish as to want to dance with me—why, it isn't my fault. I should think you'd be proud of having a sister that wasn't a wall flower——"

"Well, I wasn't proud of the way you carried on—eight or nine men hanging around you all evening and a dozen girls sitting out every dance. So I'm telling you right now that unless you promise you won't dance at all so long as there are other girls sitting it out—promise you'll make the men dance with the wall flowers—promise you'll show more concern for the shy young fellows that can't dance very well and don't know the other girls, I'll take you right home."

"Oh, all right," said the girl, and with an indignant little toss of the head she went in the light that shone from the club house. Her brother followed.

Bob and Nancy Crane were comparative new comers in the neighborhood. This was the first time that the y had attended one of the country club dances. Nancy was both very pretty and unusually fascinating—moreover she danced divinely. But through dance after dance that night she sat at one end of the room—the meekest of the wall flowers. She sat there talking first to this girl and then to that, girls who habitually sat out many dances for lack of partners, and as she sat she frequently had to turn as some venturesome young man came and begged her to dance.

If the rejected young man ventured to sit down beside her she would keep the conversation general, sharing him with the girl or girls beside her. Sometimes she would suggest to a young man whom she had refused that he had better dance with one of the other girls not dancing, and it was only when she had contrived to find partners for all the wall flowers that she felt free to dance herself.

A tall, slender young man in faultless tuxedo seemed to have taken root among the wall flowers. Mr. Hill—Fred Hill—was his name. He had been brave enough to dance twice with enormous Sally Jones. Sally was a nice girl and rather jolly, but Sally weighed two hundred pounds and was not easy to dance with. Then Fred Hill had worried through a dance with a girl who said she had never danced but once before. Later, he contrived to sit and talk through a dance with a girl who stammered—but said she didn't want to dance as she found conversation so much more worth while.

Once when Nancy had somehow contrived to provide the last wall flower with a partner, Fred Hill wandered over to her, and, hardly looking at her, said in a tone of forced cheerfulness: "May i have this dance— i haven't been presented but that doesn't matter at this club." Then he looked at Nancy and realized how very pretty she really was.

"Funny little girl," Fred said to her after they had danced for a few minutes. "Sitting all alone with the wall flowers when you're the prettiest girl in the room—and the best dancer I ever met."

When this dance was over Fred asked Nancy to go out on the veranda with him, and Nancy accepted. After all, she thought, he wasn't particularly popular. He had been dancing with the wall flowers—didn't seem to know any of the popular girls. Bob had told her to be good to the shy men. After that she insisted on going back to the place of the wall flowers and at her bidding Fred danced with the girl who weighed two hundred and later talked with the girl who stammered. After that she felt that they both deserved a respite and they rambled down a path toward the golf course.

"Funny little girl," Fred was saying as he kissed her hand. "I feel as if I had known you always. I'm not going to let you forget me. I'm going to come and see you tomorrow—and the next day and the next day and every day after that.

"I'll tell you something funny," continued Fred. "My sister Alice and I have belonged to this club forever. I've been coming to dances all summer and there are always a number of very popular girls of the sort the men are always swarming around. Well, I've always been one of the swarmers. I never cared a rap for a girl who wasn't hotly pursued by at least a dozen other men. Well, my sister Alice told me that it was disgraceful—the way all the men hung round the few popular girls and a lot of really nice little girls had to sit out their dances. Alice made me promise tonight that I'd devote myself to the girls who didn't have so much attention. Well, I thought they were all hopeless. But Alice was right. If I hadn't bee n over there with the wall flowers I wo uldn't have found you."

"Alice was very kind to make you dance with us," said Nancy simply.

Fred was holding Nancy's little hand in his and bent and kissed it almost solemnly. "Blessed little wall flower," he said—"I love you."

The next day began an intensive sort of courtship and a week later Fred and Nancy were engaged.

"I told Fred the quiet little girls who weren't so very popular were really more worth while," Alice boasted. "And now he knows I was right."

Elbow Grease and Armbo Soap

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

A LARGE factor in the growth and development of children is their striving to be and do as grown-ups. There are few little Peter Pans who don't want to grow up in the world. On the contrary, most normal children can scarcely wait for the magic time when they'll be "big." They are constantly aping the actions, occupations and talk of the big folk they meet, coveting their freedom and possessions and so shaping their lives in these patterns. How careful we should be that our patterns be shaped in worth while designs that we may inspire the best kind of Elbow Grease and Armbo Soap for our children's grown-up use!

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The sapphire is both the talismanic and natal stone for today. Blessed by the gods, it brings riches to men, and insure women the faithfulness of those who love. Indeed, it was supposed to lose its color as an indication of unfaithfulness.

All shades or red are lucky today, assuring their wearers of great vitality and energy.

The flower for today is the scarlet geranium, potent in dispelling sorrow.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

GOOD FORM AND SHOES

There has been quite a letting down of the bars of good form regarding dress within the past decade and things that women were once criticised for wearing, they now wear without apologies. Once beaded slippers were not considered appropriate for formal evening. Diamonds and other transparent stones were not considered correct for morning—only opaque stones and gold. Lots of rules of that sort existed which we have now well nigh forgotten. Recently women have become quite careless in the mate choosing of shoes. We have become quite used to the high heeled shoe with a sports frock, though this wsa frowned upon not many years ago.

Some women there are who still have quite a strict code regarding the choice of shoes. For sports costumes they wear laced Oxfords of brown or beige.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

THE MYTH

By Alma Whitaker.

John Macy, writing in Harper's Magazine, is jumping on all forms of feminism. He says that the equality of woman with man is a myth. Women will always be slightly inferior to men.

I will wager he thoroughly enjoyed himself writing it. He claims that every measure for the betterment of women and the removal of iniquities have been brought about by men, through men—women did not have a darned thing to do with it. He points out that women always are and always have been—and always will be—inferior in the arts. That when a woman is half-way bright in any of these departments, she usually has masculine attributes!

"But in heaven's name, let not the woman compete with the man. He will always be slightly ahead of her," says this author.

And oh, don't you know, how we do hope he is right. If I could be dead sure that my sons would always be slightly ahead of those bright girl competitors they are up against, I might rest happy.

If there is one thing in the world I want to believe most ardently it is that man is a superior being. I was raised on that creed. It gives me the collywobbles if ever I doubt it. Mr. Macy says triumphantly in his article that to his surprised delight he found that all intelligent women agreed with him! Oh, John, beware of those intelligent women. That was naughty of them. It savored so of the days when gentlemen had women up on pedestals and assured them that they were superior beings—and the women agreed with them in that too. A woman is never so dangerous as when she is gazing awe-stricken at a profound gentleman, and assuring him that she agrees with every word he says. One of the things these intelligent women agreed with John about was that men were always better cooks! Clever, dangerous things.

John says it is no use arguing with women. Funny, but those intelligent lady friends of John's seem to feel that way about him too! Naughty girls!

I rather gather that John considers it would be a shade disgraceful if men ever failed to be superior to women. I agree with him. I have a high old time drumming this idea into my boy's heads. If I can only get it in and make it a fixture, it at least ought to spur the young rascals on to doing their sumptuous best. That is a perfectly good creed, if the dear boys can only be induced to live up to it—mentally, morally, spiritually. It won't do to just say it, talk it, shout it, glare it. All we ask of them is to keep right on proving it.

And after that, if we meekly try to equal them, how could they disapprove? So long as they can smile loftily and know in their hearts "that although we can never be like them" it is at least commendable that we "should try to be as like them as we can," what have they to fear—and, er, what is there to argue about?

The position of women was most dubious and debatable in the days when we felt we had to argue with gentlemen like John. Things looked pretty dark for us. But when all John's intelligent lady friends amiably agree with him—dear, dear things are improving.

But all the same, the day upon which women begin assuring the Johns of this world that they are supermen, superior in all the virtues and the responsible custodians of the nation's morals, that day I say, masculinity will be in direct peril. Any swing of the pendulum now will put men up on those vacant pedestals which women once graced with such fatuous self-righteousness—and oh, John, dear, it won't suit any of you.

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs, Food Specialist.

What do you know about corn sugar? Try putting that question to the average individual and, in the vernacular, see what you get!

Not that it is necessary for this same average person to know the intricacies of sugar and starch chemistry, but it is an advantage, when a question such as that which is now occupying the attention of sugar manufacturers, legislators and in fact all who are interested in the question of what is popularly termed "pure food." For there are amendments to the food and drugs law and these have to do chiefly with starch or corn sugar. With the question of amending the food laws I am not for the moment concerned, having expressed my mind thereon in another article. But I am interested to have the man in the street and the woman in the home know something about this corn or starch sugar as a foodstuff.

Corn sugar may be dissolved in water It is decidedly sweet but not so sweet as cane sugar. The commercial process of manufacture is quite complex but the consumer is interested chiefly in learning that so called "green starch," after numerous processes, is treated in such a way as to result finally in what is called commercially, glucose.

Since it is purified starch that is used in making glucose no one need fear that the product is unwholesome or in any way harmful to health. Prejudice has arisen chiefly because glucose has in some instances been used in making very inferior products.

In sweetness corn sugar is about two thirds the strength of cane sugar, but viewed simply as one form of starchy or sugary or carbohydrate food glucose, is entirely satisfactory.

My real purpose in writing this paper is to urge the housewife to keep up with the procession of food facts as they are given out from the laboratories of the expert chemists. It is not sufficient for her to know only the facts as they affect the processes carried on in the kitchen; the intelligent woman must, if she is to do full justice to her family, know what to say when just such matters as this one of corn sugar are brought up. Instead for example, of her getting panicy on hearing that "that terrible corn sugar is used in making such and such a product," let her be ready to inform the alarmist about the true value of corn sugar or any other product that is under fire.

The only danger lies in the fact that unscrupulous manufacturers may label their products so that one does not know what he is buying. THAT is serious and this is the very point being stressed by those of us who are protesting against tampering with the "pure food laws."

Take a lot of time! Indeed it does! But it will be time well spent, and if INTELLIGENTLY spent, this study time of the housewife may come to be a real inspiration and one that will in no wise interfere with her household tasks.

BEAT 'EM STIFF.

An egg that has been well beaten has much better thickening power for sauces and puddings than one that is only slightly beaten.

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

WONDERING WHO WILL PAY BILLS

Extensive Search For Missing Detective Story Writer in England.

UNUSUAL FLURRY.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—The question of who is going to pay the bills for the extensive search for Agatha Clarissa Christie, detective novelist who was found in Harrogate Wednesday, is agitating officials of Surrey County who used hundreds of men, airplanes and caterpillar tractors in seeking her.

The woman writer, who is the daughter of the late Frederick Miller of New York, is now at the country estate of her sister near Manchester, where her husband, Colonel Archibald Christie, took her from Harrogate.

Col. Christie said again yesterday that his wife was unable to explain her mysterious disappearance on December 3, which caused unusual efforts to find her.

"My wife doesn't know how she got to Harrogate, although she realizes she took a train," he said. "She has a faint idea now that she is Mrs. Christie, and that I am not her brother, as she thought first, but her husband. She doesn't know what happened."

The story of the disappearance, which enlivened the British press for more than 10 days, is still going as lively as ever. One of the questions which the papers are now pressing is where Mrs. Christie obtained funds while at Harrogate with which to buy new clothing. The Evening News says: "The question the people of Surrey are now asking is who will have to pay for the vast police search for Mrs. Christie on the Surrey Downs while she was dancing and singing at Harrogate."

The Evening Standard says the search for Mrs. Christie cost several thousand pounds, and the bills will be submitted to the Home Office although they fall upon Surrey County.

From the beginning there have been hints that the disappearance of Mrs. Christie was engineered by a press agent for publicity purposes, but the police have scouted this theory.

In view of the public concern in what it terms an amazing turn in an extraordinary case, the Westminster Gazette has obtained the opinion of two eminent specialists who, however, are not named. Both expressed the belief that the case was not one of loss of memory.

"What, then," asks the paper, "is the explanation of the Christie mystery, involving considerable public money?"

L.O.L. 1175 OFFICERS.

Annual Meeting Held and C. H. Luffman Chosen Master.

The annual meeting of L.O.L. No. 1175, was held in Victoria Hall, on Monday evening last. The usual business was discussed, after which the officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

Master, W. Bro. Clarence H. Luffman; Deputy Master, Bro. H. Mullen; Chaplain, Bro. Lance Petty; Rec Sec., Bro. William F. Cornwell; Financial Secretary, Bro. Jack Hobson; Treasurer, Bro. Robert Wilson, —(elected for the 16th year); Marshall, Bro. Dan. Campbell; 1st Lecturer, Bro. Fred Ball; 2nd Lect., Bro. Bruce Bradley; committee, Bro. James Deline; inside Sentnel, Bro. George Wilson.

W. Master Bro. Clarence H. Luffman, held the chair in 1914-15, and has held the office of Fin. Sec. for 10 years, and is again elected as Master for the coming year. Bro. Luffman is a hard worker for the Orange Association, with other lodges as well as his own.

THEATRE

AT THE REGENT

THE YELLOW HERO

He was deathly afraid of cats—even little kittens. You couldn't drag him across a bridge or near a high cliff with a team of horses, and yet he had been awarded a croix de guerre, a distinguished service cross, an overseas medal, and a bronze tablet from his home town for his distinguished services during the World War, which included the capture ,single-handed, of 22 German soldiers.

What kind of a fellow was this anyway?

His sweetheart thought of him as a wonderful, handsome hero.

His mother thought he was the finest boy in the world. He was the apple of her eye. On him the sun rose and set.

His eccentric friend, the drug store proprietor and chief bubble-teaser, worshipped him as a hero, a litle queer, perhaps, but undoubtedly a hero and a mighty nice, understanding boy.

His sweetheart's father hardly knew what to think of him. He didn't seem to have much backbone. He was an awful mamma's boy, but there was his war record. Frankly, he didn't know.

But the town bully, big and handsome and carefree, who had 'em all "buffaloed" and knew better than to go to war and get shot up, had Barry's number. He knew what kind of a "yellow-belly" he was, had known ever since he had pulled his long curls when they were kids, and now he was out to show him up, particularly as they were interested in the same girl.

What was really the matter with Barry? What happened to him? These questions are very amusingly and engrossingly answered in Warner Bros.' production, "The Sap," featuring Kenneth Harlan and Mary McAllister, and directed by Erle Kenton, which is coming to the Regent Theatre today for a run of three days.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE — LII—The First Brickmakers. — by MAX HAHN

THE RICH KING RULING BABYLONIA MORE THAN 6,000 YEARS AGO FACED A DIFFICULT PROBLEM WHEN HE PLANNED TO BUILD A PALACE. STONES WERE SCARCE AND HE DIDN'T KNOW OF ANY EQUALLY GOOD MATERIAL.

POSSIBLY ONE OF HIS HELPERS SUGGESTED THAT ARTIFICIAL STONES BE TRIED. THIS MAN PROBABLY TOLD THE KING THAT A PIECE OF CLAY WHICH HAD BEEN LEFT IN THE SUN HAD BECOME ALMOST AS HARD AS STONE.

THE KING ORDERED HIS SLAVES TO DIG A QUANTITY OF CLAY AND IN SOME SUCH FASHION THE MAKING OF BRICKS WAS INVENTED. THOUSANDS OF MEN, TAKEN PRISONERS IN WAR, WORKED ON THE PALACE.

THE BABYLONIANS COLORED THE EXTERIOR OF THEIR BUILDINGS WITH STUCCO TO HIDE THE BRICKS.

Trade Rumors Stir As Major League Club Owners Gather

EVERY MANAGER OUT AFTER NEW PITCHING TALENT

George Moriarity Says He Will Jake Nineteen Hurlers South.

CONSIDER SCHEDULE.

Routine Matters Before Magnates at American League Session.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16 (Associated Press).—A manager with a corps of high-class pitchers to sell probably could make a fortune at the gathering of American League pilots and club owners. Virtually every manager here admits he could use a dependable tosser.

The prosaic business of the league presidents to-day and to-morrow was little more than a stage setting, with the machinations of the managers having spotlight attention. Virtually all the league chiefs had had before them was the perfunctory awarding of the 1926 pennant to the New York Yankees, selection of an umpire to succeed George Moriarity, now manager of the Detroit Tigers, decision on the length of the league schedule and selection of a new board of directors.

Favors Long Season.

American League sentiment favors the long season. President Ban Johnson has felt in the past that baseball should be out of the way for football, but he now is ready to fall in with the general opinion that the season should run into October, to enable completion of the schedule without a cluster of late double-headers.

Five new managers are hoping to obtain here the talent they need for the 1927 campaign.

George Moriarity, Ty Cobb's successor at Detroit, said he would take 19 pitchers South next spring. Of the quintet of new team leaders, Moriarty apparently has the least player worries.

Troubles at Cleveland.

Unlike the Cleveland Indians, who find a hole in centrefield because of Tris Speaker's departure, the Tigers are well satisfied with their outfield. Cobb, like Speaker, was a centre fielder; but he prepared against his departure by grooming a successor, whereas the Gray Eagle of the Indians left a gap which the new manager, Jack McAllister, admits he is hard pressed to fill.

Dan Howley, of the St. Louis Browns, spent considerable time Monday with Miller Huggins of the Yankees. Howley has said he would keep George Sisler, but there are reports that Marty McManus may be traded. Huggins wants a good pitcher.

Ray Schalk, in his first attempt at managing the White Sox, seeks a second baseman to replace Eddie Collins, who, the gossip strongly indicated, will start next season as Connie Mack's aide at Philadelphia.

Drafting Schedule.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (Associated Press).—The chief business for the annual meeting of the National League was the drafting of the schedule for next season.

The league, already pledged to a longer season, appeared certain to decide to name the first week in October as the closing date in 1927. The season ended the last week in September this year. Commissioner Landis favors the prolongation, since the short season failed to bring about an earlier date for the World Series. Only one club completed the schedule on time.

Some magnates favored asking Commissioner Landis to increase the usefulness of the advisory council of the major leagues, which has functioned but rarely in the last few years.

Dreyfuss Objects.

The practice of clubs maintaining farms in minor leagues, despite the draft system, designed to give each team an equal chance at youthful material, possibly was another matter for the league's attention. Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh owner, has declared the arrangement "hypocritical," complaining that one team alone controlled six minor league clubs.

The meeting was a two-day affair. Yesterday the magnates left for Chicago to attend a joint meeting with the American League.

There was much dickering regarding possible trades.

Bill Terry, first baseman of the Giants, is reported to be slated for the Boston Braves in exchange for Joe Genewich, pitcher. Dave Bancraft, manager of the Braves, said he would swap, but he doubted that Manager McGraw of the Giants would be interested. The Braves would like two infielders and a catcher from Santa Claus.

What Bush Wants.

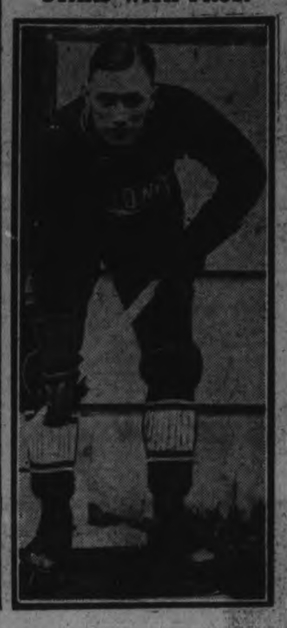
Donie Bush, Pittsburgh's new manager, seeks a pitcher, infielder and utility outfielder.

Manager Robinson of Brooklyn has both his veteran outfielder, Zach Wheat, and Burleigh Grimes, pitcher, on the block, but their salaries hinder negotiations.

Manager Stuffy McInnis, of Philadelphia, would like two infielders, two pitchers and an outfielder.

Brooklyn has released Dick Cox, outfielder, to the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League, as part payment for Arnold Statz, who came to the Robins in a recent deal. Cox played with Brooklyn for the last two years.

STARS WITH PROS.



IRVINE BAILEY

Last year with Peterboro O.H.A. champions and now with St. Patrick's, Toronto, forward, who is showing up well in the season's pro hockey. He teams up with Carson and "Happy" Day, the ex-Hamilton and Varsity forward.

BIKE WINNERS SPLIT $12,000

Attendance at Six-day Bicycle Race Totals Around 100,000.

PRIZES $75,000.

NEW YORK, December 16. — Reggie McNamara, "iron man" of the professional bicycle riders, and his Italian partner, Pietro Linari, yesterday split $12,000 as the winners share of the $75,000 in prize money and bonuses awarded to the competitors in the six day race that finished at Madison Square Garden on Saturday night.

Although the race was one of the most sensational ever held here, the attendance, aggregating 100,000 for the week, was slightly below the record set in the December, 1925, grind which opened the new garden.

McNamara and Lanari received an offer of a ten weeks' engagement in vaudeville but the Italian turned it down because of a desire to spend Christmas at home. Linari came out of the race with a badly bruised face and black eye.

McNamara accepted an offer for a shorter vaudeville tour, in which he will be joined by Carl Stockholm of Chicago, and Charley Winter of New York, who finished third in last week's race. The "iron man" will compete in the Berlin six-day race, starting January 14, probably as a partner the German rider, Otto Petri.

WILL IN TRUMPET

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Dec. 14. A missing will disposing of a home and several lots possessed by the late George Wallace, who died last October was discovered recently when a daughter picked up the ear trumpet of her aged father. She heard a slight rustle and took out a piece of paper dated Oct. 8, 1925, telling of a will giving her the entire estate.

BASEBALL YEAR FULL OF ACTION

Cardinals' Victory Provided Chief Thrill in Major League Season.

RUTH'S COMEBACK.

By HENRY L. FARRELL.

Victory of the Cardinals in the National League pennant race which took the first World Series to St. Louis was perhaps the most discussed feature of the 1926 major league baseball season.

But it was not the only feature of a baseball season that had more than a usual share of interesting events.

Some other events were:

The collapse of the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Giants.

The astonishing return to form of the New York Yankees.

The fall of Rogers Hornsby as a batting champion.

The smashing comeback of Babe Ruth.

The romantic work of Grover Alexander in the final game of the World Series.

The fall of the seven-time Baltimore International League champions.

The retirement of Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb.

The release of Eddie Collins as manager of the Chicago White Sox.

The appointment of seven new major league managers.

The victory of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League pennant race and in the World Series was perhaps the most popular one ever scored. For enthusiasm and general interest the St. Louis fans were even more spontaneous than those in Washington several years ago when the Senators scored their first victory.

The loss of Hornsby's batting championship was a sacrifice he had to make for the team as in the role of a manager in a hot driving race he couldn't play for himself.

The collapse of the New York Giants was partly the result of a series of accidents and bad breaks but the differences existing among the Pittsburgh players were so thoroughly aired in public that internal dissension is known to have caused their disappointing season.

After finishing another disappointing season in which he spent much of the time on the bench, Ty Cobb retired as the manager of the Detroit Tigers and George Moriarty, American League umpire, was named in his place.

Rink No. 5—N. Gilmour, V. C. Lambert, T. H. Bradley, G. W. Sayles (skip).

Rink No. 6—Geo. Raper, H. R. Armstrong, W. G. Hetherington, J. Steele (skip).

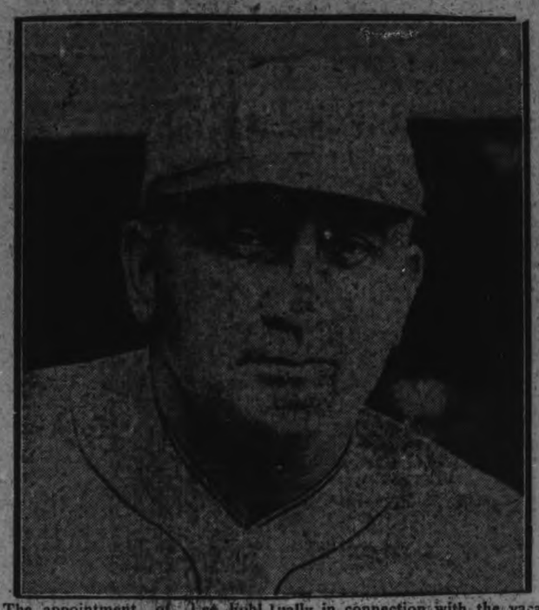
Rink No. 7 — I. H. Gray, W. Thorne, E. C. Richards, W. E. Ball (skip).

Rink No. 8—Arnold Armstrong, G. H. Harrington, Jos. Lancashire, J. N. McGill (skip).

Rovers—W. T. Wood (skip), R. H. Edmunds (skip), W. West J. Powell, R. W. Waddell, J. L. Larmer and C. Duncan.

Besides the Allen Cup, which is competed for on the regular schedule of games each year, R. M. Waddel, of Peterborough, is donating a cup this season which is to be played for at the local bonspiel, and W. J. E. Gillott is also presenting a cup for competition on a 13 point basis.

LEAF'S NEW MANAGER



The appointment of Lee Fohl, formerly of the Boston Red Sox, and a manager of much experience, to the leadership of the Toronto Maple Leafs, excited much surprise in baseball circles. Mr. Fohl's name had been mentioned but casually in connection with the vacant berth, and the announcement that he had been selected was unexpected, to say the least. He comes highly recommended by President Ban Johnson of the American League and other higher-ups in that organization.

TALKS OF BASEBALL WHILE UNDER KNIFE

Guelph Ex-Mayor, Aged 85, Refuses To Take Ether For Operation.

GUELPH, Dec. 16.—Admitted to the General Hospital suffering from a serious internal complaint, George Sleeman, ex-mayor of Guelph, builder of the local street railway and the man who promoted baseball in this city in the days of the famous Maple Leafs, underwent a remarkable operation yesterday, when, disdaining the use of ether, he went through the ordeal of having the trouble remedied with the aid of a local anaesthetic.

Mr. Sleeman, who is over 85 years of age, conversed freely with Dr. H. O. Howitt, who performed the critical operation, and the attending nurses during the hour he was on the operating table, reminiscing of the early days of baseball in Guelph and relating anecdotes in connection with the old Maple Leafs, who were at one time amateur baseball champions of the world.

His condition is reported as favorable and unless complications set in it is fully expected he will recover.

Jack Would Change Scene Of Legal Bout

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 16 (Associated Press). — Counsel for Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, has asked Common Pleas Court to transfer to the Federal District Court here the suit brought by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's former manager, who is trying to recover some of the proceeds of the recent Dempsey-Tunney fight. The transfer was asked on the ground that the fighter is a resident of California, and Kearns a resident of New York. Counsel for Kearns opposed the transfer and the case went over for a week.

BASEBALL GOSSIP

TORONTO, December 16. — Manager Dan Howley, of the Browns, is still looking for company. The ex-leader of the Leafs does not intend to be entirely friendless if he can help it during his sojourn in St. Louis. Not satisfied with taking Steve ONeill, who was his right hand bower here last season, he is trying to put over a deal whereby Mullen, Doyle and O'Rourke will become members of the American League Club at the Mound City. Detroit wants a third baseman, and Manager Moriarty has designs upon Marty McManus of the St. Louis club. He is prepared to swap the three old Toronto club standbys for the clever infielder of the Browns who is not exactly pleased with his present berth. Whether anything will come of the matter it is difficult to forecast.

The deal inolving Stewart has not come to a head as yet but Lee Fohl is on the job at Chicago and some developments may crop up to-day.

Speaker with Pittsburgh.

Next to National League affairs, the chief incident brought out by the annual meetings was the admission by Barney Dreyfuss that he had offered Tris Speaker, former Cleveland manager, a contract to play with the Pittsburg team. Barney is a great showman; always will be one. He thinks that with Waner, Cuyler and Speaker on his team he can win another pennant, and also lead the fans to look upon an outfield second to none.

There is some good left in the bat of Speaker, and even if he has had a little trouble with his legs he is clever enough and good enough to go on another year in baseball, or maybe two.

There seems to be some disposition to believe that Speaker resigned from the Cleveland Club because of a salary disagreement. That was in addition to the fact that he was tiring of baseball, but if the National League wishes him for another season he might find it easier to live the outdoor life than to retire to some office and dream of the past.

Sam Bohne, who has been with Cincinnati, and more lately with Brooklyn will go to Minneapolis, and Minneapolis is likely to get at least two good years out of Bohne.

Max Carey, with seven teeth removed will captain the Brooklyn team. He says his legs are as good as ever now that he has lost his ailing teeth.

Five Million Attendance.

The gross attendance at the National League games in 1926 was nearly 5,000,000. This will interest any person who are fearful that athletics are being over-emphasized. It will also interest those who wish to know what becomes of the dollar bills of the nation in the summer time.

Any little things to which the National League objects to in the schedule will be taken up at the joint session of the big leagues starting in Chicago Thursday noon.

BRITISH TENNIS HITS WRITERS

Officials Oppose Interviews With Players During Net Tournaments.

TOO MUCH MONEY.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(Associated Press).—The British Lawn Tennis Association has passed a resolution for submission to the International Lawn Tennis Federation forbidding players to write for or to be interviewed by newspapers in connection with any competition in which they are taking part.

Lord Desborough, the retiring chairman, said at the annual meeting that the proposal was due to the fact that the association found that players were making too much money out of tenpis. There was long debate and much opposition.

The meeting also passed a proposal, in line with the United States, France and other countries, to seed the draw at Wimbledon next year by ability instead of by nationality.

CARMEL, Cal., Dec. 15.—This seaside village, last refuge of art in California, soon is to have numbered streets, so that its painters and writers may be awakened from their dreams by the shrill sound of the postman's whistle.

HAS SAXAPHONE BAND.

SMITH CENTER, Kan., Dec. 15. —A saxophone band of 20 pieces has been organized here by W A. Stevens, city bandmaster. He hopes to increase it to 50 pieces.

American Tennis Pros Are Beaten By French

CANNES, France, Dec. 16.—(Associated Press). — Both the American entrants, Paul L. Heston and George Agutter, of New York, were eliminated on Tuesday in the first round of the professional tennis championships for the Bristol cup.

J. Negro, of Nice, one of the best French professionals, defeated Heston, who seemed bothered by the strong Riviera light, by the score: 6-1, 5-7, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

Ramillon, of Cannes, defeated Agutter in straight sets, 6-0, 6-1, 6-2.

In both groups the scoring to be by points, viz., 2 for a win, 0 for a loss and 1 for a draw.

BROKEN SKULL CAUSES DEATH

Charles Pequlihan Collapses From Heavy Blows By Elmer Friedman.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 16.—(Associated Press). — Charles Pegulihan, French light-heavyweight, died at the Francis Hospital early yesterday, following his ring fight with Elmer Friedman, of Boston, at the State Armory Monday night. The Frenchman died of a fractured skull. It was his first fight in this country. Friedman was held by the police.

Pegulihan collapsed in the eighth round of the bout. The end of the contest came unexpectedly because the French boxer, who had been substituted for George Lamson, the Cherokee Indian fighter, had been more than holding his own.

The Frenchman had complained that Friedman was butting, but despite this he was fighting hard, giving and taking heavy punishment in every round.

Right to Stomach.

In the early part of the eighth round, Friedman drove his right to Pegulihan's stomach and followed with a rain of blows to the head. The Frenchman was driven to the ropes, where he braced himself. They clinched and Friedman pushed away. Pegulihan staggered and sank to the canvas. He arose at the count of 10 and then collapsed.

National guardsmen carried the unconscious boxer to his dressing-room, and Friedman was taken to police headquarters, where he was held on a technical charge of breach of the peace.

The match was the semi-final to that in which Pat McCarthy of Boston, won over Harry Persson, the Swedish heavyweight champion, in 12 rounds.

Friedman was charged with manslaughter when he was given a hearing before Judge Day in police court. The case was continued to December 23, pending an inquiry by Coroner Calhoun. Friedman was ordered held in bond of $1,000.

Pegulihan, who was 21 years old, came to America early in September. The Hartford bout was his sixth professional engagement, and the first in America. He had fought in 28 bouts as an amateur, winning 24 of them.

His home town was Pau, in the southern part of France, though his fighting headquarters were in Paris. His father, Louis Pegulihan, is proprietor of a gymnasium and swimming pool in Paris.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS
Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.
Mr. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

PARKDALE HERE FOR GAME NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

Petes Will Open Their O. H. A. Season on Thursday Next.

KANE RETURNING.

Blue Shirts Will Have First Local Indoor Practice To-night.

With the opening of the local Senior O.H.A. season a week from to-night and the first local indoor practice scheduled for to-night, the Peterboro Senior Club is beginning its long grind. The cold snap has made it possible to secure a sheet of ice for practice purposes at Brock street rink and the Petes will take advantage of every opportunity to work out from now on, so they have only a week to get ready for the strong North Toronto team, which is already in good shape. North Toronto opens the O. H. A. season with a game at Brock street rink next Thursday night, but it is likely that the season will be opened on Monday with a visit from the Petes' old rivals, the Parkdale Canoe Club, coached by Harry Watson. This will be an exhibition game and should be a real battle. The Petes have yet to beat the Parkdales here, and by the same token the Parkdale outfit has yet to win a game from Eddie Wright's boys in Toronto.

Port Hope has invited the Senior champs to play there next Tuesday night but in view of the Parkdale and North Toronto games, the offer will have to be declined.

Rumours that Kenny Kane has signed with the Windsor Professional team, have been squelched by a wire received by Manager Wright to-day from Kane saying that he would be back home to-morrow, and that no notice was to be taken of "the bunk in the papers."

NOTED SINGERS WILL TAKE PART

"The Messiah," To-morrow, Will Be Outstanding Musical Event.

AT ST. PAUL'S.

The concert at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church tomorrow evening promises to be one of the outstanding musical events of the season. A very fine programme has been arranged, in which the notable portion will be the rendition of Handel's "Messiah," by a chorus of one hundred and thirty voices, led by Mr. Chenhall, with soloists in Miss Nellye Gill, of Toronto; Mrs. Fenton-Box of Toronto; Mr. Vernon Carey of Hamilton, and Mr. Frank Oldfield of Toronto. The superb new organ which was opened this week in St. Paul's Church will be played by Dr. W. H. Gutzeit, eminent organist and composer, and organist and choirmaster of the Parkdale United Church, Toronto, and by Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., organist of St. Paul's Church, who will give the following short recital as a prelude to the programme, tomorrow evening: Bach's "Fuge in G Minor," Brewer's "Reverie," and Southgate's Phantaisie on the "Adeste Fidelis." Miss Agnes Logan will play piano accompaniments.

The visiting soloists for the occasion represent some of the outstanding singers of the day in the province. Mrs. Fenton-Box has an exceptionally fine contralto voice, and Miss Nellye Gill enjoys a reputation as one of Canadas most brilliant lyric sopranos. She has appeared as soloist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Dr. Luigi von Kunits, and is the only Canadian who has appeared at the National American Musical Festival, held annually at Buffalo. Mr. Riccardo Stracciari displayed such interest in her talents that he offered to take her to Italy and give her his personal introduction to Italian audiences. She has appeared as soloist under the leadership of Creatore, and has been soloist jointly with Florence Easton and Edmund Burke.

Mr. Vernon Carey of Hamilton, who is not so well known in the city as his companion soloists, is described by critics writing in the papers of London, Ontaro, and in various places in Pennsylvania, as having a "rich tenor voice of even tone, quality, and of uniform excellence," and Mr. Frank Oldfield, baritone, is too well known in Peterborough to need any encomiums on his splendid voice, which combines with his likeable personality to make his singing something to be looked forward to by all who have heard him in the past.

Socialist Causes Uproar in Reichstag By Attack on War Minister.

CALLED TRAITOR.

Party Leader Says Allies Already Know of Matter.

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (Canadian Press).—Bedlam broke loose in the Reichstag to-day when Phillipp Scheidemann, head of the Social Democrats, attacking Defence Minister Gessler, charged that a secret fund existed in the budget for the manufacture and hoarding of arms and aeroplanes in Russia.

To this the Right parties shouted, "Traitor." "Blackguard."

Pointing to the diplomatic box, in which foreign representatives were seated, the Nationalists cried: "Why reveal these things to our enemies?" Then they left the Chamber.

Herr Scheidemann, who was leading the Socialist attack aimed at the overthrow of the Marx Cabinet, replied that the allies knew all about the "rotten militaristic conditions" in Germany, and added: "We might as well correct these conditions ourselves as have the allies act for us.

FRENCH REGARD MOBILIZATION IN NICE AND ITALIAN FRONTIER AS PASSIVE AND PRECAUTIONARY

Entirely Natural To Have French Forts Kept Up-to-date.

DANGER AVERTED.

Zealots Declared To Have Been Restrained From Embarrassing Mussolini.

PARIS, Dec. 17. — It is being emphasized in Paris that the military and naval measures recently taken by the French in the Fifteenth District, which happens to include Nice and therefore is next the Italian border, are nowise other than passive in character.

It is stressed that the centering of a considerable portion of French naval forces at Toulon and the sending of extra troops into the region, as for example the shifting of two regiments of Chasseurs Alpine from the Rhineland to Antibes, represent only precautionary measures. It is also said that it is entirely natural for the French forts on the Italian border to be kept up to date, as is done with the French forts on other borders.

In fact, it is said in the French capital, taking it for granted, of course, that Premier Mussolini has no aggressive intentions with respect to any point of French territory, that the precautions taken by the French now amount to protection for the Italian Government and a guarantee of peaceful rela-

BOARD REFUSES APPLICATION FOR EARLY HEARING

For Coal Rates Case Between Provinces Alberta and Ontario.

MAY RECONSIDER.

After Due Consideration Board Unable To Find Reason For Stopping.

OTTAWA, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The Board of Railway Commissioners yesterday afternoon refused the application of Alberta and Ontario to set an early date for the hearing of the coal rates case, whereby the two provinces asked for early consideration of the freight rates on Alberta coal coming east. If later developments indicated a great urgency in this matter, the Board may reconsider its ruling, it was announced.

Chief Commissioner McKeown announced yesterday afternoon that after carefully weighing the pros and cons, the Board was unable to find sufficient reason for stopping the general freight rates investigation now under way which had already been in progress for a year and a half. He was not unimpressed with the argument that legislation at the present session might be necessary and if later on developments emphasized this probability the Board might give the question further consideration, but in the meantime the application would be refused.

Geese Sound Warning Save Village From Fire

BUCHAREST, Dec. 17 (Associated Press).—For saving the village of Crajowa from destruction by fire, a flock of geese condemned to slaughter for Christmas, is to live until New Year's at least.

At night the owner was awakened by frantic cackling. He hurried to the poultry yard. The birds refused to be quieted. Looking in the direction in which the geese were craning their necks, the owner discovered a bright glow over a distant farmhouse. Soon flames burst forth.

The alarm was sounded, and the building was saved. The peasants are certain that, because of the prevailing gale, all of Crajowa might have been destroyed but for the warning of the geese.

ROWELL ASKS THAT PAYMENT BE EXPLAINED

B. C. Brewery President Tells Probe $10,000 Item Mine Deal.

OTHERS IN DOUBT.

Assumed Amounts Were Used To Bribe Government Officials.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Henry Reifel, president of the British Columbia Breweries, was again called to the stand when the Customs Commission resumed yesterday.

He was asked by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., Commission counsel, to explain a cheque for $10,000 of the Vancouver Breweries, which Mr. Reifel was unable to explain on Wednesday. "It was a mining deal," said Mr. Reifel.

Mr. Reifel said he could furnish evidence later which would prove his statement and Mr. Rowell asked him to do so.

"You refused to give me any information in regard to a number of other items. Are you prepared to do so now?" asked Mr. Rowell. "No," replied Mr. Reifel.

Mr. Rowell said he must ask the Commission to direct that the witness answer the question. He was not referring at the moment to amounts which were for campaign funds, said Mr. Rowell. He referred to other expenditures of Reifel, which were charged to the insurance and protection account. Mr. Farris protested against this.

Will Demand Answer.

Mr. Rowell drew attention to the whole conduct of this group of companies. The Commission, he said, should require an explanation of the payment. The company has performed acts which were open to severe censure. Surely the Commission should clear up the whole matter. False labels had been placed on bottles, forged revenue stamps had been used, the in-transit liquor traffic and its ramifications had been revealed to the Commission.

Chairman Brown asked Mr. Rowell if he thought that it was not unfair to assume that the amounts which counsel wished to ask about were used to influence Government officials.

Royal Honeymooners Shopping at Paris

PARIS, December 17. — For three days Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium and his bride of a month, Princess Astrid of Sweden succeeded in doing some shopping for Christmas, without the general public being aware of their presence here. Now that they have been discovered by newspapermen it is thought that they will go to Brussels immediately.

Leopold and Astrid came direct to Paris from their honeymoon in the Riviera.

FRUIT GROWERS ADVOCATE PLEA FOR PROTECTION

Gardeners Presented Their Views To Tariff Advisory Board Yesterday.

TOLD ABOUT CARROTS.

Americans Flood Markets Before Canadian Crop is Harvested.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 17.—Pierre Duguire and Camille Legarie, market gardeners of Montreal, argued further before the Tariff Advisory Board yesterday afternoon for increased protection on vegetables. A. E. Darby, representing the Canadian Council of Agriculture, enquired of Mr. Duguire whether it was the desire of the market gardeners to increase the price of agricultural products. Mr. Duguire replied that it was the desire to increase the production. If production increased prices would be stable.

Americans Get Market.

John McEvoy, representing the Gardeners' Association of Quebec, declared that when Canadian products were being harvested the market had been flooded by the American crop. "The Americans put on carrots in attractive bunches and they sell at high prices. What I get for my carrots is a cent a pound."

Mr. McEvoy declared that he had lost $11,000 in the last five years.

"What you want us to do," said Mr. Deachman, "is to eat stored carrots."

"Certainly," said Mr. McEvoy.

"Seasonal" Carrots.

Mrs. H. M. Aitken, Beeton, Ont., representing Ontario Women's Institutes, spoke on the question of "seasonal" carrots. The women of Ontario, she said, were interested in the low costs of production. One of the reasons for the "seasonal" carrot, she said, was that new carrots were easy and old carrots hard to clean. The Department of Public Health had educated the people to eat new carrots and had emphasized the alleged fact that there was more virtue in a high-priced imported carrot than in the old home-grown variety.

Last year, Mrs. Aitkens said she had made good money on carrots, so this year, she said, "we plunged on carrots. But the Texas new stuff came in, so we held them. We later went to a Toronto wholesaler with 100 bags of choice carrots. We got 75 cents a bag for them and after paying for truckage we had another nice little deficit. If we had been protected till February we would have been able to dispose of all our carrots at good prices."

ENTIRE VILLAGE NOT QUARANTINED

Incorrect Rumors Cause Trouble and Anxiety, Says Lakefield Man.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 17.—Rumors that the entire village of Lakefield was under quarantine for small-pox have caused considerable slackening of business, A. B. Burrows, secretary of the Board of Trade, told The Examiner last night. He said that no order had been issued forbidding people to enter or leave the village or requiring not more than one customer in a store at the same time.

Rev. A. W. MacKenzie of the Grove School has had many anxious parents inquiring if their sons are to be allowed home for the Christmas holidays, while Lakefield people visiting Peterboro have been asked how they got out.

THEY ALL DREAM IT

A golden dream, this! The dream that comes only when you're a youngster. Kiddies of the rich and kiddies of the poor alike dream it, and fulfillment of it in some measure means just as much to one as to the other. Trouble is, the kiddies of the poor sometimes wake up on Christmas morning disillusioned. Are any youngsters of Peterboro and district to suffer that bitter experience? Perish the thought! But some of them will unless YOU take a stand in the matter.

PROBE RECORDS STILL MISSING

But Official Transcript of the Gould Evidence is Found.

IN U. S. CASE.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The official records of the St. John Valley Railway probe in connection with arbitration proceedings in 1917, at which Hon. Arthur R. Gould gave his evidence about the payment of $100,000 to Hon. J. K. Fleming, in 1911, when the latter was Premier of New Brunswick, are still missing from the files of the Provincial Legislature, but there is an official transcript of the evidence which Mr. Gould gave in connection with the transaction as a result of which effort is being made to unseat him in the United States Senate. The only known existing copy of the evidence taken before Hon. H. A. McKeown, then Chief Justice of the King's bench division of the Supreme Court, is in possession of Peter J. Hughes, K.C., of this city, who is the only surviving lawyer of the four counsel who engaged in the arbitration proceedings.

MORE PENSIONS PAID LAST YEAR

Increase of $1,500,000 Is Shown in the Report.

RETROACTIVE AWARDS

OTTAWA, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The total liability of the Dominion Government under the Pensions Act (Great War) for the year ending March last, was $33,065,471, the report of the Board of Pensions Commissioners, tabled in the House of Commons, shows. This is an increase over the amount paid the year before of about $1,500,000. "This increase," the report says, "is to be attributed to various factors, among which may be mentioned that in a number of disability cases the applicants were, on the evidence submitted, entitled to retroactive pension from date of discharge from the forces; that the statuary time limit in which to file a claim for pension was extended by Parliament to seven years from the date of discharge, and to judgments of the Federal Appeal Board reversing decisions of the Board of Pensions Commissioners that injury or disease, or the aggravation thereof, resulting in disability or death, was not incurred during military service."

The total number of disability pensions to war veterans was 46,785 at the end of last March, and the number of pensions to dependants of deceased members of the force 20,005.

Drug Addicts Clamor For the New Remedy

NEW YORK, Dec. 17. United Press. — Hopeful that the newly discovered narcosan will cure them of the drug habit, drug addicts appealed yesterday to the city authorities for the remedy.

For the last 24 hours, since the treatment was announced in the newspapers the office of Frederick A. Willis commissioner of correction has been flooded with telephone calls from addicts who wanted to try it.

ARE ACCEPTING LLOYD GEORGE'S FINANCIAL OFFER

Accepted By Organized Committee of Liberal Party By Vote of 19 to 14.

SCORES VICTORY.

No Action Taken in Selecting Grey as Leader of Asquithians.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—David Lloyd George's revised and unconditional offer of the us of the income of his electoral fund, arranged through radio communications since he left England, has been accepted by the organizing committee of the Liberal party by a vote of 19 to 14, but the party feud is not healed.

The minority, fourteen, represents the strength of Viscount Grey's adherents, who believe that it is impossible to work with Mr. Lloyd George. What will happen now is reconstitution of the organizing committee, whereby Vivian Phillips and other confirmed Asquithian committeemen will be replaced by Georgeites.

There were reports recently that Lord Grey was to be selected as leader of the Asquith section of the Liberal party but no action has been taken in this direction. It was felt by many Liberals that the better course would be to reconcile the warring factions as far as possible.

It is suggested that the successor to Vivian Phillips, the chief Asquithian organizer, would be Sir Herbert Samuel, who was the chairman of the Coal Commission. Sir Herbert has just been offered the chairmanship of the electricity board to carry out the Government's great electricity supply scheme, but he declined and gave as the reason his intention to return to political life early in the New Year. As he has not been connected with the recent dissensions in the Liberal party, it is thought that if he is willing to accept the chairmanship of the party organization he might be successful in healing in a measure the party differences.

RELIEF PARTIES VISIT VESSELS

Carry Food to Four Ships Stranded in Ice Off Saginaw.

CARRIED BY FLOES.

SAGINAW, Mich., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Relief expeditions crossed the ice of the Saginaw Bay to-day in autos, carrying food to the crews of lake vessels marooned in the ice. The mates of the Langill Boys, a Saginaw lumber barge, and the Sarnia City, a tug, and a crew member of the barge Fillamore made their way across last night over the ice, carrying appeals for food supplies for the crews of the three vessels and the barge M. A. Bradley. The Langill Boys, the Fillmore, and the Sarnia City are stuck fast in the ice in mid-channel off Augres.

The four boats were near Bay City, Mich., on Monday, but the ice went out of the river mouth and swept them into the bay again. The ice flow carried them further in one hour than their own progress in three days, according to Clarence Hillborn, mate of the Langill Boys.

Canadian Canoe Plant Destroyed Early This Morning

Nothing Left of Building But Four Blackened Walls — Many Canoes, Some Ready For Shipment, Lost in Blaze—Loss $100,000.

WILL START BUSINESS AGAIN SAYS MANAGER OF COMPANY

Fire gutted the plant of the Canadian Canoe Company on Rink Street early this morning. All that is left to tell the tale of a plant that was flourishing yesterday and doing a big business are the four brick walls and a few of the furnishings which were in the west end of the building. The east end of the building is completely burnt from the ground to the roof. The fire is supposed to have started in the boiler room.

The fire department received the call at 4.53. The C.P.R. man at the diamond had noticed the fire and he telephoned the station operator who sent in the fire alarm. The fire must have gotten a big start before anyone saw it, as the C.P.R. diamond is quite a distance away. When the fire department got there, the lower half of the basement and the east end of the second floor was a mass of flames.

The Building

The factory was a four-storey brick building and all the material of which it was made was very inflammable and this made the firemen's task all the more difficult. The fire crept up the east end of the building and the firemen tried to check it on each floor, but everything burnt like tinder.

The Chief on arriving hooked up six lines of hose with a total length of 3,300 feet from the different hydrants nearby. Two hundred and fifty feet of ladders were called into use, and it was necessary to call out the other platoon of firemen. At 6.00 o'clock the fire was under control and at 9.00 o'clock all the lines of hose were taken off except one.

The Damage

This was the worst fire in this city since the Turnbull fire on March 31, 1923. The estimated loss to contents and building is about $100,000. There were over forty canoes in the building, most of which are burnt, and fifteen canoes which were ready to go to the store-room this morning. M. W. Lyle, the manager, was unable to estimate the loss, and he said he was more concerned about getting started again.

The morning was very cold and blustery and the firemen wish to thank Mrs. F. W. Burnham of Rink Street who supplied hot coffee to them when they were fighting the fire.

With this fire, the question of a sub-station in the south end has come up again, and the Chief points out that a station in that part of the city would have been a great advantage this morning.

On the way back from the fire the Chief dropped one of his gauntlets. This mitt has "Chief F.D." printed on the inside of the cuff and Chief Gimblett would like the person who picks it up to return it to the Fire Hall.

ISAAC M'NABB NEW PRESIDENT KIWANIS CLUB

John I. Allen is Vice-President and John J. Turner is Trustee.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Charles Elliott Succeeds Walter Kidd as Treasurer—Directors Elected.

Isaac P. McNabb is the unanimous choice of Kiwanis Club as the 1927 President. The annual meeting and election of officers was held to-day, when reports were presented by the treasurer and secretary.

John J. Turner was elected district trustee; John I. Allen is the new vice-president, and Charles Elliott is treasurer. The seven members elected to the directorate are: Carl S. Browne, Harry Boyle, Harry Dickin, Joseph John, Dr. F. C. Neal, Rev. J. D. Paterson and J. E. Smith.

The retiring officers are: President Dr. John J. Craig, Vice-President Isaac P. McNabb, District Trustee John I. Allen, Treasurer Walter Kidd, Directors: Walter Oke, Harry Huffman, Harold Perry, Charles Cook, Carl S. Brown, John A. McKone and John J. Turner.

A vote of thanks to the president was proposed by John A. McNabb and Herb. McCannan, and enthusiastically passed, followed by a demonstration in honor of Mrs. Craig, whose health was proposed by Frank Dawson in recognition of the able assistance she has given her husband.

John Allen led three cheers for the retiring treasurer, and John Marshall and Harry Dickin proposed a vote of thanks to the secretary.

It was one of the jolliest meetings the club has ever held, Carl McLean acting as pianist and John Meyers, Herb McCannan, Harry Huffman and Isaac McNabb as song leaders. Not the least pleasant of the day's business was the passing of several boxes of cigars by elected officers.

COBOURG FERRY HAS HARD FIGHT

Unable To Make Harbor, It Battles Against Wind To New Toronto.

ALL NIGHT STRUGGLE.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—Having battled for their lives on the storm-swept seas of Lake Ontario for two long days and a night, forty men, aboard the Rochester - Cobourg car ferry Ontario No. 1, reached safety off New Toronto last night.

Caught by the gale roaring westward down the lake, the vessel was unable to make its destination in Cobourg on Wednesday. Rolling waves and screaming winds swept it from its course, threatening to carry it away down the lake.

The only safety, such as it was, lay in turning into the gale, and so head on into the storm turned the ferry. Pluckily it plowed its way westward, and slowly it gained headway through the rolling seas.

Long Search For Anchorage.

All Wednesday, throughout Wednesday night, all yesterday, the vessel fought its way westward, seeking some sheltered spot along the coast line for anchorage until the gale abated.

On shore telegraph and telephone and wireless spread messages of the fight against death in the icy waters. Aboard the ferry the small wireless outfit ticked out the story of the struggle.

At 6.25 last night the ferry made Toronto. Navigation was closed and the lights that mean port and safety to mariners were out. On westward the ferry plowed its way, on up the coast line toward Hamilton.

Anchored Mile Off Shore.

Finally, at New Toronto, anchor was dropped. The waves still rolled high. The ferry pitched and tossed. With head in the gale, it managed to hold its position about a mile off shore. And there, tossing and rolling, it waited for the storm to abate.

The men aboard the ferry numbered forty, thirty-nine of a crew and Sam McCaig, captain. There were no passengers aboard. The vessel was fairly heavily loaded with 29 freight cars.

On Way Back Now.

The ferry left New Toronto this morning for Cobourg, after sheltering off New Toronto during the night, having been driven there by strong winds and heavy seas in her trip across the Lake, from Rochester to Cobourg.

The Lake was calmer to-day, and the crew stayed aboard the ferry for the journey to its original destination.

FARMERS PLAN BIG GRAIN POOL

Will Co-operate With Prairie Organizations For Selling.

HANDLE ALL GRAINS.

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—A wide-flung energetic organization extending from one end of the Province to the other, the Grain Pool of the United Farmers of Ontario, will be established early next year, it is expected. Harry A. Gilroy, of Alvinston, President of the U.F.O. Co-operative Society, declared in an interview yesterday that it is planned to organize a grain pool and not one for wheat alone. Thus the farmers of Ontario will follow the lead of their brother agriculturists in the Western Provinces.

J. T. Hull, of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Wheat Pool, yesterday afternoon laid before the U.F.O. convention the achievements of his organization for the consideration of the Ontario body.

Mr. Gilroy is Chairman of the Committee on Organization in connection with the proposal. "We expect to begin organizing the pool immediately after the New Year," he says. "Our plan is to work in close conjunction with the pools in the three Western Provinces, and co-operate with their selling organization at Winnipeg as another unit of their association."

Many Resolutions.

Resolutions expressing belief in the usefulness and desirability of the Ontario Temperance Act and recommending teaching of the aims and principles of the League of Nations in Ontario schools, were passed by the United Farmers of Ontario assembled in convention yesterday.

After an address by Farquhar Oliver, M.P.P. for South Grey, the convention passed a motion that electoral machinery should be placed under a permanent non-partisan board.

Other resolutions passed endorsed proportional representation and the transferrable vote.

HUSBAND AND WIFE UNITED IN DEATH

Elgin Sneider Taken Ill on Day of Wife's Funeral.

WARSAW, Dec. 17.—Margaret Wannamaker, wife of M. E. Sneider, passed away at her home in Warsaw at two o'clock on Saturday afternoon, December 11. Though she had been ill a few days, the end was quite unexpected. For some time she had not been very strong and a few weeks ago had the "flu," but had recovered.

Though a very quiet and unobtrusive woman, Mrs. Sneider will be very much missed in her church and in her home. She was a devoted wife and mother, and leaves to mourn her loss one son, Clarence, in Peterboro, and two daughters, Mrs. Ottis Kidd, of Peterboro, and Mrs. William Dewart, of Indian River.

Mr. and Mrs. Sneider came to Warsaw about forty-one years ago, and have always lived in the house where she died. One son, Harry, died about thirty years ago.

She was a member of, and earnest worker in, the Methodist Church. She taught in the Sunday School for a long time, but was always one who thought some one else might do better. In the Bible Class she showed herself a Bible student, a lover of her Bible and a kindly Christian spirit. She was a charter member of the Women's Missionary Society, of whom there is but one, Mrs. Robert Somers, now left, living near Warsaw. When the branch in Warsaw held its twenty-fifth anniversary Mrs. Sneider was presented with a life membership. When the Ladies' Aid of the United Church was organized she became an active member.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Sneider was held from her home on Monday afternoon. Rev. H. B. Herrington conducted the services at the house and at the grave in Warsaw Cemetery. There were many beautiful flowers. The pallbearers were Messrs. Robert Somers, Thomas Clements, William Jackson, Uriah Payne, Gordon Payne and Robert Moore, all gentlemen who had been associated with Mr. and Mrs. Sneider in their church work.

At six o'clock on Wednesday morning Mr. Elgin Sneider passed away at Nicholls Hospital. The remains will be brought to Warsaw for interment on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Sneider was ill when his wife died and was taken to the hospital in an ambulance on the evening of the day of her funeral, and passed away after two nights and one day there.

In Mr. Sneider the United Church at Warsaw loses a staunch and loyal supporter. He had been a true member of the Methodist Church, and his loss will be keenly felt. He was also a regular attendant at the Sunday School.

CINDERELLA GIRL SEEKS DAMAGES

Charges Browning With Attempting To Attack Her.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Mary Louise Spas, the original Cinderella girl in the life of Edward W Browning has joined the real estate dealer's estranged child wife, "Peaches" Heenan Browning, in demanding goodly portion of his wealth.

Mary Louise, wants $500,000 for an alleged attempted assault during the brief period in August, 1925, when she was his legally adopted ward and for alleged threats against her and her parents after the adoption was annulled. After adoption, she asserts, she went to Browning's apartment at Kew Gardens in Queens, where he attempted to attack her.

The erstwhile "Cinderella Man" who, on January 24, is to defend separation suit brought by "Peaches" called the new action "mere highway robbery."

"It's the courts that let women get away with blackmail,' he said. "They give the woman whatever she wants. Something ought to be done to protect man in public from attacks like this. It is simply blackmail."

Afterward, she declares, Browning showed her pistol and threatened to kill her and himself if she revealed what had happened, to the District Attorney.

She asks $400,000 damages for shock and mental anguish, $50,000 for the attempted assault and $500,000 for having been forced to sign the papers.

SALES AND BAZAARS

AT ROSENEATH.

ROSENEATH, Dec. 17.—The King's Mission Band had a record day on Saturday in making their bazaar a huge success, under the leadership of Mrs. (Rev.) Lovelace and Miss J. Johnston. Early in the forenoon two of the bright and cheerful members of the band, Bessie Turner and Jessie Mouncey were out selling tags, for all the weather was somewhat disagreeable it did not prevent these eager young ladies from canvassing every house in the village and tagging the people coming into the village. They did their work splendidly and realized the sum of $7.89.

The bazaar was held in the town hall and promptly at 2.30 p.m. the leader, Mrs. (Rev.) Lovelace, asked the attention of the large gathering to sing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," the bazaar was then declared open and from then until 8 p.m. the hall was a hive of industry. The hall was in gay attire for the event and was thronged with eager buyers long before opening time. The decorations of the various booths were planned to represent a departmental store, having its different departments. The home-made candy and cooking department with its tempting array of delicious bread, buns, cakes, pies and candy with a toothsome variety lured the change from the purse of many shoppers. Misses Cora Linton and Lois Talling were in charge and made excellent saleslades.

The grocery department with its able staff of young clerks, had a splendid variety of groceries and vegetables. The clerks in charge were Harold Wilding, Billie Halstead, Stewart Nichol, and Allen Pacey. These boys deserve credit for the interest taken in their work and soon informed the crowd by shouting "Our department is sold out"

The woodenware department, under the management of Eddie Turner and Neil Brisbin had somewhat harder work in selling their goods as they were more expensive, but before 6 p.m. their counter was cleared and "sold out" could be written on the sign.

One of the busiest sections was the notions and novelties and ready-to-wear, where a wonderful display of hand work was quickly disposed of. Not only embroidered articles but mittens, dresses, Christmas gifts, and decorations and many articles of children's wearing apparel, could be obtained for a reasonable sum of money. The young clerks were very clever and courteous and had a thriving trade and a busy afternoon. The clerks were members of the Band, namely: Joy Morrison, Mary Mouncey, Hazel Covert, Bessie Turner, Jessie Mouncey, and Ilaine Carew, with the assistance of Misses Beatrice Sandercock, under the supervision of Miss Bertha Clark.

Mrs. (Rev.) Lovelace was head cashier and was kept very busy for a few hours. After the shopping expedition the tired shoppers were refreshed by a visit to the tea room to enjoy the afternoon tea served by the little tots and young members of the band. They nobly performed their duties without any excitement and represented up-to-date waitresses. Those who took part were: Jean George, Beatrice Lovelace, Luella Timlin, Thelma Blodgett, Lavine McMillan, Marjorie Carew, with Olive George acting as cashier. This was supervised by Mrs. George Mouncey assisted by Miss Mildred Blodgett.

Music was furnished at intervals by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe and Mrs. George Mouncey.

The children of the Mission Band are all great workers. Even the ones who were not on duty behind the counters were busy helping in some way or other doing messages,all willing to boost the noted event of the season, and were very proud to learn that the net proceeds amounted to $52.

The children and parents are now busy preparing a Christmas entertainment for December 23.

Had Bagged 256 Wolves In 13 Years Of Trapping

PORT ARTHUR Ont. Dec. 17. Canadian Press. — With 256 wolves to his credit in thirteen years of trapping on the transcontinental railway near Oscar Andrew Meikkinen, Finnish, is giving up his vocation "for something more useful to the world." Andrew came to the city yesterday with twenty four wolf pelts, his catch since last September.

Twenty-two of them are brush wolves and two are timber wolves —one of them, he says, the largest ever trapped in this section of the country.

Mr. Meikkinen states that one of the timber wolves he captured killed no fewer than sixty deer and two cow moose in one week. He says he found the carcases scattered over ten miles of burned over country. The animals were killed and left untouched.

Mr. Meikkinen is going back to Oscar at once, and will continue trapping until next spring, when he will collect his traps, and go into "some other line of business."

OBITUARY.

JOHN T. MALONEY.

On Saturday afternoon, December 11th, the death occurred in Douro Township of John T. Maloney, one of the oldest pioneers of the township, in his 82nd year.

He leaves to mourn his loss four sons, Michael of Rochester, N.Y., George of Peterboro, Jeremiah at home, and Herbert of Detroit; and six daughters, Mrs. John Hynes of Smith, Mrs. Frank Hynes of Peterboro, Mrs. George Charlton of Lakefield, Mrs. Ed. Cooper of Painted Post, N.Y., Mrs. John W. Condon of Douro and Miss Sara at home.

The funeral took place on Monday morning, December 13, from the family residence, Douro, to St. Joseph's Church, where mass was sung by Father McGuire. Then to St. Joseph's cemetery where the remains were placed in the parish vault in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

MRS. AGNES McARDLE.

KING'S WHARF, Dec. 17.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Agnes McArdle was held Monday morning from the residence of her brother, Thomas Flynn, to St. Luke's, Downeyville, where a requiem mass was chanted by Rev. Father Galvin at 9 o'clock. The services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Father Galvin and the pallbearers were Messrs. Wm. Crowley and Thos. Flynn, Lindsay, Martin Doran and Patrick Y. Crowley, Ennismore, Neil Herlihey, Emily and Dennis Sullivan, East Emily.

The late Mrs. McArdle, whose death took place in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, was well and favorably known here, where she was born and lived until her marriage some twenty years ago, when she went to live in Rochester, N. Y. Her husband and only child predeceased her fifteen years ago. For the last ten years she has resided with her brother on the old homestead. Her death was unexpected and came as a great shock to her neighbors and friends here.

Among those who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Henry Matthews, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. William Herlihey, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Crowley and Miss B. A. Morrissey, Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. John Delaney and Mrs. Patrick Fitzpatrick, all of Warsaw, Mrs. Thos. Harrington, Messrs. Martin and Joseph Doran, P. Y. Crowley and Dennis Sullivan from Ennismore, Mrs. Joseph Owens and Mrs. James Murtha, Rochester, N.Y.

She leaves two brothers, Patrick Flynn, Rochester, N.Y., Thos. Flynn, Emily, and four sisters, Mrs. James Murtha, Mrs. Joseph Owens, Mrs. Michael Carroll and Mrs. Maurice Guiry, all of Rochester, N.Y. The sympathy of the community is expressed to the relatives in their bereavement.

JEAN ALLAN BLAIR.

MADOC, Dec. 17.—A feeling of sadness passed over the entire village on Tuesday at the news of the passing of Jean Allan Blair, daughter of Mrs. and the late Mr. William Blair. Miss Jean has been in poor health for some months, but the end came suddenly on Tuesday morning. She was a young lady of noble and endearing qualities and will be very much missed by her many friends and acquaintances, especially by the young people of the United church, of which Miss Blair was a member and a worker in the Sunday School and Young People's League. Much sympathy is felt for her mother and sister, Miss Sarah Blair, a teacher in Deloro at present. Miss Jean Blair was a student at Peterborough Normal school about five years ago. In the spring of her student year she suffered an attack of scarlet fever and was unable to finish her course. She never entirely regained her health and has remained at home since then.

The funeral was held from her late residence on Elgin street to the United church yesterday afternoon, where the service was conducted by Rev. A. H. Foster. Interment was made in the cemetery at Hazard's Corners. Many beautiful flowers testified to the high esteem in which the late Miss Blair was held.

This is the Baking Powder that you can always rely upon.

CHRISTMAS TREES.

The many people who take joy out of having a Christmas tree as one of the chief features of the Yuletide celebration will take fresh heart from the statement of Canadian forestry officials that the annual cutting of trees for Christmas purposes does no harm to Canada's forests.

Every year there are so many folks who lament the great waste they claim to be caused by the December cutting of small trees that conscientious Canadians have felt a little guilty as they ordered their Christmas trees.

Forestry officials, however, point out that the trees suitable for Christmas use usually grow in places where they are a nuisance and they might better be cut down and sold.

And the total number of Christmas trees in Canada anyway is trifling compared to the number destroyed by fire each year.

Canadians can have their Christmas trees this year with a clear conscience.

Their use does not deplete the forest wealth of the Dominion or represent an economic loss.

A VAULABLE SUGGESTION.

The advice of His Worship Mayor Holloway that the services of the Central Charity Board be utilized by organizations dispensing Christmas cheer, should not pass unnoticed.

As Mayor Holloway points out, the Board, by reason of its personnel and experience, is in a position to advise those who want to play Santa Claus to needy families.

The Board's relief officer, Mr. Miller, might well be consulted in case of doubt.

It often happens that there are cases of destitution that have not come to the attention of the organizations and societies and the Relief Officer is able to suggest the names of such families.

On the other hand organizations are not unlikely to be victimized by those who are not nearly so much in need of help as their pitiful stories would have people believe.

Mr. Miller's long experience in dispensing relief in the city has put him in possession of a fund of information about such cases that would be of great benefit to amateur Sana Claus' organizations.

AN EMPHATIC MANDATE.

Complete figures of the Ontario election show that the Province's endorsation of Government control has been even more emphatic than was at first realized.

In the 190 ridings in which voting took place—Government control candidates were elected without a contest in the other three—a popular majority of 255,639 was piled up in favour of the Government proposal.

The popular vote shows that nearly 68 per cent. of the people who voted on December 1st supported Government control, the totals being 679,812 for Government control as compared to 424,173 for the Ontario Temperance Act.

The decisiveness of the verdict gives the Ontario Government every chance to make good.

Popular opinion is strongly behind the principle the Government proposed, and if the satisfactory working out of that principle by means of thoughtfully planned legislation follows, the continued support of the public is assured.

The Government has been given an unmistakable mandate, and with it goes the responsibility of keeping faith with those who supported the administration on the strength of its promises to bring down a control act that would control.

PREFERENCE FOR VETERANS.

One measure that should receive a quick death at the hands of Parliament is the bill of Frank Cahill, member for Pontiac, proposing to do away with the preference to returned soldiers in the matter of civil service appointments.

So long as there are positions in the public service, men, especially those who are suffering from war disabilities, the men who fought should receive the preference in all such appointments.

National gratitude demands that this should be the case, and on top of that is the fact that from every recruiting platform in the Dominion during the hectic war days was the promise made that Canadians who fought for Canada should be gratefully remembered and rewarded by their homeland.

In the case of crippled veterans, in the filling of every place in the Federal service that can be filled by an ex-soldier of this category, the preference in every instance should go to the veteran.

Similarly there are many other returned men who, while not pensioners, have been incapacitated by their war service to such an extent as to handicap them for more strenuous service but who are capable of filling many civil service appointments.

The withdrawal of the preference in such cases would be a severe and unfair handicap to men who deserve well of the country.

There is no demand for Mr. Cahill's bill, and it should be so roundly opposed in the House that the member for Pontiac will be glad to withdraw it.

CHARITIES AND THE INCOME TAX.

At this holiday time there is not only a great deal of demand for private expenditure, but there is always a greater than usual call for aid from many charitable undertakings, and this recalls the fact that the Dominion income tax makes no allowance for contributions to charitable or public purposes. Beyond all question this tends to restrict the amount of voluntary contributions to such purposes, and it is a great pity that this should be so.

Years ago, a member of the House of Commons, about this change in the national income tax.—Ottawa Journal.

Mr. Cronyn it was we think, moved a resolution in the House in favor of exempting from the Dominion income tax such portion of taxable income up to 15 per cent. which could be shown to have been contributed towards charitable, educational, or other public non-money-making institutions. The country was pretty hard up at the time, however, and the motion did not make headway. Later on a large deputation waited upon Mr. Fielding, when he was Minister of Finance, to press the matter upon his attention, and Mr Fielding replied frankly that he was strongly in favor of such exemption, but that at that particular time the Government had absolute need of every cent it could get, and he could not advise his colleagues to do anything at that moment.

The national revenue is now upon a somewhat better plane than it was then; and the subject is one which ought to receive the consideration of the present Government. In the United States there has been from the first an exemption from taxation of income which is contributed to charitable purposes, an exemption up to 15 per cent. of income. Surely this is an example which Canada would now do well to follow.

We have a great number of very fine charities which deserve the liberal support of citizens, and without most of which the community could not possibly get on decently. Undoubtedly such charities would benefit if money given to them by citizens were exempted from income taxation, and we think that all right-minded citizens should be desirous of bringing

A TWOFOLD PROJECT.

Announcement by the Dominion Government that assistance will be given to by-product coke ovens for the creation of fuel for industrial districts from the coal of Cape Breton and Alberta comes after years of study and research, and there is a twofold end in view. The Government's decision was made public in the Speech from the Throne on the very day that the Royal Commission on Maritime Claims tabled its report calling, among many things, for establishment of such coking centres. But while the finding of a stable market for a great Maritime industry was no doubt the chief aim of the Claims Commission, this is not the only goal which the Government sees. Provision of a source of domestic fuel, other than the anthracite of the United States, has become increasingly imperative, and coking plants using Canadian raw material has already been urged upon Ottawa as a solution of this problem. The coking scheme kills two birds with one stone.

The coke-oven plan, as Mr. Hume Cronyn was careful to point out in this city some months ago, is not new. It was urged by the Dominion Fuel Board after long investigation. Mr. Cronyn himself, as a member of the Nova Scotia Coal Commission, indorsed the idea in a special report, which made a distinct impression and which, in view of the latest developments, is recalled with some interest. Not only in his official report, but in public addresses afterwards, Mr. Cronyn discussed in detail the idea of coking plants, which he described as "the remedy which if put in force may at one and the same time relieve us of our dependence upon outside sources of fuel supply and turn some of the many millions we contribute annually to the prosperity of American mines toward those owned and operated by our own people". Some of Mr. Cronyn's utterances at that time were almost prophetic. He said:

"To begin with there should be established at Montreal—and later at Toronto and elsewhere in Quebec and Ontario—by-product coking plants which would convert the almost unsaleable slack coal from Nova Scotia into coke . . . Once a market can be found for slack—and a coke oven uses and can use coal only in that powdered form—the greatest handicap, perhaps, under which the Nova Scotia miner labors will be removed. A steady market for slack would permit of continuity of work throughout the year, as coal mined in winter could be stored in bank, and with the coming of spring so much of it as has been reduced to slack could be shipped by water to the coke ovens just mentioned . . . The establishment of these plants would call for a large expenditure and the Federal Government might in fairness be asked to aid in their erection."

Mr. Croyn dealt in detail with the menace of a depleted United States anthracite supply, as well as with the benefit of aiding a languishing Maritime industry. Unofficial warnings had been issued from Ottawa declaring that the day might not be far distant when export of American anthracite might be forbidden. This situation having been brought to the attention of Ottawa on various occasions, it is therefore quite certain that the adoption of the policy of assistance to the coking plan is for a dual purpose, and not merely as a device for relief of Maritime mining difficulties. The building up of a Canadian fuel supply, of satisfactory quality, and available to the great industrial centres of Ontario, which before now would have suffered severely in fuel crises if it had not been for hydro power, is a sufficient end in itself. It is all the better if it incidentally helps to solve the difficulties of other parts of the Dominion. — London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Among those who believe that a December provincial election is a good thing are the hundreds of officials who have received their cheques for their services at the last election.

The merchants' slogan for the last week of the Christmas shopping season is likely to be, "Shop as you like, but shop."

Emperor Cook is sending his children to Russia for a "Red" education. Surely they could get all of that they needed right in the family circle.

One way of speeding up the proceedings of Parliament is to call the session just before Christmas.

Hon. J. S. Martin, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, promises more provincial assistance for Horticultural societies. The Minister believes such organizations to be of great service to the communities in which they funcion.

The most lovable quality that any human being can possess is tolerance. Tolerance is the vision that enables us to see things from another person's point of view. It is the generosity that concedes to others the right to their own opinions and their own peculiarities. It is the bigness that enables us to let people be happy in their own way instead of our way.—Public Ledger.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday continued inactive. The domestic trade was also slow but values were unchanged.

The feature of the flour trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market for Winter wheat grades and prices were reduced 10 cents per barrel. This was attributed to the small demand and the large offerings. The Spring wheat trade was moderately active and firm.

The millfeed trade was again active and values were well maintained. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats continued good and the undertone to the market was steady.

Considerable business was again transacted in all grades of fresh storage eggs and prices were firm. The receipts were 161 cases.

The demand for cheese was fair and prices held steady. The receipts were 36 boxes.

The butter market was active and firm. The receipts were 233 packages.

The potato trade continued quiet but prices ruled firm. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.80 to $1.85 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.55 to $1.60, and Quebec White stock at $1.45 to $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The demand for beans continued steady and prices ruled steady. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.75 per bushel, and smaller quantities at $3.00 per bushel.

MONTREAL, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 7-16.

Sterling cables $4.85 15-16.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press). — Cattle 16,000; one load choice yearlings $14.00; bulk $9.50 to $11.50; most heavies $9.00 to $10.00; best $10.95; some heavy medium bulls, $6.65; stockers and feeders weak to 25c lower; vealers $10.50 to $11.00 to packers.

Hogs 32,000; top $11.60 paid for several loads 260 to 290 pound averages; bulk better grade hogs, 170 to 250 pounds, $11.40 to $11.55; few late sales 180 to 200 pound weights $11.25 to $11.35; most packing sows $10.40 to $10.75.

Sheep 22,000; top fed westerns to small killers $12.85; packer top $12.75; bulk wooled lambs $11.50 to $12.50; fat ewes $5.00 to $6.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press). — Signs of an increasing movement of corn had a bearish effect on all grain yesterday and price upturns in wheat were more than wiped out. The close for the entire cereal list was heavy at the day's lowest figures, with corn 1 to 1 3-8c off; wheat 3-4 to 1 1-4c net lower; oats 1-2 to 1c down, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to 15 cents advance.

Wheat finally gave way with corn after averaging higher until toward the last, slackness of export demand for wheat from North America was a handicap to friends of higher prices, notwithstanding continued lack of any pressure to sell domestic cash wheat.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE TIP

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

The Pullman porters recently went on a rampage and asked the company for more wages.

They intimated that depending on the tip for wages was rather too precarious

The international congress of hotel keeps who met some time ago in Budapest declared that the tip is an odious thing.

They encouraged the attempt to remove it by making it a part of the hotel bill, usually a supplement of ten per cent added to the regular bill of the hotel.

Many travelers abroad adopt this system. When they are presented with bill from the hotel they add ten per cent and this saves them the nuisance of hunting up everybody and tipping each one.

A tip is the money paid for courteous attention, but this courtesy ought to be a part of the hotel's business, and there is no reason why guests should be charged extra for it.

Perhaps it will never be possible to restrain the opulent traveler from paying a little extra to get a little extra attention, but these people ought to remember that they are harming the whole travel business.

Other people ought not to be so opulent, and courtesy and attention ought to be a characteristic of all service.

Many a brave man quails at the sight of the upturned palms as he goes from the hotel. The valet, the femme de chambre, the garcon de chambre, the elevator boy, the chasseur, the concierge, the maitre de hotel, the waiter, and what not, all expect a little something.

By the time a man gets through it is not so much the money he has spent on them, as they want but little, as it is the fact that he is paying for something he ought to receive anyhow. The remedy perhaps should come from the hotel keepers, for if they would originally prohibit tips and pay their help enough so that they can do without them it would help considerable, even although they might not be able to restrain the wealthy traveler from throwing his money about.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

ABOUT RELIEF WORK

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir:

There has been some public discussion with reference to the work of the charitable societies at this season and the probability of some families being overlooked that should receive attention and others being served by more than one organization and the need of a central organization to prevent this happening.

I would like to point out that the Central Charity Board might serve as such a central organization. It is composed of representatives from the churches and some charitable organizations and the Board or the Relief Officer, Mr. Miller, I am sure will be pleased to give any assistance they can, and if the various charitable societies will consult with Mr. Miller difficulties such as those mentioned can be overcome.

Yours very truly,
W. T. HOLLOWAY,
Mayor.

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

While no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and healing commences.

GRAPEFRUIT—A MEDICINAL FRUIT

The grapefruit is so named because the fruit hangs in clusters similar to grapes, only, of course, the fruit is much larger in size, being four to five inches in diameter. The shaddock of pumello fruit of the Old World is similar to grapefruit. The grapefruit as we use it to-day, however, was first grown by the Spaniards in their settlements in Florida, and is purely an American fruit. Besides being grown in Florida, the finest varieties are found in Arizona and the Imperial Valley of California. The inside of the grapefruit is usually yellow, but there are a few varieties with a pink coloring to the inside of the fruit.

Grapefruit should be used without sugar, and the good varieties are now so grown that plenty of fruit sugar is produced in the fruit and no other sugar is needed to make it palatable.

The grapefruit contains, especially in the skin, a large amount of organic quinine, which will be found to be helpful in liver complaints. An entire fast may be taken, using the juice of the grapefruit. More of the quinine can be extracted by cutting up the entire grapefruit, skin and all, and pouring over it one quart of boiling hot water. Use an enamel or granite pan, as the acid of the grape fruit attacks an ordinary pan. Allow mixture to stand 30 minutes. It is then ready to drink. This liquid will be found to have a bitter flavor, which, however, is not unpleasant to take as en entire diet for a day or two.

Grapefruit should never be used at an ordinary breakfast where cereals are used, as the acid is so strong that it nevre combines well with any starchy food. The cereals will only ferment, if used at the same time as grapefruit, and the harm produced will be far in excess of the good you could expect from the use of the grapefruit. If grapefruit is used in the morning, it should be eaten at least one hour before breakfast. By that time the stomach will be in a normal condition and ready for your regular breakfast.

The entire grapefruit may be used at noon in place of a heavy luncheon by those who are inclined toward biliousness. If used in this manner, the greapfruit acts as a fine liver cleanser, and at the same time may be considered a good tonic, as it contains so many vital organic salts which are necessary to the body. The citric acid is really oxidized in the human system and becomes alkaline, so that one who is suffering from hyper-acidity should not fear to use any of the citric acid fruits, as they will assist in curing the hyper-acidity if used properly by themselves.

The grapefruit is always helpful to one who is suffering from a cold or fever, and if used in this manner it can be truly called a medicinal fruit, as its effect is very beneficial.

REPORT RIOTS IN PORTUGAL

Government Using Necessary Military Measures To Quell Southern Country.

RAILROADERS STRIKE.

LONDON, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press). — Another military rising was reported yesterday from Portugal. Probably owing to the censorship, no independent details have been received but the Portuguese Government has issued a statement to reassure the public mind.

It admits that some kind of subversive movement has occurred in the southern part of the country and announces that necessary military measures have been taken to insure public order.

Measures Taken.

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Measures have been taken by President Carmona and his Government either to prevent serious disturbances threatened in Southern Portugal, or to put down an uprising, rumors of which have reached the capital.

Trouble is reported to have started in the south, where the railwaymen are either on strike or have threatened to tie up the lines. It is announced that military dispersions have been affected wherever necessary and that the Government is determined vigorously to suppress all subversive attempts and that it guarantees tranquility throughout the country.

Military revolts in Portugal are of periodic occurrence. The one just prior to the present reported affair took place October 8 last and was almost immediately suppressed.

Occasionally, however, a military revolt in Portugal has important consequences. The army rose against the Government at Praga last May and began a march on Lisbon. The Lisbon garrison joined the malcontents and the Cabinet resigned. General Gomes da Costa was the leader of that revolution which carried Commander Cabecadas to the Premiership. Soon after that Da Costa ousted Cabecadas and was in turn overthrown by Carmona.

Most of the Portuguese risings in recent years have been bloodless affairs.

U.S. STEEL DECLARES 40 P. C. DIVIDENDS

Up To 1925 Has Paid Stockholders Dividends of $1,279,253,784.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17 — U. S. Steel directors announced late yesterday afternoon a 40 per cent. stock dividend. Shareholders will vote at the annual meeting in April to increase the capital by 2,033,210 shares in order to provide the necessary means for paying the dividends.

The big stock melon was not announced until after the close of business in Wall Street. It was in line with the expectation of a majority of stock traders but a considerable minority, taking its cue from the afternoon break in the steel shares, was not at all sure that the dividend would be put through at yesterday's meeting.

That the dividend gives evidence of the strong financial position of U.S. Steel is apparent from a recent statement of Judge Gary that the corporation would not vote a stock split-up until it was entirely able to do so out of increased earning power.

The United States Steel Corporation on February 26, 1926, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary. The corporation in these years has done a gross business of $2,280,000,000,000 — more than the U.S. national debt or the combined value of the United States railways.

It has paid d$6,000 000,000 in wages to employes—enough to buy a string of popular priced automobiles which would encircle the circumference of the earth a little more than ten times.

It has paid stockholders dividends totaling $1,279,253,784 to the end of 1925.

It started business with fifteen subsidiaries. It now has 130.

Its gross sales for its first year of business amounted to $560,510,479. The gross sales for 1925 are not available, but for 1924 they were $1,263,711,469.

Net earnings for 1925 were $165,000,000.

It has total assets now of $2,500,000,000, according to its balance sheet.

It employs 247,563 men.

It has a working capital of $427,661,627.

Of its stockholders 491,152 are employes.

It operates 152 plants, with an annual capacity of 9,400,000 tons of crude steel andd 7,700,000 of finished steel; not to mention pig iron and other products.

The huge organization had grown in 25 years — but it regarded its birthday as "just another day."

QUILTING PARTY.

Deloro Sunnyside Girls' Club at Home of Mrs. Floyd Gray.

MARMORA, Dec. 17.—Deloro Sunnyside Girls' Club recently held a quilting party at the home of Mrs. Floyd Gray. Ladies of the village attended and very generously lent assistance. Later the drawing for the quilt brought in the sum of fourteen and a half dollars.

The girls have made out a list of deserving children in the locality to whom they intend to play the role of Santa Claus.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, Dec. 17.—A dance was given on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orvil Trumble.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Warren spent Tuesday in Belleville.

Warden and Mrs. G. B. Airhart were visitors to Belleville on Tuesday.

Miss Sarah Blair, teacher at Deloro Public School, was called to Madoc on Tuesday owing to the death of her sister.

Miss Nellie Williams has been on the sick list for the past few days.

TRIES SUICIDE WITH DYNAMITE

Light Fuses on Two Sticks and Stands Over Them.

LIKELY TO RECOVER.

HALIFAX, N.S., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—After two attempts to end his own life had been thwarted by members of the family, Loftus Maniel, a resident of Upper Tantallon, this county, lighted the fuses on two sticks of dynamite and then stood over them awaiting the blast, shouting to the horrified spectators, "I'm going to blow myself to pieces and if you come near me I'll blow you to pieces too."

He was blown high in the air and suffered numerous wounds as well as shock, but was resting easy at the Victoria General Hospital here, facing the likelihood of losing both feet.

Manuel had been acting strangely since released from prison, where he served an eight months' term for a violation of the Inland Revenue Act.

GEORGE SLEEMAN DIES OF OPERATION

Surgical Work Successful, But Aged Man Too Weak.

GUELPH, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—George Sleeman, one of Guelph's pioneer citizens, and well known throughout the country, died early yesterday morning at the age of 85 years.

Mr. Sleeman was taken ill about a week ago and underwent a major abdominal operation. He refused an anaesthetic while the operation was being performed and came through it successfully, but his great age left little hope of ultimate recovery. Mr. Sleeman was for eight years Mayor of this city. He was builder of the first street railway here and operated the first brewery.

COUNCIL CLOSES 1926 BUSINESS

National Steel Castings By-law Rescinded at Campbelford.

ROUTINE MATTERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 16—The 1926 Council held its final meeting last night with all members present.

A communication was read from the Hamilton City Council asking this council to sign a petition to be presented to the Lieutenant-Governin Council asking the Government to relieve municipalities of their share of the upkeep of Provincial suburban roads. The request was complied with.

A communication from the Water and Light Commission was read, rescinding their action in granting free water to the National Steel Castings with a recommendation to Council to put in a water main to the proposed new building. The Water and Light Commission intimated that free water service was in the form of a grant and the new company was quite willing to pay for the water service.

The Council will assume responsibility for laying of the water main to the foundry.

A communication from the Canadian National Railways stated the estimated perishable cost of the siding to the National Steel Castings plant was $2,450.00 and would have to be assumed by the council or the new company.

The communication was filed and the clerk instructed to write the C. N.R. that no action would be taken at present.

Edward Nancarrow's tender for the two sets of scales at the station was accepted and Sam Court gets the market scales.

A by-law to rescind the recently passed by-law to grant the National Steel Castings a fixed assessment for ten years was presented by Reeve Davidson and carried.

The National Steel Castings are not in a position to fulfill their part of the agreement at present. Councillor Wiggins presented a by-law for holding nominations and electing a council for 1927, selecting polling places and appointing deputy returning officers and poll clerks. The by-law was passed and nominations will be held Monday, December 27; poling day, Monday, January 3rd.

Mayor Kingston was appointed to represent the Council in the deputation waiting on the Minister of Highways today in regard to the new provincial highway from Peterborough to Belleville with a view of having the new road by way of Campbellford.

Reeve Davidson will represent county.

Councillor Stone and Reeve Davidson recommended the purchase of a rectifier for charging the batteries in the fire truck, and a pair of climbers and pinchers for cutting electric wires in case of a fire.

The fire chief was authorized to make the purchases.

Tax Collector J. D. Cummings was given a bonus of $30.00 in view of the small compensation he received for his work.

After passing the paysheet the council adjourned.

GIRL COLLAPSES ON STAND IN ACCIDENT SUIT

Former Peterboro' Girl Seeks $20,000 From Owner of Car.

BREAKS INTO TEARS.

Says Unable To Do Same Work as Before Accident.

TORONTO, Dec. 17. — When Marion Hopcroft entered the witness box in Mr. Justic Grant's non-jury court Tuesday afternoon she was evidently in extreme distress and had to be assisted across the court by her counsel, Mr. W. J. Ager.

Miss Hopcroft is plaintiff in an action for $20,000 against Mr. John Bouey, as owner of the automobile in which his son was driving a party of eight young people in June last near Long Branch, when a collision occurred and young Bouey was killed.

The amount of damages sought was originally $7,000, but leave was given to increase this to $20,000. Defendant was represented by Mr. George Wilkie, K.C.

Thomas Richardson said he was driving an automobile on a road running north from the Hamilton highway near Long Branch on the night of June 6 last. The time was around 12.15 Sunday morning. He was accompanied by a lady, Miss Melvina Davis. He was driving on his own side of the road, and his speed was about 18 miles an hour.

He met an automobile coming south at a fast rate, and just at the moment of passing he felt a jar and his car came to a stop, the gears being stripped with the shock. He got out and found that his left hind wheel had been struck, also that the colliding car was upset in the ditch.

Driver Killed

Counsel for plaintiff: "There were four fellows and four girls in the other car?" "Yes."

"The driver was killed?" "Yes."

"He was defendant's son?" "Yes."

"Was your car damaged much?" "Yes."

Counsel was proceeding to ask who paid for the repairs, when Mr. Wilkie objected to the question.

"What portion of the road was defendant's car on when it caught yours?" "It was a foot and a half on my side."

"What speed would you estimate if approached you?" "I only know it came at a fast rate—the front of it seemed to pass me like a flash."

"Did you take any measurements at all?" "No."

"You know what 25 miles an hour is?" "Yes."

"Was it faster than that?" "Yes."

"If defendant's car had been on its own side would there have been any collision?" "No."

Didn't See It Swerve

Cross-examined by Mr. Wilkie witness stated he was not embarrassed by headlights of the other car, and he could not say as to road width at that point. The front of his car was not damaged. He first saw the other car about 75 or 100 yards away. It was coming straight on, and he did not see it swerve.

Counsel for defence: "How was it your car was struck only on the hind part?" "I can't say—I was going straight on."

"Doesn't it strike you as impossible?" "Unless the other car swerved."

Witness could not say how close to the right hand limit of the road he was. Counsel for defence suggested to witness that the time was nearer 1.15 a.m. than 12.15, but Richardson held to the latter figure.

"It was Sunday morning?" "Yes."

Plaintiff Near Collapse

The plaintiff was called, but, though accommodated with a seat in the witness box she was almost in a state of collapse, and for some time did not seem to appreciate her surroundings at all. The judge drew his chair alongside, and advised counsel for defence also to come—but the replies of Miss Hopcroft were scarcely audible.

The young lady was obviously seriously indisposed and wept a good deal, trembling violently most of the time she was on the stand.

In reply to her counsel (Mr. Ager) plaintiff said she was 24 years of age, and at the time of the accident had been living in Toronto two years. Before that time her home was in Peterborough.

At this juncture Miss Hopcroft began to sob, and further examination was stopped pending her recovery, Judge Grant was entirely sympathetic, and asked her to calm herself and try to be at home just as much as if she were giving evidence in her own home.

Witness presently resumed her answers to Mr. Ager, and stated that before she went out in this automobile she was in good health.

Again Miss Hopcroft suffered semi-collapse, seeming not to hear her counsel's questions, and when she did her replies were almost inaudible.

Making an obvious effort to pull herself together, she said she lived on Queen street west with her sister and brother-in-law.

"Did you go out with Bouey on the night of the accident?" "Yes."

"The boy who was killed?" "Yes."

"Was he driving?" "Yes."

"How many were there in the car?" "Eight altogether."

"Mr. Bouey in the front seat drove?" "Yes."

"Anyone beside him?" "One of the girls."

"And the rest of the party in the back?" "Yes."

"Did you say anything about the speed of the car?" "I said not to go so fast."

"Loud enough for all in the car to hear?" "Yes."

Plaintiff said she did not remember anything of the accident—she was knocked unconscious. She didn't remember when she regained consciousness, but it was in the hospital.

Can't Do Same Work Now

Plaintiff's counsel: "Can you do the same work at the Quaker Oats Co. as you did before the accident?" "No."

"What is the difference?" "I used to wrap boxes on piece work, but now I cannot do it, and am only on day wages, making half as much." Also she could not work every day because of her head bothering her.

"Any other result?" Since the accident her voice was gone, she said. She used to sing, and now she could not. She had sung solos and had taken part in concerts. Then since she started to work she found it necessary to go to bed about seven o'clock. She suffered from terrible headaches over her eyes and at the back of her head. All these replies were heard with great difficulty by judge and counsel.

Mr. Ager: "How often do you have these head pains?" "I have to stay off work a day every week."

"What is the matter with you now, for instance, are you suffering?"

Witnes, with a pathetic attempt at a smile, answered "No."

"How about your nervous condition?" "I know I'm dreadful."

"You are shaking all over now. Did you do that before?" "Oh, no."

"Before the accident did you ever have a doctor?" "Only for a cold."

"For nothing serious?" "No."

"There have been things said about drinking on the night of the accident, what do you know about that?" "I certainly had none, and nobody else had any—they were all sober."

Mr. Wilkie was ready to proceed with cross-examination of the witness, but his lordship thought witness would be better for a rest, and court was adiourned till Thursday.

Shows Strain

TORONTO, Dec. 17 — That she could not go out in company, because of frequent weeping spells, and also extreme deafness, was the testimony offered yesterday in an action for $20,000, which Miss Marion Hopcroft has brought against John Bouey. Mr. Bouey is the father of the young man who was killed near Long Branch last summer when the car, owned by Mr. Bouey, Sr., collided with another car. Miss Hopcroft sustained injuries which kept her in the hospital for a long time.

Miss Hopcroft was asked if, when she went to Peterboro to work, she went alone.

"No, I have company, a girl living near accompanies me. I call for her because of nervousness. I seem to lose control occasionally."

She also suffered now from lapses of memory—she would go to the store for something, and forgot what she had gone for.

"Ever fainted since the accident?" "Yes."

"And before the accident?" "Rarely."

Bursts Into Tears

She came to Canada from England when 10 or 11 years of age.

She was thirteen years of age when she went to work for the Quaker Oats people in Peterboro.

"How many doctors have seen you since Friday last — You have had to see many, haven't you?" "Yes."

The girl then lost control of her nerves and burst into weeping.

"Were you pretty busy with the doctors yesterday?" "Two"

"One was our doctor, Dr. Scott?" "Yes."

Mr. Justice Grant: "Do I understand that at the rate you can do 'piece work' now you are only able to make what amounts to 'day rate' wages?" "Yes."

"You are doing the same 'kind' of work as before the accident, but you cannot do it as well as before?" "Yes, I cannot do it on piece work system now."

Justice Grant: "Now, Mr. Wilkie, if you'd been properly brought up you'd have known all about these cartons of oats."

Mr. Wilkie: "Oh, you see I was brought up on the oatmeal itself."

Counsel and witness discussed at some length the operations of filling, wrapping, etc., of the Quaker oat packages. She had once worked for the Goodyear Company.

"Before you came to Toronto at all you had had fainting spells—and have had to take whiskey for that on doctor's orders?" "Well, I had to take whiskey and water from the doctor for those spells."

Justice Grant: "How long would that be before you left Peterboro?" I know I was pretty young."

"Was it some years ago?" "Yes."

"Her mother gave her this whiskey and water when it was prescribed."

Sat on Boys' Knees

Referring to the number in the auto at the time of the accident she was asked:

"Young Bouey was in the front with one of the girls?" "Yes"

"And in the back three men and three girls?" "Yes."

"Three were all that could sit on the seats?" "Yes."

"Were the other three sitting on knees?" "Yes."

"And the three on the seat were the men?" "I was on the seat."

"Which side were you on?" "I think it was the sidewalk side."

"Were you sitting on the knee of one of the men?" "I say no—but I know others have said I was. I was behind the girl who was next the driver."

"Was there any drinking?" "No."

"No smell of it?" "No. I would not have gone if I had thought of any drink."

"You realized there was an element of risk going in a car so overcrowded?" "No I never thought of any wrong."

"Were any of them in the house before you all left?" "Some of them."

"Did you ask the driver to go more slowly?" "We all did."

"What were you doing in the car?" "Singing."

"And smoking?" "Yes."

"Now, is it because of that sort of thing that your mother wanted you to go back to Peterboro?" "I don't know about that."

Interesting Programme Given at Regular Meeting of Society.

On Tuesday, Decemer 7, at 2.30 p.m. the W.M.S. held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Chester Fisher. Owing to the absence of the president the vice-president, Mrs. William Andrews, took charge of the meeting, which was opened by singing, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." Mrs. Hutchinson of Port Hope, who was present assisted in the devotional part of the meeting. A duet, "The Homeland", by Mrs. J. Lang and Mrs. C. Fisher, and interesting readings by Mrs. Stuart Thompson, Mrs. Edmund Dawson, Mrs. G. Whittington, Mrs. Lang and Mrs. W. W. C. Wood all formed a very interesting programme. The time devoted to business was short owing to the absence of the secretary and treasurer. The meeting closed with the well-known hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and prayer by Mrs. Andrews, after which light refreshments were served by Mrs. Fisher assisted by the members of Group B. During the social hour Mr. Fisher entertained those present with some splendid radio selections.

BATTERY ENDS ANNUAL TRAINING

Members of 4th C.F.A. Hold Dance in Recreation Room.

The members of the 4th Battery, C.F.A., brought their training season to a close last night with a most enjoyable "At Home" in the recreation room at the Armories. The room was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags, the work being done by Bombadier MacIntosh and Gunner Hopkins. Catering was in the capable hands of R. H. Muir whose efforts were very much appreciated. The Bluebird Orchestra, consisting of Jack Marshall, piano; Harold Snelgrove, saxaphone; Lioncl Chapman, banjo, and Leslie Childerhose, drums, provided music for dancing, which was enjoyed until a late hour by about forty couples.

A note of sadness was struck during the evening when a presentation was made to Major D. J. Lawrie, who has commanded the battery for the past eigth years, and is resigning his command. A pen and pencil set for the Major and an umbrella for Mrs. Lawrie were presented by Corp. J. E. Nixon, R.C.O.C., on behalf of N.C.O.'s and men of the battery. Battery Sergt.-Major Sutherland, who has held that post during Major Lawrie's entire term of command, expressed the regret of the men at his decision to give up his post. Capt. J. W. Stevenson is second in command of the battery.

The annual inspection takes place tonight.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE SAVIOR'S BIRTH

Text: Luke 2: 7-20.

And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God, and saying.

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning this child.

And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for December 19: The Savior's Brth.—Luke 2:7-20.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

In a great hymn Isaac Watts has expressed the glory of the Savior's coming:

Joy to the world! the Lord is come;
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare him room,
And heaven and nature sing.

It was not, however, as a king, recognized for his greatness and splendor, that the Savior of Mankind came to the world. It was as a little babe, born in a manger of a mother who in her hour of trial and triumph had not found on her pilgrimage even a home or a decent inn in which to stay.

Another poet has beautifully caught the note of glory in the lowly birth:

There's a lowly birth and the angels sing
And the shepherds hear the strain,
For it tells of Christ who was born a king
In his righteousness to reign.

The story of Mary and the Babe of Bethlehem has taken hold of the world's imagination, even as the Gospel, of the babe to manhood grown, has laid hold of the world's heart and conscience.

Rich in Symbolism.

The story is richly manifold in its suggestiveness and symbolism. Not to the learned and the great was the coming of the Savior primarily made known, but to shepherds abiding in the field keeping watch over their flock by night. How often the vision of God's plans and purposes is withheld from the great and revealed to lowly souls of pure heart and uncorrupted vision!

One does not know much concerning the character of these shepherds, but they must have been sincere and spiritually expectant men, for in the announcement of the birth of Jesus emphasis is laid upon the meaning of his coming.

Only devout souls earnestly yearning for salvation could be concerned with the coming of a Savior, and only those hearts who were at peace with their fellowmen and who had a vision of the establishing of good will upon earth could appreciate the meaning of the angels' carol, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men." God's highest revelations are reserved for the pure in heart; it is they who see God.

The Shepherds' Decision.

The character of the shepherds was revealed in the immediacy of their decision to go to Bethlehem, and further in the fact that they were not disappointed and disillusioned by what they found there. It must have required hearts of faith, mindful of God's mysterious ways in Providence, to have seen in the babe in swaddling clothes with a lowly mother and in such repelling surroundings the Savior of the world.

But apparently their faith to believe was clear and strong, for "the shepherds returned glorifying and praising God for all that they had heard and seen."

What mother is there who cannot appreciate the beauty of the word in our lesson concerning the mother of Jesus, "but Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart." The depths of mother love, and wonderment, and aspiration were never more beautifully compressed in so few words.

We read, of course, in the narrative of the birth of Jesus all the meaning and glory of his triumphant life and death. That is inevitable.

But how reverent should we be toward the birth of every little child! Who knows what prophets, priests and kings we may be welcoming in new-born babes?

The rude cradle in a western cabin may lull a future Lincoln to sleep, just as the manger in Bethlehem cradled the King of Kings. What reverence and wonderment ought all of life to contain for us when we remember these things!

ENTERTAINMENTS BEING PREPARED

Several Churches Planning Christmas Treats For Children.

WARSAW, Dec. 17.—Christmas entertainment preparations are the order of the day. Most of the schools are preparing for some special exercises on closing day, and Miss Sage of North Dummer is preparing for a concert on Wednesday evening, December twenty-second.

The Anglican people are giving their children a treat on Christmas eve. The United church is arranging for pictures of the Birth of Christ and of Palestine, with a few songs and choruses on Christmas evening. The Presbyterians will give theirs about New Year's day.

Rev. J. O'Conor-Fenton visited among his people the latter part of the week.

On Sunday evening Mr. Herrington gave a very interesting talk on the work in India. He pointed out the difference between being called a Christian, which is not complimentary, as often those who are called Christians are anything but Christian; and being called a Christian man, which means that the person really is a follower of Christ.

He went on to show that India needs Christ, that India is beginning to accept Christ, as sufficient to her needs, and India is beginning to criticize Canadians in their relation to Christ.

Next Sunday evening Mr. Herrington will begin a series of talks on "Portraits of Christ in the New Testament."

Wallace Anderson, David Payne, Oliver McIlvena and Mrs. E. R. Hamblin are gone to Toronto.

Several loads of Christmas trees have been shipped from Warsaw.

The sleighing could not be better than it has been since last Wednesday. Some winter teaming is already being done.

A good many took their fowl to Peterboro on Thursday and realized good prices.

A few have been shipping their fowl, alive, as ready, and others have shipped dressed fowl and gotten better prices than by selling in the local markets.

BRIDE EMERGES IN "SAP" THEFT

Girl Bandit Who Found Bank Men Easy Secretly Wed.

DEFENDS WIFE.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 17.—Otis Rogers, young Amarillo attorney who maintained secrecy regarding his marriage last year to Rebecca Bradley while they were students at the University of Texas, yesterday was to make his first appearance in District Court here in defense of his wife, who is charged with robbing the Farmers' National Bank at Buda.

Married at Georgetown, Tex., October last, they continued their university courses, the husband graduating from the law college while his bride was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree. They decided that Rogers' income as an attorney might prove inadequate to support a home and agreed to separate while he developed his practice.

Rebecca obtained a position as stenographer in the office of Dan Moody, attorney general and governor-elect, and continued her university work with the view of winning a higher degree. Rogers opened a law office at Amarillo and so well did they guard their secret that Rebecca's mother with whom she lived here denied the marriage when Otis announced he was coming to the defense of his wife.

Discuss Charge.

Meeting in the office of an attorney employed by Rebecca, the couple last night discussed the state charge that she drove her automobile to Buda, 20 miles from here, Saturday and displaying a pistol forced two bank employees into a vault and escaped with nearly $1,000 in currency. Rogers said he would appear in court today with his wife's counsel in an effort to win her release on bond after a lower court yesterday refused a similar request on the ground the charge of robbery with firearms was a capital offense.

Rogers maintains that legal precedent has established the necessity to prove shooting occurred during the course of the robbery or other circumstances of such import as to warrant refusal of bail. If this argument fails, his wife must remain in jail until the February term of court.

After A Thrill.

Mrs. Rogers has refused to discuss the details of her adventures before and after her arrest Saturday. Officers declared she told them she robbed the bank for a "thrill" and that she thought the bankers were "saps" for allowing a girl to rob them. Asked to explain her denial of her marriage last night, she said she believed that announcement should come from her husband.

Conviction on a charge of robbery with firearms in Texas carries a minimum penalty of five years, while the maximum penalty is death.

COUNTIES SEND DEPUTATION TO HIGHWAY OFFICE

Warden McCubbin and Others Going To Toronto To-day.

TO ASK CHANGE.

Victoria County Believes That Road Will Follow Original Route.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, Dec. 17. — Acting promptly on the resolution of the Counties' Council to petition the Ontario Highways Department to divert the Peterboro-Lindsay highway by way of Scott's corners through Cavan township, Warden John McCubbin led a deputation to Toronto to-day to interview the Hon. G. S. Henry, the Minister in charge of that Department. The appointment is for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Among those accompanying Warden McCubbin are Mayor T. Chalk of Port Hope and Mayor F. J. McArthur of Cobourg, George H. Hooten, deputy-reeve of Cavan township, who is actively promoting the route through his township, and last week enlisted the suport of the Counties' Council, George Greer, county road superintendent, also a Campbellford deputation which is particularly interested in the construction of a Peterboro-Belleville highway through Hastings and Campbellford, instead of around through Havelock and Marmora. Reeve Davidson has arranged to motor to Toronto and wil call for Warden McCubbin at the outset of their long drive.

VICTORIA OPINION.

LINDSAY, Dec. 17.—The opinion is expressed by officials of town and county that the proposed action of the united counties of Durham and Northumberland relative to the diversion of the route of the Lindsay-Peterboro highway via Scott's corners will prove of no avail. This opinion is supported by the assurance given the county council as well as Mr. R. J. Patterson, M.P., that the road would be taken over by the government and construction work commenced next summer. This assurance has been given by Premier Ferguson and has been supplemented by Hon. Mr. Henry, Minister of Highways.

During the past few days another communication was received from the Minister of Highways, relative to this road. The Minister again assured the county authorities that the road would be taken over as part of the Provincial system, and that considerable work would be done thereon next summer. A meeting of the Victoria County Roads Board is being held to-day, when the proposed action of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham will receive some attention.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Cherry's high, musical voice, intimate, possessive, as impudent and casual as if her finance were twenty-five instead of sixty-eight, ushered the impeccably dressed Mr. Cluny into the newly decorated Lane living room, which seemed to shrink and grow tawdry in the shining light of his perfection.

"A gardenia in your buttonhole 'n everything!" Cherry rippled on, entirely unembarrassed or making a brave effort to seem so. "Mother isn't a bit well, Mr. Cluny, but she got up' and dressed 'specially to meet you.' With her tiny, rose-tipped hand fluttering to alight on his black coat sleeve, she led him to where Mrs. Lane sat, vast, red-faced, flustered, the accelerated beat of her heart causing the lace fichu on her blue foulard bosom to rise and fall in agitated waves.

"I am indeed honored," the tall, spare man clicked the heels of his shining patent leather pumps together and bowed stiffly from the waist, as he raised Mrs. Lane's puffed hand to the barest contact with the bristles of his clipped white mustache.

"I'm real pleased to meet you, Mr. Cluny." Mrs. Lane's vast body wriggled with embarrassed pleasure. "My daughter, Cherry, has been talking a powerful lot about you. It's 'Mr. Cluny says this' and 'Mr. Cluny thinks that,' until we've all got so we think Mr. Cluny must be a mighty great man. Take that chair," she waved toward the newly painted wicker chair, with its parrot-and-tropical flower cretonne cushion, "and make yourself at home." She tucked her head coyly, and smiled up at the white-haired, distinguished old man with the last flutter of the coquetry which must have charmed Jim Lane in his flaming twenties.

But Mr. Cluny had not finished with his punctilious greetings.

He turned, with soldierly stiffness and abruptness to offer a thin, blue-veined hand to Jim Lane.

"Howdy," Jim stuck out a gnarled, thick-jointed hand reluctantly.

"And this is Miss Faith," Mr. Cluny, apparently unconscious of Lane's hostility, turned toward the silent girl on the piano bench, and bowed deeply. "We have met before—under circumstances which I hope I can now explain," he smiled at his reference to the love scene between himself and Cherry which Faith had interrupted on her visit to the lawyer's offices.

"Yes, Cherry has told us the news," Faith said bluntly, feeling that she and her father could not bear to have the visit prolonged by polite exchanges of compliments and weather opinions.

"I—ah—hope we understand each other then," Mr. Cluny smiled urbanely. "The truth of the matter, Mrs. Lane—" he bowed again, with Chesterfieldian courtesy, toward Cherry's mother— "and Mr. Lane, is that I have asked your charming little daughter to be my wife. I have—ah—anticipated that the—ah—not negligible difference in our ages might—ah—predispose you to look with—ah—disfavor upon my proposal." He paused, as if courteously giving his audience a chance to register a protest, if any.

"You're mighty right it does." Jim Lane brought a knotted fist down heavily upon the arm of his chair. "You're damn right it does—!"

"Now, Jim Lane!" Mrs. Lane struggled to keep the "company" politeness in her voice, but failed. "Don't mind Mr. Lane, Mr. Cluny. He's just naturally a little upset—of course Cherry is the apple of our eye, and what we want is her happiness. It's goin' to be a terrible wrench to us to lose her, even to a man like you, Mr. Cluny, but if she loves you and you love her—" Her voice trailed rather piteously, as if, in spite of the many things that Cherry had said to her, her mother heart told her differently.

"To make your daughter happy will be the chief aim of my life," the white-haired suitor said pompously. "She has assured me that she—ah—loves me, and my emotion for her could not be described by any word short of—ah—adoration. From the—ah—financial standpoint, I am looking forward to—ah—compensating you, her parents, handsomely for the loss of her—ah—income as a business woman—"

I don't guess you'd better finish what you're tryin' to say," Jim Lane interrupted harshly. "The Lanes ain't on charity yet, and never will be, long as my strength holds out. As far as Cherry's salary's concerned, she's spent every penny of it on her back, ain't paid a cent of board since she's been workin' and I didn't ask her to. I'm a self-supportin' and a family-supportin' man, Mr. Cluny, and I refuse to listen to insults. I don't care a damn how much money you've got!"

The red of anger and embarrassment crept up the waxen, almost transparent cheeks of the old man, but he kept admirable control of his voice. "I accept the rebuke, Mr. Lane, in the spirit of splendid independence in which it is given. I admire your independence, sir, and respect you for it. I only meant to say that it would be a great pleasure to give Mrs. Lane, whom I understand is an invalid, all the comforts and luxuries to which my wife's mother will be entitled. I had thought of a trained nurse for her, and a housekeeper to relieve Miss Faith, who, I understand, wishes to take up a business career. However, all this is beside the question of the moment, and can be gone into when we know each other better. If you will permit me, I now—ah—make formal request for the hand of your daughter in marriage."

"This is exactly like an old-fashioned play," Cherry laughed, leaning over to pat her suitor's hand impudently. "You do it beautifully, Ralph dear. I'm going to have a terrible time living up to your beautiful manners. Now, Daddy, speak your little piece. And remember, I'm going to marry him whether you say so or not!"

"Then I can't see any reason for me sayin' anything," Mr. Lane rose and stamped out of the room, a bent, tragic little man, in a baggy old suit and broken shoes.

ASSAULT CASE IS DISMISSED

Jury Deliberates Ten Minutes —Provincial Constable Plaintiff.

STORIES DIFFER.

(Special to The Examiner).

COBOURG, Dec. 17.—Charged with having assaulted Melville R. Clarke of Belleville, a sergeant of the Provincial police, on the morning of November 11th, west of Salem, Harry A. Grant, who resides two miles east of Colborne, was acquitted by a jury here last night after ten minutes' deliberation. The evidence on the main points at issue was in direct conflict, Sergt. Clarke alleging that the first blow was struck by Grant and the latter swore that the police officer was the aggressor. Of its own accord the grand jury, in returning a true bill, reduced the charge from "assault occasioning actual bodily harm" to common assault. W. R. Wilmott of Cobourg was counsel for the defendant, and Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr conducted the prosecution. The information was laid by Provincial Constable Fewtrell, and the offence was alleged to have been committed against Clarke, the private citizen, and not as a sergeant of the Ontario police.

Grant was driving westerly on the highway, and Clarke drove up behind him, going in the same direction, Clarke explained.

"Grant's truck was over on the left side of the road," Sergt. Clarke testified. "I blew my horn twice and the truck swung over to the right and then turned back to the left side. I was going about 25 miles an hour, but slowed down to 12 miles to pass the truck. To get past I had to swing off the pavement onto the earth "shoulder" of the road, and one side of the car was barely a foot from the ditch. It was a miracle we didn't turn over. I signalled to Grant to stop, and crossed to the right side in front of him, but he came up on the left side, cut in short and went ahead. I caught up with him, edged in my car beside him, and forced him to stop."

Clarke said he went back and told Grant he was a police officer, took out his book and asked him his name and address. He began to write in his book, when, he alleged, Grant struck him on the face.

"I was partly dazed, and staggered by the blow. I saw Grant get partly out of the cab of his truck. He had the crank in his hand. He swung it and I threw up my arm. The crank struck me on the wrist and head. He made several other passes at me. He got in the cab and I jumped in after him and took the crank from him. He said he would knock my head off."

Cross-examined by Mr. Wilmott, Clarke denied that he told Grant, "I'm after fellows like you."

"Why didn't you lay a traffic charge against him?"

"Because he had almost struck me over the head with the crank. After I got his name and number I told him he had to come to Cobourg with me and showed him my badge. He said he wouldn't go and no one could take him. We had hardly any controversy, about fifteen words, when I was hit."

"When you first went back to get his name did you ask him to come to Cobourg?"—"No."

"Did you try to pull him out of the cab then?"—"No."

Showed His Badge.

"At what stage of the fracas did you show your badge of authority?"—"After the mix-up, when I said I was going to take him."

Grant in his evidence said he did not hear the horn of Clarke's car behind him.

"Clarke came back after we had both stopped and said, "You think you're smart, but you've struck the wrong man to-day. I'm after fellows like you. You nearly put me in the ditch."

I told him he had come up so fast he nearly put himself in the ditch. I gave him my name and told him to get the number off the plate. I had forgotten it. He had asked me my name a second and third time. I then said, "I'll take this load of lumber to Colborne, they'll be needing it." He said, "You're going to Cobourg with me."

Mr. Wilmott—Did he give any indication of who he was?

Defendant—No. He was in plain clothes. He stepped on the running board and reached in and grabbed me by the shoulder. I struck him on the face.

Mr. Wilmott—Did you know at that time who he was?

Mr. Grant—Certainly not. I thought he was some one who was trying to put it over me. He landed in the cab, and began choking me with one hand and punching me. My wife was on the seat beside me, and I heard her shout that he had hit her.

Crank Was on Floor.

The crank of the car was on the floor. I reached for it but he knocked it out of my hand. The glass broke on the right side, and my head was sawing on the broken glass. The back of my head was badly cut and there were bruises on my face. I called to my wife to go and telephone for Chief Jamieson of Colborne. I thought the man was crazy. When I called to my wife he pulled his badge and said, "Jamieson has nothing to do with me."

Such were the divergent stories of the fight, with corroborative evidence on both sides. Both men were cut, Clarke on the wrist and face, and Grant about the face and head.

Fred Simmons, for the defence, said he was at his barn near the highway when he heard women's screams.

"I went over to where the cars were, and Clarke demanded my name. I hesitated and he asked me again. I hadn't understood that he was a Provincial officer. I told him my name in a tremulous voice, because I was afraid of him. He was beside himself for some reason or other."

Judge McGlade, addressing the jury, said that the fight could have been avoided by the exercise of a little cool-headedness on the part of both men, "and it may be," His Honor remarked, "that we have a right to expect more coolness from men who are engaged in the enforcement of the law. I have nothing to say about Sergt. Clarke."

His Honor said he did not doubt the veracity of the witnesses. It was a common experience that in cases of assault witnesses disagreed about who struck the first blow. Men witnessing occurrences rarely agreed in their accounts of what had taken place.

The Children Will Catch Cold

Mothers should never neglect the first sign of a cold or cough where their children are concerned, for if they do some serious lung trouble is liable to follow.

Mrs. R. T. Hubby, 1022 Barrington St., Halifax, N.S. writes:—"The children are continually getting colds, but I have no trouble with them, for just as soon as they begin to cough I give them a dose of which breaks up the cold within a day or so. I get great results out of it and would not be without it for anything. I can highly recommend it to any one."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

It Leaped into Fame!

in just one day, through the magic of its own astonishing performance, and every day adds new Orthophonic Victrola music lovers

WHEN the sun set on that eventful evening of December second, 1925,—Victor Day,—over a year ago now, the Orthophonic Victrola stood acclaimed as one of the greatest single achievements in the history of music.

Thousands heard this new discovery in the form of the now famous Credenza, and approved instantly the long and arduous labors of the scientists who had brought this new marvel into the world. That approval continues, and is growing daily.

The music of great artists, of famous orchestras, of the almost endless and ever-growing host of Victor entertainers takes on a new significance when heard upon the new Orthohonic Victrola. It satisfies completely the musical sense. It has ever-new surprises in store for you.

Command! . . . and it performs, beautifully, . . . untiringly. Choose, . . . and it never disappoints your choice!

If you have not heard the Credenza model, do so today at any "His Master's Voice" dealer and order at once. Thus you will assure yourself these new delights in music more quickly. Production is still behind demand. An early order means early possession. Convenient terms make ownership easy.

Note:—The principle of "matched impedance" or "smooth flow of sound" employed in the Orthophonic Victrola is exclusively controlled by Victor.

HIRE CARETAKERS FOR PUBLIC RINKS

Chairman Authorized To Arrange One For West End.

At the annual meeting of the Railway and Park committee last night it was moved by Alderman Turner and seconded by Alderman MacDonald that the chairman be given authority to establish a skating rink on Victoria Heights (west end) and to arrange for water and light. It was moved by Alderman Phelan and seconded by Alderman Turner that the chairman have suitable dressing rooms of two compartments erected at the King Edward and west end rinks and that provisions be made for heating appliances and to improve the dressing room of the east ward rink.

Tenders were opened for the caretaking of the rinks and the toboggan slide and the following men were appointed at $15.00 per week: Frank Larone at the London street rink; A. R. Robson the west end rink; P. S. Armstrong the east ward rink; W. J. Rickey the King Edward Park rink, and F. A. Dainton the toboggan slide.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

AMBITIONS
(Suggested by A. M. W., Muskegon, Mich.)

I'd rather be an elephant
  Than only be a bear,
But then, of course, I guess I can't,
  And so I do not care.
I'd rather be a bear than be,
  Well, only be a horse,
And so I say a bear for me—
  But then I can't, of course.

And yet, a horse is not so bad;
  I'd rather be one, too,
Than be a dog that someone had
  Like most dogs have to do.
And yet a horse I never was,
  A horse I never will.
A dog is not so bad, because
  You might be smaller still.

I'd rather be a dog than just
To only be a cat,
And yet, I'd be one if I must,
  It's not so bad at that.
It's lots more fun than birds I've heard
  That have to sit and sing—
And yet I'd rather be a bird
  Than not be anything!

ANGLICANS AND FARMERS TOP ONTARIO LEGISLATURE LISTS

By Denomination and Occupation These Are Most Numerous.

MANY LAWYERS

Two Clergymen and Many Merchants Among Those Elected.

TORONTO Ont., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press).—A survey of the successful candidates in the Ontario General Election of Dec. 1 shows a new Legislature representative of many various interests, organizations and activities of the province. Of 112 members composing the new Legislature the largest group, numbering 32, are farmers by occupation, while the legal profession is represented by 16 members.

In point of religious denomination, the new House will be outstanding on the score of the number of Anglicans, no fewer than 33 being elected to Queen's Park. United Church adherents make the second largest denominational group with 25 members, Presbyterians number 17 and there will be eight Roman Catholics, two Baptists, and two Lutherans. In a number of cases, the religious persuasion of members is not declared.

The religious classification would be incomplete without mentioning there will be two clergymen in the new Legislature, Rev. W. G. Martin, United Church, returned by the electors of Brantford, and Rev. A. C. Calder, Anglican, elected in West Kent. Both are supporters of the Ferguson government control policy.

From 23 To 72.

The youngest member of the 17th legislature will be Farquhar R. Oliver, U.F.O., elected in South Grey. Mr. Oliver who is a nephew of Premier Oliver of British Columbia, is 23 years of age. His immediate senior is A. V. Waters, of Cochrane North, who is 30. The oldest members will be John Lethbridge, Progressive, Middlesex West, who has just passed three score and ten and is looking forward to his 72nd birthday.

There are many other categories that arise in such an analysis. For instance, of the full strength of the House, 76 members were born and educated in the province for the welfare of which they are now about to legislate. One new member, J. A. Mathieu, elected in Rainy River, is American-born, but of course a naturalized British subject. Some of those returned first saw the light of day in the British Isles.

On the score of education 27 of the members have the advantage of university training, most of them being graduates of Toronto University. A great number were educated in the public schools of their native ridings. Apart from farmers or lawyers business life in general is represented by 43 of the newly elected legislators. Many of these are merchants, there being three wholesalers, four qualified to address the house on insurance, one druggist, one contractor, and one butcher. There are also seven physicians, one engineer one veterinary surgeon, two journalists, and one artist. The legislature will boast a major-general in the person of D. M. Hogarth, of Port Arthur, and there will be five others sworn in when the legislature meets, who saw service overseas.

You cannot be economical unless you know; you cannot be stylish unless you know; you cannot know unless you look for information. Read the advertisements; let them keep you au fait to the hour they are printed.

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 17.—A meeting of the trustees of School Section No. 10 will be held on Wednesday, December 29, at 10 o'clock a.m.

A shooting match was held on Wednesday at Mr. Ward Glennis' home.

Dr. Allan Michell motored to Toronto Monday, making the return trip yesterday. He was accompanied by Messrs John Gibb and Joe McNeely.

Miss Mabelle Inkster has been accepted as nurse in training at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and has to report for duty January 12th.

Messrs. John Sedgwick and N. Garneau are preparing the floor of "Whitehall Gardens" Pavilion for a skating rink, to be opened in the near future.

SELLING OUT BY AUCTION

E. V. Warne Is Closing Out His Jewelry Business To Feature Music and Radio.

Mr. E. V. Warne, Jeweler, is now selling out by public auction his entire fine stock, also his fixtures, as he is retiring from the jewelry business, and from Jan. 1st will devote his time to the music and radio business.

Auction sales are now taking place every day and night at his store, 325 George street. Mr. S. Howard Lyon, the well known jewelry auctioneer of Toronto, is conducting the sale. ((dvt.)

OLD MASTERS

Here rests his head upon the lap of earth
A youth, to fortune and to fame unknown;
Fair science frown'd not on his humble birth
And melancholy marked him for her own.

Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere;
Heaven did a recompense as largely send:
He gave to misery (all he had) a tear,
He gain'd from Heaven ('twas all he wish'd) a friend.

No farther seek his merits to disclose,
Or draw his frailties from their dread abode,
(There they alike in trembling hope repose.)
The bosom of his Father and his God.

—T. Gray: Epitaph from Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard.

WOMAN IN JAIL.

Faces Charge of Obtaining Coal By False Pretenses.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COBOURG, Dec. 17. —Mrs. Emily Sheppard of Campbellcroft, is in jail here under remand on a charge of having received goods under false pretences from Percy Hanna. It is alleged that Mrs. Sheppard ordered two tons of coal from Mr. Hanna at Campbellcroft and told him to send change for a twenty dollar bill on delivery. When the coal was unloaded at her house it is said she told the delivery man she had no money. She was remanded by Magistrate Floyd until December 20th.

Katherine Cornell, "the glamorous lady,' as one press notice referred to her, who is starring in "The Green Hat" at the Royal Alexandra, Toronto, was a guest of of her aunt here a few days ago. Miss Cornell is one of the most distinguished and charming personalities of the American theatre.

W. H. A. Semple, druggist, fractured his leg by falling on the slippery pavement Tuesday evening.

CHEERFUL WORKERS' B. C.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers Held By Ladies.

A very enjoyable talent tea was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. H. Welbourne, 218 Reid street, under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers Class of St. James' United Church. "What A Friend We Have in Jesus" was the opening hymn.

A short business session was held after which there was an election of officers. At the conclusion of the election of officers a programme was given as follows:

Solo by Mrs. Wm. McClaren; duet by the Misses Nellie and Annie Payne; reading by Mrs. H. Welbourne; an address was then read by Mrs. H. McMahon, and Mrs. H. Welbourne presented the teacher, Mrs. Davis, with a festoon necklace, from the class.

Lunch was then served. The next talent tea will be held at the home of Mrs. Grose, 231 Princess street.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

By Alma Whitaker.

Donald McM. wants our advice about his mother's will. Their father left the ranch and everything to mother, 20 years ago. It has increased to the value of $75,000.

Now mother has died and left everything to sister May, the girl who stayed at home. But, up till five years ago Donald managed that ranch and was largely responsible for its increased value, also making it possible for another brother and two other sisters to go to college. Since then a hired manager has been employed, with Donald and his brother supervising on weekly visits.

They have always been, a united family, but the other children all resent mother leaving the entire ranch to sister May—who is however, a nice deserving girl who certainly devoted her life to mother. Sister May is talking generously about "making the boys some little presents," but she does not seem to recognize that they feel their rights have been filched from them. Yet fighting the will seems quite horrid.

Yes, Donald, mother did not act with good judgment when she made that will. But if it is possible you must avoid family friction over it. There is nothing so tragic as a once united family squabbling over dead parent's money. I can only advise you to win Sister May to some more equitable arrangement if possible—and otherwise to accept mother's verdict with what grace you can. There is no money in the world worth creating family bitterness over.

Olga Z. has a money woe, too. Some years ago, when she was a kindergarten teacher, she married a rich elderly husband.

At first he was very generous, took her for a trip to Europe, bought them a handsome home and provided Olga with fine clothes. But lately he has been becoming increasingly miserly will make her no set allowance for house-keeping, dismissed the help, and yet, as far as she can discover, their finances are still in good shape. Olga says if these economies were necessary it would not be so hard, but she feels sure they are not.

When she suggested going back to kindergartening, her elderly husband flew into a violent rage. She is now 31 and her husband is 70. Olga wants to do her whole duty, but she is very unhappy. She is afraid her husband's mind may be affected.

Poor Olga, another May and December match gone wrong. Have you a family physician in whom you could confide your fears? Or perhaps your husband has a lawyer of long standing. There must be some wise male to whom you can appeal for guidance.

Mrs. J. D. S.—Sorry, dear lady, but I can't help you sell anything through this column.

John K. is 29. He has specialized in the study of narcotics. A prominent physician, hearing of his work, approached him and introduced a rich patient who would subsidize him in this research work. John was overjoyed. Now he finds the rich patient is a mental case and the physician is using him to found a sanitarium for addicts, combined with John's reputation for scientific knowledge on the subject. A book John has written is copyrighted in the rich patient's name—and if John won't conform to the money-making scheme, "my life's work is to be wasted."

Oh, no your life work won't be wasted, John. This is just a little travail for you—all big things in life must be won through travail. Things were coming too easy for you. Don't get a persecution complex whatever you do. Just regard this as a hard shot from a bunker (like golf), and keep right on and win the match. You are only 29!

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1926

Mars, Jupiter and Neptune are in benefic aspect today, according to astrology. The Sun and Uranus are adverse.

While this planetary government prevails it may be most unfortunate to speculate or to take chances of any sort.

Marriage may be especially unlucky as deception is encouraged under this sway, which makes for speedy disillusionment.

It is wise to delay any quest for position or for support of any sort until better aspects prevail.

Politicians who desire to have preelection promises made good should make no representations under this direction of the stars.

This is an auspicious day for all who are planning big enterprises and it should be lucky to make some sort of initiative while Jupiter is friendly.

Physicians and surgeons are subject to great benefits in all efforts for the welfare of humanity under this rule of the planets.

Heavy storms are forecast before many holiday travelers reach the shelter of their homes.

There is a forecast of heavy weather at sea and a serious disaster is presaged.

Under this planetary government which is supposed to encourage peace and good will toward men, greed and selfishness will be strongly evident, the seers prophesy.

Again big movements of population within the boundaries of the United States are prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is pass an important milestone this year, which should bring much good fortune.

Children born on this day probably will be great travelers. Girls are likely to have lives marked by unusual romances.

FASHIONS

FASHION ITEMS

By HEDDA HOYT

(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(United Press).—The fashionable waistline is still placed at the hips regardless of whether the gown is slender or bloused as to bodice portion. Sashes, belts and snugly fitted hipbands are used on most models of the Winter season.

An unusual black gown of Spanish deriviation made with a straight-about decollete with shoulder straps has deep black fringe extending from hips to hem. A huge red rose adorns the right hip. Red satin slippers augument the Spanish theme. Though simply made the gown is slenderizing and effective.

Shops now show a silver metalized ribbon for wrist watches which looks exactly like a closely meshed platinum bracelet. These ribbon bands are softer than solid silver mesh bands and are very appropriate for evening as well as day-wear with the silver or plantinum wristwatch.

Each frock has it's matching flower posed not on the frock but on the coat lapel. Since the hat matches the frock this year, the flower must match hat and frock. Crysanthemums in all the realistic hues including yellow - rose, burnt-orange wisteria, orchid, pink and white are most popular. Dahlias and other fluff-petaled flowers are also worn.

Half-and-half coats, meaning coats that are half fur and half fabric, are meeting with great success this year. Most of the cloth and fur models are made with heavy interlinings which make them as warm as fur wraps.

Some coats have the entire upper portion forming a blouse made of fur with the slender skirt made of woollen velours.

A model of this kind has black seal forming a bloused bodice with green velours forming the skirt portion. Another model of bloused type is made of jungle green silk velvet with nutria trimming the coat from the hips to hemline. The nutria is left free of the coat at the sides to form pockets. Deep borders of nutria trim the sleeves and the collar of nutria is of up-standing variety. These half-and-half coats offer many ideas to the person who is planning upon utilizing old furs.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The opal is today's talismanic gem, bringing its wearer good luck and brilliancy of mind. The superstition that it is unlucky should not be held against it on this day.

Today's natal gem is the pearl. Worn against the flesh it protects its wearer from sorrow and bad luck, and useless worry.

All striped materials bring good luck today, particularly if red or brown appear among the other colors.

The pansy is to-day's lucky flower; symbolic of thoughtfulness, it brings good judgment to those who wear it.

FOOD AND HEALTH

FOOD AND FIRE

By Winifred Stuart Gibbs,
Food Specialist.

How shall we strike a happy means when we reflect upon the place of fire in our daily life.

It is so easy to sentimentalize on the one hand and to be so frightfully and technically chemical on the other! If we dwell too long in the land of sentiment, we shall think of fire chiefly in its office of hearth warmer. If we dwell too long on the chemical side our vision will be bounded by kitchen stoves.

Perhaps for those of us who must wrestle with the practical, it is well to think of the chemical problems first. Unless heat in proper degree is applied to food with adequate care, steaks will be over or under-done, biscuits will be just by way of prelude to the contemplation of fire in its more gracious aspect, we might stop for a moment and think how necessary it is for converting food into that which will nourish us.

For the housewife, the laws of chemistry, as applied to cookery are not very numerous. To the physicist, may be left the intricate details of this. Practically all that the woman in the home laboratory needs to know is how to apply heat to each of the main classes of foods.

Beginning with the body-building foods, meat, eggs, fish, cheese, and milk, one has only to remember that heat must not be extreme enough to harden muscle fibers of meat or fish, the albumen in the egg white, cheese and milk. To this class of foods heat must be applied so skilfully as to render both muscle fiber and albumen tender and delicate.

When thinking of the application of heat or fire to fruit and vegetable foods, our chief responsibility is to remember that their fibers must be softened and their precious minerals and vitamins retained. Long slow cooking will be the first; a little care in not over-doing the matter of temperature and in not throwing away juices will care for the second. Obviously, all this takes study.

So with the practical details of food and fire mastered, there is leisure of mind and body. What lovelier way to employ some of this leisure than to allow the thoughts to stray along the path that is lighted with the fire of sentiment and the fire that is kindled by plain living and high thinking:

It takes understanding of values to keep the practical and the esthetic in proper relationship, one to the other, but it can be done! A well cooked meal by the way, one where fire has accomplished the practical side of its mission, is a wonderful preparation for this very attitude of mind!

So let us think of the fire in the kitchen stove as blood brother to the flame that keeps alight the flame of what is popularly called "the fire of home"!

8th Wonder of the World

THE NEW Brunswick

Each of the world's seven wonders is outstanding for its originality, each was the inspired effort of ancient genius. All were revolutionary in construction and effect.

The New Brunswick too is famed for originality. It is the direct result of many years effort by noted acoustical engineers and craftsmen. It is entirely revolutionary in principle—newly developed, exclusive Brunswick features reveal a natural tone and wealth of volume impossible in any other make.

And so, the new Brunswick takes its place to-day, ideal medium of home entertainment, most remarkable musical triumph ever conceived—the 8th WONDER OF THE WORLD.

WOMBATS WORK HAVOC.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 17—Wombats, burrowing under an aqueduct near Warburton recently, caused a landslide which cut off 20,000,000 gallons of Melbourne's water supply. The wombat is a marsupial a little larger than the American woodchuck.

CERTIFICATES ARE PRESENTED

Local Pupils Receive Twenty-nine For McGill Music Tests.

NINE HONORS.

For the third successive year the presentation of certificates awarded to successful candidates in the local examinations of the McGill University Conservatorium of Music was made in the Parish Hall of St. John's Church, in conjunction with which a recital, violin, pianoforte and vocal, was given by many of the students.

These young people displayed in their particular classes marked ability, and reflected great credit on their teachers, the programme being well chosen and nicely balanced.

In the absence of Dr. R. C. Blagrave, through illness, Dr. J. M. McCullough, through his association with McGill University, kindly consented to make the presentation, and in fitting remarks alluded to the high standards set by McGill, pointing out that honors certificates call for a very high rating, i.e., 87 per cent.

He pointed to the progress of the McGill musical work in this city as follows:

1st Year— 6 Certificates (three honors).
2nd Year—21 Certificates (seven honors).
3rd Year—29 Certificates (nine honors).

This year four honors pupils gained 143, 142 (2), and 140 marks respectively, out of a possible 150, which bespoke not only that these candidates showed marked ability but that their teachers also deserved a deal of praise.

Mr. F. G. Mann, organist of St. John's Church, is the local secretary and is responsible for the training of many of the successful candidates, both in theory and piano.

Those successful in the violin department were instructed by Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, and Miss M. Weatherhead instructed several pianoforte pupils.

Towards the close of the programme the pupils presented Mrs. M. B. Hoyland with a bouquet, and also Mrs. G. G. Evans, who acted as accompanist for several of the numbers.

The Programme.

The following is the programme:

Shepherd's Dream (Heins)—M. O'Leary.

CAVAN PERSONALS

CAVAN, Dec. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. James Casey, Valentia, visited Messrs. James and Edward Keegan on Tuesday.

Miss Elinor Pritchard was the guest of Miss Ruth Keegan for a few days this week.

The Misses Evelyn Donaldson and Lillian Syer spent a couple of days in Port Hope recently.

Mr. Eber Syer attended the funeral of his cousin, Miss Millson, in Port Hope on Thursday.

Mrs. Rowen is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bell, in Toronto.

Messrs. Archie Matchett and Mervin Smith, Cavan, and Ernest Cavanagh, Bethany, were among the Durham seven who took part in a swine judging contest at Toronto last week. Mr. Patterson, the District Representative, was up with the boys.

Miss Ruth Keegan returned on Thursday from a visit in Rochester.

Miss Ruth Sharpe, 12th line, Cavan, who has been teaching near Lakefield, has resigned, and after Christmas vacation will be on the Public School teaching staff, Toronto.

Mrs. C. Carr has been confined to her room owing to a bad sprain received from a fall. Her many friends will be glad to know she is improving.

Rev. Mr. Bryce, Toronto, will speak in Cavan United Church next Sunday evening on "The Maintenance and Extension Fund."

Mrs. F. Johnson and son, Archie, motored to Belleville recently and visited friends there.

Mr. James Paul attended the election of officers for the Black Knights, Millbrook, on Monday evening.

On Tuesday afternoon the Keegan Brothers held a sale of farm implements and stock. Cows sold from $40 to $60; year-olds, from $31 to $35; calves, $17; horses, from $125 to $154. The Keegan Bros. have sold their farm to N. Lamb, Millbrook, who will take possession in March.

HIAWATHA NEWS

HIAWATHA, Dec. 17.—Recently from our village there has been removed an extremely old building. It is perhaps one of the oldest with the exception of the cottage of Dr. Amys, which was the old Council Hall in Hiawatha. An old land mark is gone, and with it perish a place which was for many years the centre of community life, which also supplied the natives and first settlers with some of their food and clothing. The building now missed by some was formerly the old Post Office. It was erected before the visit of the Prince of Wales in 1860, by a George Evans, an Englishman. He kept the post office and sold the necessary things that the people required. The mail came then from Peterboro.

He moved away to Guelph and the building then fell to the hands of a new comer, George Taylor, who dwelt here for some time and then went to Fenelon Falls and to Georgian Bay. It was also occupied by John Brumble, F. Gilchrist, Oswald Craig, who drove the stage as well as was postmaster and merchant, Solomon Loft and then the familiar name of Ben Loukes was heard. His nephew now owns the site where this building was.

For over forty years it was used for His Majesty's mail, then the office was moved to the Soper farm, just east of the Mission church where Mr. Henry Cowie, now proprietor of the Lakeshore House, was postmaster up till rural mail delivery started some twelve or fourteen years ago.

A Mr. Kent at one time also kpet store in the old building. His son is now a druggist in Peterboro.

Mrs. Emerson Glen and daughters, Merle and Reta, of Trent River, spent a few days in the neighborhood visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Godfrey.

Mr. Claire Heard of Peterboro spent the week-end with Mr. Fred Northey at Cedar Hedges farm.

In the school report of last month the name of Irvine Drimmie was omitted from the list of those who had perfect attendance for the month of November, by error.

Wednesday, December 22, is the time picked out for the local Christmas concert and tree.

Some of the people of this locality attended the farewell fowl supper at Keene given for Rev. Father McGuire, who is leaving his parish. Rev. Father Finn is taking his work. He was presented with a purse.

REALTORS HOPE FOR LAND BOOM

Cobourg Dealers Expect a Busy Time Under Government Control.

INQUIRIES ALREADY.

COBOURG, Dec. 17.— Since the re-election of the Ferguson government, real estate enquiries here are encouraging the hope of a boom in 1927.

"Much will depend on the new law as it will apply to American tourists," Edward Doody, local realtor, told the Examiner. "If permits to buy beer and liquors will be issued to tourists who come here for two weeks or more there should be a great influx of visitors next year. We have one enquiry from New Jersey for a tract of land with lake frontage and we have options on two hotels, about a dozen residences and sixteen acres of vacant land."

It is surmised that the hotels referred to by Mr. Doody are the Arlington and Columbian. Purchases may be deferred until the details of the government's new policy are made known. Local hotels, too, are standing "pat" until they know definitely what the new conditions are to be.

"If Cobourg is ever to boom it should be next year," said Mr. Doody. He hopes that the proposed automobile ferry from Rochester to Cobourg will be effected in 1927. On the United States side, he said, the cars could be taken aboard the boats at Charlotte. Mr. Doody also suggested that the C.N.R. was not sufficiently advertising its present ferry service in and out of Cobourg.

DOWNEYVILLE NEWS

DOWNEYVILLE, Dec. 17.—The buyers are out for fowl when the weather is cold. They are offering 28c for turkeys, 15c for ducks and chickens, and 16c for geese.

Mr. Martin Carroll, Reeve of Emily, has returned from a trip to Chicago, Ill., and other American points.

Mr. and Mrs. John Delaney and Mrs. Patrick Fitzpatrick, all of Warsaw, spent Wednesday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Herlihey in the village.

Mr. Frank Harrington is at present the guest of friends in Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cavanagh spent the week-end the guest of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Herlihey, and also attended the funeral of the late Mrs. McArdle.

Mrs. Lillie Lucas spent Wednesday the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Perdue, in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll of Lindsay were renewing old acquaintances in the village Wednesday.

Mr. James C. Lucas left last week for Detroit, Mich.

The teachers of the different schools in the parish are busy preparing for the Christmas concert.

THEATRE UPLIFT IS AIM.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—The church and state in France may be separated beyond hope of reconciliation, but the church and stage seem to be growing closer together. Recent weeks have seen the formation of two Catholic associations for the uplift of the theatre, and important members of France's leading theatre, the Comedie Francaise, are active in each.

FRANCO-ITALIAN ACCORD NEEDED SAYS MUSSOLINI

Stresses Italy's Need of Friendship of France and Great Britain.

EXPANSION REQUIRED.

Declares Belief in Value of Balance of Power in Keeping Peace.

ROME, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press) — A Franco-Italian agreement is one of the fundamental necessities of European evolution, Premier Mussolini told the correspondent of the Association Press here yesterday. The Duce said his guiding idea was the necessity for providing for Italy's crying need for moral, spiritual and physical expansion by means of a pacific, but not a pacifist party. The fulfillment of these needs, he maintained, far from being incompatible with friendship and co-operation with other nations, required co-operation and mutual understanding with them, notably with France and Great Britain.

One must not describe Italy as though she were lying in hiding behind a hedge, ready to jump at the threat of the first passing nation, to tear a colony from her hands, he said.

Mussolini declared himself to be a firm believer in the restoration of the European balance of power, expressing the conviction that such an equilibrium constitutes the formula best adapted for the maintenance of peace.

Referring to the so-called Asiatic peril, he urged the necessity of abandoning the tendency to regard Asiatics as barbarians.

Turning to relations with France, the Premier maintained that the incidents between the two nations were due to the machinations of a few individuals.

"These incidents," he said, "were due, above all, to little groups of trouble makers who, beyond the Alps, are composed of conspirators hostile to the Fascist regime, who have settled on French territory, and of groups on this side of the Alps formed often of persons expelled from the Fascist party and of agents provocateurs.

Asked whether the common interests of Italy and Great Britain in the Eastern Mediterranean imposed a policy of collaboration between the two nations, Mussolini said:

"In the friendship between England and Italy there is nothing imposed. I dare to say, in fact, that even if there were not many economic and political reasons in favor of collaboratian, the friendship would exist just the same, because of the tradition which has never been broken from the time of Piedmont until to-day and which will never be betrayed."

"The two nations, moreover, follow the same political tendencies, which are based on these principles: Maintenance of equilibrium in the basin of the Mediterarnean and development of commerce and trade for the increased prosperity of the two peoples. The signatures of the two nations on the Locarno pact show, however, that both are ready to make sacrifices for the maintenance of peace."

Earthquakes, Gales, Floods During the Next Few Weeks

ROME, Dec. 17 (United News) — Earthquakes, gales, and floods will mark the last days of 1926 and the first month of the New Year, Professor Rafael Bendandi, noted forecaster of seismic disturbances, told the United News to-day shortly before reports of a tidal wave at the Madeira Islands reached Rome.

Seismic activity was due to begin to-day, said Professor Bendandi. While it could be expected most noticeably in Morocco, the seismiologist expressed the opinion that the entire area affected would extend from Europe to Samoa and into the China Sea region.

Violent shocks were predicted for Friday night in the western Pacific and especially in the vicinity of Samoa. Other tremors expected Saturday and Sunday will have their epicentre in the China Sea and there will be slight disturbances in Anatolia, he said.

ORDER OF MOOSE HOLDS "AT HOME"

Minstrel Show and Dance Entertains Members and Friends.

Thursday evening marked a most enjoyable event at the Peterborough Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose.

Dictator Austin's opening remarks being an appeal for team work between the audience and the entertainers was so well received that everyone was made to feel perfectly at home.

The Minstrels, led by Mr. Leonard, put on one of the best entertainments of the season.

During the intermission the audience was addressed by Past Dictator Hodson, of Toronto Lodge. Bro. Hodson gave a very vivid description of Mooseheart (the City of Child Welfare) which not only interested those present, but showed the magnitude of this Order's undertaking.

After refreshments were served the evening was spent in dancing until midnight when all received the wishes of the Lodge for a Happy and Prosperous Holiday Season.

This Order is rapidly becoming one of the city's liveliest lodges and with its glorious purposes behind it cannot help but become a real, live, vital factor in the city's movement toward Child Welfare.

PRESENTATION TO COCKSHUTT

Subscription Lists Being Opened For Entire Province.

IN LOCAL BANKS.

The people of the province of Ontario are planning to recognize the public services which His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Colonel Henry Cockshutt, as His Majesty's representative, has rendered to this province. A committee which consists of representatives of the Ontario Association Boards of Trade, the Toronto Board of Trade, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Canadian Club, Empire Club, Lions' Club, Optimists' Club, and the United Farmers of Ontario, has undertaken to initiate and develop a demonstration in which every citizen will be given an opportunity to participate.

It is proposed that a suitable presentation be made to His Honor and subscription lists will be opened and placed in all the chartered bank branches in the province and the public, through the initiative of local organizations and other methods, will be asked to subscribe sums of money not exceeding one dollar. The presentation will be made at a banquet to be held in Toronto on the evening of Tuesday, January 18th.

The committee recommends the local branch of the Bank of Toronto as the place to deposit the funds. The procedure recommended is as follows:

That each city has its own organization which will be separate from the district surrounding and that the mayor will be head of the local organization.

TENDERS APPRECIATION.

Local Branch of O. R. E. C. Regrets Losing Rev. N. R. McLeod.

Appreciation of the services of Rev. N. R. McLeod as president, and regret at his approaching departure, was expressed at a meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Religious Education Council at a meeting last night. Rev. Mr. McLeod has given faithful service in his office and will be greatly missed.

Wheat Values Decrease On Advices From Abroad

CHICAGO, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—With Liverpool quotations lower than due and with bearish crop advices from Argentina at hand, wheat values here underwent an early set-back to-day. A rush to sell wheat took place at the opening but sufficient buying soon developed to steady the market.

Wheat opened a quarter to 7-8 off and afterwards scored a moderate rally. Corn, oats, and provisions were easy, corn starting at 3 8 to 5-8 cent decline and later showing some recovery.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 137 7-8, May 136 3-8; corn December 73½, May 81; oats, December unquoted, May 49 7-8.

LADIES DISCUSS MANY MATTERS

Local Council of Women Holds Regular Meeting.

SOME PROPOSALS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association, the President, Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, in the chair. The attendance was small, owing probably to the approach of the Christmas season. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Joseph Wearing, and Mrs. N. D. Seaton gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Stevenson read a letter from Mrs. Parsons, of the National Executive, urging consideration of several matters of interest to the National Council and the Local Councils, as follows:

With regard to the establishment of a Dominion Savings Bank, with branches throughout the country; with regard to the advisability of having Home Economics taught in the elementary and secondary schools, where it is not already in force; with regard to the appointment of a Dean of Women in High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, to act as an adviser to girls in their choice of studies, sports, etc.; with regard to offering prizes for art exhibits in schools and at fairs, to encourage originality in art work; and with regard to watching and reporting on books of an indecent character, and registering disapproval of same with the local bookseller.

Mrs. Parsons also urged the Local Councils to take a definite part in the forthcoming celebrations in connection with the Diamond Jubilee.

Considerable discussion developed over the various recommendations contained in Mrs. Parsons' letter. Mrs. Stevenson gave excerpts from a recent speech by Sir Arthur Currie, in which he deplored the modern tendency towards emphasizing the mechanical note in education. He characterized this mechincal note as being an "enveloping shadow over every phase of activity in North America," and regarded it as "the herald and rearguard of standardization and the stultification of ideas." In it he saw the influence of the fadist. The creation of a large and liberal view of life should be the prime motive of education, he thought, and the mechanical tendency meant an over-crowding of curricula, a slavish adherence to standards, no pliability in effort and over-emphasis of special methods.

Speaking of the proposed innovation in high schools and collegiate institutes of a dean of women, several of the members thought that girls resented such supervision, when they were not in boarding-school, and the question gave rise to a discusion over the benefits to be derived from having a uniform type of dress among girl students.

Mrs. Charles Ray, formerly Miss Hazel Moffat, gave an interesting outline to the ladies of the methods pursued in the Household Science or Home Economics Courses taught in the local schools, telling in detail of the various things taught to the children, in the way of cooking and sewing, of home-nursing and house-building and management, which includes the planning of a budget, also the working out on paper of plans for a house, and the study of food principles and values. Mrs. Ray was of the opinion that examinations in such subjects add much to their value, as the children did not regard them as important until such examinations were instituted, and the subjects elevated to a more imposing place in the curriculum of studies.

With regard to the giving of prizes in the schools for art work, Mrs. Stevenson spoke of the efforts of the local Art Association some years ago in this direction, the awards being discontinued on account of their loss of favor among the school authorities.

The matter of holding the meeting of ladies to hear the platforms of the various candidates for civic honors was left in abeyance for decision of the sub-executive. These meetings, designed for the purpose of allowing the ladies to gather useful information in civic matters, have been attended more largely by men than women during recent years, the last meeting having a feminine attendance of four.

It was also decided to consider the question of supervision at the Public Library on Sunday afternoons, as the ladies of the affiliated societies who are supposed to take charge of this duty in turn, do not attend to it.

STEAMERS FIGHT WAY TO SAFETY

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 17. —(Canadian Press.) —The return to this port of four vessels which for some days have been endeavoring to reach the head of the lakes and which yesterday were ordered to return here is awaited with some anxiety. They are the Calgarian, Callander, Bricoldoc and Manadoc. From information received this morning it is believed they are in the vicinity of Iroquois Point, where, assisted by tugs, they are bucking the ice, but apparently making little headway. Three other steamers, the Monroe C. Smith, the W. E. Fitzgerald and the C. O. Jenkins, were reported yesterday afternoon to have passed Whitefish Point downbound to the Sault.

These seven vessels will be the last to reach the Soo this season. There are no upbound boats. With sub-zero temperatures prevailing it is feared the downbound boats may not succeed in reaching here before the freeze-up is complete.

The steamer Thomas Britt, downbound for a Lake Michigan port, is reported fast in the ice in the Straits of Mackinac.

U. S. Steel Dividend Causes Gain In Prices

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press.)—Wall Street experienced a "roaring bull market" today as a result of the unexpected cutting of a $200,000,000 melon by the directors of the United States' Steel Corporation, at their meeting late yesterday. The first sale of United States' Steel Common was a block of 40,000 shares of the "spread" price of 158 1-2 to 160, a record high price for all time, this individual transaction involving over $6,000,000. Other industrial and railroad stocks changed hands in large blocs with initial gains running from one to four points in scores of issues.

Carried Chicken To Jail Given Eight Year Term

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 17. United News. — Eight years in Sherbourne Reformatory was meted out to 22 year old Genevive Gedzium here yesterday for carrying a roasted chicken into jail. A jury had found her guilty of smuggling a weapon concealed inside the fowl, to aid the escape of her brother, Jerry, who was awaiting the death sentence.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 17.—(Canadian Press). — Half a dozen bandits slugged a guard and robbed a bank messenger of $79,000 in cash on a downtown street corner here at noon while thousands of Christmas shoppers milled about the scene.

The bandits jumped into a motor car and escaped.

SKI CLUB PLANS FOR 1927 SEASON

Will Put on Membership Campaign Before Opening Hike.

A meeting of members of the Peterboro Ski and Snowshoe Club was held in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms on Wednesday evening, Dec. 15th, at which the programme of activities for the first part of the season were outlined. It was decided to hold a membership campaign during the week of December 29th-January 5th. Teams were chosen and the campaign will take the form of a contest with a prize for the team securing most members. The contest will close on January 5th with the first organized hike of the season. A goodly number of new members have already signed up, and a most successful season is looked forward to. The club is open to all citizens—old and young—and is devoted to the promotion of skiing and snowshoeing, two of our finest winter sports. Particulars re membership will be furnished upon request by the secretary, Mr. H. Yelland, 173 Hunter Street East (phone 2030-W), or by any member of the club. Particular attention will be paid to beginners.

LECTURE GIVEN ON ITALIAN ART

Pupils of Normal School and Others Hear Instructive Address.

BY STUART DICK.

An extremely interesting and well-timed lecture on Italian Art was given in the lecture hall of the Normal School last evening before a good-sized audience ot pupils and citizens, by Mr. Stuart Dick of Toronto, former official lecturer in the National Art Gallery of London, England, who was introduced by Mr. Duncan Walker, principal of the Normal School.

Mr. Dick chose the Italian school as being one of the most important phases in the study of Art, everything in European painting, he said, depending on Italian art, and gave an outline, illustrated by means of lantern projections, of examples of the work of various painters, of the rise and growth of Italian art from 1300 A.D., ending with a brief review of the life and work of the three most celebrated Italian painters: Leonardo da Vinci, Michaelangelo Buonarotti and Raphael.

The pictures shown were intensely interesting, illuminating in graphic style the progress of Italian art, from the time of Marcotullio in the thirteenth century when the favorite Madonnas of the time were represented in crude, stiff postures, and in bright colors of red, blue and yellow, and Giotto of Florence, who first showed a tendency toward natural postures and realism in his backgrounds, to the time of Fra Angelico, and the Renaissance, with its re-birth and quickening of interest in art as well as other aspects of national life.

In the fifteenth century, pictures of a secular nature began to displace those of a religious character, which had been the favorites for so long, and an interesting example of the sophisticated, elaborate art of the time was shown in Botticelli's portraval of Primavera, "Spring."

Leaving this aspect of his talk, the lecturer progressed to a review of the lives of the three great masters of that time, commencing with Leonardo di Vinci, born in the village of Vinci, near Florence, in 1452, and dying in 1519. Da Vinci's talents were extraordinary in many ways. He was a skilful musician, a civil engineer, and was deeply versed in scientific lore. His intellect was massive. In art, he wished to portray that which was within. His studies were pursued in Milan, and examples of his work were shown in the "Madonna of the Rocks," the famous delineation of "The Last Supper," and the wonderful "Mona Lisa," in which the artist sought to portray a composite portrait of womanhood.

Michaelangelo Buonarotti was born in 1475 and died in 1564. He was equally famous as a painter and a sculptor, examples of his work in marble being shown in the representation of the Virgin holding the dead Christ, the colossal figure of David, the impressive figure of Moses, and the beautiful allegorical figures on the tombs of the Medici in Florence. His sculptural sense and outstanding interest in the human form were shown in the circular painting of the Holy Family, and in the painting in the Sistine Chapel, outlining the Creation of the World and the Last Judgment. A beautiful representation of the work of this master in the great Dome of St. Peter's at Rome, was also shown.

Raphael, born in 1483 and dying in 1520, had a short life. Although, as the lecturer pointed out, his early studies were influenced to a very great extent by the tuition of his master, Perugini, the peculiar style of the latter being copied with great exactitude in such pictures as Raphael's painting of "The Knight's Dream," and "The Crucifixion," still when he had once absorbed all of his master's art, he progressed immediately on his own way, far surpassing the work of his former teacher. This aspect of his art was illustrated well in a comparison betwen the "Mary Magdalen" of Perugini and one of the earlier representations of the "Madonna' by his pupil. The beautiful "Ansidei Madonna," now in the National Gallery in London, Eng., was projected on the screen; also the wonderful "Sistine Madonna," and the unfinished picture of "The Transfiguration," interrupted by the artist's untimely death, and finished later by his assistants.

Of Leonardo da Vinci, the speaker said he conveys to us the impression in his art of intellectual supremacy, while Michaelangelo impresses us with his emotional intensity, and Raphael exalts with his qualities in art of "sweetness and light."

An appreciation of Mr. Dick's fine lecture was voiced by Mr. Walker at the conclusion of the address.

The lantern projection machine was operated by Mr. A. J. Madill, B.A., of the Normal School staff.

PETES PRACTICE AT BROCK ST. RINK

The Peterboro Senior O.H.A. team worked out at Brock Street Rink last night for the first time this season, and put in a useful hour's work in preparation for next week's games. Among those out were Joe Dwyer, Bert McLeod, Ray Rose, "Biffer" Ranger, Frankie Collins, Babe Bogardis and Eddie Williams.

Ken. Kane arrived back in town this morning, and will be out with the squad at to-night's work-out which will be held at 8 o'clock, the Junior and Intermediate squads taking the earlier hour.

A great sheet of ice was ready for last night's practice, the Brock Street staff taking advantage of the cold snap to build up a fine cushion for the players.

THE NECESSITY FOR LOOKING AHEAD.

Every great achievement, every large project, in every sphere of life, statesmanship, art, letters, music, science, education, engineering, it matters not which, is the result of sustained effort and plans thought out long in advance. The tall hotel or office building the great industrial plant, are all first conceived in every detail in the minds of those responsible for them and this is so with every large organization of any kind and particularly so with the various All Expense Travel Tours which have become so popular with the public in recent years.

Canadian National Railways have announced two all-expense tours during the summer of 1927 to be personally conducted by Messrs. Martin Kerr and A. E. Bryson of the Kerr-Bryson Tours. Even now the hundreds of details involved in the organization of these two tours have been practically completed and within a very short time illustrated booklets giving a complete outline and describing the many attractive features of the tours will be available for distribution.

But how about you? Naturally, you would like to join one of these tours, either the one going west through the Canadian Rockies to the Pacific Coast, returning through Yellowstone Park, or the one going East via Quebec and the Saguenay River to the Maritime Provinces, returning via New England and Ottawa. Next year, 1927, is Canada's Jubilee Year, the 60th Anniversary of the birth of this great Dominion and the thoughts of the majority of our citizens will be directed towards the desirability of a better acquaintance with the problems of the different sections of our country, which can best be secured by an interchange of personal visits.

The all-expense tour offers the best, most convenient and least expensive means of doing this, but just as it is necessary for the organizers of such tours to make their plans many months in advance, so it is equally necessary for those who would like to join these tours to look ahead and make their plans well in advance so that they will not be disappointed, and so we say "Plan Now."

If you are interested, write Mr. Kerr at 4 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, Ont., or Mr. Bryson at 44 Silverthorn Ave., Toronto or your nearest Canadian National Railways Agent and a descriptive booklet will be mailed you as soon as ready.

STEAMERS FREED.

Break Out of Ice Which Held Them in Welland Canal.

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press). — The two steamers which were held up by ice in the Welland Canal succeeded in breaking their way down from Lock Five during the night. The Taylor left for Kingston at 3.30 o'clock this morning, and the Donovan departed two hours later.

FAMOUS PREACHER WILL SPEAK HERE

Professor Marshall, of McMaster at Murray Street on Sunday.

People in this vicinity will have an opportunity Sunday next of hearing Professor L. H. Marshall, a distinguished English divine.

Professor Marshall is a graduate of London University in both Arts and Theology, and as a student attained high distinction. After graduation he spent several years in post graduate research in the University of Berlin and the University of Marburg. In August, 1914, he was made a prisoner of war and remained in a German military prison a considerable time. Previous to this he had been the pastor of the famous Prices Gate Baptist Church, Liverpool, a church well-known to all who are familiar with that city. Afterwards he became pastor of the Queen's Road Baptist Church, Coventry, and while there became distinguished throughout the Baptist denomination in England as a theologian and scholar.

In 1924 the Chair of Practical Theology became vacant in McMaster University, and later on Mr. Albert Matthews, a brother of Mr. T. F. Matthews and a Governor of the University, was travelling in England and became impressed with the idea that the theological prestige of McMaster would be considerably increased if a man of the reputation and scholarship of Mr. Marshall could be obtained to fill the vacant chair. The result was that in the fall of 1925 Professor Marshall became a member of the Faculty of McMaster. He is a man of outstanding ability as a teacher and preacher. Along with his professional work at the University he is in constant demand as a preacher, and so much pressure is put upon him in this respect that he rarely has a Sunday free to spend with his family. The Baptists here invited him down for a Sunday soon after he came from England, but only now has he been able to fill the engagement.

The pulpit of Murray Street Church will be occupied by Professor Marshall next Sunday, both morning and evening, and a special address will be given immediately after the morning service.

ORDER FLOTILLA TO GO TO CHINA

British Authorities Send Destroyers Now Stationed at Malta.

VALETTA, Malta, Dec. 17. Canadian Press. — The fourth destroyer flotilla, has been ordered to China by the British Admiralty.

The vessels to-day were loading munitions and stores with the probability that they would sail late in the day. The Cruiser Caradoc, it was said might accompany the flotilla.

SALES AND BAZAARS

ST. ANTHONY'S SEWING CIRCLE.

The ladies from the country and city who are members of St. Anthony's Sewing Circle of the Sacred Heart Parish, held a very successful bazaar and Christmas Tree entertainment for the children of St. Vincent's Orphanage, in their parish hall, yesterday afternoon and evening. There was a good attendance at the event, and the ladies had a quantity of pretty and useful articles on sale at the various booths.

The president of the society, Miss A. Gordon, acted as general convenor. Mesdames Lynch, Clancy, Crowley and Feely had charge of the country store; Mesdames Dinnie, Curran and Rogers of the fancy work and dolls; Mesdames Bacon, LaPlante, Collins, McMaster and Fenton of the service of refreshments, Mrs. H. Duffus and Miss Mae Rose had the candy booth, and Mrs. Curtin, with Miss Gordon, looked after the Christmas tree for the children of the Orphanage, who attended in a body and had their usual Christmas treat and programme of fun.

A pleasant musical programme included vocal solos by Miss Minnie Allen and Miss Olive Guerin, readings by Miss Alma Goselin, pianoforte numbers by Miss Louise Letellier and Miss McGrath, and violin solos by Gerald Collins.

The Apartment "Special"

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

OUR children are among our most precious possessions, but that is no reason why we should wrap them in the cotton of constant protection and try to keep them uncontaminated by contact with other children. It's fighting a losing battle; you may apparently succeed in isolating your child, but one of two things is bound to happen. Instead of learning to adjust himself normally to a group and others he will develop abnormally and suffer all his life from failure to adjust; or he will so continuously resent your dominance so that he will break away in resentment at every possible opportunity, resorting to deceit if necessary, in order that he may gratify his inherent instinct for companionship of his kind. No one denies that it is hard to pick the child's playmates when one lives in a city community. The best solution I know is to so teach and train them that when they are outside the home they are capable of self government, and then let them go forth to begin their adjustment to the group.

THERE'S a wee little girl
With her hair all a-curl
Who sits at a window across the court;
She has dollies and books
And someway she looks
As though she would be just a dandy sport.

She goes out to play
With a nurse every day,
But the nurse won't let any of us come near!
And it seems such a shame
She can't join in our game,
But she's somebody awfully special, I fear.

She's a princess, maybe,
Or a fairy lass wee,
Or perhaps they think she might get germs some time;
But she's lonely I know,
Being special, and so
I wave to her window across from mine.

LECTURE GIVEN ON ITALIAN ART

Pupils of Normal School and Others Hear Instructive Address.

BY STUART DICK.

An extremely interesting and well-timed lecture on Italian Art was given in the lecture hall of the Normal School last evening before a good-sized audience of pupils and citizens, by Mr. Stuart Dick of Toronto, former official lecturer in the National Art Gallery of London, England, who was introduced by Mr. Duncan Walker, principal of the Normal School.

Mr. Dick chose the Italian school as being one of the most important phases in the study of Art, everything in European painting, he said, depending on Italian art, and gave an outline, illustrated by means of lantern projections, of examples of the work of various painters, of the rise and growth of Italian art from 1300 A.D., ending with a brief review of the life and work of the three most celebrated Italian painters: Leonardo da Vinci, Michaelangelo Buonarotti and Raphael.

The pictures shown were intensely interesting, illuminating in graphic line the progress of Italian art, from the time of Marcotullio in the thirteenth century when the favorite Madonnas of the time were represented in crude, stiff postures, and in bright colors of red, blue and yellow, and Giotto of Florence, who first showed a tendency toward natural postures and realism in his backgrounds, to the time of Fra Angelico, and the Renaissance, with its re-birth and quickening of interest in art as well as other aspects of national life.

In the fifteenth century, pictures of a secular nature began to displace those of a religious character, which had been the favorites for so long, and an interesting example of the sophisticated, elaborate art of the time was shown in Botticelli's portraval of Primavera, "Spring."

Leaving this aspect of his talk, the lecturer progressed to a review of the lives of the three great masters of that time, commencing with Leonardo di Vinci, born in the village of Vinci, near Florence, in 1452, and dying in 1519. Da Vinci's talents were extraordinary in many ways. He was a skilful musician, a civil engineer, and was deeply versed in scientific lore. His intellect was massive. In art, he wished to portray that which was within. His studies were pursued in Milan, and examples of his work were shown in the "Madonna of the Rocks," the famous delineation of "The Last Supper," and the wonderful "Mona Lisa," in which the artist sought to portray a composite portrait of womanhood.

Michaelangelo Buonarotti was born in 1475 and died in 1564. He was equally famous as a painter and a sculptor, examples of his work in marble being shown in the representation of the Virgin holding the dead Christ, the colossal figure of David, the impressive figure of Moses, and the beautiful allegorical figures on the tombs of the Medici in Florence. His sculptural sense and outstanding interest in the human form were shown in the circular painting of the Holy Family, and in the painting in the Sistine Chapel, outlining the Creation of the World and the Last Judgment. A beautiful representation of the work of this master in the great Dome of St. Peter's at Rome, was also shown.

Raphael, born in 1483 and dying in 1520, had a short life. Although, as the lecturer pointed out, his early studies were influenced to a very great extent by the tuition of his master, Perugini, the peculiar style of the latter being copied with great exactitude in such pictures as Raphael's painting of "The Knight's Dream," and "The Crucifixion," still when he had once absorbed all of his master's art, he progressed immediately on his own way, far surpassing the work of his former teacher. This aspect of his art was illustrated well in a comparison betwen the "Mary Magdalen" of Perugini and one of the earlier representations of the "Madonna' by his pupil. The beautiful "Ansidei Madonna," now in the National Gallery in London, Eng., was projected on the screen; also the wonderful "Sistine Madonna," and the unfinished picture of "The Transfiguration," interrupted by the artist's untimely death, and finished later by his assistants.

Of Leonardo da Vinci, the speaker said he conveys to us the impression in his art of intellectual supremacy, while Michaelangelo impresses us with his emotional intensity, and Raphael exalts with his qualities in art of "sweetness and light."

An appreciation of Mr. Dick's fine lecture was voiced by Mr. Walker at the conclusion of the address.

The lantern projection machine was operated by Mr. A. J. Madill, B.A., of the Normal School staff.

English Cup Ties Are Now Ready For Third Round

HOME CLUBS WIN RESTAGED PLAYS SECOND ROUND

Coventry, Bristol City and Gillingham in the Discard.

PRESTON'S BRIGHT.

New Zealand Team Cancelling Games on Account Players' Injuries.

The three games drawn in the second round of the English Cup at the week-end were re-staged to a finish Wednesday and in each case the home team won At the first meetings, one-all scores were returned and in the replays Bournemouth got through by the biggest margin, meeting Bristol City 2-0. Coventry City fell to Lincoln City 2-1, and Brentford defeated Gillingham by the lone goal. In the next round, Lincoln City, at home, will entertain Preston North End, Brentford will go to Oldham, and Liverpool engage Oldham Athletic on the latter's ground. Scores in games were:

—Cup Replays—
Brentford 1; Gillingham 0.
Lincoln City 2; Coventry City 1.
Bournemouth 2; Bristol City 0.
—County Rugby Championship—
Notts-L. and Derby 3; Warwickshire 19.
Eastern Counties 0; Surrey 11.
—Northern Union Rugby—
Yorkshire 17; All Blacks 16.

Oxford Beat Cambs.

Oxford University Wednesday took revenge upon their Cambridge rivals for the defeat suffered in Rugby football by the Dark Blues at Twickenham when, in an inter-varsity soccer game played at Stamford Bridge, they defeated Cambridge by 1 goal to 0. The weather was fine and 6,000 spectators saw the game.

Owing to many players suffering from injuries and two on the sick list, the New Zealand All-Blacs have been forced to abandon games in Paris, London, Belfast and South Wales.

JACK SHARKEY KEEPS IN TRIM

Hopes To Obtain Match With World's Heavyweight Champion.

TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Dec. 17 (United Press)—Jack Sharkey, of Boston, kept in training for the match he hopes to obtain with Gene Tunney, world champion by pounding Homer Smith of Kalamazoo, Mich., for seven rounds Wednesday.

Sharkey was credited with a technical knockout over Smith, who was severely beaten in the first six rounds and quit in the seventh. In the first round, Smith took a right-hand clout on the head while he was on one knee after being knocked down. Referee Jack Michaels at first sent Sharkey to his corner, but permitted the fight to go on.

The fans paid $13,000 to see the conqueror of Harry Wills meet Smith. Sharkey weighed 188½ and Smith 189 pounds.

LANDIS RE-ELECTED.

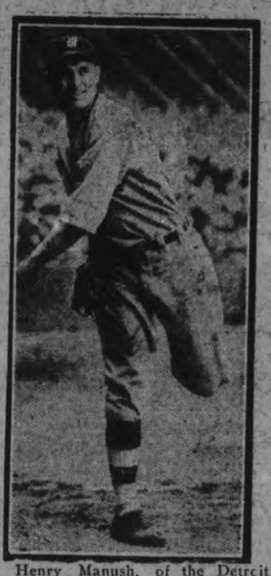
For Seven Year Term at a Salary of $65,000 a Year.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17. — Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis yesterday was re-elected commissioner of baseball for a seven-year term at a salary of $65,000 a year—an increase of $15,000 over the figure fixed when he was appointed to clear the major leagues of the "Black Sox" scandal taint in 1919.

TORONTO'S NEW ENTRIES INTO N.H.L.

Toronto's entry in the National Hockey League has not exactly carried all before them to date but the team is well supplied with substitutes and is sure to be heard from before the long campaign is over. Of the new players Bill Brydge at the left, and Corbett Dennenay at the right, have made themselves solid with the fans. Much is expected of Leo Bourgeault, second from the left, and Danny Cox, who are making their first appearance in so-called fast company.

LEADS BATTERS.



Henry Manush, of the Detroit Tigers, led the American League batters in 1926 with an average of .377. Close on his heels came Babe Ruth with .372. Three were tied for third place with .367.

CONFERENCE FAILS TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Calder and Warren Unable To Agree Over Two Players.

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 17—A conference of Frank Calder of Montreal, National Hockey League president, with A. H. Warren, head of the American Association, has failed to settle the dispute between the two groups over the two Canadian amateur players signed by the Chicago club, and confer again with Warren said he expected to meet E. J. Livingstone, head of the Chicago clumb and confer again with Calder, but meanwhile the whole American Association stands under the "outlaw" order of Calder. The Windsor and London clubs of the Canadian loop have not been paid for funds advanced the two players, Calder said, and Livingstone has refused to pay for their contracts, contending they were amateurs.

The controversy concerns two players now on the Chicago Americans, Marvin (Cyclone) Wentworth, and Teddy Graham.

Livingstone denies that the players have been signed improperly, without purchase of their contracts. He admitted obtaining them from the Windsor and London clubs, but pointed out they were rated as amateurs there and so no payment was necessary.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

ORGANIZE EASTERN BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Hoped To Have Five or Six Teams in This District.

KINGSTON, Dec. 17.—The Eastern Ontario section of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association is organizing as the Eastern Ontario Amateur Basketball Association and under the new order of things keen interest is being manifested. P. H. Brockel, physical instructor at the Y.M.C.A., is looking after the interests of the Association here.

Among the local teams likely to enter are Queen's, Y.M.C.A., and possibly the Royal Military College. The suggestion has been made that Queen's may enter two teams thus enabling the local teams to play off. Peterboro and Belleville would then play off, the winners meeting the winners of the Kingston series for the championship of the Association.

HORNSBY MAY GO TO GIANTS

In Exchange For Frankie Frisch and $100,000 in Cash.

DECLINE TO TALK.

CHICAGO, December 17. Canadian Press. — The most widely circulated Hornsby rumor at the gathering of diamond moguls here has the St. Louis Cardinals' manager going to the New York Giants in exchange for Frankie Frisch and $100,000, All the principals in the deal decline to talk.

The Cincinnati Reds were given 48 hours to decide on the terms of sale of the Columbus American Association club, proffered by Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer, who now owns the club. After listening to Harry Herrman's offer, Wilson announced his price and gave the Reds two days to think it over.

Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, announced the only deal of the day, the outright purchase of Ray Kolp, a right handed pitcher, from the St. Paul American Association Club.

Eddie Collins is too good a man to drop out of the American League, Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics said to-day, adding that he had an appointment with the ex-manager of the White Sox within the next few days to talk terms.

REPORT DENIED.

CHICAGO, December 17. Canadian Press. — Rogers Hornsby will manage the St. Louis Cardinals next year, President Sam Breadon said last night in settling rumors of various trades involving the leader who piloted the Cardinals to St. Louis' first world's championship.

"All this talk of trading Roger to New York or elsewhere is the bunk," Breadon said. "He will be managing the Cardinals next year although we have not come to terms yet."

Hornsby's three year contract as a player still has one year to run and he had insisted on replacement of this contract with a three year agreement as manager for a sum said to be around $125,000. Breadon is said to have been holding out for a one-year contract at about $30 000.

The fact that Hornsby owns the second largest block of stock in the St. Louis club complicates the negotiations, but "Hornsby will be back next year," Breadon declared.

AGAIN MANAGER.

William E. ("Bill") Carrigan of Lewiston, Maine, manager of the Boston Red Sox, before the world war, who is again named manager of his old club on a two-year contract, vice Lee Fohl, resigned.

FRENCH REGARD

tions between the two countries, which guarantee, it is figured here, should be as welcome in Rome as in Paris.

For it is pointed out that the precautions the French have taken made it henceforth impossible for any bands of overzealous over-nationalistic Fascisti to cause the Italian Dictator embarrassment by a successful attempt on their part to install themselves in Nice or Mentone.

It is quite evident that no body of Italians could go from Vintimiglia to Nice under the military conditions which now exist in that corner of French territory, and thus it is contended that the mutual danger of an ill-timed Fascist coup has been removed.

Without interference from the Government, the Liberte says:

"It is no longer a mystery for any one. Necessary measures have been taken to protect Nice and Corsica from a coup modelled after that of Garabaldi."

Soon after the Gariba'di affair was ventilated a month ago with Fascisti demonstrations in the littoral towns of the French Department of Alpes Maritimes, followed by the pursuit into France by the Italian police of alleged criminals, some of whom were supposed to have political affiliations, the papers of this department, which is situated in the south-eastern extremity of France, reported the arrival at frontier garrisons of numerous military detachments consisting of infantry, cavalry and tanks.

RUGBY JUNIORS GIVEN BANQUET

Local Boys Honored at Gathering in Empress Last Night.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS.

At the Empress Hotel last night the members of the Junior O.R.F.U. team were banqueted by the officials of the rugby organization. After a sumptuous repast had been partaken of a short programme of toasts and speeches followed, after which all went to the Capitol Theatre to see more rugby in the picture, "The Quarterback," which is being shown there this week-end. F. Hills acted as chairman.

The first toast of the evening was to the guests who had in one way or the other helped to make the season the success it was. This was proposed by R. D. Mulholland and responded to by Dr. J. J. Craig, who in speaking for the Kiwanis club said it was always a pleasure for that club to be some assistance in helping on sport in this city. Claude Rogers, the president of Rotary Club, also spoke to this toast and he hoped the day was not far off when greater ruby teams would be had by this city and that amateur sport would be thoroughly organized and put on a sound basis. J. D. Fletcher, the manager of the Capitol Theatre, was the next speaker, and whose guests the boys were later, promised the boys if they would get behind sport in this city and form an amateur athletic organization that he would give the project a start by giving a free night at the Capitol Theatre, whereby the proceeds would go to help on this organization.

Ross Dobbin proposed the toast to the team, thanking them for the sportsmanship which they had shown in the games and for the manner in which they hadf played. Although they did not go as far as was expected, they made a step forward in putting rugby on the map in this city. Bruce Fraser, the captain of the team, replied in which he gave the credit to the coaches, Max Sloan and Carl Browne for the distance they had gone in the O.R.F.U. series.

George Gore, a member of the team, proposed the toast to the executive, and it was responded to by Dr. E. H. Wood. In his address Dr. Wood stressed the need of the coaches for a team, as they were able to see the faults made by the players, no matter how expert the members of the team were.

The two coaches each made a short speech, Max Sloan telling the disadvantage the teams of Peterborough were at as they were not put in a group by the O.R.F.U. officials, but he hoped that next year conditions would be much better. He said the prospects for a good team next year were splendid as most of the players would be eligible. C. S. Browne was of the opinion that rugby ought to be started in the public schools, so as good players could be developed. Many of the members on the team have served on collegiate teams which have been trained by Mr. Browne. He said it was a pleasure for him to be able to help rugby in this city, for he was greatly interested in this line of sport.

Short speeches were also given by Chris. Graham, Doug. Loomis, Jack Deannard, and John Ward.

PARKDALE WINS SENIOR TROPHY

Beat Marlboros 4-1 in the Final Game of the S.P.A. Series.

COME FROM BEHIND.

TORONTO, December 17. — Frank Selke's Marlboros could not make it double in the S.P.A. series. While the Dukes won the junior trophy they could not defeat Parkdale last night in the final for the senior cup, the Paddlers winning 4 to 1 after being down 1-0 at the end of the first period. Some marvellous goal keeping by Humphreys, a stout defence and a real punch up on the attack gave the Watson-coached team a clean cut victory. The first 10 minutes of play were listless but near the close of the opening period the players got down to business and the hockey from there to the end was of the best. As a matter of fact there will be few better play games at the Arena this winter and the amateurs appear to be in for a great season.

Parkdale went on the ice with the intention of stopping Joe Primeau, the Marlboro scoring ace, and they did very effectively. The Paddlers draped themselves over Primeau, and whenever he secured possession of the puck, found himself checked by two and often three opponents, and when he hit the defence he was given a strenuous but not a rough ride.

Stopped Marlboros' Punch.

And with Primeau held in check, much of Marlboros' goal scoring punch was not in evidence. Polly Sellars was also missed, though Alex Parke and Red Foster made valiant efforts to fill the breach. Parke played aggressive hockey but he could not get in on Humphrey for goals.

When Marlboros realized that the Paddlers were not taking any chances of Primeau getting in any of his clever thrusts on the opposing defence they commenced to feed Johnny McPherson with the puck but the little sharp shooter could not beat Humphreys, though he popped the old rubber at the net from all angles.

Parkdale played smartly throughout. Lount and Radke checked hard, giving Humphreys splendid support, and Lount was a power on the attack. He was kept off the score sheet, but only because Stark made the most spectacular stop of the game on a low wicked shot from the raid. Stark was at the opposite side of the net when Lount fired the Marlboro goal keeper jumped over in time to get his pads in front of the puck.

OTTAWA LOSES GAME AT HOME

5-0 Defeat By Detroit, the League Leaders' First Loss.

TIE AT MONTREAL.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 17. Ottawa's winning streak in the National Hockey League is at an end. After marching through the schedule with nine straight victories and one tie, the Senators tasted their first defeat of the season at the hands of the cagey Detroit crew last night, which afflicted them with a five to nothing shut-out. The Cougars outskated the league leaders and beat them into early submission with a combination attack that was animal like in its viciousness.

Fred Gordon, speedy wing, gave the winners a first period advantage with two goals in rapid succession. He notched the opener on a pass from Frank Fredericksson and followed through from the face-off with a repeater thirty seconds later. Clem Loughlin added two more in the middle period, while Sheppard notched the other.

The Senators' regulars were replaced on the ice after the first four Cougar goals had been caged and a scrub Ottawa team livened the play for a time, but could not beat the invincible "Happy" Holmes. Connell had 45 saves to 24 for Holmes.

Detroit—Goal, Holmes; defence, Loughlan and Halderson; centre, Frederickson; wings, Gordon and Arbour; subs, Walker, Oatman, Foyston, Kitchen and Sheppard.

Ottawa — Goal, Connell; defence, Clancy and G. Boucher; centre, Nighbor; wings, Dennenay and H. Smith; subs. A. Smith, Adams, Kilrea, Gorman and Halliday.

Referees—Cooper Smeaton and George Mallison, Montreal.

Boston 1; Canadiens 1

MONTREAL, Dec. 17.—Boston Bruins and Canadiens battled the full overtime session to a 2-2 deadlock in an inter-sectional game in the National Hockey League here last night. With two minutes to go in the final session, Speedy Oliver scored on a pass from Cleghorn, tying the score, snatching the win from Canadiens and sending the teams into the extra session.

It was as fast and exciting a game as has been seen here this season and had the crowd in wild demonstrations as the battle waged fiercely. Referee Marsh came in for a general bad night. The Canadien supporters objected to his decisions and at one time he had to leave the ice until it could be cleared of paper and coins, hurled at him. Boston were after him continually, the Bruins coming out on the short end of three disallowed goals, two being called offside, and on being scored after the bell sounded the end of the period.

Eddie Shore stood out in Boston's gallant fight against, ill-fortune though the entire Bruin team played inspired hockey. Canadiens battled evenly with the visitors, their smart hockey resulting from a clever system of team play.

Boston — Goal, Stewart; defence Shore and Cleghorn; centre, Herberts; wings, Galbraith and Cooper; subs., Oliver, Keats, Briden, Stuart, Hitchman and Coutu.

Canadiens—Goal, Hainsworth; defence, Gardiner and Leduc; centre, Lepine; wings, Joliat and Gagne; subs., Mantha, Morenz, Hart, Boucher, Larochelle and Moran.

Referees—Lou Marsh and R. W. Hewitson, Toronto.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

RICHARD DIX IN "THE QUARTERBACK."

The handsome and popular Richard Dix has the stellar role in "The Quarterback," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end. As a dashing football player, he does some spectacular stunts in a funny and very interesting story of the ball field.

Jack Stone works his way through college via the milk wagon route, delivering milk bottles to back steps between spasms of study and action on the ball field. Jack's sweetheart (Esther Ralston), the daughter of a wealthy man, becomes attracted to him in his milk-delivery role and wears his badge as a souvenir. Later, he thinks that she has jilted him for a richer man and becomes discouraged, but he resolves to play for Colton after all and, facing defeat in the middle of a hard-fought and thrilling game, is urged to further endeavor by her words. The football game, of course, is the big episode of the picture and contains enough thrills to make the audience sit up and enjoy it from beginning to end. It is an interesting picture, with plenty of comedy injected into its outline, and opens with a prologue in which the father of Jack Stone promises his wife that he will remain at Colton College until it beats its ancient rival, State University. Jack's father is still true to his promise when his son at last helps to release him by winning the game.

There is an excellent comedy and the usual run of entertaining short reels.

AT THE REGENT

THE BUTLER-HARLAN FIGHT.

Dave Butler plays the mean, nasty "heavy" in Warner Bros. production of "The Sap," featuring Kenneth Harlan and directed by Erle Kenton. He has his way all through the picture, and just bullies and annoys the poor hero to his heart's content.

There was one filmed sequence in which the worm turns and Mr. Harlan cut loose, quite unintentionally, with a mean one of the brand he is in the habitof serving up to screen "heavies." The next morning, John Ellis, the photographer, who takes the picture portraits which appear in the newspapers and magazines, approached Mr. Butler.

"Well, Dave, old boy," said he, "what do you say to shooting a few portraits this morning?"

"No," said Mr. Butler, "I can't. Not for a day or two."

"Why not, baby?" coaxed John, and he peered intently into the other's eyes. Then the bright lights on the set went on and he saw the reason in Mr. Butler's left optic, which was puffy and discolored.

"Who?" he queried.

"Ken," siad Butler.

"Tough luck, old man. See you in a week," said John, as he turned away with a chuckle.

The fight, according to Heinie Conklin, who is in the mast, was the best screen fight since Tom Sanchez and William Farnum went to it in the first picture version of "The Spoilers."

Mr. Harlan and Mr. Butler were evenly matched, about the same weight, build and ability, and they went into combat "for blood."

"The Sap" comes to the Regent Theatre to-day for a run of three days.

Little Girl Rescues Tot From School Fire

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 17. — (United Press).—Thirteen-year-old Gertrude Indovine takes five-year-old Harry Abbots, her little neighbor, to school with her every day. Yesterday a fire broke out in the school. The children were marched out, Gertrude among them. Suddenly she dashed back into the smoke-filled building, eluding several persons who grabbed at her. A few minutes later she appeared carrying Harry.

SEE THAT THE LIVER IS ACTIVE

You've heard it today—the story of the bright young woman, whose energy is sapped by bilious headaches and constipation. Complexion blemishes or sallow skin perhaps give the first warning. Then the attacks of headache become more frequent, and a chronic state of nervous depression ensues.

Women in business and in the home, in need of a gentle tonic and laxative that assists Nature in cleansing the system of poisons, and keeping stomach, liver and intestinal tract in a state of healthy activity find prompt relief and permanent satisfaction in the use of

LAKEFIELD VILLAGE HAS NO SCARE

The Few Smallpox Cases Are Under Control — Health Situation Nearly Normal.

The business men, merchants and citizens of Lakefield, Ont., are indignant regarding the rumor that Lakefield is under quarantine for smallpox.

The truth of the matter is, they say, that the few cases that were in existence, are now under control, and there is no cause for alarm.

Lakefield is one of the healthiest villages in Ontario and is justly jealous of its reputation.

FARM GARDENERS MAKE PLEA FOR TARIFF AGAINST U.S. PRODUCE WHILE HOME MARKET AVAILABLE Argument Against Canadian Growers Before Tariff Advisory Board.

NO JUDGMENT.

Canadian Council of Agriculture Oppose on Principle Any Increase.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 18. Canadian Press. — A seasonal tariff on fruit, vegetable and nursery stock entering Canada was proposed and opposed in a two day hearing which came to an end yesterday before the Tariff Advisory Board.

Growers in Ontario and British Columbia were the principal supporters of the application for a tariff, which would be aimed chiefly to exclude United States products between June and February, when Canadian produce in good condition is available for the home market, it is said.

Among the written protests against the proposed higher tariff were one from the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers' Association of Chicago, and another from Andrews and Knowles, Mount Olive, North Carolina.

The hearing came to an end with the reading of a brief from the Canadian Council of Agriculture, opposing on principle any increase in the protective tariff.

No judgment was given by the board which was presided over by Right Hon. C. P. Graham, chairman.

The Provincial Governments of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Alberta and Saskatchewan opposed the increased tariff. The Ontario government was neutral; other provincial governments were not heard from.

The Winnipeg Board of Trade favored the increase, while farmers' associations and private firms in Manitoba opposed it. Communications from many other associations and firms throughout Canada were read into the record, for and against the proposal.

Growers, packers, jam makers, florists, nurserymen from Ontario and Quebec supported, some with modifications, of the proposal as submitted by the Canadian Horticultural Council.

The chief opposition came from representatives of the grain growers in Ontario and western Canada. The point was raised as to whether the Ontario farmers concurred with the opposition of their western brethren.

A. E. Darby, for the Canadian Council of Agriculture, said that the council included the farmers of Ontario and that the United Farmers of Ontario, now in convention in Toronto, had just passed a resolution opposing the principle of protection.

At the end of the day, one grower asked if there would be a further hearing on the application at some later date. Chairman Graham could not say until he had read all the material put in evidence. "But at present I should say 'No,' because I do not beleve anything further could be said on the subject," he added dryly.

The hearing closed with a series of short addresses from supporters of the application who had previously spoken.

Chairman Graham promised careful consideration of all the arguments presented. He could not promise that the board would be able to present their report to the government very soon. If they did no sift the mass of evidence fully or get complete advice from the experts the application inevitably would come up again soon. The United States tariff commission, he thought, would take three years to find a decision on such a complicated hearing as this. He reminded the gathering that it was not a clear cut issue with all agriculture behind it. Some agriculturists favored it; others oppose it. There was much to complicate the problem before the board, and he could only promise that the board

Wallace Berry Beaned So Casey's Knocked Out

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 18 (Associated Press). — The mighty Casey was knocked out here Wednesday.

It happened in the filming here of "Casey at the Bat," starring Wallace Beery. He was at the plate under director's instructions to hit a home run. A final injunction from the director's megaphone, barked just as the pitcher completed winding up, caused the comedian to turn and he took a sizzling fast ball on the head, knocking him unconscious. He was revived in a few minutes but production was stopped for the day.

WILL NOT DROP COAL RATE CASE

Provinces Not Downhearted Over Refusal Early Hearing of Application.

TRY AGAIN.

EDMONTON, Alta., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press)—"We do not intend to let the matter drop," said Premier J. L. Brownlee, when asked what would be the Alberta Government's attitude toward the decision of the Railway Board against an early hearing of the coal rates case. "We are disappointed but will try again," he added.

It is the intention of the Government, according to the Premier, to do whatever may be found possible to press for a reconsideration of this decision, in view of the urgency of the situation and the desirability of getting it before the Dominion Parliament during the present session.

Mr. Brownlee is wiring Premier Howard Ferguson in Toronto to ascertain his views in the matter and what line of action the Ontario Government will probably take. Alberta and Ontario will continue to work together in the effort to secure a more workable freight arrangement from east-bound coal shipments, and before making any further move the Government at this end will confer by wire and otherwise with the Eastern Province, the Premier said.

HEAVY GALES SWEEP MADEIRA

Seven Lives Lost in Worst Storm That Ever Struck Island.

FUNCHAL FLOODED.

FUNCHAL, Island of Madeira, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—At least seven lives were lost Wednesday when Madeira was swept by a gale which was said to be the most violent in living memory here. The town of Funchal was partially flooded, roofs were blown off, telephone and electric light wires were knocked down and shipping suffered heavily.

Seven persons perished in the sinking of the yacht Physalia belonging to the prominent yachtsman, Humberto Passos Freitas. Freitas, an English woman guest and the crew numbering six were aboard, but only a member of the crew escaped alive.

The storm struck Funchal Wednesday afternoon from the southwest and then veered westward. Two and a half inches of rain fell within four hours and enormous waves battered the waterfront, flooding some of the lower sections of the town. Thirteen lighters and several coasting vessels were among the craft sunk or driven ashore by the storm.

WHERES' SANTA CLAUS?

It doesn't take much imagination to grasp at once the story behind this picture. Christmas morning—Santa Claus didn't come—and mother's tongue sticks when she tries to explain. Is it to happen in any home in Peterborough this Christmas? It's likely unless your generosity asserts itself. If you have plenty, don't for get to remember those who haven't.

LARGE MARKET THIS MORNING

Buyers and Sellers Crowd Hall—Fowl Plentiful.

EGGS SCARCE.

There was a large farmers' market this morning, and the tables groaned with the weight of fowl offered for the holiday's dinner tables. The crowd surged through the narrow aisles and squeezed through tiny openings into areas where people stood and gossiped at inconvenient corners. It was a good-natured crowd, however, and laughed its way along from end to end of the big hall. One lady who appeared unaccountably to be always coming toward one, when one caught sight of her in the crush, achieved this effect by making her way backward through the throng.

A notice on the upper door announced the holding of a market on Wednesday and Friday of next week.

Fowl was plentiful on every side. Prices ranged from 40 cents a pound for outsized turkeys of twenty-four and twenty-six pounds apiece, to a general rate of 45 cents a pound, with a few vendors asking 50 cents. Chickens were quoted from 22 to 23 cents a pound, geese at 23 to 25 cents and ducks at 25 cents. The making of a rabbit pie could be bought for 40 cents.

Eggs were 75 cents a dozen and were fairly scarce, and butter was 42 to 50 cents a pound. Home-made lard was 22 cents a pound. Devonshire cream was 50 cents a bowl.

Little collie pups near the upper entrance occasioned a great deal of comment and admiration. They were cold little things, priced at $1.50 each, with affectionate tongues and aimless little blue eyes.

Christmas offerings were on the market this morning, trees at 25 cents to a dollar apiece, Christmas cake at 40 cents a pound, home-made bread in holly-wreathed paper wrappers, relishes and pickles in jars, doughnuts and Parker House rolls and buns.

aaaaaaaaaaacse mht csetoi cse h

On the open section, the vendors shivered in the icy air. There was fish and a few apples on sale, with pork at 19 and 21 cents a pound, beef at 10 and 12 cents, and a few vegetables at the usual prices. Wood was offered, birch and tamarack at $7 a load, good hardwood sticks at $8 and $9.

WILL LENGTHEN WORKING WEEK

Be Established in English Cotton Mills Using American Yarns.

CAUSED SURPRISE.

MANCHESTER, England, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Full time, or the lengthening of the working week, is to be re-established in that section of the cotton mills using American yarns. Thus will be brought to an end the practice of curtailing American yarn spinning which has been in effect almost continuously since 1920.

This step was recommended by the short time organization committee of the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners, causing a surprise in the cotton trade.

The abandonment of short time is described by cotton experts as an exceptional instance where a theoretical economist has succeeded in imposing his theories against established convictions of the business man.

John Maynard Keynes, noted British economist, some weeks ago astonished the Lancashire cotton trade by blandly questioning the value of the policy of short time as a remedy for a depressed industry. He insisted that short time had the effect, by restricting the output, of increasing enormously the ratio of overhead charges, and thereby increasing the cost of the manufactured article to the consumer, to the advantage of the Japanese and other foreign competitors.

The remedy he recommended was fuller utilization of raw material and the protection of the trade by the formation of combinations.

At first the cotton magnates were nonplussed, seeing their well-established practices questioned by a mere theorist. Prolonged debates and discussions followed, Mr. Keynes being invited to explain personally the detailed application of his theories. Apparently he succeeded in convincing the magnates.

Wanted To Join Grandad Child Attempts Suicide

VIENNA, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press). — Even children have been affected by the suicide epidemic in Austria.

Three-year-old Helli Hamp was found behind the cupboard the other day choking. She had wrapped a rope around her neck and was seemingly about to die when discovered. Revived, her explanation was that she wanted to go to Heaven to dear grandfather.

Dear grandfather had committed suicide a few weeks previously, distressed because he could not aid little Helli's poverty stricken parents.

MILITARY COUP IN OVERTHROW OF LITHUANIA

Former President Assumes Leadership With Full Dictatorial Powers.

NO BLOODSHED.

Dispatches Say It Had Been Under Way For Long Time.

BERLIN, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Lithuania's Socialist Government has been overthrown by a military coup, but so far as is known there was no bloodshed. Dr. Kasimir Grinius, who was only elected to the Presidency last June, has been ousted, and reports received here say that General Smetona, a former president, who engineered the movement, has assumed the Presidency with dictatorial powers and the establishment of what is described as a Fascist regime.

Despatches from Riga and other Baltic sources show that the coup which came to a head early yesterday morning, was actually under way secretly for a long time. The Diet held a night session Thursday night, and about 3 o'clock yesterday morning troops entered the building. A commanding officer, mounting the Speaker's platform, announced that the army had decided to overthrow the Government. The direct charge was made that the Government had betrayed Lithuania to the Bolshevists and to foreign nations. Thereupon the officer declared Parliament dissolved and the President of the Diet was arrested and the members were ejected.

Kovno, the capital, is said to be entirely occupied by military forces with only one regiment loyal to the former Government still occupying a neighboring hill known as the Gruenerberg. The city is completely isolated, the new Government having closed all telephone and telegraph lines, consequently only fragmentary news has reached the outside world, and that from roundabout sources.

Tries Food Tablets On Dairy Milch Cows

MARLBOROUGH, England, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press). — Food tablets for cows have been tried successfully by A. J. Hosier, a dairyman of Wexcombe House near here.

The tablets are of Mr. Hosier's own prescription. He says that by experiments covering five years he has demonstrated that milk can be produced at from four to six cents a gallon below normal cost.

He keeps his cows in the open the year round and milks them by machine.

COUNSEL TO LAY PERJURY COUNTS CUSTOMS PROBE

Asks Four Witnesses in "Chris Moeller" Be Charged.

CODE TELEGRAMS.

Names of Witnesses Withheld Until Motion Made.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press)—A recommendation that four witnesses who appeared before the customs commission in the Chris Moeller case be prosecuted for perjury was made to the commission yesterday. The names of the witnesses will not be revealed until the motion is made.

The form of the recommendation, it has already been intimated by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., commission counsel, will be that the evidence taken in the Chris Moeller case be transferred to the attorney-general of British Columbia with a suggestion that the four witnesses in question be prosecuted for perjury.

The last minute witnesses in this now famous liquor case were produced by J.W. De B. Farris, counsel acting for some of the liquor interests. Archie M. Thompson, shipping clerk for the Manitoba Refineries of British Columbia, owners of the Chris Moeller's 21,000 case liquor cargo, was the first. He admitted sending the mysterious code telegrams signed "John" to "James Cameron" in Los Angeles, and San Francisco last October and November. These telegrams were a mystery when they were introduced, and they remain a mystery, even after Mr. Thompson's evidence, because he destroyed the code and strongly pressed by R. L. Calder, K.C., commission counsel, to do so.

Mr. Thompson could remember practically nothing about the telegrams except that "John" was the code word for "Shipper," and that the wires were sent to a man called Sydney Smith who, for the time being, took the name of James Cameron. Mr. Calder tried him with various code words appearing in the telegrams.

Memory Short

"What does Quck mean?" counsel asked.

"I don't remember."

"What does pate parson mean?"

Finally Mr. Calder gave up trying to find out the meaning of the telegrams.

"I don't think you need to spend any more time on this witness," remarked Chairman Brown.

"I think the impression has been created," stated Mr. Calder.

"More than an impression," interrupted the chairman.

The witness was asked to step down.

Mrs. Haskell, stenographer for the Manitoba Refineries, was called She corroborated the testimony of Thompson to the extent of saying that she had typed for him the telegrams signed "John." They were all in code.

THE WEATHER.

There was a decided sharpness in the air this morning, the temperature being 14 degrees below the zero mark. The winter this season is certainly off to a good start—plenty of snow and ice, and numerous zero days and nights. There have been occasions when golfers could be seen having a belated game on their green at this date, but not in A.D., 1926.—W. P.

Aga Khan Asks Dealers To Sell Great Diamond

PARIS, Dec. 18 (United Press).—The Aga Khan has asked the diamond markets of Paris, London and Amsterdam to sell the Golden Dawn, the great jewel which he recently purchased in London for his wife, who died the day following the purchase.

Although the Aga Khan denied he was influenced in his desire to get rid of the jewel by the mysterious deaths which befall the holders of the Hope diamond, he has had a hard time persuading dealers to take the stone off his hands.

THREE DROWNED WHEN CUTTER GOES INTO HOLE

Residents of Alumette Island Lose Lives in Ottawa River.

BODIES RECOVERED.

Break Through Ice While Crossing River During Blizzard.

PEMBROKE, Ont., Dec. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Driving in a blizzard which swept over the Upper Ottawa River yesterday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire and their six-year-old child were drowned in the Ottawa River when the cutter in which they were driving went through a hole in the ice while they were returning from Christmas shopping at Pembroke.

All of the dead lived at Demers Centre, Allumette Island. An inquest is to be conducted by Coroner C. E. Joseph.

According to information received at Pembroke this morning, when the fate of the trio became known, they were driving over what is known as the "Lower Trail" below Pembroke when the horse, the cutter and its occupants plunged into the icy waters of the Ottawa River.

Some residence of Pembroke claim to have seen the vehicle and its occupants disappear through the hole in the ice. The bodies have been recovered.

DIES SUDDENLY.

Bethel Grove Farmer Collapses While Talking To Friend.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Dec. 18.—Stricken with a heart attack as he sat in a chair in his home at Bethel Grove conversing with a neighbor, William Sleamon, well known farmer died suddenly at noon on Wednesday. The late Mr. Sleamon had been in ill health for some years, but his condition was never believed to be critical. A bachelor, he had lived alone at Bethel Grove for some years. Deceased was 79 years of age, and lived in this district all his life.

THERE WILL BE A MEETING OF LOCAL 191, A. F. OF M., IN THE LABOR HALL, AT 3 P.M., ON SUNDAY, DEC. 19TH. A FULL ATTENDANCE IS REQUESTED. ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

BRITISH EENVOY FAILS TO AGREE WITH CANTONESE

Effort To Reach Basis of Understanding Proves Unsuccessful.

REMOVE MISSIONS.

British Headquarters in Pekin Favor Extensive Withdrawal From China.

LONDON, Dec. 18. — The British effort to find a basis of understanding and agreement with the Cantonese forces at Hankow through the mediation of Ambassador Lampson, has failed.

There is a chance that in order to minimize the general danger, Mr. Lampson and Eugene Chen, the Chinese foreign minister, between whom the negotiations have been carried on, will agree to the issue of a joint statement setting forth the substance of their conversations.

As a result of this deadlock representations are being made to London from the British official headquarters in Pekin favoring extensive withdrawal from China. The British legation has drafted a report which, it is understood, is to be brought to London by Mr. McLeay

The report, which was prepared before the arrival of Mr. Lampson, and therefore does not bind him in any way to support its conclusions, advises as an urgent necessity, the withdrawal of British missionary and trade outposts in China to the comparative safety of the treaty ports.

Remove Gunboats.

It also urges the removal of the two gunboats, H.M.S. Teal and H.M.S. Widgeon, from the upper reaches of the Yangtse, where they have been stationed since the landing of marines at Hankow some months ago.

The adoption of this report would involve the abandonment of Chung King as dangerous and inaccessible to British trade.

This would seriously affect many big British firms, notably the British-American Tobacco Co., the Asiatic Petroleum and Sugar interests, the Butterfield Wire Company, and Jardine and Matheson.

Only a few people knew of the existence of these reports which threaten so drastic a change in the British policy in the Far East, and official circles in London had no information about them until yesterday.

GET THREE YEARS.

Three Youths Plead Guilty in Robbery Case at Montreal.

CORNWALL, Ont., Dec. 18, J— (Canadian Press.)—Pleading guilty to a breaking in and entering a local billiard parior Thursday night and stealing cigars, cigarettes and cash, three youths, Donald Chatelain, M. Lepand, Geo. Laprade and A. Baker were each sentenced in police court yesterday to three years imprisonment in Kingston penitentiary.

ORMISTON COMES TO COURT TO-DAY

Will Be Arraigned on Charge of Conspiracy, Says Report.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The Examiner, in a copyrighted story, says Kenneth G. Ormiston, will-o'-the-wisp radio man in the Aimee Semple McPherson case, is in the custody of Ben Cohn, chief of the District Attorneys' detectives, and reiterates that he will appear for arraignment some time today.

The radio man is charged with conspiracy to prevent and obstruct justice through his alleged aid in the manufacture of purported false evidence regarding the disappearance of the woman evangelist last summer. He declared his intention of asking for reduction of the $10,000 bail which was set last Wednesday when a Grand Jury indictment was returned against him.

On other matters pertaining to the McPherson case, Ormiston was still smiling and saying little.

"I want to show Los Angeles and the world, if the world is interested, that I have nothing to fear and that, therefore, I came here to take charge of my case."

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

IMAGINATION is a wonderful thing! In less time that it takes to tell it I can be at the other side of the world. Without ever leaving the manse window I can get away from frost and snow and ice to the land of sunshine and hospitality. But about that I may write another day. What I want to do now, if I can, is to relate an imaginary experience which might have taken place several days ago. It happened like this! I saw a company of lads in uniform. They were Boy Scouts. And I remembered that a certain good friend of mine, popularly known as 'J. J.' had more than a passing interest in that organization. It seemed to me that he had asked me to come and address a great gathering of Boy Scouts and their friends. The whole thing has seemed so real to me that some folks would have difficulty in convincing me that it never really took place. Was it only a day-dream? Don't tell me that I only imagined it. Why, I can see those lads now, with an eager look on every face. I can hear the sound of my own voice as if I were speaking now.

FIRST WORDS

I appreciate the privilege that is mine to-day. And I am anxious to make good use of the opportunity thus presented. It is foolish to talk just for the sake of talking. Elbert Hubbard once said in his characteristic way—

"It is better to keep your mouth shut and be thought a fool than to open it and remove all doubt."

My hope is that I might be enabled to say something in an interesting way which will both instruct and inspire.

When I look at you I cannot help being greatly impressed with the possibilities—for weal or for woe—bound up in the personality parading here in the uniform of a Boy Scout. Only God can tell what you are going to be. The rest of us will not know till the future becomes the present. It may be success, mediocrity or failure. What it is will depend in no small measure upon yourselves. It is your life, to make or to mar. But don't forget that there will be a day of judgment; and God does not collect all His accounts on the 31st of December.

ON PARADE

There is a word which was once used in an attempt to strengthen the faith of a nation in Jehovah as the Lord of Hosts. This is how it goes: "Trust in Him at all times." I would like to think that God could say this of each of you. He knows you as no other does. You can hide nothing from Him. He is familiar with your every mood and motive. Yet, although you may not feel that you deserve it, He may say, as He thinks of you, 'Trust in him at all times.'

Here you are in uniform and on parade. Naturally you attract attention. No matter how shy you may be, or how anxious to keep in the background, the moment you step abroad in that uniform you are an object of interest to every thinking person. Certain things are expected from you because you are a Boy Scout. And if you are to be worthy of the uniform you must have a two-fold ambition as the driving power in all your activities. Let me tell you what this two-fold ambition is, then do a bit of thinking to see whether you have it or not.

CAN HE BE TRUSTED?

If you are to live up to the best traditions of 'a good scout' you must be trustworthy and of service to others. You sometimes hear it said, "Oh yes! but you can't trust him." It is one of the most damaging statements that can be made about any boy; and it ought not to be true of you. It is not enough to be clever. Being clever may be more of a liability than an asset. Forgers are clever. Judas was clever, but he could not be trusted. You may be likeable and be all the more dangerous on that account. Confidence men are usually very likeable. The great question is—Can You Be Trusted? Wearing the uniform is no final assurance. I have it on the best authority that wolves have been known to dress in sheep's clothing. You may be able to fool your closest friends, but remember you cannot fool God. He knows the thoughts and intents of our hearts and is not to be deceived by appearances.

NOT VERY BIG

On one occasion a boy applied for a situation. It seems that the job called for a lad with some strength. When the gentleman who wanted a boy saw this particular lad he said: "You are not very big," as if by that he implied that there was some doubt as to the boy's fitness for the situation. "No," said the boy, "but I'm all here." Needless to say he got the job and proved in every way to be quite satisfactory. Now that simple story has a point which I would like you to see and feel. You may not be much to look at if all that's wanted is bulk. But if you are all there you'll reach the goal however strong the opposition may be.

ALL ROOSTER

A gentleman whom I know well was standing in my presence once when a boy in whom we were both interested passed us. As this gentleman beheld the boy he said to me, "He's all rooster." Perhaps that description would have been out of place in some fashionable drawing-room, but at all events I knew what he meant, and he couldn't have used a more fitting phrase to describe this boy than the highly descriptive one which I have already mentioned. In other words, he was all boy. And it is just what I would like to think each of you was. But you are not going to remain boys. One of these days soon will see you growing into young men. The sort of men you are likely to be will largely depend on your thoughts and habits as a boy. And the Boy Scout movement will play an important part in helping to make worthwhile men of you.

YOUR MAKE-UP

There are three departments of your life which you ought to know something about and take good care of. It has sometimes been said, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise If that be true at any time it is certainly not true now. Ignorance of your make-up may prove to be the curse of your later life. "Know thyself," is good advice. Get this knowledge and you, too, will discover that knowledge is power.

The three departments of your life that I want to say a few words about are these:—

1. The Physical. I am speaking now of the house in which you dwell and through which you express yourself. Your body in all its parts is the most wonderful piece of mechanism imaginable. Take good care of it. Keep it clean, healthy and fit. Don't turn it into a hovel or a pig-sty. Don't overfeed or starve it. Dress it well, but don't be a fop.

2. The Intellectual. Your thinking apparatus with the power of memory is an even greater piece of machinery than your body. With it you can build castles in the air; especially with that part which is called imagination. Cater to its needs wisely and well. The brain that isn't used will rust. Have growing-pains in your mind as well as in your body. Read worth-while books; and think as you read.

3. The Spiritual. This is the part that links you up with God. It has been injured by sin, but it may be repaired by Christ. It was for this purpose that He came into the world. This is the meaning and message of His Cross. Behold Him as the Lamb of God. taking away the sin of the world. Then accept Him as your own Lord and Saviour.

WHAT IT ALL MEANS

When these three departments of your being are properly cared for you will certainly be trustworthy. And even God will be able to say, "Trust in him at all times." Then there will follow a life of service such as we don't see enough of. And you will not need to look long or far for opportunities. You will find them on every side of you. You can find them in the home, at business, and in the Church. Life is no picnic. Neither is it a bed of roses. At the top there is plenty of room, but to get there you must climb. It has been well said that if you want to get anywhere in this life you must hasten while your shoes are good. You may often find the way blocked, but if you are made of the right kind of stuff you will use the blocks to mount on. To believe a thing is impossible is to make it so. And don't forget that if you aim at nothing you are dead certain to hit it. It may be all right to be content with what you have, but it is not right to be content with what you are. Live so as to be worthy of the text from which I did not mean to preach a sermon—Trust in Him at all times.

—Allan Fairbairn.

Why Hurry?

YOU live in a hurry. Your mind gets into a feverish state. You live under a constant feeing of pressure. You think while you are doing anything, that something else is waiting to be done. Such a feeling as that is quite fatal to doing one's best. Lord Chancellor Thurlow used to say, "I divide my work into three parts. Part 1 do: part does itself: and part 1 leave undone." But most of us could not, dare not, resolve to do the last. So we go with a will at our work, till body and mind rebel. A good way would be to "Rest in the Lord; and wait patiently for Him." Then we should find that according to our day so would our strength be.

What Think Ye of Christ?

ACCIDENTAL MIRACLES

THE accidental miracles of our Lord are among the most remarkable—those that, as it were, He spilled over by the way. While He was on His way to do one miracle He dropped another, almost as if He didn't intend it. He was going to heal the daughter of Jairus when the woman with the issue of blood reached out her hand, and touched the hem of His garment and was healed. When an electric jar is filled, only a touch will unload it.

Churches and Churchmen

I. SEEWELL.

Problem of the Evening Service.

REV. FRED A. McDONALD, pastor of Old South Congregational Church, Worcester, Mass., has been giving his members something to think about as to what is their duty in the matter of the Sunday evening service. His contention is that the solution of the Sunday evening problem lies with the rank and file of the membership of the church. He asks this as one of his questions:

"Is there any connection between the long lines of pleasure-bent movie fans outside a picture house, Sunday evening, and the long rows of empty pews in our churches at the same hour? Undoubtedly! And yet many church people blame the movies for a condition which they themselves are largely responsible for. Our fathers by consecration and sacrifice, staunchly supported the Sunday evening service, while the present generation puts rubber tires on their consciences to avoid shocks while making excuses to themselves for not taking their covenant vows more seriously.

Another searching question which Dr. McDonald puts is this: "Church member, do you know that by your desertion of the Sunday evening service you proclaim to an already sceptical world that the religion you profess is not sufficient to give you concern over the great unsaved world?

"The morning service is, of right, largely given over to teaching, to the edifying of those already Christians, and to the sowing of the seed of the Word. The evening service ought to be evangelistic in character. What would you think of a farmer who continued to sow but failed to reap? By coming yourself and bringing someone with you, the joy of sharing in the reaping of a harvest may be yours.

"The Sunday evening service will come back to its place of power and influence when the majority of church members overcome those habits of indolence, complacency and ease which have caused them to so un usily neglect it. A genuine revival of religious interest and enthusiasm would mean the salvation of the Sunday evening service. If the next generation is to have the moral and spiritual character necessary to meet the problems of the future, this generation must return to the altars of the fathers who have builded the walls of Zion. Centuries ago the old prophet cried out, 'Woe to them that are at ease in Zion.' Vigilance is the price of liberty in matters spiritual as well as matters material."

That is one side of the question. And I could wish that many will read, and not a few be rebuked by this brief story of one of the most pressing problems of modern church life. But there is another side. I know of places where a real live presentation of the Gospel of saving grace can both draw and hold as large a crowd as any picture house can boast of.

A Great Organ.

THE largest and most modern organ in Munich, Germany, having six thousand pipes and seventy-four stops, has been dedicated recently in St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran Church, that city. The church council has arranged to give recitals of church music on the new organ every other Saturday evening. This practice is similar to that of the famous boys' choir whose Saturday afternoon concerts have for centuries been given in St. Thomas Lutheran Church in Leipzig and have won great popularity.

ANONYMOUS TIPS.

There are divided opinions as to the decision of Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, not to pay any attention to anonymous letters in his administration of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Col. Price is quite emphatic in his stand.

"If any person has any information to give the Attorney-General's Department, he can do so over his own signature," he declares. "I do not intend to pay any attention to anonymous letters. They are only the resort of the coward anyway."

The average layman probably feels the same as the Attorney-General.

The unsigned letter method is regarded as underhanded and cowardly, and people have little use for the man who fires from ambush.

At the same time, from a law enforcement viewpoint, there is something to be said in favour of anonymous "tips."

Letters of this kind often lead to nowhere when investigated, but enough of them prove to be valuable to officials as a clue to offenders to make it doubtful whether or not the Attorney-General is justified in discarding completely this source of information.

NOW THEY KNOW IT CAN BE DONE.

Despite the fact that the first two days were given over for the most part to the ceremonial features that belong to the opening of Parliament, the Federal House disposed of the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne in four days, and is ready when Parliament re-assembles after the Christmas recess to commence the important business of the session.

The fact that the session was called just before Christmas and that if the debate had been prolonged the members would have been unable to go home for the holiday festivities, made this record possible.

There is no reason, however, now that it has been established that the initial debate can be wound up in a couple of days without the heavens falling or a national disaster blighting the country, why this dispatch in disposing of the debate on the Speech from the Throne cannot be duplicated in future sessions.

The experience of the present session should make it possible to materially reduce the length of such debates.

FEWER MINISTERS NEEDED.

Mr. Woodsworth, Labour leader in the House of Commons, in his contribution to the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne the other day touched upon a condition to which The Examiner has frequently referred, i.e., the desirability of cutting down the governmental overhead.

The Labour member believes that portfolios such as that of the Secretary of State could be dispensed with, and that departments such as the Public Works and Railway departments could be merged under one Minister.

It is his opinion that when economies are being considered a start should be made at the top, and although there was no indication that his suggestion met with much favour in the House, it is likely to appeal to many people outside of Parliament as reasonable and justified.

There seems not the slightest doubt that in a number of cases two departments could be supervised by one minister.

In the Ontario administration Premier Ferguson, despite all the calls that are made upon the services of a leader of the Government, has found it possible also to carry out the very important duties of Minister of Education, and apparently to give satisfaction in that capacity, for his administration of that department was not attacked by anyone in the recent election campaign.

What has been done at Toronto could just as easily be done at Ottawa.

COMPENSATION BENEFITS

Workers in industry under compensation in Ontario enjoy the benefit of very considerable protection.

This has been done without unduly burdening employers by spreading the cost of these accidents over the industries in the various classes set up by the Workmen's Compensation Board.

It is interesting to note that, of the six Provinces in Canada in which there are Compensation Boards, Ontario, being more important industrially, pays out by the far the largest sum each year.

In this Province the maximum weekly award which can be made is $25.64, which represents two-thirds of the maximum of $2,000 per annum on which compensation can be paid under the Ontario Act.

The benefits to injured workers or their dependents in Ontario are extremely liberal.

In New York State, for instance, the maximum award possible is $20 per week, or more than 20 per cent. less than can be awarded in this Province, although the costs to industry in New York State are in the main higher than in Ontario.

This is doubtless due to several factors, one being the efficient administration of the Workmen's Compensation Act by the Ontario Board, and another the constant campaign against accidents which is being carried on in a large percentage of the plants under compensation here.

Costs, however, of five and a half million, or six million dollars per annum, as we have had in Ontario for the past several years, must continue to focus the attention of industry on an extension of the accident prevention work being done.

PARLIAMENT AND WORDS.

With one paragraph in the Speech from the Throne, most observers, we think, will agree. It is that paragraph which, we understand, contemplates briefer speeches in the House. We have never loved the hoary myth about the "strong silent man" (often more stupid than strong) and we have despised unsophisticated clamor about the "talking shop" on the Hill. But there is good and bad speaking, just as there is attractive and atrocious conversation; and everybody who has watched Parliament through recent years, with its incredibly long debates, and its increasingly bad speaking, must clutch at any remedy offering hope for improvement.

In England a debate on any subject lasting longer than a week would be regarded with nation-wide amazement. In Canada Parliament rarely stops short of talking a question into irretrievable confusion. At Westminster a member talking longer than an hour would be pointed to as a modern curiosity. In Canada a member sitting down within an hour is suspect of either bad legs or bad statesmanship. And so our debates go on, gaily and copiously unconcerned with time, expense, or subject.

Time was when, under the rules of the House, members couldn't read speeches. It taught them to speak briefly and well. Today five out of every six men who rise to their feet read what they have to say. The result is that all sorts of propagandists for all sorts of things brief members with letters and pamphlets and quotations; and unless a member is an excellent reader he promptly empties the House.

The reading habit, if memory serves us, began with Sir Thomas White. Sir Thomas, whose maiden speech in the House was his Budget speech, excusably read it all. Mr. A. K. MacLean, who was making his first effort as a financial critic, replied by reading his criticism—and the harm was done. Ministers, who take what they say seriously, began reading their pronouncements; Speakers lacked courage to deny to the back bench what was condoned on the front bench; the timid and the inarticulate, became bold; precedents broadened into habit. The House that had heard Chapleau and Howe and McGee fell steadily in reputation for eloquence.

* * * *

Up to ten or fifteen years ago the House of Commons could claim that, in some respects, it was a brilliant debating assembly. It could still boast of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, in range of mind, in fidelity of diction ,in the graceful vigor of his presence, was unrivalled. After 1911 he was, in many ways, at his best. Freed from the worries of office, with soul undaunted by defeat, he spoke with a philosophy, a wisdom, and sometimes with a pathos and passion, that were an inspiration to hear. In memory one can see him again—the erect head, the eyes flashing defiance, the fine, mobile face, now expressing scorn, now contempt, now indignation or ridicule, as with flaming tongue, and with paragraphs crowded into sentences, he lashed out at his foes; or the venerable figure, like a great cardinal of medieval times strayed into the twentieth century, now exhorting, now expounding some philosophic or political truth, looking out over politics from the summits of a rich and lengthy life. The doughtiest of Tories saluted such a foe.

* * * *

Of the speakers who dominated Parliament in days of which we write the two finest orators were Laurier and Lemieux, the three greatest debaters Mr. Fielding, Dr. Clark and Mr. Meighen. Given a great occasion, Mr. Lemieux was, and is, an orator of power. Few approach him in charm and vividness of manner, in flexibility of voice, in the gift of clothing his thoughts in noble rhetoric. The writer heard him deliver his panegyric upon Laurier—one of the most moving pieces of eloquence to be found in the pages of Hansard—and also watched him play upon the passions of the fishermen of Gaspe; and it is to be doubted whether as classic orator or tumultuous electioneer he has had a superior in his day.

* * * *

Of the three greatest debaters, Mr. Fielding was the most philosophic and lucid; Dr. Clark the most scholarly and eloquent; Mr. Meighen the most acute and incisive. Mr. Fielding was at his best when called upon, almost without notice, to repel an attack; he had a marvellous off-hand knowledge of the most intricate questions, and a fine lucidity in expounding them. Dr. Clark was the prophet rather than the man of action. His phrasing was well-nigh perfect. The sentences rolled out seemingly ready-minted from his brain as finished as newly struck gold coins. He was what is sometimes called a "Second Reading" man—large in his view of principles, stately in his language, bespeaking a fine historic background with a procession of sonorous sentences. Mr. Meighen, on the other hand, was the master of detail, and it was when he followed somebody—the more formidable the better—that he was at his best. At some unexpected, unguarded moment he would swoop down like a captain of guerillas from his mountains, the terror of the opposing front bench, the delight of everybody for the moment spared from his scalpel, and all the time holding fast to his point with a grip that never relaxed. It has been said of Meighen's speaking that it was hard and dry, lacked color and emotion, and was without moral elevation. That, in a measure, was true. Yet if Meighen did not love the "Macaulay flowers of literature" and did not often burst

"Into glossy purples that outredden
All voluptuous garden roses"

there were times when the lucidity of his thought was matched by the chasteness of his phrasing. Few nobler things heighten Canadian eloquence than his estimate of D'Arcy McGee.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Premier Ferguson is discovering that political appointments are not all Gardens of roses.

A week from today it will be too late for that Christmas shopping. Do it Monday if you can.

Mr. Wordsworth, M.P., is very much perturbed over the appropriation for cadet training. However, he will have difficulty in convincing a majority of the House that he is right.

Bad fires and zero weather always seem to go hand in hand as the firemen have painful reason to remember.

It cannot be said that the air is jammed with broadcasts from aldermanic aspirants.

That Hamilton appointment is an answer to Federal politicians who are clamouring for the abolition of the Civil Service Commission.

It looks as if the Utilities' race is liable to develop into a traffic jam.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Extréme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday, there being practically no demand from foreign buyers. The domestic trade was also quiet.

The local and export trade in Spring wheat grades of flour was fair and prices were steady. The Winter wheat flour situation was unchanged, the volume of business was small and prices were unchanged.

A moderate amount of business was worked in all lines of millfeed and prices were well maintained. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats continued good and the undertone to the market was firm.

The activity that has characterized the butter market this week was continued in yesterday's session and prices were firm. The receipts were 142 packages.

The cheese market was quiet but firm. The receipts were 79 boxes.

Considerable business was again transacted in fresh and storage eggs and prices ruled firm. The receipts were 142 cases.

There was a slight improvement in the demand for potatoes and a moderate amount of business was done. Prices were firm. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.80 to $1.85 per bag of 90 pounds. New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.55 to $1.60, and Quebec White stock at $1.45 to $1.50 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

Prices for beans were steady under a fair demand. Car lots of choice white hand-picked were quoted at $2.75 per bushel, and smaller quantities at $3.00 per bushel.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK

WINNIPEG, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Receipts 340 cattle and calves and 540 hogs.

Trading was slow on the cattle market, but prices held steady.

Hogs firm, thick smooths $10; select bacons 10 per cent premium.

Lambs were quoted at $9 to $9.50; sheep $4 to $6.50.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Hogs 19,000; closing fairly active; few sorted 220 to 300 pound averages topping at $11.70; bulk desirable 140 to 300 pound kinds $11.55 to $11.65; most packing sows $10.40 to $10.75; bulk better kinds, pigs $11.40 to $11.65.

Cattle 12,000; best yearlings $11.75; most yearlings $8.75 to $10.25; few loads weighty steers $9.00 to $9.25; bulls higher; vealers steady.

Sheep 16,000; sprinkling choice lambs to packers $12.50; bulk wooled lambs $11.00 to $12.25; natives $12.25 down; desirable yearling wethers $8.50 to $9.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Influenced a good deal by unfavorable crop advices from parts of Argentina, the wheat market here recovered yesterday from an early setback. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Wednesday's finish to 1-4c off; with corn unchanged to 1-2c up; oats at 1-8 to 1-4c decline to an equal decline, and provisions varying from 5c down to 20c up.

Although displaying considerable strength in the late trade, the wheat market was running into more liberal offerings just at the close. Commission house buying on resting orders, however, absorbed the surplus offerings. Unsatisfactory crop conditions in Pampas Province, Argentina, were reported and also in the extreme west of the province of Buenos Aires.

An unlooked for upturn in the Buenos Aires market tended further to bring about late price rallies here.

Corn and oats followed the trend of wheat, developing firmness after an early decline. Country offerings of corn were mainly held above buyers' views.

Provisions were firmer, helped by an upturn in the value of hogs.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE JEWISH JOKE

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Many Hebrew jokes are merely about Jews and are not Jewish. They are offensive, because the Jew thinks you are laughing at him and not with him.

I have been surprised to find that many Jewish jokes are as heartily laughed at by the Jew as by the Gentile.

The Jewish mind is quick and has a certain characteristic humor. This is probably because the Jews have been oppressed so long that they have been forced to use their wits a good deal.

A Jew can laugh at almost anything and even laugh in the face of death. When Heinrich Heine was on his deathbed he made his will bequeathing everything to his wife providing she married again. Asked why, he said: "When she marries there will be at least one man who will regret my death."

What constitutes a genuine Jewish story?

Jacob Richman, who has just published a collection of Jewish humorous anecdotes, says that in order to be Jewish a story must depict characteristic Jewish life, character and habit of thought. The average Hebrew yarn so popular some time ago on the American vaudeville stage was simply a story about the Jewish people. The stories are not Jewish. For instance, one of these stories related that one Jew met another on the street and said: "Hello, Abie, I hear you had a fire last Tuesday." The answer was: "No, it is next Tuesday."

This may be funny, but it is not Jewish. It might as well have been an Irishman or an Italian who said that.

A characteristic Jewish story is given by Mr Richman.

An Israelite called on the rabbi of a small community and told him that his house had been burned down in a general conflagration. He wanted money to rehabilitate himself.

"Have you a document from your rabbi that you are a fire victim?" said the rabbi.

"I had one," said the Jew, "but that too was burned."

Another typical Jewish story is told by the author of this collection.

A circus had come to a small Russian town and one of the bears had escaped. The next day one Jew met another on the street and said to him: "I am going to take the next train out of town."

"Why?" asked the other.

"A bear has escaped from the circus and the police have issued an order to shoot him on sight."

"What of it? You are not a bear, are you?"

"Well," said the cautious man, "the first thing you know they will shoot a Jew and make him prove he was not a bear."

The average Jew has a nimble mind and quickly sees a joke.

This collection by Mr. Richman is a very entertaining one and contains many instances of genuine Jewish humor. It will be appreciated by Jew and Gentile alike.

A London newspaper complains that the interest taken by Americans in the rest of the world is very slight. It should have read "from."

With Christmas near there are two choices in the matter—to shop or fight.

Today's definition: monolog—a conversation between a man and his wife.

Famous last lines: "Why, I thought I just put that pie on the window sill."

MID-SUMMER HEAT ON ADRIATIC COAST

Proprietors of Bath Houses Re-open Places of Business.

RAGUSA, Dalamatia, Dec. 18.—(United Press).—Mid-summer heat suddenly returned to the Dalamation coast yesterday and proprietors of bath houses on the Adriatic re-opened their places of business to do a big business. Numerous bathers have arrived from inland towns which were experiencing regular winter weather, but the snow on mountain tops close to the coast was melting.

It is reported that many women are giving up smoking. It looks so effeminate.

THAT TIRED FEELING IN THE MORNING

If you are one of those who awaken in the morning more exhausted than when you retire, I am sure that you will be glad to read this explanation of the cause and cure of morning debility.

Sleep should be refreshing and when you awaken in the morning, you should be eager for the day's work. During the hours of sleep, the body has a chance to adjust its metabolism and throw out much of the toxic waste accumulated during the day. New cells are built and old ones discarded.

If you feel "cranky" or languid in the morning after eight hours sleep, it may be because you have not sufficiently recovered from your bad habits of the day before and that more than eight hours of sleep are needed for your body to adjust itself.

It is very likely that you ate too much good the day before. If more food is taken than the body can use, this excess will always act as a poison.

Perhaps you did not take enough exercise to keep your muscles in good condition and thus assist metabolism.

Did your bowels move once or twice during the day? If not, you should have taken an enema before retiring, so that the poisons from your intestines would not be re-absorbed during the night.

Did you work hard enough during the day to induce normal muscular fatigue? If not, you should have taken additional physical exercise to produce deep breathing, so that your blood would have been properly oxygenated.

If you will search into your bad habits of the day before, I am sure will be able to find many physical reasons as to why you feel "Good for nothing" the next morning.

Phychical causes must also be considered in all of these cases where one awakens in an enervated condition in the morning. An unsuccessful day in business will often bring on a conscious or unconscious depression, which creates definite poisons in the system. After a bad day in the office, you are not eager to get up early and start on another' day's grind.

Many times you are not conscious of the fact that the reason that you do not wish to get up in the morning is because you are afraid to face the problems of the day. You have probably noticed that even though you expect to lie in bed late on Sunday mornings, you usually get up earlier than any other morning in the week. This is because you have a day of pleasure ahead of you and are unwilling to lose any part of a pleasurable day.

If your child who is going to school does not like to get up in the morning, it will be well for you to investigate his school work and see that he is not overworked with his studies. A normal, healthy child should be eager to go to school; but there is a limit to the amount of work which their immature brains can stand.

If you have that tired feeling in the morning, be sure to study out the phschical and physical causes which produce it. Do not be satisfied until you awaken each morning eager for either work, play or study.

FADS OF THE FAMOUS

WU PEI-FU

Wu Pei-fu, perhaps the greatest military man in all China in spite of misfortunes following the Feng Yu-hsiang of 1924, is a man of genuine culture. He is remarkably skilful in writing the graceful Chinese characters, and this is in itself one of the most approved of all ancient Chinese hobbies. He reads the ancient classics and patterns upon them in framing military campaigns and other plans. Likewise he is a keen student of philosophy and something of a philosopher in his own right.

They tell of Wu that one morning when he was host to several foreign friends the conversation turned to mushrooms and it was found that mushrooms culture was one of Wu's several hobbies. He discoursed learnedly upon various species and finally remarked that in every bed of fine mushrooms, one or two poisonous toadstools turns up.

"Just so in life," he continued, deftly shifting to a philosophical tack. "In Chinese public life today there are many fine men, like the cultured mushrooms, and sometimes we find somebody like....." and he mentioned the name of a prominent but detested rival which fitted so patly that his guests could not keep straight faces.

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

RESIGNATION OF MARX CABINET RESULT MOTION

Following Passage of Non-Confidence Vote by the Reichstag.

LARGE MAJORITY.

Unnatural Alliance Between Two Largest Factions Causes Downfall.

BERLIN, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Chancellor Marx and his bourgeois coalition cabinet resigned yesterday, following the passage of a motion of non-confidence by the Reichstag. The vote was 249 to 171.

An unnatural alliance between the Left Socialist and Right Nationalist factions, either of which group outnumbers any government party, caused the Cabinet's downfall. Socialists, Nationalists, Communists, and Fascisti voted together in support of the non-confidence motion introduced Wednesday by Phillipp Scheidemann, leader of the Social Democrats.

Even President Hindenburg's insistent appeals failed to move the Nationalists to prevent the defeat of the Government. According to their party leader, Count Von Westarp, the Nationalists would have been ready to aid the Government had they received assurance that they would be invited to representation in the Government, but while the People's party was ready to give such assurance, the Centrists, holding the balance of power, were noncommittal. Accordingly, the defeat of the Government was assured when the moton of non-confidence was pushed by the Socialists, who were tired of promises of reform in the administration of the Reichswehr, and besides were not particularly anxious to participate in the Government in the face of increasing unemployment and prospects of difficult labor legislation.

Announcement of the defeat of the Cabinet brought no show of emotion except some cries from the Communists demanding dissolution of the Reichstag.

The Cabinet met immediately after its defeat and reached the formal decision to resign, whereupon Chancellor Marx visited President Von Hindenburg, who thanked the Cabinet for its services since its formation last May, and requested the Ministers to continue in office until a new Government could be formed.

Formation of a new Government before New Year's is thought unlikely, because soon after the passage of the non-confidence motion the Reichstag adourned until January 19 and many members left Berlin last night.

Under customary procedure the first request to form a Cabinet would be addressed to the Socialists, which party was responsible for the Government's defeat. Nationalist leaders, however, predict that President Von Hindenburg may follow the precedent established by President Ebert in ignoring this custom and take steps for the formation of a Government of the Right. It is said that the President was deeply hurt by the Socialist charges of irregularity in the administration of the Reichswehr, and may attempt to produce a coalition of the parties of the Right and Middle.

The future of Dr. Wilhelm Marx as Chancellor has been placed in doubt by the emphatic declaration of Count Von Westarp that under no conditions will the Nationalists accept Dr. Marx as Chancellor. Ex-Chancellor Luther is the man mentioned most frequently by the Right group as a possible successor to Marx. Should a coalition, including the Left, prove the only possibility, ex-Chancellor Wirth, who is a Centrist, might be called to head it.

It was pointed out as significant that Foreign Minister Stresemann was not seriously attacked at any time during two days of bitter debate. This is believed to indicate that the fall of the Government will not affect Germany's foreign policy. Even a Nationalist spokesman remarked last night, "At least Germany did not lose ground at the last Geneva meeting."

SHOCKS FELT.

Minor Tremors Followed By Fairly Violent Quakes in Southern Italy.

ROME, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press)—Seismographs throughout Southern Italy recorded a series of minor earth tremors Wednesday and Thursday culminating in two fairly violent quakes yesterday. The distutbances apparently centered some distance away in the Mediterranean or in the Balkans as no damage has been reported in Italy.

CONDEMNED MAN CLAIMED INSANE

Not Expected, However, That Execution of Joe Barty Will Be Held Up.

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 18.—Claiming that he is insane, Reg. Forneret, counsel for Joe Barty, who is to be hanged Thursday morning, made application for a mental examination yesterday. Toronto officials were interviewed, and they communicated with local authorities it was learned. The result of the inquiry here was that a report left last night for Toronto in which it stated that Barty is sane. The matter was referred to Mr. James Roberts, jail physician, and Governor Lalonde of the jail. It is not likely, it was stated, that there will be any interference with the carrying out of the sentence of death. Arrangements for the execution which is to take place at 7.30 o'clock, have been completed. Jail officials, a jury of 12, a squad of police officers and representatives of the press will be in attendance.

TITLED AVIATOR AWARDED MEDAL

Representatives of 18 Nations Confer at International Aeronautic Federation.

GERMANS ATTEND.

PARIS, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press)—Sir Alan Cobham, British aviator, who is now visiting in the United States, yesterday was awarded the annual gold medal conferred by the International Aeronautic Federation.

Representatives of 18 nations participating in the meeting voted his recent flight from London to Australia and return the greatest flying feat of 1926.

Second prize was awarded to the Spanish engineer Ricardo de La Cierva, who developed the helicopter. Third prize went to Captain Georges Pelletier Doisy for his Mediterranean flight.

Germans participated in yesterday's meeting for the first time.

PLAY BASED ON HALL-MILLS CASE

Daughter of Murdered Woman Will Take Leading Role.

METUCHEN, N.J., Dec. 18.—(United News).—Charlotte Mills, whose mother was slain in De Russey's Lane four years ago with the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall of New Brunswick, is going on the stage in a new play based on the famous Hall-Mills case.

Charlotte has joined the stock company of the Rialto Theatre and will make her first appearance in two weeks in a play called "Who's Guilty."

The question suggested by the title was never answered with regard to the murder of Charlotte's mother and the Rev. Hall and it is said that the author of the play leaves the case as much a mystery as it is today.

On the stage Miss Mills will play the role she has played in real life—daughter of the slain choir singer.

ECHO INSTITUTE AT MILLBROOK

Under Auspices of Young Peoples' Societies of Cobourg Presbytery.

MILBROOK, Dec. 17. — An inspirational "Echo" Institute," under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Societies of the Cobourg Presbytery, was held in the United church on Wednesday afternoon and evening, the Conference President, Rev. Chas. D. Daniels, of Campbelford, presiding at both sessions.

The "Echo Institutes" grew out of the fact that the Bay of Quinte Conference covers a large territory, and the leaders in young peoples' work felt that more practical results would accrue, following the general convention held at Napanee in October, if smaller groups of workers could be assembled in the different local areas for discussion of problems, and with helpful addresses by a field secretary from the Toronto office, and a returned missionary. The territory of North Durham was included in the gathering held here, and there was a fair representation of the young people present.

Rev. F. H. Howard, pastor of the convention church, conveyed the greetings of the local society to the assembled workers, and had charge of the opening service of worship, developing the thought that the young people must have vital contact with God, through Jesus Christ, and the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, if they are to be led and equipped for their task.

Rev. J. E. Griffith, of Blackstock, religious education secretary for this district, led in the opening prayer, and Rev. C. D. Daniel, after expressing appreciation of the kindly welcome extended, gave the information that from 500 to 750 young people will have been reached through the series of five institutes covering Durham and Northumberland held this week, closing with the one's convening at Bethesda (Baltimore circuit) on Thursday, and at Castleton on Friday.

Rev. Manson Doyle, of Toronto, field secretary of Young People's Societies, had the first address, explaining that the idea of a big crowd, fine singing and addresses by outstanding speakers, which used to prevail as absolutely requisite to a successful convention, is now obsolete. The group system has proved more inspiring and helpful from a practical standpoint, and finance have not suffered by the change.

He believed, however, that a 'high day,' with a big gathering, and a speaker of international repute, has its place, and that such a convention is about now due. "The Anglicans and the Baptists have an international convention annually which is wonderfully well attended and of real spiritual power and value."

Emphasizing the fact that the outstanding concern of the young people of the United church must be "first the spiritual well being of myself—for you cannot win others until you feel intensely yourself—and then a supreme passion to help those whom you can reach into allegiance to, and service for, our Lord."

"An encouraging feature I find as I go about the country, is the willingness of our young people to sit down and plan for the work of the Christian fellowship department." Ways and means of conducting the Young Peoples' Society in the local church were explained by means of a chart, and considerable discussion arose when the plan used in the Millbrook organization was outlined—that is having four groups in charge, the Christian Fellowship committee being from the Senior League members, the missionary meeting being taken by the Missions Circle, the citizenship by the Tuxis Square, and the literary and recreational by the C.G.I.T. group.

This plan was commended by Dr. Doyle, providing the 'teen age groups still carried on their own separate meetings and followed their own special programme, under the intimate guidance of an older and sympathetic leader.

"A lot of young people in your community are more easily won for Christian living than you think. Must we give John up because he has got out of the path, or Mary, because she has grown cynical? No; we will not. Has anyone tried to win them? Have you tried? Sometimes they deliberately open the question and we sidestep the chance they have offered of saying: 'Why aren't you with us in this matter of religion?' Some of them think they are having a good time now, and it will taste like ashes in their mouths later. If the right living crowd had only asked that young man, or young woman, when they first came to the community, to join with them, time and money would have been spent differently this past summer, or past year."

"Oh, the value of a good steadfast, wholesome group that will gather in the young people, helping each other and saving lives for the Kingdom."

In conclusion Mr. Doyle quoted a noted evangelist's statement of three things which years of personal experience had taught him are necessary after conversion, if there is to be a reasonable assurance of continuance in the Way of Life; church membership and regular attendance at church services; a steady job as a life work, and a life partnership with a fellow Christian.

Three little girls, Bryer Edmunds, Mary Burnham and Myrtle Nattrass, sang very sweetly "Working Together,' and the delegates broke up into group conferences for discussion of local problems, programmes and administration.

The round table conference had to be omitted owing to lack of time, and after the formal closing adjournment was made to the basement where the Boneka Bible Class, Mrs. (Rev.) Howard, teacher, served a hot supper, which was thoroughly appreciated.

A sing-song, under Mr. Daniel's leadership preceded the evening session for which the local society had charge of the opening worship period, with a solo "Over the Hills," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles, as a fitting close.

Organization for the North Durham district was effected as follows, the names listed to be sub-convenors under the Conference executive: — Christian Fellowship, Miss Susie Van Camp, of Burketon; Missionary Miss Kathleen Terrill, of Pontypool; Christian Citizenship Fred Barnard Bailieboro; Literary and Recreational, Miss Margaret Howard, Millbrook; Junior and Intermediate, Miss Hazel Jackson, Bethany.

On motion, this county group, with a representative from the Presbytery included, was made responsible for framing the programme for the Institute to be held one year hence, and Rev. H. V. Foley of Frazerville was appointed acting secretary pro tem.

A quartette, "What a Friend we have in Jesus," by Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Miss May Byam and Messrs. H. W. Johnston and M. McDowell was much enjoyed; and Rev. Harold F. Woodsworth, B.A., missionary on furlough from Kobe, Japan, delivered the concluding address. Mr. Woodsworth has spent 18 years in Japan, though he went there first in a business rather than a missionary relationship. He is a son of the late Rev. Dr. Woodsworth, for several years superintendent of missions in the Canadian west in the former Methodist church, and is a brother of J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., Labor member for Winnipeg South.

"The Task of Canadian Youth," was Mr. Woodsworth's subject, and in opening he quoted a Japanese girl's definition of a spoon—"when you spoon, you make a stir," the latter part being the speaker's objective.

"Those who picture Japan as beautiful, glowing with life, color and delight, and those who picture a sinister Japan, with scheming politicians, dishonest merchants, and greedy for territory, are neither absolutely correct, yet with some truth in each.

"Too often our attitude is wrong, and those of us who represent the newer thought in missions feel that there must be a radical change in this mental attitude towards the whole question of Oriental missions. Avoid looking with an eye of scorn upon Eastern peoples, from the lofty thought-altitude of the superiority of the Anglo-Saxon race, but seeing with the other mans eyes, as those of us have to do who live over there, revising our whole idea of racial contact."

"I have seen a British sailor strike a Chinese coolie with a bamboo rod over the head at Shanghai—a Chinese in a Chinese port; I have seen an American sailor kick a Japanese laborer off a boat at Tokio—a Japanese in a Japanese port. A Christian (British, if you like) firm in Kobe is making elephant whips for use on the black laborers in the South African mines—this I could hardly credit, yet it is true. A Japanese boy, coming to America, wrote home, 'As yet I have been unable to find any Christians in this country.' We will have to get a better understanding of the East in the interests of world peace, world brotherhood, and the far-flung interests of the Kingdom of God."

Speaking of the outside influences which are affecting Japan, Mr. Woodsworth said, "If you want to know what is likely to happen in world history, study the relations of the Russian government and Japan. The Japanese government is intensely interested in keeping Soviet thought out, and yet Moscow and Tokio are now connected by radio."

"Recently a Russian delegation came into the country, and the government immediately put a detachment of police to follow them. As soon as they opened a hotel door Japanese policemen were on the job. During their entire trip through the empire they did not once come into touch with Japanese workmen. That is an example of native courtesy toward unwelcome visitors, and the frustration of Soviet plans."

"Study the relationship of Korea and Japan, and the relationship of Japan to America. One of the worst things done in recent years was the passing of the Japanese Exclusion Bill—it was neither Christian nor statesman-like, and in future may lead to international strife and war, though Japan could not possibly fight the United States at the present time."

Military training is in the schools of Japan largely because it is on the list of schools in America; the question of prohibition in the native provinces is being agitated—"we may get it before you do in Canada"; the Japanese government has actually wiped out smoking among the young boys—"I have never seen more than three or four boys of High School age smoking all the time I have been in Japan. I see them by the score in Toronto streets."

Activities among the workers who are bent on wiping out organized vice in Japanese cities, and the adoption of newspaper evangelism, with the necessity of the church here linking up with the leading Japanese Christians, were points emphasized by the speaker. "The Japanese Imperial Diet has recently passed a bill forbidding western dancing in the whole empire, except in the homes of European residents, to protect the morals of its young people. Both parties voted for the bill—isn't this a reflection on our social customs?"

"The same moving pictures seen in Toronto and other Canadian cities will be shown in Tokio, Kobe and other places a few weeks later. The comic supplements are a feature of Japanese newspapers—Jiggs and Maggie are as well-known there as here; when a wife abuses her husband too much, they say she 'Maggies' him, and restaurants have been opened up in the cities where corn beef and cabbage is sold. Whether we like it or not, western civilization is getting over Japan. Some of us are trying to get something else over—the great doctrines of the faith of our fathers."

Mr. Woodsworth is a teacher in the school at Kobe, which has 1,800 students, and has yearly to turn away hundreds because of lack of accommodation. The graduates go into many lines of constructive work—some are on the staff of two newspapers, each of which has a circulation of over 1,000,000 subscribers. "It is a strategic thing to put men with a Christian point of view on the newspaper staff of Japan."

"We dare not rest until we have built the New Jerusalem in Japan, China, India, and all the island of the sea."

The gathering closed with the Mizpeh benediction.

A Year's Record as a Guide to Buyers

The facts regarding Dodge Brothers sales during 1926 are worth recording. They represent the ever-increasing recognition of fundamental worth and extra value.

As the year draws to a close, the sales approximate 340,000 cars—an increase of more than 30% over 1925.

This again tells the story of public appreciation of dependability, but tells it more impressively than ever before. It reflects the value and importance of the numerous improvements that create an even greater degree of smoothness, silence and ease. It emphasizes the greater comfort and beauty.

The record for 1926, both in engineering progress and sales growth, is the best in Dodge Brothers history. In sum and substance it is nothing less than a helpful guide to every buyer who seeks the largest possible value for each dollar expended.

The King's Daughters held a very pleasant tea and sale of cooking yesterday afternoon at the residence of the president, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Reid street. The guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. A. H. Stratton assisting at the door. Mrs. A. L Killaly and Miss Margaret English had charge of the tea room, where tea was poured by Mrs B. B. Gillespie, assisted by Mrs. George Macdonald, Mrs. G. Langley and Mrs. L. W. Scott. The ladies were ushered into the tea room by Mrs. J. C. Smith. The sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. J. W. Fraser, Mrs. W. J. Kent and Miss E. Scott. The decorations of the tea table were exceptionally attractive, with green and red paper used to emphasize the Christmas note. Cut outs of green paper over red simulated the favorite poinsettia flower, with silver tinsel snow as a garland for a large bowl of amber glass, holding oranges, grapes and apples, topped by a spray of holly. Red lighted candles were in amber holders.

BRILLIANTS POPULAR

By HEDDA HOYT

(United Press Fashion Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(United Press).—It begins to look like a brilliant season for brilliants. Hats, bags, slippers, and gowns are being trimmed with bands of glittering little brilliants.

Evening slippers of brocade or satin are trimmed with tiny rhinestones which act as borders on ankle straps. These white or colored stones are sold by the yard in the art sections of department stores and since they are sewed upon cords they are easily attached to slippers.

The smallest stones are most desirable. White rhinestones are used on white or silver slippers, orchid stones on blue slippers, red stones on black, amber on gold or yellow brocade, etc.

Rhinestones may also be sewed on feather fans in similar manner. They are attached to the center of the feather. Many imported ostrich fans have such outlines.

Numerous are the velvet gowns with necks bordered with rhinestones. Often rhinestone banding ends in appliqued bow at the front of the decollete. Rhinestone buckles and ornaments are placed at the top of the skirt drapery.

Evening hats of black velvet or black net are often trimmed in narrow band or brilliants. Some black felt tam shapes for afternoon wear have brilliants studded across the front bandeau. These are put on in squares or in geometrical designs.

Envelope purses for evening purposes are often entirely covered with brilliants in white or colors. These usually harmonize with the frock, keeping to such shades as white, green, pink or amber.

Garters are often trimmed with rhinestone ornaments or have a narrow strip of brilliants extending about the edges.

Evening corsages of large-petaled chiffon flowers have rhinestones adornign the outer petals. These, of course, match exactly the color of the frock.

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS

A PLACE TO EAT

A correspondent has offered to give me 100 if I can give him a new word for 'cafe' or "restaurant." He says grill, kitchen, chop-house, tea-room, tavern, won't do either.

He says his place is distinctly "nice." It has charming tables and stylish decorations, and he serves lunches, light dinners, breakfasts, teas, snacks. It looks more like an attractive tea-room, but it is so much more than that.

All the same he wants a word that everyone will instantly understand. No use inventing something new and queer, unless it promptly conveys that this is a first-class place to eat a well served meal.

He says someone suggested "refectory"—but pray how many people know what "refectory" means. Someone else suggested Tuck Shop, but his place is more dignified than that.

Another idea was "Tiffin House"—but although "tiffin" is a good word in the tropical colonies, it is not generally understood in America.

But he is sick and tired of the word "cafe" or "restaurant." Of course both cafe and restaurant were strange French words, when they were first introduced. And most of the famous eating houses soon became known by some name, probably the proprietor's, with which the public had to be taught to become familiar.

But this correspondent of ours does not want to waste any time training the public to know who he is and what he is selling. Altogether, he is asking for something rather difficult—a word that is well understood and yet is not in general use.

Since this inquiry, I find that most of the cafe owners went through the same anguish. They are all craving a new word that means a nice place to eat in. And they mostly end up with "cafe," "restaurant," or "grill," with some fancy name tacked on before it. In time, with luck, their place becomes known by the fancy name alone.

But the cafe men are not the only ones who suffer these word tribulations. Motion picture producers will pay a good price for clever titles for their films. Good titles play an important part in selling screen pictures, books, automobiles and all sorts of commodities. Automobile firms are always offering handsome prizes to people who can think up clever names for new makes of cars, and clever phrases to describe them.

Conway Tearle once offered a handsome prize for anyone who would invent a new word for "Shiek," "Cave-man," or that kind of a dominating screen lover. I don't think anyone ever won the prize.

A large real-estate firm recently offered $1,000 for a good name for a new beach resort. None of us think the one they bought was particularly interesting.

A famous humorous weekly is always offering big cash prizes for clever titles of drawings.

There is a large growing market for words—clever, descriptive, potent words that convey the desired meaning. Talk may be cheap but anyone with a gift for the right word can make a handsome steady income these days. The women's clothing business pays enormous salaries to people who think up new names for colors, new names for styles, new words to describe little conceits. People starting new magazines and newspaper have a horrid time finding a good name. Words, words, words—they can become as tiresome, but they can also become a precious asset.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

The crystal, today's talismanic stone, is unusually lucky, and the ancients claimed that its wearer, by gazing into its depths, could forsee future events. Crystal gazing has become a popular practice, and in some instances has proved of benefit. It is believed, however, that those who wear a bit of crystal, whether or not they see anything in its depths, will have good judgment in directing the affairs of the coming year.

According to the ancients, the topaz, today's natal stone, must be set in gold if its full powers are to be enjoyed. Its greatest virtue was thought by them to be its ability to free its wearer from the influence of a stronger personality.

Violet is today's lucky color. It exerts a soothing influence on its wearer, and should be worn by those who are nervous or emotional.

Today's flower is the pink carnation, potent in dispelling sorrow.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1926

Neptune and the Sun in benefic aspect rule today, according to astrology. Venus and Jupiter are adverse.

This is a planetary government most favorable to the clergy and churches are subject to the best possible influences, making for new interest on the part of the public.

Under this sway men and women who exercise authority are more kindly disposed than usually is the case, the seers aver, and for that reason it is a lucky day to seek positions or promotions.

Clearer vision regarding domestic and public questions should be apparent under this direction of the stars. Many quarrels and misapprehensions may be easily adjusted while this configuration prevails, astrologers declare.

This is a day when women will be most fortunate in attending their domestic affairs.

Romance is subject to menacing influences that may cause broken engagements and even divorces.

Again reactionary influences are discerned by the seers who declare that women will be less interested in holding political office than they have been at any time since they attained suffrage.

Marriages are to multiply and there is to be a new consciousness regarding duty and the sacredness of the wedding contract.

The stationary position of Uranus and Mars will unsettle the ruling powers in many states, astrologers prophesy.

Ireland, Italy, Ireland and the Balkans are to be the scenes of upheavals and disasters, it is prognosticated.

Many ambitious leaders are to arise, but they will meet with confusion and even death, if the stars are read aright.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of change in which friendly partnerships will bring good fortune.

Children born on this day probably will be too popular for their own best interests. Many musicians and happy Bohemians are born under this sign.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1926

This should be a lucky day, according to astrology, for Venus, Mars and Uranus are all in benefic aspect. Saturn is adverse.

Romance should flourish under this rule of the stars and many lovers are likely to enter into engagements or to begin courtship.

This is read as a fortunate wedding day, since they who marry should see with the mind as well as the heart.

It is a most auspicious rule for theatres and openings on this date should be successes.

Actors and actresses should benefit under this sway in unusual ways not connected with their profession.

There is an exceedingly promising sign for music and musicians. American artists come under a most encouraging sign.

This day is an auspicious one for meetings of intellectual persons. Poets and philosophers should benefit.

Saturn is in a place that indicates many reactionary influences which will affect dress and manners.

This is a rarely favorable rule for aviation, which is to be more in demand for commercial uses than is dreamed of by even its most enthusiastic admirers.

All the signs appear to presage a winter season of extraordinary trade. American commerce will benefit greatly.

All the peoples of the Earth are to be brought close together by common interests in the new year, which is to be one of the most brilliant in history.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year most fortunate in business affairs. Vexation in small domestic affairs is indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be most blessed with worldly goods and domestic happiness. Many may expect large inheritances.

The Messiah

(By Jeanette.)

The production of "The Messiah" at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last night fully met the expectations of those who have been looking forward to this event for some months past. The church was filled again, almost to capacity, nearly twelve hundred people being present for the occasion, which marked the second event in the Musical Festival of this week, designed to observe, in fitting style, the opening of the fine new organ at the church.

"The Messiah," Handel's impressive oratorio, was adequately handled by a superb chorus and a quintette of visiting musicians. The vocal and instrumental work of these visiting artists was splendid, but, leaving the question of a natural bias toward appreciation of local talent out of the question entirely, the majority of the audience appeared to be impressed mainly by the wonderful singing of the chorus. Under the direction of Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., who scored a triumph last night in the demonstration of his work as a leader, they sang their glorious music magnificently. The interpretative coloring, which is such an important item in the rendition of music of the oratorio type was particularly noticeable in the work of this beautifully-balanced chorus, in which no section was paramount, the whole blending together in one vast ensemble of wonderful tone, this being particularly noticeable, of course, in the "Hallelujah" chorus, during which the audience stood. Instant in attack and release, with crisp enunciation and fine modulations, the chorus rendered the intervals in "The Messiah" last night with superb effect.

The work of the out-of-town soloists was extremely pleasing. The applause which followed the rendition of several of the sections was long, hearty and sincere. Mr. Frank Oldfield, baritone, of Toronto, was accorded a repeated and loud ovation for his rendition of the air: "Why do the nations so furiously rage together," and there was the same meed of generous appreciation vouchsafed the other singers. They interpreted the sacred measures of the powerful and massive oratorio with ease and dignity.

Miss Nellye Gill, of Toronto, has a very pleasing high soprano, lyric in quality, with a lovely softness to its modulations in several of her quieter efforts. She sings with finished assurance and has a faultlessly pure diction, and fresh, youthful tone.

Mrs. Florence Fenton-Box of Toronto, has a rich contralto of warm, luscious timbre, with a 'cello-like undertone, and pleased her audience by her expressive rendition of the sacred measures.

Mr. Vernon Carey of Hamilton, a comparative newcomer to the city, proved to be an exceptionally interesting singer. He has a rich tenor of even tone, under perfect control, and sings with an intellectual method of production that makes his rendition of his music exceptionally attractive. His voice is brilliant and uniformly true, with warmth and tenderness of expression.

Mr. Frank Oldfield of Toronto, always a favorite in Peterborough, once again demonstrated his magnetic production of beautiful music. The resonance and volume of his flexible baritone voice, the splendid enunciation and carrying power which characterize his words, combined with his easy delivery and attractive personality, make his music delightful, and the applause which followed several of his solo renditions showed the appreciation of his hearers for his splendid voice.

Dr. W. H. Gutzeit of Toronto presided at the organ and contributed a background of massive tone to the performance. His handling of the organ was masterly and his appreciation of the nuances of shading and expression made his accompaniments a delight. He excelled in his rendition of the lovely "Pastoral Symphony" interlude. He was supported by Miss Agnes Logan at the piano, playing with her usual skilful ease and charming effectiveness the difficult music of the oratorio.

The brief organ recital by Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., which formed a prelude for the rendition of "The Messiah" was one of the attractive portions of a very fine programme, Mr. Chenhall drawing from the wonderful instrument a demonstration of its many resources, and playing the trio of numbers which comprised his contribution to the programme, with outstanding excellence. The quaint and beautiful music of Bach, master of counterpoint and exponent of the organ's resources, formed the opening rendition, played with power and emphasis; in his "Fugue in G Minor," with a contrast following in the lovely, soft measures of a "Reverie," in which the Echo Organ was heard to wonderful advantage, also the harp manual and an interval of soft chiming bells. Again these sweet-toned bells were heard in the third number, a Phantasie on the "Adeste Fidelis," appropriate to the season and the occasion.

A verse of this old Christmas hymn, the "Adeste Fidelis," was sung by the chorus and congregation, just before the commencement of the oratorio.

The personnel of the "The Messiah" chorus was as follows:

V. J. M'ELDERRY ADDRESSES CLUB

At Weekly Supper of Friday Night Club in the Y.M.C.A.

YOUR VOCATION.

V. J. McElderry was the speaker at the weekly supper of the Friday Night Club held in the Y.M.C.A. last night, and his subject was "Choosing a Vocation in Canada."

"To-day a bright young boy can be anything he desires to be, and he should not blame circumstances if such is not the case," said the speaker. "This is a land of opportunity and if a boy desires to enter a profession the first requirement is his matriculation before he is able to enter university. But having not his matriculation is not a handicap, for any boy can study in his spare time and with the books and assistance that is available he can surmount this obstacle.

"I claim the only handicap to a boy is lack of ambition and my thesis is, if you want a university education you can go out and get it. You might have to work hard and stay out of school for a year or so, but not having money or matriculation is a barrier which the boy who wants to get along has to surmount.

"Every boy has a hobby—it may be sport, and he is interested in nothing else but this. If he works at this there are plenty of channels open to him," said Mr. McElderry.

"Boys, get interested in something, and if you develop the interest in your work there is a future in that line for you. Henry Ford, when young, was interested in gasoline engines; he did not know there was an immense fortune in them; but because he was interested in it, he made it a success, and to-day he is a very wealthy man. If a boys starts out to make money, looking for nothing else in life, he may make it, but therein does not lie happiness. But if he loves his work therein lies wealth, even if it is not in the form of riches."

Every boy should find work and get to like that which he is at, and then he will make a success in life. Each boy has to find out his own hobby, and after he has, he must stick to it, and then he will be able to find a love in his work.

To-day in Canada there are too many people looking for white collar jobs and in many cases a good mechanic is spoiled, and a poor professional man made. One job is as good as another, for work is honorable. Some kinds of work are of a higher type than others but one kind is as good as another. "So boys, do not be ashamed of your work, but stick to it."

In Ontario, many farmers are leaving the land simply because they are not quite big enough for their jobs, and they do not appreciate this honest and most independent labor. He wants to get to the city, for he has not developed in him a love for his farming and hence he looks upon it as drudgery.

The object and real success in life does not depend upon the amount of money there is in it, but it depends upon the amount of happiness to be got out of the labor which he is at.

In conclusion the speaker defined a gentleman as one who will not willingly, give pain to another, and he urged the boys to choose the thing they liked and to stick to it, so they will be gentlemen and find a real pleasure in living.

Arnold Spence rendered several violin selections, and the meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker of the evening.

SCOUT NEWS

4TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

"Well, George, it was a Wow."

"What was?"

"The meeting of the Fourth Peterborough Troop?"

"Did you have a good time?"

"Did we! Why we had a good time and learned a lot."

The meeting opened with the flag and inspection. This was followed by a game, night stalking, the Crows won this.

The next game, a relay race, both walking and running, was won by the Owls. Patrol instruction followed for the next twenty minutes. Instruction was given by the patrol leaders on the semaphore. A verbal message which was mixed up was won by the Foxes, with one mistake; the Owls, three, and the Crows, five. This was considered a fine showing as the message was a difficult one.

The council fire was opened by The Maple Leaf, followed by a small game. The competition points were added up and the winner was acknowledged, as last night was the last night of the competition. The Owls won by a margin of three points. Preparations were made for the programme and feed next week. The meeting broke up with the King and the flag.

A court of honor was held, and reports were made. The court closed at 10.10 p.m. Competition points: Owls, 177; Crows, 174; Foxes, 163.

Wife, 300 Lbs., Charges Husband, 130, With Cruelty

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 18. — (United Press).—Mrs. Margaret Frank, 300-pound wife of G. O. Frank, who tips the scales at 130 pounds, sued Frank for divorce, charging cruelty.

Frank exhibited two broken ribs at the divorce hearing, the result of handling by his wife.

Judge Fred Rush surveyed the couple.

"Cruelty," he said, looking at Mrs. Frank, "divorce denied."

SEE LEWIS STONE IN FIERY ROLE IN NEW FAIRFAX FILM

Screen Hero Brings New E. M. Hull Novel to the Screen.

Lewis Stone's army of admirers will have the opportunity of witnessing the most striking role of his career if the promise of his producers is realized in "Old Loves and New," Marion Fairfax's picturization of the E. M. Hull best seller, "The Desert Healer," which comes to the Capitol on Monday.

The quiet reserve and discriminatingly applied dramatic talents of Lewis Stone have won him great favor with the film public. In "Old Loves and New" he is required to throw aside the cloak of reserve and step forward in a fiery, gripping role. It is a new Lewis Stone that is promised.

Mrs. Hull became one of the most successful novelists with the publication of "The Sheik." Her popularity was even further increased with the publication of "The Desert Healer," for in the two years since it became a best seller it has gained an estimated book and serial circulation of more than 3,000,000 readers.

A superb cast appears, with Stone in the screen version. Included are Barbara Bedford who has the feminine lead; Walter Pidgeon, Tully Marshall, Katherine McDonald, Arthur Rankin, Ann Rork and Albert Conti.

The locale of the story is Algeria, in the Near East, where Stone goes after the wreck of his home in England and becomes a leader and healer of the Arab tribesmen. War and domestic tragedy have destroyed happiness for him in England and he goes away to bury the past, only to bring the characters of his tragedy together again for a final solution of the problem.

Maurice Tourneur directed "Old Loves and New," assisted by Ben Silvey. Henry Cronjager, whose photography in "Clothes Make the Pirate" won the acknowledgment of critics for its pictorial splendor, is responsible for the camera work. Sam F. Rork presents the picture, which represents Marion Fairfax's first picture produced by herself.

Mrs. Hull is the author of a string of best sellers. She is said to be one of the most popular writers in America. Before writing her first novel, which brought fame to Valentino, Mrs. Hull was a writer on a New York newspaper.

AT THE REGENT

WRITING OF "HEADLINES" IS NOW DISTINCT PROFESSION.

Nation of Headline Readers Demand Colorful Heads With Action Punch.

The new Encore drama titled "Headlines," which is coming to the Regent Theatre, is a story with newspaper life as a background. The title brings to mind the fact that headline writing for the metropolitan press in this country is now a distinct profession. The art of headline writing has probably been developed further in this country than anywhere else in the world.

Each headline is written according to fixed principles. There must be a certain number of letters in each line in order that the head balance; there is usually a verb included, so that the action of the story will get over. It is seldom that a line in a head ends with a preposition.

In many of the countries of Europe the writing of the headline is considered of minor importance; in fact in some newspaper offices the story alone is forwarded to the composing room and the typesetter sets his own style of headline, and one that usually has little balance or artistic make-up.

The schools of journalism in this country now give courses in the writing of heads. Headline writers on the big papers must be able to take a story and quickly visualize the headlines and rush them away to the composing rooms. They must be colorful and, because of the danger of libel suits, must give the facts pretty much as written in the story.

"Headlines" went for many of its scenes into the offices of the New York World. It is said that the story has caught the spirit of this great profession more closely than has any other newspaper drama brought to the screen. In the cast are such sterling players as Alice Joyce, Malcolm McGregor and Virginia Lee Corbin. The action deals with a woman "sob" writer whose fast-stepping daughter flits from one escapade to another until she finally involves the mother in a society divorce scandal.

"Headlines" was directed by E. H. Griffith who was in the newspaper business at one time in Chicago. The story and subtitles were also written by men who have had practical newspaper experience.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"I hear you have quite a nice, large family, Mr. Cluny," Mrs. Lane remarked tactlessly, in an endeavor to bridge the painful gap left by Mr. Lane's unceremonious withdrawal from the interview.

The delicate, waxen cheeks of the aristocratic old man flushed faintly, but his voice was as urbane as ever as he answered. "My—ah—first marriage was blessed with three children, two of whom survive. My son, Alexander, is a corporation lawyer of considerable note, and his son, my namesake, yount Ralph, is an assistant district attorney. My son has a daughter, Eileen, a sophomore in Byrn Mawr."

"Now, ain't that nice?" Mrs. Lane smiled and nodded and patted the fichu on her bosom. "And your daughter, Mrs. Seymour Allbright, is one of the society leaders of Marlboro, ain't she?"

Cherry sprang from her seat beside Faith on the piano bench, and darted across the room, to nestle close against her mother's shoulder. She knew she made a lovely picture—so tiny and young in her demure white taffeta dress—but the words whispered were not the charming, filial expressons her curved, ripe young mouth seemed to be saying. "Muggy, darling, please, for heaven's sake, don't say 'ain't' again. He'll think we're as common as pig tracks."

"It ain't—isn't—nice to whisper in public, Cherry," her mother buried the hurt to her pride in an amused smile at Mr. Cluny. "She's nothing but a baby, Mr. Cluny. I hope I'm not partial to any of my children—all good, obedient children, if I do say so as shouldn't—but Cherry—so little and sweet and popular—why Mr. Cluny, she's that popular you wouldn't believe it! You—you'll be good to her, to my little baby girl, won't you, Mr. Cluny?"

"Oh, Muggy, you're embarrassing the poor darling to death!" Cherry laughed and patted her mother's cheek fondly. "Of course he has to say he'll be good to me. If he isn't, I'll pull a Maggie stunt on him!"And she made them all laugh by seizing a bud vase from the library table and brandishing it before Mr. Cluny's thin, pointed nose as if it were a rolling pin.

"I sympathize fully with your concern for your daughter's happiness," Mr. Cluny intoned pompously, when his nose was no longer threatened, and Cherry had again perched herself on the arm of his chair, Mr. Lane being no longer present to reprove her.

"That being that," Cherry laughed and crinkled her nose deliciously, like an impudent, naughty child. "My boy friend—" she tugged at a forelock of the carefully arranged, thick white hair with irreverent fingers, "and I want to go out and celebrate. Supper at the Marie Antoinette, Muggy! Imagine!"

The sublime impudence of her—treating the most distinguished criminal lawyer in the state as if he were a love-sick young calf of a lover! And how he lapped it up. Faith thought disdainfully, as his old legs began to move about the room with jerky, unaccustomed alacrity, as if they wanted to prove that there was life in the old boy yet! No wonder he wanted her. Faith told herself; she made him forget his years, flattered him more than any person had ever done, because she treated him as if he were an equal.

"I certainly trust you will use your influence with your husband to bring about a more graceful acceptance on his part of a situation which, I am convinced, will mean happiness to all concerned." Mr. Cluny's legs could almost caper, but his voice was still the voice of a pompous, legal-minded old man.

"Oh, Muggy'll bring him around. Don't worry," Cherry laughed, lightly, as she clung to his arm, dancing on the tips of her silver slippers. "Faith, darling, bring me my white flannel coat, won't you? And that hand-painted white silk scarf?" As if she had a dozen silk scarfs!

When Faith, hardly able to keep back the tears, had watched the tiny, lovely little figure and the tall, stiff-jointed old man walk arm in arm to the limousine and enter, assisted by a uniformed chauffeur, she turned back into the living room to help Mrs. Lane in her slow, painful journey to her bedroom.

"Well, what do you think?" Mrs. Lane quavered, the polite, simpering smile wiped from her heavy cheeks and lips, her gray eyes filled with tears.

"I think it's a crime!" Faith cried passionately. "It's breaking my heart! Don't let her do it, mother. Please! Think what it will mean to Cherry—yoked with that waxen-faced stiff-kneed old man, who simply wants to drink new life at the fountain of youth. She's so young, mother. You said so yourself—just a baby! Not quite nineteen."

"I don't want her to marry a poor man," Mrs. Lane sighed heavily. "You don't know what I've been through, Faith, married to a failure like your pa. I'd rather see my daughters in their graves than to see them go through what I've suffered. It won't be for long—he can't live many more years. Oh, I don't know what I'm saying. He's a nice, friendly, polite man—did you ever see such manners?—and he's rich, Faith. She'll have everything in the world she wants." But Mrs. Lane lifted the end of her lace fichu to wipe away the fast falling tears.

"Except thrills," Faith was frankly crying, too. "And you know, mother, Cherry lives on thrills. Even if he lives only five or six years, as he certainly has every chance of doing—maybe twenty!—he'll have tarnished her youth, made her cynical and hypocritical and maybe unfaithful—"

"Faith! Do you realize what you're saying?" her mother demanded sternly "Oh, my heart! That awful pain!" she groaned, laying a puffed hand on her vast bosom, her face contorted with agony.

"Poor mother! Lean on me. We'll soon be there. Just a few more steps, dear. Shall I call dad?"

"No," Mrs. Lane gasped, letting her great weight bear down upon Faith's supporting arms. "Oh, there's the doorbell!"

But, Mr. Lane had heard it too and came from the kitchen, where he had retired to read his paper or to think heaven knows what terrible thoughts of his daughter's folly.

"Bob's here, Mother," she told the sick woman in a tender, soothing voice. "He wants to see me. I'll send Dad in to sit with you until you feel sleepy. But you mustn't scold him about tonight, or talk about it. It will just upset you, make your heart misbehave. Good-night, dear. I know you're trying to do your best for all of us—Cherry, too."

"He is old," Mrs. Lane whispered, with fright in her tired voice. "Maybe ——"

Became So Weak Could Hardly Stand

Mrs. Wm. Palmer, Tomahawk, Alta., writes:—"Last spring I had a long spell of sickness and became so weak I could hardly stand. I could not sleep at night as the least little noise would wake me up. I tried blood tonics and other nerve pills, but they did me no good, and I was getting worse.

I wrote my mother about my condition, and she sent me three boxes of

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

After the first box I was feeling much better, so I kept on until I had used the three boxes, and now I feel as well as ever I did when I was a young girl."

KILLED BY SAW.

Ernest Aldrich Terribly Mutilated When Saw Comes Apart.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—Ernest Aldrich, aged fifty, single, was instantly killed and his body terribly mutilated when a rotary power saw he was assisting in operating in the woods near Fairfield yesterday afternoon became disconnected from the machine and struck him with full force.

MARX CABINET RESIGNS TO-DAY

German Ministry Defeated By Reichstag on Non-Confidence Vote.

ON WAR CHARGES.

BERLIN, Dec. 17 (Canadian Press).—The Government of Chancellor Marx to-day resigned after being defeated in the Reichstag, 249 to 171, on a vote of non-confidence.

The Cabinet, which was automatically ousted by the adverse vote, will tender its formal resignation to President Von Hindenburg some time this evening. It is expected that he will ask Chancellor Marx and his Ministers to carry on temporarily until after the New Year.

The Reichstag after the vote adjourned until January 10.

The Bourgeois Coalition Cabinet of Chancellor Marx, which was formed last May after the overthrow of the Luther Ministry, was defeated on a non-confidence motion introduced by the Social Democrats.

The motion was introduced yesterday after Philipp Scheidemann, leader of the Social Democrats, had charged that a monarchist military clique ws secretly organizing a huge illegal army reserve and was undermining the Reichswehr as an instrument of the Republic.

The charges were denied by Chancellor Marx, but Scheidemann continued to cite names, places and figures to prove his contentions, among them being accusations that munitions and arms were being stored in Russia.

His charges produced bedlam in the Reichstag and shouts of "Traitor," "Blackguard," and "That's treason," were hurled at him. Schiedemann also charged that Minister of Defence Gessler was a "tool of the monarchist junkers."

LITHUANIAN ARMY SUPPORTS REVOLT

Aids General Smeatons in Overthrow and Arrest of President.

RIGA, Latvia, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Despatches received here today from Kovno contain information that the Lithuanian Government has been overthrown by General Smeatons, with the support of the army.

The despatches state that President Kasmir Grinius, who was elected to the chief executive post last June, and all ministers within reach were arrested.

The reported motives of the rising are widespread feeling against the policy of the Government toward Soviet Russia and its indefinite attitude on the minority question.

Further despatches stated that all was quiet at Kovno and that the coup had been carried out bloodlessly.

Placards were posted on the streets of Kovno this morning, which read:

"The Government is selling the country to the Bolsheviks and foreigners: Therefore, the Lithuanian military forces are temporarily taking over the situation."

BETHANY MEN HURT.

Thomas Jackson Kicked By Horse—F. Fallis Sustains Injuries.

BETHANY, Dec. 18.—Mr. Thomas Jackson received a kick in the side from a horse he was feeding on Sunday morning and he has been confined to the house since.

Fred Fallis cut a nasty gash in his foot while cutting wood in the bush on Monday. He has also been forced to keep to the house.

Mrs. Claude Porteous spent Sunday with her brother, Mr. A. H. Veals, at Franklin.

Mr. Richard Wright of Yelverton was a visitor to the village on Monday.

Messrs. Ernest Cavan, Charlton Patton, and Emery Smith have returned home from a business trip to Toronto.

Miss Lila Davis of Toronto visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis for a few days this week.

A new feature noticed at the United Sunday school bazaar on Saturday was the making and selling of doughnuts fresh from the kettle. Mrs. Campbell Darroch, Mrs. Worr and Miss Mabel Challice were in charge of this booth and the doughnuts were sold as rapidly as they could be made.

Dick Challice is busy drawing saw logs to the local saw mill. His logs are the first of the season to reach the mill yard.

Alban Sisson has had a furnace put in the house he has been living in since his home was burned early in the fall.

Mr. R. W Price was a visitor to Peterboro on Wednesday morning.

Word was received in the village of the death at Orono this week of a former highly respected resident of Manvers in the person of James McGuire. Mr. McGuire lived for a great number of years on the farm where Mr. Charles Staples now resides. He was an active member of the old Lifford Methodist church, and was unmarried.

Miss Sadie Veals of Toronto was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Claude Porteous, for a few days.

LIGHTS ARE POOR.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Of 445 manufacturing plants studied by the University of Illinois, less than 10 per cent were found to have excellent lighting, 32 per cent were graded as poor, with the balance from very poor to fair. Rather unexpectedly it was disclosed that on an average about five out of eight employees suffer from defective vision.

HOT CONTESTS FOR ELECTION

Reeve McCubbin Will Not Seek Re-election in Percy.

MANY IN FIELD.

WARKWORTH, Dec. 18.—John McCubbin, who has been in Percy township council for nine years out of the past eleven, reeve for the past three years and warden of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland for 1926, is retiring from municipal activities and this opens he ranks. The contest promises to be a hot one as many names are being talked of as aspirants for office. Deputy Reeve W. Herbert Nelson and William Herminston are slated for the office of Reeve; James A. Sykes, George Poole,and Peter Fairman, for Deputy Reeve; Oscar Laver, Alfred Merrills, George Partridge, and James Laney for councillors. It is expected that there will be several othr names before the ratepayers on nomination day. Reeve McCubbin in retiring stated that this year had been one of extra expense on account of the bad condition of the roads last spring, the shingling of the Town Hall, and the accident at Salt Creek, where the traction engine of George Palmateer broke through the bridge, necessitating a new steel bridge which had cost the township nearly $1,600. Economy had been practiced but it was possible there would be a small deficit.

Oscar Laver said council work did not yield a financial profit to any man, but if the people wished him as a young man he was willing to serve the township for another year.

A by-law was introduced by Deputy Reeve W H Nelson at the meeting on Wednesday, and given the required number of readings for the appointing of a public meeting for the purpose of nominating a Reeve, Deputy Reeve and Councillors for the year 1927. On motion of O. F. Laver and J. A. Sykes, the reeve and treasurer were ordered to sign cheques on the Royal Bank for the payment of the following accounts. Warkworth village:

C. E. Meiklejohn, $31.25; Ben Buchanan, $11.70; street lights for November, $72; W. Wait, $1[illegible]0; P. S. Ewing, $20; W. A. Kelly, $9.75; A. B. Armstrong, $12; G. L. Walker, $6; C. J. Boyce, $75. Total—$239.20.

Percy township—Salaries, John McCubbin, $100; W. H. Nelson, $100; James A. Sykes, $100; George Poole, $100; Oscar Laver $100; P. S. Ewing, balance $150; S. A. Wilson, balance, $25; C. J. Boyce, bal., $75; Mrs. Thos. McMillan, part, $75; Thomas Somers, $20; W. W. Henry, printing $95; Thomas Allan, truant officer, $25; George Cockburn, tile and delivery, $8.50; F. Merrill, bounty on wire fence $25; James O'Reilly, repairing bridge, $18.15; Jas. Armstrong, $10; Frank Meneilley, P.M.T.S., $200; C. J. Boyce, account, $9.67; cement for bridge, $70.55; Thomas Somers, care of hall, $22; John McMillan, $33.40; Ontario Bridge Company, $420.77; Ben Buchanan, supplies for town hall, $11.75; J. F. Freure, grant on community hall, $25; lighting town hall $3.19; Richard Honey, inspecting sheep killed by dogs, $4.80; Dr. C. C. Armstrong, $3; P. S. Ewing, stationery, $7.19; Bowen Bros., lumber, $1.80; work on road, $280.10; rebate on statute labor, $147.25; A. C. Twiddy, Calcium Chloride, $466.10; Neil McMachton, county rate $10,060.90. Total accounts passed, $13,033.32.

EXPECT MAYOR TO HOLD OFFICE

Campbellford Citizens Look For Fight in Other Civic Posts.

PROMOTION SOUGHT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 18 — Mayor G. A. Kingston is practically assured of another term in the mayoralty chair of the Town Council, if the present quietude continues, but not so with the rest of his Council. While nothing of a definite nature is assured, there is every likelihood of spirited contests for the other seats on the 1927 Council. Deputy Reeve Palliser has practically decided to contest the reeveship and there are rumors to the effect that Major J. M. Bygott will be his opponent. J. A. Anderson's name is mentioned quite frequently for reeve or deputy-reeve, but it is generally conceded that Mr. Anderson will avoid a three-cornered fight if possible.

Councillor Abernethy has designs on the deputy- reeveship, and is almost sure to be a contestant for that position. Two other members of the Council, whose statesmanship has generally been approved, are R. H. Cole and W. S. Wiggins. Both gentlemen are mentioned for the office higher up, but both are reluctant to face a triangular contest.

The supposition is, one of the latter two will be Mr. Abernethy's opponent for the position of deputy-reeve.

Reeve Davidson, who announced his retirement some time ago, is finding it difficult to recede from municipal affairs, and will probably seek a place on the council.

Councillors Stone, McDonald and Sullivan are likely to seek re-election and Joseph Hagerman and Joseph Wilkinson are mentioned as possible new material for the 1927 council.

BEEF RING MEETING.

Business For 1926 Season Wound Up—Officers Elected.

NORHAM, Dec. 18.—The annual beef ring meeting was held in the hall on Tuesday evening. Harold Skinkle was chosen president, George McCubbin vice president, Ivan Denike secretary, Fred Platt, John Diamond and Robert I. Mitchell board of appeal. The heaviest beef was number 19, supplied by Robert I. Mitchell and dressed 553 pounds. The lightest one was number three supplied by Norman Gummer and Robert Nelson and dressed 376 pounds. The average weight of beefs, 469 1-4 pounds. Total weight of beef supplied 9,385 pounds. Total value at 10c a pound, $938.50. Cost of killing which was done by William Allan, of Warkworth, $7 each, a total of $140.

Mrs. Roy Christie and little son of Buffalo, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Palmateer.

There were twenty-two present at the Mission Band on Saturday.

At the People's League on Monday evening, John Bound gave a reading on "What is Money," Douglas Knight a reading "Christmas at Sault Ste. Marie", and Mrs. Everson a paper on, "Should we spend money on Missionary Education?" Mrs. George McAllister sang a solo and Irene Tweed gave a reading on "Jesuit Mission."

Bethany congregation is to hold a Christmas entertainment on Thursday, December 23 and Norham Sunday school of the United church on Friday, December 24.

OLD-TIME DANCES ON CURRICULUM

Will Not Be Abandoned in Spite of Immorality Charge.

DETROIT, Michigan, Dec. 18. Canadian Press. — The polka, shottische, and other dances of colonial days being revived by Henry Ford will continue as part of the curriculum of the schools of Dearborn, Mich., a Detroit suburb, where the automotive industrialist resides.

A jury of parents and teachers last night, after attending an exhibition of the old time steps, which were denounced by Rev. Frederick C. Krumling, evangelical minister, and a group of churchmen as "demoralizing," characterized the statements of the latter group as "bigotries."

Dr. Edward Fisher, President of the school board, stated "We believe it is a step back to the normal in the dance and away from the crazy modern gyrations.

Rev. Krumling declined to attend the exhibition but said that dancing had a tendency to promote immorality among the pupils.

FARM GARDNERS MAKE PLEA, ETC.

would proceed "with reasonable speed."

On Nursery Stock.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Argument in support of an increased tariff on nursery stock was resumed by Senator E. D. Smith of Winona, Ont., when the Tariff Advisory Board met yesterday afternoon. He said the nurserymen asked not more than 25 per cent. duty ad valorem. They had specified certain duties on certain lines but the duties asked for would not exceed 25 per cent. all round. That was a fair average of the protection enjoyed by all the industries of Canada. The farming industries should be protected as much as any other industry, he said, especially in view of the United States tariff. Opponents of the present application, he said, seemed to overlook the principle that increased production would mean lower prices on Canadian goods.

It was idle to say that the duty of two cents a pound on grapes and one cent a pound on plums had increased the price of these fruits to the Canadian consumer, he said. Grapes often sold at a cent a pound and plums at half a cent a pound at the orchards. The effect of the tariff had simply been to keep the home market for Canadian fruit. The same thing should be done for nursery stock. Imported goods had reduced the standard, he said.

Fred Hogg, of Toronto and Uxbridge, interjected that "they sell rose trees after they are dead." Senator Smith agreed with him.

E. D. Luke, president of the Horticultural Council, also dwelt on the "black eye" which imported nursery stock was giving the business in Canada. There were about 400,000 known diseases a rose tree could suffer from, and diseased trees were imported freely.

L. F. Burrows, secretary of the Council, stated that all the nursery stock planted on Parliament Hill in Ottawa were grown in Holland, and American canned goods frequently got preference when tenders were called for canned goods for Government survey parties. He thought the Government ought to set a better example.

Letters and telegrams were read from representatives of the Provincial Governments of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Alberta, opposing the application for an increased tariff on the various products under review. Half a dozen other letters or telegrams from individuals also opposed, including a shipping association in Chicago and a firm in Olive, North Carolina.

A communication from the Winnipeg Board of Trade favored the increased tariff as also did half a dozen associations in British Columbia and four associations in Essex County of Ontario. The last named urged a double duty on onions.

The Provincial Government of Ontario declined to make a recommendation, the Department of Agriculture having decided that it had no jurisdiction. It left the argument to the Ontario growers present.

Argument in favor of the proposed tariffs was then closed. It occupied the best part of two days. R. J. Deachman of Winnipeg took up the case against the application. The farmers of the West had every sympathy with the growers in Ontario, but the West also had its pioneers and unfortunates struggling for a living. They were opposed on principle to higher tariffs because they believed it meant higher prices. The consumer was not consulted when the question of price raising was discussed by "big business."

Mr. Deachman said the nurserymen who had argued before the Board had not agreed on what the increase should be, but the most modest plan had called for a 600 per cent. increase.

Higher tariff would not prevent dumping, he said. It merely meant higher prices. Too great powers were given to the Minister of Customs in the imposition of dumping duties, he thought. It meant that the Minister could arbitrarily fix a price without regard to the producers' opinions. It was re-action towards the old autocracy of the absolute monarchy. Tariffs could be fixed by one man, he said.

Chairman Graham suggested that the power of the Minister was subject to the discretion of the whole Cabinet. Mr. Deachman thought that was not much better. Jobbers were intimidated and coerced into not importing from the United States by threats that the dumping clause would be invoked if they did, he said.

"The fact that the application is made by farmers cannot and does not change the attitude of the Canadian Council of Agriculture towards the policy of tariff protection," said A. E. Darby at the outset of his speech in opposition.

The Council of Agriculture, which he represented, he said, spoke for the Provincial associations of farmers in the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec. He spoke also for the United Grain Growers, Ltd.

The Council would not withhold its opposition to any and every modification of duties upon imports which would increase the prices to consumers. The seasonal tariff plan differed in no essential feature from the all-year tariff, said Mr. Darby. Protection to be effective must necessarily increase prices, and as producers and as consumers the farmers of Canada were bound to suffer. Their costs of production and distribution both would be increased, he said. The farmers, he went on, were not able by collective bargaining to force money wages up in the same way that organized labor could do. For this reason the burden of enhanced prices was passed on to the farmer, who had nobody to pass it on to.

The effective protection was to limit agricultural population and production alike, he said. The Council of Agriculture was convinced that the injurious effects of all protective import duties far outweighed any benefits which could accrue. Mr. Darby thought that the supporters of the present application had overlooked in their argument the fact that Canada in the last fiscal year exported fruit to the value of $8,385,000 and vegetables to the value of $12,019,590. These figures showed a very substantial increase over the previous year, and no doubt were due to the failure of certain crops in the United States.

Another fact that they had not mentioned, he said, was that Canada's exports of fruits and vegetables were greater than her imports. The only effect of an increased tariff would be to prevent competition and permit price-fixing in the Canadian market. The farmers would not get any higher prices on the stuff they sent abroad. They could not really extend their market abroad and presumably home consumption would be reduced by higher prices. Even if it were not it would be the consumers in Canada who would pay the increased tariff. Mr. Darby thought an increase in the Canadian tariff would tend to lessen Canada's chance of keeping present foreign markets, and to sharpen competition from the United States in European markets.

"The sacrifices exacted from the Canadian consumers ill have been made in vain," he added. He went on to suggest that one alternative to an increased tariff would be to raise the quality of Canadian produce and secure greater efficiency in growing, grading, packing and marketing, along which lines great strides had been made in some other countries, he said.

Seasonal and climatic advantages enjoyed by other countries should be off-set by the proximity of Canadian growers to the Canadian market, he pointed out; but transportation costs in Canada were unduly high in comparison with the rates imposed on competing imports.

The cost of production and distribution, said Mr. Darby, could be reduced if protective duties in the general tariff were also reduced. Cost of living of the growers would come down. The fruit and vegetable growers should remember that if they advocate increased protection for themselves they could not very well ask for the real relief which the people of Canada would obtain from a reduction in "the bonuses which it is the purpose of protective duties to provide."

EMILY RESIDENT DIES SUDDENLY

Thomas Atwell, of Cowan's Bridge, Found Dead in Stable.

PREVIOUSLY WELL.

OMEMEE, Dec. 18.—Thomas Atwell, of Cowan's Bridge, Emily, was found dead in the stable at his home yesterday evening. Mr. Atwell, who was 72 years of age, had been to Lindsay with Mr. Atwell during the afternoon and had been out to the stable to put away his horse. He had taken a weak spell in Lindsay and when he stayed longer than usual in the stable, his grandson went to investigate, finding him in the stall dead. He had previously enjoyed good health.

No Wonder This Man Smiles

WOULDN'T you smile, too, if you had taken out a ten thousand dollar straight life policy contracting to pay premiums every year for the duration of your life, and then to be handed a paid up policy for the ten thousand dollars at the end of the eighteenth year?

That is the happy experience of Mr. Lawrence this year. The generous profits earned by his Mutual policy have caused his straight life policy to be paid up by about eighteen and a half premiums. And from this date on he will draw profits annually.

The Mutual principle of life assurance plus sound, progressive management is responsible for the generous profits earned for the policyholders of the Mutual Life of Canada.

The Mutual Life agent will be glad to explain the type of policy mentioned above and show you his little book giving actual results, not promised results of Mutual Life Policyholders for the past 45 years. Invite him to call.

SUCCESS CAUSES MANY DISASTERS

Sir Henry Thornton Says It Leads To Over Reaching.

CHICAGO, December 18. Canadian Press. — "Success has been responsible for more disasters than has adversity, and over-reaching is its monstrous god-child," Sir Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, said in an address last night before the Illinois Manufacturers Association.

"Over-reaching carries in its train intolerance, prejudice, and injustice, and banishes recognition of the legitimate rights of others," he said.

"The pages of history abound in examples of conquerors, rulers and nations who have fallen prey to over-reaching. Great wealth and great power carry with them increasingly grave responsibilities and expose the possessor to the dangers of pride, vain glory, arrogance and ruthlessness," he told the manufacturers.

Then he turned his remarks to the railroads, joining those of Canada with those of the United States, in stating that they stand equal, if not superior, to the transportaion systems in any other part of the world, and deserving of the sympathetic consideration of those they serve.

Gooderham and Worts Features Strong Trading

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press)—Gooderham and Worts and British Columbia Fishing led the strong upturn on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, both in strength and activity. G. and W. most active stock on board, reached high of 45 and at noon close of 44 was point and half higher than yesterday. British Columbia Fishing climbed to high of 104 1-4 and eased to 102 3-4 for net gain of more than 4 points. British American Oil in decreased trading held steady and it finished with gain of quarter at 31 3-4. Kelvinator firmed 2 at 12 and Brazil improved 1 at 106.

Wheat Scores Gains Liverpool Quotations Higher

CICAGO, Dec. 18. Canadian Press. —Chiefly as a result of Liverpool quotations higher than due, wheat scored price gains to-da in the early dealings here. An increase in ocean rates from Argentina counted also as a bullish factor, arting 1-8 to 3-4c up, wheat held to initial figures. On the other hand, corn, oats and provisions turned easier, corn opening unchanged to 1-8c higher and subsequently receding all around to well below yesterday's finish.

Many Gains Recorded On Mine Market To-day

TORONTO, Dec. 18. Canadian Press. — Mining Corporation and Area were marked up sharply during this morning's extremely busy session of the Standard Mining Exchange, when a pronounced upturn was in evidence. Mining Corporation closed 20c higher at 3.45 and Area up 21 at 84. Teck ughes sold higher than $5 closing at 5.05 with a gain of 14c. Noranda finished 25c higher at 22.75, and Tough Oakes 1½ higher at 56½. Duprat firmed 2 at 30; McIntyre was a soft spot, losing 55 at 26.75 and Nipissing lost 21c off its recent gain by closing at 8.50.

Whiskers Are Sterilized— Save Soap, Say Debaters

WATERLOO, Iowa, Dec. 18.—(United Press. — The prevailing opinion that whiskers are unhygienic, because of their germ-catching tendencies, was denied in a Utophian Bible class debate here last night by one speaker, who pointed to the fact that they are sterilized three times a day by coffee.

Two other arguments in favor of whiskers were that they were dignified and are economical, because they save soap.

The whisker advocates won unanimously.

BENEFIT SHOWS FOR LANGFORD

Famous Old Boxer Nearly Blind and in Need.

ASKS ASSISTANCE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(Canadian Press.)— The State Athletic Commission has sanctioned plans for a boxing show for the benefit of Sam Langford, famous old Boston "tar baby," who is almost blind and in need of aid. A committee was appointed yesterday to arrange for the benefit, the date to be announced.

Langford recently appealed to the National Sports Alliance, which has a fund for the aid of needy boxers and their families. He asked for $500 with which to open a bootblack stand in Boston, where he feels he can build up sufficient patronage to keep him for the remainder of his life.

COCHRANE LEADS THIS COLD SPELL

Northern Town Reports 20 Below Zero—14 at Lindsay.

TORONTO, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press). — Toronto is experiencing the coldest weather so far this season, and it is decidedly cold throughout Ontario to-day. The temperature here dipped to six deg. below zero in certain sections. Conditions were helped somewhat by the fact that there was very little wind.

The temperature at Toronto, where the cold moderated little during the morning, was about 20 deg. below the average for this period of the year.

Prospects are for a cold week-end in Ontario. Cochrane, with twenty degrees below zero, was one of the coldest spots in the province, with Lindsay well in the running at 14 below. The mercury touched 12 at Sault Ste. Marie, and registered between two below and six below in Western Ontario. At Ottawa and Kingston the thermometer showed six below, with the cold wave moving eastward.

WILL TALK ON IMMIGRATION

Staff Captain Dray To Be Speaker To-morrow at S. A. Temple.

CHRISTMAS PLANS.

The week-end meetings at the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe Street, will be led by Staff Captain William Dray of the Salvation Army Immigration Department, Toronto.

Staff Captain Dray has been connected with the immigration department for the last fifteen years and is counted an authority on migration matters. In the afternoon, family gathering service at the Temple he will give an address on "Empire Building, or Migration and Settlement Work as it Affects Canada." To those interested in this phase of Canadian life this subject promises to be of special interest. It is well known that the Salvation Army has developed a model system of migration, and in its operations it deals with more migrants than all the other voluntary agencies together. The three main planks of the Army's policy are careful selection, constant protection, and wise direction. Lodges have been established in suitable centres overseas for the comfort and protection of young women who migrate under the direction of the Army, and there is another chain of lodges which has been especially set up for the benefit of boys. This great work will be graphically described by the Staff Captain.

The subject for the morning meeting will be "Conditions of Service" and the evening subject, "The Kingdom."

The Temple has been artistically decorated for the Christmastide and in preparation for the great event of the year for the Young People. Monday night there will be a visit from Santa Claus, as well as a splendid programme arranged by Mr. G. Leggott. Nine hundred bags containing candy, nuts, and apples have been prepared under the direction of Sergt.-Major R. C. Braund and his staff of workers for the Young People, and over three hundred toys and other gifts will also be distributed.

A full list of the Christmas cheer activities of the Salvation Army will be described later. In the meantime, Adjutant Frank Ham and his willing corps of workers are busily engaged in this seasonal work.

You will find many things in the Classified Ads. of the Examiner.

Public Cock Fight To-day At Leavenworth, Kansas

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas,—December 18. (United Press.)—Fighting cocks will fly at one another's throat to-night in a Leavenworth barn in the first public tournament of its kind here.

Cock-fighting enthusiasts were under the impression until yesterday that the Kansas laws forbid public cock fights.

William Kearn, a blacksmith, was the first to find out they do not, and he arranged the affair.

Birds from four cities will be in action.

LITHUANIAN CRISIS ENDS PEACEFULLY

New Cabinet Installed and President Resumes Duties.

LONDON, Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The crisis caused yesterday by the military coup d'etat directed by General Semtona has come to an end, says a message received to-day from Kovno by the Lithuanian Legation.

The message stated that President Grinius, after accepting the resignation of the Slezevicius Cabinet, resumed his normal duties in Kovno. He has appointed Prof. Valdemar as Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs and other Nationalists as members of the new Cabinet.

MISSING VESSEL REACHES SAULT

Tugs Busy Breaking Passage Into Harbor—Others Missing.

LOCKS CLOSED.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—The freighter W. E. Fitzgerald, one of the lake carriers reported missing on Lake Superior, anchored off Iroquois Point today and tugs are breaking a passage for the boat to enter the Sault. The boat was sighted off the Point early today.

The Monroe. C. Smith, which followed the Fitzgerald out of Fort William, is still missing and at the Michigan Sault nothing had yet been heard of her.

The W F. Fitch and the Thomas Britt are reported still ice locked in the white shoals in Lake Michigan, about eight miles below Mackinac Straits.

The Canadian Sault Canal closed last night after locking through the Government light tender Murray Stewart. The temperature was 12 degrees below zero here.

The steamer C. O. Jenkins, third of the downbound boats from Fort William, arrived at the Michigan Sault yesterday.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or 'flu.

Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CREOMULSION

Animals And Music - By C. J. Beauclerc

The other night we listened in on a friend's radio and, when he was turning the dials seeking a good programme, there came in, loud and strong, a soprano solo. The lady's voice, whatever it was to those at her side, was very screechy over the air, and those present expressed themselves as far from pleased. Not the most backward in expressing his disgust was the family dog, who cocked his head to listen and groaned most dismally.

Dogs are known as having, almost an ear for music. For some reason, however, an instrument very popular with human beings is most distasteful to their canine friends. This is the violin, and some authorities have said that it is torture to force a dog to listen to it.

What might be offered as an explanation of this strange antipathy was used as a basis of a crime story. The instrument picked up by the author was not a violin, however, but a whistle discarded as useless. The villain, who was connected with a circus, noticed that while he could hear no sound when he tried to blow it, the cats (lions, tigers, etc.) went almost mad when it was blown in their neighborhood. This discovery was used to cause the animals to attack their trainer, an enemy of the possessor of the whistle, and this villainy was discovered only when a man happened along with extremely sensitive ears, who discerned a note too high in the scale for the ordinary person.

Possibly some vibration is set up in the violin similar to that supposed by the author of the story, and the dog hears it and howls while his master hears the lower notes as beautiful music, and applauds.

The papers carried news items a few days ago about a horse being used in a military ride at a winter fair. This animal broke into the news because, when its master fell off, it continued to go through the complicated figures, keeping perfect time with the music. This might be ascribed to habit, due to the continuous practice while guided by its master but the music must have aided the horse to keep the perfect time necessary. Examples are found in the stories of almost every war of horses which obeyed bugle calls, recognizing the charge and other commands given by trumpet.

An old association of animals with music takes no regard of the animal's liking or disliking the strains. This is the organ and monkey combination, used by itinerants to pry the pennies and nickels from the pockets of the householder. Jock does not signify whether the wheezy barrel organ pleases him or not, attending strictly to his task of climbing to windows with his cup, importuning the householders to contribute.

Circuses often advertise as feature acts musical numbers by animals. The billboards are embellished by large posters depicting seals, or bears, or elephants blowing horns and beating drums. While they doubtless succeed in producing sound from the instruments it is a rare animal that can play a tune, unless it is trained to press a succession of keys without regard for sounds resulting.

The most noted case of a savage animal being tamed by music is, of course, the snake charming of Oriental countries. The venomous snakes seem to enjoy the strains of their owner's pipes, swaying too and fro as he plays, and permitting him to handle them with impunity.

The best connection to be found between animals (taking the word in a broad sense) and music is of course the singing of birds. This is not a case of influence upon the birds due to the music of others, but rather do the birds influence humans who hear their sweet melodies. Some birds seem to sing for the pure love of it, (the same as some people talk) while others burst into song to attract their mates or to show off. All the emotions of humans are expressed by their different sounds. Carnivorous birds gloat over their prey or croak out their triumph; small birds express fear of larger ones or taunt them from some safe place; happiness, boastfulness, contentment, all are shown in their songs and cries by the various birds.

GETTING INTO TOUCH WITH MUSIC

By Dr. W. G. Whittaker

One is often asked by amateurs how they may get into touch with good music. The instrumentalist has the best pull. Practically everything has been arranged for the piano, and performers even of moderate capacity can get to know the whole of the classics in duet form. The string or wind instrument player can generally find some orchestral society which gives him an insight into classics and the more moderately difficult modern music. For those who are not instrumentalists there is that form of music making—the choral society.

Many music-lovers hesitate to join a choral society because they feel that they have not a sufficiently good voice. Except in "crack" choirs the voice is not the all-important matter. The only voices which are objectionable are those whose quality is so fearsome that blend is unobtainable. Fortunately, however, such voices are very seldom found, and the vast majority of people can become useful members of a choral society. Enthusiasm and regularity, it goes without saying, should be there, and as important as anything, the ability to read music. That is a power which can be cultivated. The old days of universal sight-singing classes are, unfortunately, past, but it is within the powers of everyone to learn to read sufficiently well at sight to be able to join a good society. But even for those who have little or no ability to read at sight, there are societies which are only too glad to get supporters whatever their musical capabilities may be. If the business man in question has sufficient ability to conduct a choir—many good conductors are amateurs—then there is no form of social service which is greater and more needed at the present time. Where conductors can be found, choral societies spring into existence.

A quarter of a century ago, men who had no technical ability had little opportunity of becoming acquainted with good music. The whole situation is now entirely changed. The phonograph can give us quite a representative selection of music from the past, and can keep us conversant with what is happening today. One company recently advertised Beethoven's nine symphonies complete. His quartettes will soon be entirely recorded. The player-piano and reproducing piano can give us a comprehensive selection of piano music of all types. With these two aids alone, any man can make himself familiar with the past and lay up for himself treasures which he will value more and more as he exploits them. In addition to these has now come the radio, which, rightly used, may become the most potent educational force since the invention of printing. One quite agrees that some of the music heard by its medium is entirely negligible, but, on the other hand, the proportion of what is valuable is increasing rapidly, and will continue to increase.

For the earnest listener, careful selection of his music is a necessity. There is scarcely a day when something may not be picked out which is of worth. How is the unmusical man to choose? Possibly the best way is to read something about musical history, a book like Parry's "Art of Music," for example. To take books like this as a basis to hear everything one can of leading composers, judging them freely and independently, will put any reasonable person on to the right track of appreciation of music. There is a fair number of books now issued to help the amateur, and phonograph companies and player-piano firms are issuing short analyses of important works.

It is well to know something also about musical instruments in order to help one to listen more intelligently to orchestral music. However impossible of achievement it may appear at first, the habit of following from the printed score should be cultivated. Just as individuals absorb different impressions when listening to music, different readers will extract varying amounts when following a score. After a certain degree of practice, even the most unskilled person may derive benefit and interest from this habit. Miniature scores of all the quartettes and most of the orchestral works which may be heard on the phonograph and over the radio can be purchased for a shilling or two. Listening with the score helps to fix things in one's memory, and to be able to appreciate more points than one may possibly discover when the ear is unaided. Possession of scores affords one opportunities of preparing for performances, and of reviving one's impressions afterwards. The possibilities of a real musical education—that is to say, of gaining the ability to enjoy and appreciate all good music—are greater today than they have ever been, and the man who takes advantage of them will be broader in mind and outlook, saner and happier as a consequence.

MUSIC'S CHARM - By W. J. Cottrell

BY W. J. COTTRELL
(Examiner Correspondent)

Music belongs to the things eterna.. It features in the ministries of heaven from eternity to eternity and the best that earth knows, it is conceded, is fragmentary of the songs above. Though living mortal knows it not as yet in its fullest grandeur, yet is he able to pay music a tribute that Gabriel himself, with his long and wonderful experience of melody, cannot pay. Mankind has come to know music in such a way as sinless and untroubled ngels can never know it. The human ace throughout earth's existence, haa pointed to music as a wonderful soother The Greeks believed in a certain Orpheus, a master of melody, who was the inventor of the lyre. Of him it was said that he charmed wild beasts and moved even trees by his music. And so the saying became familiar, 'Music hath charms to soothe the savage beast" to which a comedian once added, "That is why you often see a brass band upon the collar of a bulldog."

As infants, we taste first of the soothing effects of music. We may forget much of the incidents which crowded into our early years, but mother's lullaby lives yet in our remembrance. The universality of the lullaby testifies to the soothing charms of music. We pass on into riper years and after the hard day's toil, there is nothing so refreshing to the toiler as the sound of sweet music, produced let it be by piano or organ, radio or gramophone, or by human voice. The writer was the [illegible] on a route march in this province the Canadian battalion to which he belonged. Just as the march was becoming a trifle irksome, some Russian comrades, about twenty in number, struck up a chant distinctively their own. The adjutant who was on horseback rode back and quelled their outburst, but no sooner had he done so than the commanding officer who was gifted with a deeper appreciation of music than his subordinate, changed the order to the comfort of the rank and file. Men who served overseas in the Great War recall the pleasure it afforded them as in their march from trenches to rest camps, someone obliged with familiar airs on the humble mouth organ. Many a prodigal has returned contrite to the family circle through the impelling sound of an old familiar hymn or song reaching his ears at the opportune moment. It is recorded that heaven was silent once for the space of about half an hour. This would indicate that the harpers laid down their harps beside the crystal sea and that the anthem of ten thousand times ten thousand voices ceased. Heaven afforded to gowithout music, and in its perfection it well might. If its occupants had been mere mortals, how oppressive that silence would have been to them.

Yea, earth can ill afford to part with its melodies for its pleasure and that of its Creator were and are created. Possessing, as music does, so wonderful a range, it can adapt itself to all occasions in life, and out of its melodies, every known taste can be provided for, and what a gift is music.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

PREFERENCE IN MUSIC

There will always be preference in music, for absolute catholicity of taste is an ideal to which very few can attain, and the question, moreover, is complicated by numberless conditions of personal feeling and personal association.

We have no more right to demand complete perfection from any composer than from any painter or poet. We must expect some bad work to be mingled with the good, some faults to qualify the merits, provided we realize that the whole man is on a greater scale than ourselves, and that his imperfections may justify us in transferring our sympathy, but not in withholding our admiration. One hearer, for example, may be more in touch with the serenity of Handel than with the sombre majesty of Brahms; another may feel his blood stirred by Schumann's "march music," and remain comparatively cold to the feminine grace and finish of Mendelssohn, but they are not thereby prevented from admitting that all alike are great artists. The difference between true and false art is the difference between food and poison.

Gas on Stomach Caused Severe Pains

Mrs. C. F. Wheeler, R.R. No. 1, Glen Ewen, Sask., writes:—"For years my eldest son suffered from severe pains and agony from imperfect digestion. He dieted and used artificial digestants, but all to no avail. At last I got him a bottle of and he had not taken the whole bottle before he was greatly relieved. The severe stomach attacks ceased, there was no more gas on the stomach, and he could eat aaything he wished."

When Margaret Plays

When Margaret plays a perfume rare
As of a rose steals through the air,
White lilies raise their stately heads,
Sweet mignonette and pansy beds
A fragrant garden make for me,
In which to walk with Memory,
When Margaret plays.

When Margaret plays, a little brook
Goes singing by a leafy nook,
And then a wider stream it grows,
And swifter still the current flows
Until it makes a water-fall
With white foam dashing over all,
When Margaret plays.

When Margaret plays, a gentle breeze
Comes whispering among the trees,
And then it is a wind-swept lyre
That fills me with a keen desire
To brave the storm and see the last
Of those wild horsemen thundering past.
When Margaret plays.

When Margaret plays, the racing clouds
In gray and black the sky enshroud,
And then a ray of silver bright,
The world is bathed in mellow light;
Oh calm that comes when storm clouds cease!
It brings my heart a wondrous peace
When Margaret plays.

Just a Song At Twilight - - By Jeanette

A Story Of Life In Four Episodes

Prelude: She was an aesthetic maiden. She had soulful eyes and a slithery walk. Her pagan name was Smithers, but her parents had christened her Heloise, and she had a romantic turn of mind from the days when she started her education by reading "St. Elmo," and deciding to take Edna Earle as a model, to the moment when she met Percival Marmaduke Montgomery, and decided that he was her affinity. He read "The Blessed Damozel" to her under a harvest moon and she said "Yes" in a burst of emotion that gave her an air of ethereal beauty. They were married, and she made up her mind to devote herself to her husband and whatever offspring the gods might send her. One day, she went to a lecture, where the speaker asserted that characteristics of any sort might be implanted in the plastic brain of a tender infant by the simple method of imbuing his or her soul with suitable thoughts when under the influence of Morpheus, as it were. That is, when sleeping lightly, the ear was attuned to whatever suggestions might come to it from the outer sphere of influence. She decided to try this method on Reginald, the first-born of herself and Percival Marmaduke. So——

Reggie twisted irritably. He was a large, fat child, with an expression of morose gloom. His father always looked a little touchy when his mother asserted that Reginald took after his dad, because he hated to think that he bore any resemblance to te infant with the pudgy no e and the little blue eyes. His mother, in private, often attached a clothespin to the nose of her offspring, in an optimistic attempt to a use it to take on a Grecian contour, but she could do nothing about the small Today, she was pursuing her pet occupation of moulding his plastic mind in the way it should do. She was crooning a sweet lullaby to him: "Cunning little feller—everybody knows Don't know what to call him, but he's mighty lak a rose——"

Reginald opened a little blue eye. He wasn't prepared to say anything as yet. It wasn't time. But he thought a lot. And he thought his mother was a foolish woman. The idea of comparing him, with the face he had, to a "rose." His tight little mouth turned down at the corners. He decided to postpone his demands for nourishment until a more suitable moment. The irritation he was experiencing might lead to an indigestible condition later on, and when he cried at night, his father had an uncomfortable habit of dancing him up and down rather roughly. His father, however, had no aesthetic notions about music as you [illegible]. He preferred to say "damn" and "hell" loudly when he trod on an [illegible] collar button in the course of nocturnal prowlings after the baby's bottle. Reginald turned on his side and fell asleep.

Interlude: Close to the ear of Imogene Grandmarsh tootled and dissonated the mouth-organ of Reggie Montgomery. His mother, when she gave it to him at [illegible] had called it a harmonica, but it was a mouth org[illegible]hat.

He loved to play fiendish things on it, ragtime, out of tune, bits like "Will Ya Yiddle on Your Fiddle Just a Little" and "I Don't Like Your Family," in a manner all his own. His mother would place protesting hands over tortured ears when he performed within the precincts of home, but his father only laughed and said it was the result of early training. Just now, Reggie was having a good time. He was playing "School Days" in shrieking falsetto, to Imogene. At off times, he pulled her taffy-colored cu ls and stuck pins in her fat little arms, ju t to see her squirm and prance, but he liked to hear her say, "Oh, Reggie," when he played on the mouth organ. Imogene was practising for a future career as a heart-breaker. From her big sister Belle's library she had purloined a book called "Thelma," and she knew that the best way to start things with any man, young or old, was to open her eyes wide at him and look as adoring as possible. Reggie tooted valiantly—

Interlude: Over the garden wall, along with the honey bees and the butterflies that swarmed in the hot sunshine, came the braying tenor of a masculine voice. Helen Graham's father turned in his chair. "Young ass!" he muttered bitterly, and rose to seek a refuge elsewhere. As he retired indoors, the un-dulcet strains of "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby" accom panied him, to the twanged strings o a banjo, badly played. He knew inf his soured soul that Reggie Montgomery was calling on his daughter. He knew that Helen, in her best blue crepe with the bands of golden embroidery, with her dimpled knees showing beneath the short hem and the edge of a pair of three dollar stockings, with her hair freshly marcelled and a nicely scented lipstick preparation on her red lips, with all of her slim body answering to the thrill of Reginald's nearness, was looking on the youth with adoring eyes. She was gazing at his pudgy nose and his little blue eyes and his slicked-back, red hair. He, with an expression of aloof and indifferent ease, was making untuneful sounds on a banjo with one flat string, and she was thinking it was wonderful. —"Bah!" said Mr. Graham savagely, and stalked into the house. Like an echo, it followed him, in nasal tones, "No, sir, I don't mean maybe! Yes, sir—that's my baby n-o-w!"

Postlude: Marian Montgomery regarded the back of her husband's head with mildly resentful eyes. She was a little blonde with an amiable outlook on life and a persistent desire to please all with whom she came in contact. But there were times when Reginald made her feel quite peeved, and this was one of them. Instead of accompanying her to the bridge party of the Brownes, their neighbors, he would persist this evening in trying to get KDKA, because he said they were playing "Barcelona." Marian sighed. Her husband was mad about "Barcelona." He had switched from "Valencia" with lightning-like rapidity, and she heard "Barcelona" from morning until night around the house. There it was now. The strains flooded the room. A high soprano was singing: "I married the belle of Barcelona. She loves me, I know. For I told her so." And so on. And so on. "Every night I serenade her. —I bought a second-hand guitar." She stood, reflecting on the upsand downs of life. He wouldn't leave that machine all evening.

—Anyway, how was she to know, any more than Imogene Grandmarsh or Helen Graham's father, that Reginald was only trying hard to fulfill the desire implanted in his brain in infancy. His mother had started it with "Mighty Lak a Rose," a popular song of her girlhood, and now he was striving after the popular songs of each passing epoch. It wasn't his fault, any more than his pudgy nose or little blue eyes or red head. It was the outcome of the song at twilight that his mother had crooned to him at his cradleside.

Moral: If you want your children to like grand opera instead of jazz, sing them to sleep with a selection by Wagner or Meyerbeer.

MOUTH ORGAN MUSIC

By Harry Lee, in "Smart Set."

Mouth organ music was sweet as we lay
In the cool old mow on the scented hay;
Those long, long, rainy afternoons,
Brother of mine, when your tinny tunes,
Muffled by hands not overly clean,
Rang out over meadows—
And tree-tops green!

Over the meadows, then, we could see
The dim stream winding, that meant to be
A part of the ocean! So we, one day,
Over the hills and far away,
Would go by the pleasant road that led To the Wonderful Places—
Of which we read!

The dreams we dreamed in the old hay mow,
Brother of mine, are over now!
So let us dream we are boys again,
Small boys dreaming of being men;
Boys on a rain-dim afternoon,
One with a mouth organ—
Playing a tune!

ENCOURAGING MUSIC

Practical musicians who, on account of their professional interest, ought to be the prime movers in any movement that gives promise of furthering the cause of music in their community are, or should be, the natural leaders in arousing this sentiment. The leadership is usually found to be due to the enthusiasm of some amateur—male or female. If this individual is a public-spirited citizen, he may, on account of his or her social influence, be better fitted for the position of leader in a new movement. But in musical movements the practical musician of any local standing should give a helping hand in promoting the cause. And this is rarely the case, especially in smaller cities.

The general type of practical musician has the self-preserving instinct and conviction of the laborer, not the artist. His bread and butter seems endangered if he should connect himself with something of a public nature outside his immediate bread-earning occupation. The leadership in any movement demands strong convictions, courage, initiative, policy and, above all, a judicious temperament. These qualifications are rarely united in one individual, and hence the more advisable method is the bringing into one committee a group of people enthusiastic for a new scheme for community development.

PRESS ON

The road to success is no pathway of flowers,
It will test well your grit and persistence;
There are rough tracks to traverse, thro long weary hours,
Ere the goal comes in sight in the distance.

It matters but little what Art you essay—
What tangled skein seek to unravel:
To succeed, time will show, all the same price must pay—
To "Get There" all the same road must travel.

Should Music her subtle spell o'er you have cast,
And you straightway resolve for to woo her,
Altho' coy, you will find, ere a few moons have passed,
She rewards those who boldly pursue her.

If t times she's cold, and on you seems to frown,
Yet her manners withal is beguiling:
Tho' today seeming failure makes you feel cast-down,
At tomorrow's success you'll be smiling.

Undaunted press on and the prize you will gain—
That rich guerdon for which you have striven—
The key to pure rapture, by which you'll obtain,
While on earth, a sweet foretaste of Heaven.

—Richard Hartley, in "Music."

THE FIDDLER

The memory makes my heart grow warm
He stood there with lights turned dim
And cradled it upon his arm
And let it sing to him.

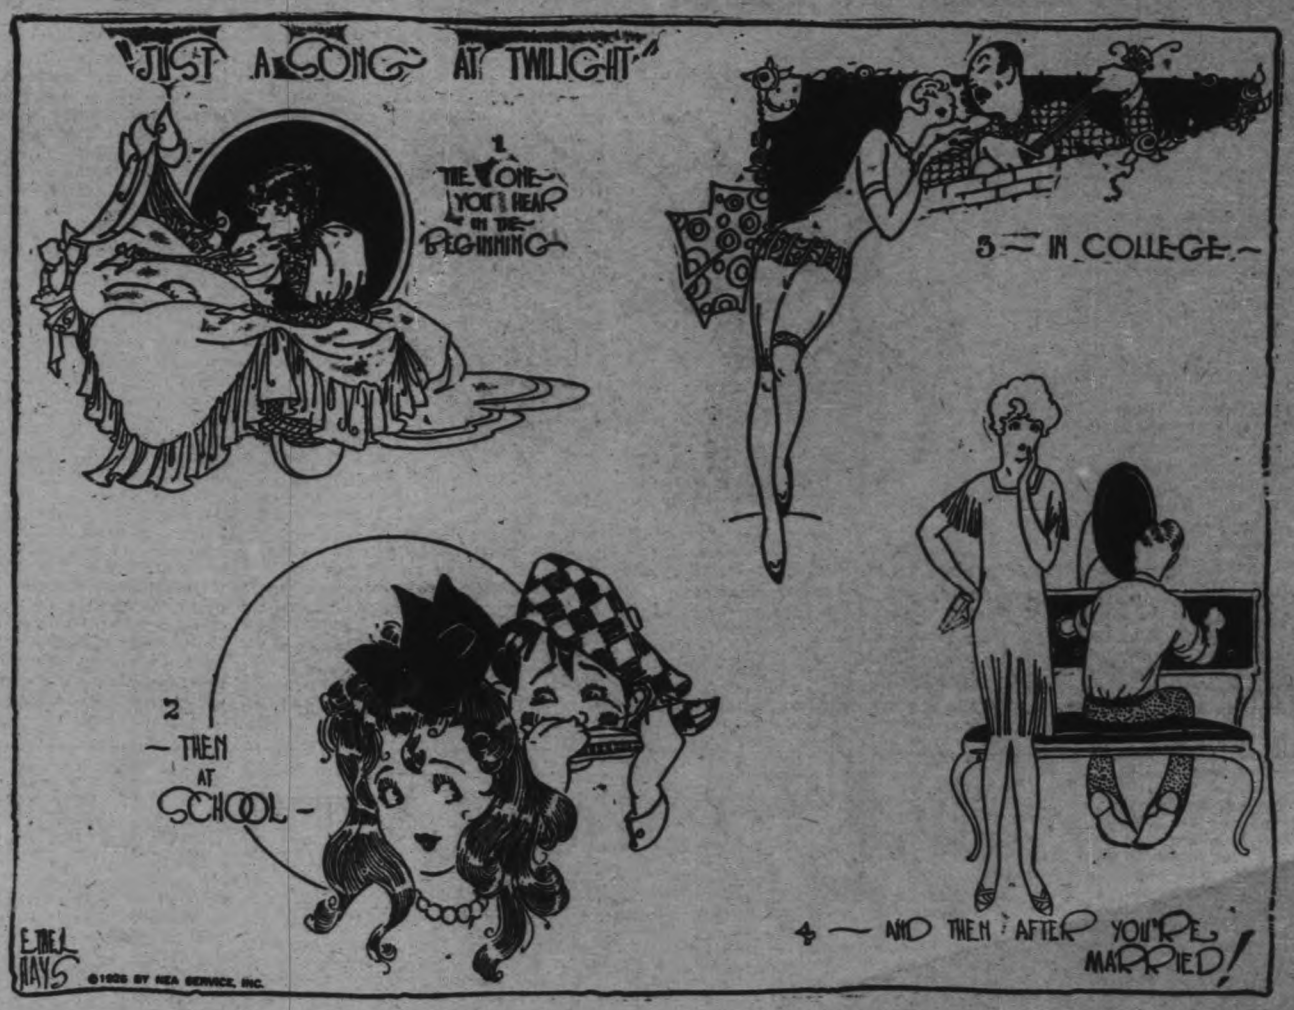
To him it was a thing alive—
Indeed it sang to us as such!
It made old legends grow and thrive
Beneath his wizard touch.

We could not hear the words he spoke
(All softly) to his fiddle-child,
But knew the joy its answer woke
Because the fiddler smiled!

His dreams he must have whispered so
In words no louder than a croon,
For when in love it answered, lo,
The world was filled with tune!

—Marion Steward.

Music In The Home - By James Turnbull



Almost 4,000 of the 5,185 homes in the City of Peterborough possess either a phonograph, piano, or radio.

These figures may seem somewhat startling, but they were compiled from the canvassing records of a local piano firm, whose men have covered the city from end to end.

If these figures prove anything, they prove that music in one form or another, plays a large part in the life of the modern home.

The time is not long past when the musical equipment of the average home consisted of a wheezy old organ, or a piano, but today science has produced the phonograph and the radio, making it possible for practically any family to have the latest music served up at will, within the walls of the home.

The organ is rapidly disappearing from most homes, probably on account of its unsuitability for the music of today. The piano, however, has kept pace with the times and in place of the old-fashioned square piano that formerly did duty, we find an instrument modern in every respect, that by pressing on the pedals, plays itself.

Recognizing that music plays a large part in the make up of the average person, science and intellect have devoted a large share of their energy to make the present genius real and living to future generations.

The desire to be remembered by posterity was responsible for the first crude, chiseled marks on stone that gave us most of our knowledge of primitive man. It gave us illuminated manuscripts, painfully written and greatly prized. It gave us the printing press, and more recently, photography. Less than a lifetime ago it gave us the phonograph, which has recorded the achievements of the famous musicians of the past two generations. More recently, it has given us the radio by means of which the ends of the earth are brought together in an almost uncanny fashion.

Where once the music of the home was confined to the talented member or members of the family, today it is possible for any person to sit down and listen to the best artists the world can produce by simpty placing a record on the phonograph, or turning a knob on the radio set. Where once it was only the privileged few who could hear the best that the musical world could offer, today their masterpieces are available to everybody.

In every person, to a greater or lesser degree, is imbedded a love for music that must find expression in some form or another. Inspect the gramophone stock of the average dealer and you will realize the multiplicity of tastes that are catered to by the record companies.

It is estimated that in Peterborough alone some two hundred records are sold weekly, and this in spite of the newer invention of radio which some people claim will oust the gramophon.

from the place it has formerly occupied

Several of the chinese laundries in the city have yielded to the impulse to have music and have gramophones in their establishments, proving that music enters into the life of the East as well as the West.

Instead, however, of playing the jazz records that are in most popular demand, they demand records of their own; records that reproduce the music peculiar to their own country and customs. To the person who is accustomed to our music, these records sound like a discordant jangle of pots and pans, but not so to the Oriental, who, in the same record, has memories of other days and the homeland brought vividly to his memory.

Music, affecting as it does, the very heart of people, gives them a common understanding, a common footing, so that it is only a natural sequence when we find it so closely allied with the home life of the country.

Cultivating Music In The Home

In these days of public recitals and concerts, of singing societies and other contrivances for gathering together audiences, it is worth while to consider for a moment the value of music in the home. It is not necessary to detract in the slightest degree from the merits of the above-mentioned enterprises, by means of which larger works can be learned, and sung or played, than would be possible in the narrow limits of the average home. It seems, nevertheless, that the publicity of concerts is apt to overshadow home practice, and perhaps to absorb much of the enjoyment which should belong distinctively to domestic music.

* * *

The memory of many delightful evenings when a few neighbors come in and, with the members of the family, sang part songs, glees and madrigals, deriving much pleasure therefrom and an extensive knowledge of that class of music, prompts one to advocate similar social gatherings in all homes.

In later days there was no pleasure equal to the weekly "fiddle-worry," when the somewhat unskilful performers spent their evening trying to master the difficulties of various trios and quartettes, thereby multiplying many times the delight of hearing afterward the same music well played by professional musicians.

* * *

There is nothing more gratifying than the string quartette. There is no class of music which does more to stimulate the student to thorough work. Chamber playing tends to refine musical taste, for the composers who write it are usually serious musicians and write in musicianly style. Chamber music stands in a relation to music similar to that which the essay bears to literature, and is generally safe ground for the student to travel.

The practice of chamber music gives each player an individual interest, and the whole trio or quartette a mutual interest in the work. It dispels egotism —the soloist is eliminated.

* * *

There is no better way of cultivating amiability than by the practice of chamber music in the home. All accomplishments are gained by practice, and only by practice, and there is no more charming accomplishment than amiability. It is not always constitutional, and can justly be considered an accomplishment—one of the graces of refinement. Many quartette parties go to pieces through lack of amiability on the part of the performers, but that is no argument against chamber music. On the contrary, it is an argument in favor of its more determined cultivation.

* * *

The same may be said of the singing of part songs. The spirit of self-sacrifice is essential, for it is natural to mankind that each individual should be quick to see the errors of his neighbors, and somewhat reluctant to subdue himself in the cause of art.

The qualities cultivated by music in the home are of value in daily life. Moral discipline and the study of good music make a strong combination, and one which is worthy of all who are in earnest.

"Young Willy here sez he'd like to be a musician, and wants to learn the pianner."

"No, let him learn the fiddle; it'll be easier for 'im to play in the street if he ain't a success."

MUSIC AND LITERATURE

Most people with a taste for reading have at some time or another found enjoyment in considering their favorite heroes or heroines in fiction. They compare the types beloved by the great dramatists or novelists; they comment upon the varieties of character displayed by the personalities who moved through the works of the same author; they may even go as far as to write critical studies upon them. Shakespeare's heroines are as familiar as our friends. Most of us have admired Scott's Jeanie Deans, have heaved a sigh over Lucy Ashton, or been aggravated by the genteel behavior of Edith Bellenden, while to this day readers of Thackeray judge Lady Castlewood as if she were a real person.

All this is delightful, but one is apt to fancy the pleasure to belong to the realm of literature alone, forgetting that music is also a language in which great dramatists and tone poets have expressed themselves. The literary folk have had the longer start, it is true, for music, as a means of direct human expression, began its career only with Monteverde, the technique of composition remaining intractable until harmonic discoveries had been pushed far into the unknown. Chaucer wrote his Canterbury Tales somewhere between 1340 and 1400. Music reached an analogous state of development between 1740 and 1800.

The Joneses have a saxophone;
The Jenkinses a radio own;
A phonograph beguiles the Flynns;
Revenge is sweet. We now have twins!

—Tit-Bits.

A burglar in Hamilton is accused of stealing a trombone. He must belong to a robber band.

He—He reminds me of Paderewski.
She—But Paderewski isn't a violinist.
"Neither is this chap!"

—Gaiety (London)

We've all heard a lot of records we'd like to see broken.

Music's Practical Uses - By Wm. Edgar

There is in music a universal language without words, which has had at all times power to stir the heart or to kindle the imagination. The impassioned or heroic note, of the musical instrument, or the human voice, the most wonderful of them all—have been from earliest times the handmaid of religion, the stimulus of the warrior, the messenger of the lover, and the minister to the pleasures of the greatest and of the humblest.

Among the less civilized peoples, song and dance have always been regarded as essential aids in training for war. The marvellous precision with which the savage races execute the war songs and dances has frequently been admired by travellers: and as the value of perfect drill and co-operation is well understood, music, which supplies the regularity of rhythm is seen to be of paramount importance in the preservation of the race beset by relentless enemies.

Another curious warlike use of music is suggested by the word "panic." The historian, Rowbotham, says, "panic is derivable from the trumpet—like sound, if we may trust the derivation of the word which refers the first panic to the time when the great god Pan put to flight an army by a sudden shout." Wild song and drums or horns have, from remote periods been part of the warriors stock in trade. Even today, it is said the sound of the trumpets of the Indians, by the bloody recollections it conjures, creates a thrill of terror in the white settlers in South America. Homer represents the Trojans as going to battle with howling war cries and blood-curdling music. It is stated that one of the causes of the defeat of the Chinese in their Korean war with Japan was their reliance on the effects of their war-gongs to frighten their opponents. Anthropologists in Australia say that four or five old women of the aboriginal tribes could, by their singing, stir up forty or fifty men to commit any bloody deed.

Of primitive music it has been said that too often "it inspired its hearers with a desire for fighting, it aroused their anger, excited their fanaticism, and by accompanying their war dances also in time of peace, it aroused their lust for war." For this reason, it is among warlike nations that early music is most developed. The Spartans, the most warlike of all the Greeks, were remarkable for their devotion to music. In the Bible, there are frequent references to the encouragement given by music to warriors, as, for instance, in the battle between Israel and Judah, referred to in "Chronicles" where the victory over Jeroboam is attributed to the ardour inspired in the troops of Judah by the music of the trumpets of the priests.

If we look at primitive races, we shall be surprised to find how much practical use, even the lowest savages make of music. Indeed the utilitarian element is here so prominent that the artistic side seems often to disappear from view. Wild tribes, find music a great stimulus to physical endeavor. The narratives of explorers abound in allusions to this function. Collingwood and Grant in their travels through Borneo found that their native boatmen always pulled with greater energy while singing their wild and stirring songs. According to the anthropologists who studied the habits of the Keves of New Mexico, these people always worked to the accompaniment of an instrument resembling the bagpipes.

Many savages use drums and other instruments for signalling purposes. The Kaffirs, in their inter-tribal wars, were accustomed to play on pipes made of bone or ivory, to call their cattle from a distance. The Maruns of Sierra Leone, formerly used fixed calls for each of their friends by means of which they could summon them at any time—an arrangement invaluable for hunting or warlike expeditions.

The usefulness of such musical signals in war naturally suggested itself at a very early date. Certain horn-calls were played in the Ashantee forces to indicate the position of the chief during a battle. The African negro, it is said, never mistook the meaning of a drum-beat knowing instantly whether it was a call to war or merely to a dance.

To the present day the use of musical signals of war has been retained in the armies of the Western world. Music as an inspiration to greater effort in battle is still recognized, although modern conditions preclude its use so freely as in olden days. Russia at the commencement of the Great War had bands of singing soldiers in the van of regiments on the march; an arrangement said to be more effective than that of having bands of instrumentalists.

History abounds with instances of reckless heroism inspired by national songs like Rule, Brittainnia, the Marseillaise and The Watch on the Rhine. It is recorded, that a broken British square in one of Kitchener's battles with the Dervishes of the Sudan, was instantly reformed under the influence of "Rule Brittania" sung in a most unmusical voice, by the late Bennett Burleigh, the famous war correspondent.

There are few more romantic stories in the world's history than that of the discovery of the imprisoned Richard the Lion-Hearted, by his faithful minstrel Blondel. Richard, on his way home to England after the Third Crusade, in passing through Germany, fell into the hands of his arch-enemy, the Duke of Austria, who immured him in a lonely, almost inaccessible fortress. Richard's position was exceedingly precarious. His younger brother John was busily engaged in maturing plots at home to place himself on the throne. The failure of the rightful king to return was propitious for the schemes of the would-be-usurper, and the conviction that the bold crusader was dead took possession of the minds of the people. Blondel thought otherwise. Knowing the King's contemplated route, he rightly surmised that Richard had been seized and imprisoned by one of the petty potentates through whose territories he travelled.

He crossed over to the Continent, and realizing the futility of merely enquiring the whereabouts of the King, he visited all the likely castles, lingered around their precincts, singing an old song which had been a favorite with the King. Months passed without avail, but still the dauntless minstrel pursued his task, until one day, outside the tower of the lofty castle of Durrenstein, he was thrilled by the sound of the long-sought voice taking up the refrain of the song.

Blondel hurried back to England with the news and negotiations soon procured the release of the King.

Less well-known is a somewhat similar story with, however, a different sequel, of an incident which happened during the civil war between Charles I. and his English and Scottish subjects. One of the King's right-hand men in Scotland was Alexander McDonnell, an Irish nobleman, better known by his sobriquet of Colkitto. After a number of successes, Colkitto, who was placed at the head of a force of Highlanders, resolved to attack Dunvegan Castle, held by the Clan Campbell for the anti-Royalist faction. A piper, who was sent to reconnoiter the opposing forces, made the discovery that large reinforcements had arrived and that an attack could only result in the destruction of the assailants. Before he could get away, he was taken prisoner and was confined in the tower, while the defenders awaited the approach of the unsuspecting Royalists. As they came near the castle, the sounds of an old Highland pibroch, "Shun the Tower," were heard. It was the gallant Highlanders warning to his comrades. Colkitto understood the import and made a hurried retreat, leaving the piper to his fate.

A popular song, at a later time of crisis, helped to expel the Stuarts from the lands they had ruled for ages. During the rising tide of public feeling against James II., just before the Revolution of 1688, a Whig Lord, Thomas Wharton, composed a popular ballad, entitled "Lilibullero," in which the King and his deputy in Ireland, Lord Tyrconnel were held up to ridicule. "The verses and the tune," says Macaulay, "caught the fancy of the nation. From one end of the country to the other all classes were constantly singing this idle rhyme. It was the delight of the army." Wharton's song aided greatly in inflaming national feeling against the King. At a later day, Wharton was wont to boast that he had rhymed James out of his dominions.

Increasing faith is being manifested by physicians, in the efficacy of music as a curative factor and as producing definite reactions among individuals afflicted with nervous disorders. In this, they are following old established precedent. A thousand years before Christ this fact was recognized. The outstanding example of the application of music in this way is to be found in the Old Testament in the first book of Samuel, which ecords that the young shepherd boy, David, was called upon to play before Saul, in the effort to dispel the gloom that had settled over the mind and soul of the King. "And it came to pass, when the evil spirit from God was upon Saul, that David took an harp and played with his hand; so Saul was refreshed and was well, and the evil spirit departed from him."

French physicians, especially in recent years have demonstrated the favorable influence of music on the general health and development of their patients and some remarkable results have been attained by its use in cases of nervous ailment, insomnia; and derangement of the heart and lungs. It has also been noted that good, simple music has a beneficial effect on the regularizing functions of the sympathetic nerves.

There is a wealth of evidence to prove that the curative powers of music have been dimly apprehended for centuries by the Indians of this continent. Long before the advent of the white man, the medicine men of the tribes made use of music in the treatment of physical, as well as mental ills among the braves and squaws. The use of music in this connection was based on the actual power of rhythm without any effort to promote a favorable reaction through appeals to the emotions of the patient.

The Sioux medicine men were accustomed to use music in various healing endeavors. They had a song to be sung when adjusting a fractured bone; another for headaches; still another to be used in the treatment of chil drens' diseases. Going one better than their Northern brethren, the Indians of Papago, Arizona, had a special song for every conceivable ill, and they also believed that healing songs were given to certain animals and birds, which could be made use of by the human inhabitants of the woods and plains. Sometimes the song sung by the medicine men, was a paen of praise to the animal that first possessed the curative notes; at other times it was a prophecy of the recovery of the patient or again, it might be merely an improvised song, springing from the lively imagination of the poetically-minded child of the forest. The song was sung four times, then an interval was allowed to elapse, and the music recommenced. Sometimes the ritual was supplemented by the beating of drums or the shaking of a rattle at the side of the patient's couch. The drums and rattles produced a steady, throbbing rhythm which captivated the attention of the sick person and, according to unbiassed white observers actually, in many cases, had a good effect.

The rhythm of one of the songs of the Chippewa medicine men is said to have been as positive and energetic as that of "Onward Christian Soldiers." The rhythm of others was much more subtle. To this phase of Indian life, little attention has been paid by investigators, and it is possible that much knowledge of value and interest has been overlooked in the anxiety to study trivial customs and unimportant conflicts of the former inhabitants of North America.

In the Middle Ages, musical treatment was invariably resorted to in cases of tarantism—the e effects that followed the bite of the Tarantula. In our day, we have seen a lavish use of music as an aid in the mental and physical rehabilitation of victims of the Great War.

Among other use of music may be enumerated the device of the ambitious weather prophet of last century at Basle, who had a huge harp erected on the countryside, hoping vainly, as it proved, to be able to foretell the weather by the pitch of the notes as the strings vibrated from the action of the wind.

Shortly before the war, artistic and industrial circles in France were stirred by the declaration of Jacques Vernes, a well-known financier, that French industrial efficiency was on the downgrade, because the worker had lost the habit of singing at his bench and was the more easily tired and discouraged. M. Vernes argued that the rhythmic movement of dance and song had been for centuries stimulants to the activity of the French people. He introduced facilities for singing, accompanied by instruments, in his factories and the example was followed in many mills, and in government works. It was found among the workers engaged in buildn, bridges on the Pyrenees that the introduction of music and singing during working hours resulted in better work, better humor, less fatigue and an almost entire disappearance of "grouching" among the men. Equally good results were reported from other parts of France where the custom had been re-established. Similar experiments have been tried in the United States. It has been said that many miles of railway track have been laid in the Southern States, as a result of the combined labor and music of negro workers.

Foremen over gangs engaged in paving the streets, encouraged their negro laborers to sing during the operations, on making the discovery that a speeding up of effort invariably followed the breaking into song. On the other hand the failure of negro workers to fulfill expectations of their employers in the cotton-mills of North Carolina has since been attributed to the fact that they could not hear their voices in song above the noise of the machinery.

Some interesting observations have been made of the effects of particular notes on the lower creation. Berlioz has left an interesting account of a dog which howled with delight on hearing the major third played on two strings of the violin, but the same animal was quite indifferent to fifths, sixths or octaves. A dog that could recognize fifths is mentioned by Colomb. Stephens in the "Book of Farms" tells of a horse that invariably stopped eating his hay or oats and listened attentively when low "G" was sounded; and another horse was equally susceptible to a high note. It is also well known that the "educated" horses of the circus ring are trained largely by the aid of music.

A wealthy and eccentric Dutchman who was also an enthusiastic lover of horses, had such a high opinion of his animals' musical perceptions that, at considerable expense, he constructed an orchestra platform in the stable from which, once a week, a party of hired musicians played selections to their equine audience.

Eastern peoples have long believed in the good effects of music on their flocks and herds. The Arabs have a proverb which declares that the song of the shepherd fattens the animals much more readily than does the richest pasture; and the sound of the shepherd's pipe is also said to promote liveliness and good health in the flock.

In the Highlands of Scotland, milkmaids occasionally sing sulky cows into good humor. Bears are taught to dance by means of music. Conductors of caravans through the desert, urge on the wearied camels by means of song, and it is declared, that no matter how fatigued the camel may be, the music never fails to cause a renewed effort and a quickening of the pace. Experienced seal hunters declare that the bagpipes ought to be part of the equipment of every seal expedition, as the animals can always be lured by the Highland instrument to within striking distance.

Playford, in his "Introduction to Music," cites some remarkable occurrences, one of them concerning a man who was charged with the duty of transporting a large number of stags from Yorkshire to Hampton Court—which task he successfully accomplished by having two men march ahead, one playing the bagpipes and the other a violin and little difficulty was experienced in conveying the animals along the least frequented highways to their destination. In the shrill monotonous ditties with which Indian snake charmers accompany their gestures, lie much of the secret of that power over the cobra and the other poisonous reptiles, which never fails to arouse the interest and astonishment of the European onlooker.

An Italian musician relates that by striking in his garden the first notes of the Adagio in F of Mozart's quartette in C., he never failed to bring close to him a lizard which frequented the grounds. A similar influence exerted on wood-pigeons by the notes of one of Handel's compositions is related by Gretry, who was intensely interested in such occurrences,—according to Gretny, these birds invariably remained perfectly still during the playing of the piece, but immediately a change was made to other music, the birds took to flight.

A large field for investigation is afforded by the action of music on the human mind and body. Particular notes in some people induce a sensation of color; others are rendered drowsy by music which has a contrary effect on their fellows. Some people even go so far as to assert that they experienc a sensation of smell while listening to certain compositions—one man has been recorded as insisting that the playing of the Ninth Symphony always suggested to him the odour of violets. One Peterborough citizen confesses that he never hears the organ accompaniment to the solo, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," without feeling a wave of depression sweep over him. He declares the music brings to his mind no unhappy associations, and the explanation of the feeling is all the more difficult in view of the fact that the notes are suggestive of triumph and exultation.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC IN THE CHURCHES

By Wilson Craw

Over nineteen hundred years ago there were in the country of Judea shepherds who were abiding in the fields keping watch over their flock by night. When suddenly a mighty celestial choir appeared unto them announcing the birth of Christ the king of kings and praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Could those rough uncultured tenders of the sheep grasp the wondrous import of those words or did instinct lead them to gaze in adoration at the Child who lay in a manger in Bethlehem because there was no room for Him in the inn? Ever sice that time music has been used to impress upon people the real significance of the virgin birth and believers in Christ celebrate His coming with song.

Peterborough choirs are making elaborate preparations to celebrate the great event and with the most modern compositions they will present many of the old hymns and carols for the pleasure of their congregations on the next two Sundays.

In the Anglican church and the Roman Catholic church the Christmas season does not commence until Christmas Day so their special music will come on that day and the succeeding Sunday. Some of the other churches in the city are not having their special music until Sunday the 26th so it is our purpose to print these next week.

ST. PAUL'S

This congregation will have for the first time their new organ for the entire Sunday service. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., who is organist and choirmaster has prepared a special program for this solemn occasion.

In the morning he will play the Carillion and Triumphal March and the choir will sing that old Cornish carol "Star of Bethlehem"; a Scottish Carol by Belaw and an anthem, There Were Shepherds, by Vincent. Miss Greta LeBarr, the soloist, will sing, The Voice of the Chimes, by Hahn.

At the evening sederunt of worship Mr. Chenhall will play, March of the Magi Kings, Christmas Chimes, and the Festival March. The choir will sing the Old Cornish carol, Arise and Hail; the Dunstan carol, I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day; Holst's Choral Fantasy on Old Carols, Christmas Day; a mixed quartette will sing, When the Sun Had Sunk to Rest. and the male quartette will sing Holy Night, Peaceful Night, and in conclusion the whole choir will render the Hallelujah Chorus, by Handel.

GEORGE STREET

At the evening service there will be a short Christmas message from the minister and the choir under J. H. Renwick will present the Christmas Carol, "The Star of the East" by J. S. Fearis.

The carol consists of an organ prelude; Arise Shine, a tenor solo with the women's chorus and choir; The Stranger Star, contralto and baritone solos and choir; The Angels' Song, a tenor duet; Sing O Heavens, a baritone solo and choir; Beautiful Star, a soprano solo; Awake Put on Thy Strength, solos and choir; Bethlehem, a semi chorus for women's and men's voices; Lead Thou Me On, a baritone solo; There Shall Be Night No More, a contralto solo and choir; Rejoice Greatly, a tenor solo and choir.

The soloists for the day are Misses Daisy Murray, A. Batten, E. Fusee, E. Crookshanks, G. McCall, E. MacKay and E. Coon Mrs. V. Walker; E. Jones, J. N. Bryan, A. V. Lillow, D. Fleming, J. W. Kenmure, C. S. Thompson, W. H. Cunningham and C. A. Thorpe.

PARK STREET.

At the evening service of the Park street Baptist church the choir of 30 voices, conducted by C. E. Lapp, will sing a cantata entitled, "The Prince of Peace" by E. L. Ashford with hymns by E. R. Latta. The cantata is in two parts "The Promise" which is part one and 'The Fulfilment" part two.

The Promise will consist of the following pieces—Sing, O, Heavens, a chorus; The Heavenly King, a bass solo; And There Shall Come Forth, a quartette; Fear Thou Not, a solo and chorus; and a contralto solo, Hail Bethlehem.

In the Fulfilment there will be: O Holy Night, a male quartette; There Were Shepherds, a solo quartette and chorus; Bright Star of Hope a duet; March of the Magi, male voice chorus; O Blessed Lord, a solo; and Blessed Be the Lord God, the final chorus. In the morning the anthem, The First Noel, and a solo, There's a Beautiful Star, will be sung.

TRINITY.

The organ selections at the morning service, played by Miss Mabel Clarry, will consist of the March of the Magi; the Pastoral (Messiah by Handel), and the Marche Solennelle. The choir will sing as a processional, O Come All Ye Faithful; anthem, Sing O Heavens, and the old French carol, Bring a Torch Jeannette, Isabella. In the evening the organ selections will be, Fragment from Symphony in C; Serenade and Marche Celebre. The choir will render a special programme of carols, Sing Noel; At Solemn Midnight Came a Call; Good King Wencelas and When the Sun had Sunk to Rest; a duet, Now we are Ambassadors; a chorus, How Lovely are the Messengers; an anthem, And the Glory of the Lord; a solo by Maurice Park, The Christ Child, and a ladies' chorus, In Reverent Awe and Solemn State.

ST. ANDREW'S.

The services on Sunday at St. Andrew's United Church will be appropriate to the Christmas season. The minister will speak at the morning service on "Reasons for a Merry Christmas," the choir will sing Dudley Buck's fine anthem, "There were Shepherds," and Mrs. Park will sing Gounod's setting of Tennyson's "Ring Out Wild Bells." In the evening the subject will be 'A Christmas Story,' the music will include Novello's "O Come All Ye Faithful," with quartette by Mrs. Park, Mrs. Turner, Messrs. T. H. Gillespie and R. A. Brown; "Gesu Redemptor," Pietro Yon, with solo by Mr. Carlisle, Ivanoff's "Bless the Lord, O My Soul" (unaccompanied); Mrs. Park will sing "An Old Sacred Melody" by Liddle, and a male quartette, "It came upon a Midnight Clear," by Messrs. Humpage, Niven, Carlisle and Johnson.

KNOX.

"White gifts to the King" will be presented by the Sunday School at the morning service, with Christmas hymns and carols. Musical numbers on Sunday evening next and Sunday morning, December 26th, will be selected from the following compositions: "Holy Night," "It came upon the Midnight Clear," "We have seen His Star" (Simper), "Behold I bring you good tidings" (Norman Churchill), 'Glory to God' (Cooke), "Sleep, Holy Babe," tenor solo, chorus with tenor obligato, the latter number from Heyser's Christmas cantata, "Glory to God," "The people that walked in darkness," solo (Handel), and the chorus, "And the glory of the Lord" (Handel), both from the "Messiah."

Love On Music's Wings

BY ALICE ROHE
NEA Service Special Correspondent

Music hath charms not only to sooth the savage breast but to kindle love in the most sophisticated heart.

Love levels all ranks. Music levels time itself.

Music! Ah Signora, that's the explanation of how Madame Luisa Tetrazzini, at the age of 55, met and married a student young enough to be her son.

Melody Started It.

Signor Pietro Vernati, 30, handsome, svelt, very dapper, says that he not only agrees with his wife's estimate of the powers of music but that he is willing to give even greater testimony as to its spell which brought romance into the life of the great coloratura soprano.

Signor Vernati fell in love with Tetrazzini's voice. One morning he heard a glorious outburst of melody flooding the garden of his home in the Via Gaeta, Rome. Every owner of a phonograph record who has not had the opportunity of hearing Tetrazzini trill in person knows just what that means.

At any rate the young and handsome Vernati made inquiries and discovered that the great Tetrazzini had an apartment in the same building as his own. He succeeded in expressing his great love for this beautiful voice—and later for the owner of the voice. So eloquently did he plead, that the diva herself capitulated to romance.

"A difference of years—what does that matter?" says Signor Vernati.

"A difference of years—what does that matter?" asks Madame Tetrazzini-Vernati.

And be it known that Italy, the land of music, is a peculiarly suitable setting for this apotheosis of music as the greatest of all love potions.

Tetrazzini, covered with jewels estimated by the insurance appraisers as over 200,000, sang for her wedding

Tetrazzini Takes a Husband

Florence, Italy, was the scene of the marriage of Mme. Tetrazzini, with whose operative achievements the whole world is familiar, and Pietro Vernato, of Rome, a heretofore obscure student of music. The groom admitted that he's 32 while his famous bride maintained she is only 50.

guests. On her head was a diamond tiara said to have been the gift of the ex-czar of Russia.

Furthermore she sings every day of her honeymoon for her husband. And with the exuberance of a youth which belies her birth certificate—she says her honeymoon will be a long one. She is going to continue it in America this winter on a concert tour. And of course her new husband will accompany her.

Tetrazzini makes it clear that she is not bothered with the problem, which besets so many American women: Can a woman have a career and a husband at the same time? She has her career and will continue it—and she now has a husband and will continue to keep him.

A woman—whether she is a celebrity or not—has a right to love and marriage, says the famous diva. In her youth, a career suffices. But as she gets older, she longs for the companionship of a husband.

So she has one, and all Italy is rejoicing.

Child And Music Study

Success in teaching music to children depends largely on getting the children interested in the music study. It goes without saying that a child, as well as an adult, will learn music or anything else quicker and better if an interest is aroused in the study or the pursuit. Yet it must not be imagined that the pleasing of the child is the especial goal at which we aim. If it were, we would never give the child technical exercises, and to many of them no pieces except popular airs. And if we carry the idea to its logical conclusion in other studies, the amount of grammar, arithmetic, geography, history and spelling that many children would learn might be put into a vest pocket.

No, the proper aim of the music teacher is to educate all his pupils in music, real music, high-toned music, and in time difficult music; to train the ear to distinguish the pure from the impure, the true from the false, and the lofty from the degraded; to make the hand of the pianist flexible and dexterous; for the singer to make the voice sweet and pure, with perfect intonation and pronunciation. All this calls for much time and attention to technical and detail work. The teacher that ignores all this whether designedly or from oversight, therein writes himself or herself down a number one failure.

Art is exacting. Now the practical teacher must work out the problem of harmonizing these two things which may seem inconsistent; first, the high and stern requirements of art and true culture; second, the securing of the child's interest in the study or pursuit. In some cases the problem is easy of solution, in others nearly or quite impossible. Sometimes a real or apparent compromise will finally attain the desired end.

Music Hath Charms - - - By C. M. C.

(Examiner Correspondent).

There are few people indeed who are not touched to a greater or less degree by music. Poets have sung of it, and it is the music in poetry that makes such a deep appeal to many people. A true poet must be imbued with the sense of rhythm almost as much as the musician himself. Elizabeth Browning feels this when she says:

"Can your poet make an Eden
No winter will undo?
* * * *
Drown in music the earth's din?
And keep his own wild soul within
The law of his own harmony?"

All nature is full of music, babbling brooks and water-falls, the deeper bass notes of mighty, dashing waves:

"The wind in the reeds and rushes,
The bees on the bells of thyme,
The birds on the myrtle bushes,
The cicale above in the lime."

To these sweet sounds in nature is attributed man's first efforts to produce music, and naturally the earliest music was vocal. The rhythimical element in music led to the invention of drum, tambour and castanets. The whistling wind is supposed to have been the origin of wind instruments, while the crooked horns of animals became the first flute, pipe and horn. The harp, lyre and cithara are imitations of sounds in nature.

The origin of the lyre is told thus in an old Greek myth: "While Mercury was walking for pleasure on the banks of the Nile his foot accidentally struck against a tortoise shell, across which some dried tendons were stretched. This blow produced a musical sound, which suggested to him the idea of the lyre."

It is generally believed that the Greeks originally derived the rudiments of their musical knowledge from the Egyptians who were proficient in the art. Upon monuments erected by the latter have been found representations of harps, lutes and other instruments, but we know nothing of the music produced. In Greece music was used for dances, festivals, in religious ceremonies and for its medicinal qualities. The first symphony was written by Timosthenes of Greece in 300 B.C., and represents a contest of Apollo with a dragon. The Romans had no music of their own, but employed Greek slaves as singers and players.

The fourth century after Christ saw the beginning of music as an art. In A.D. 330, Pope Sylvester instituted a singing school in Rome. The melodies used were built on old Greek scales.

Different varieties of scales have been used from earliest times. In Siam and neighbouring countries the octave is divided into five, six or seven parts to form a scale. Hindus used smaller scale parts than ours, having third and quarter notes. An interesting Indian legend is told of the god Krishna, who, coming to earth, was met by sixteen thousand nymphs, each of whom sang to him in a mode different from that of the others. From this event came the numerous modes found in Indian music. These modes were often of great power and some were held even too patent for mortal use. Emperor Akbar commandeded Singer Naik Gobaul to sing the Mode of Fire. He plunged into the waters of the Djumna before beginning. Before his song was over the waters began to boil, but the Emperor would not let him stop, so he resumed the fiery strain only to burst into flames and be consumed as he finished it.

China uses the pentatonic or five-note scale. With it goes the following legend: "The sage, Ling Lun, in search of knowledge, came to the Sacred River. Here he found the immortal bird of China, the Foang-Hoang, and his mate. The female bird sang the notes of our diatonic scale, while the male bird limited his notes to the pentatonic. At that time everything feminine was considered of little account in China, so the females' notes were rejected and the male's notes were chosen. A little judicious cutting among the bamboo reeds on the river bank enabled Ling Lun to perpetuate this scale.

Many interesting kinds of instruments have been used in the different countries. In China a great variety of materials have been utilized. As early as 2250 B.C. musical stones were used. Skin was used to form eight varieties of drum; metal was used for bells and gongs; baked clay for whistles with from five to seven apertures, silk for strings; wood for a hollow box to be struck with a hammer, and for the image of a tiger with pegs in its back to be swept in the manner a boy draws a stick along a picket fence.

In Guiana the rather gruesome custom of using human bones for flutes was common. The Indians made their flutes mostly of reeds, though an old Peruvian instrument shows eight pipes cut from a piece of soft stone. The Iroquois used it for love-calls, the Kaffirs to call the cattle. The Maoris of New Zealand had war trumpets seven feet long, which were audible for some miles. Gongs were popular among savages. The negroes had a violin with three strings of plant fibre. The Arabian rebat is considered the origin of our violin. It had two strings which were plucked at first, and bowed in later times. The dulcimer, which had hammer-struck strings, tuned in sets of three, was the prototype of harpsichords and spinets that led to the invention of the modern piano.

The magrepha, an organ of ten pipes with a keyboard is supposed to have existed in the Second Century, but many doubt the nature of this instrument. It is an historical fact, however, that an organ, the gift of Constantine was in possession of King Pepin of France in A.D. 757. Still earlier a monk called Aldhelm mentions an organ with gilt pipes. In the tenth century, Wolstan speaks of an organ with four hundred pipes. The swell organ was introduced in 1712 by Jordan. The earliest pianoforte made its appearance about 1711, but pianos did not become popular until about 1750. Modern orchestra was established about this time, while the Sonata and Symphony, the highest types of musical composition, were brought to perfection at the hands of Hadyn, who lived from 1732 to 1809; Mozart from 1756 to 1791, and Beethoven from 1770 to 1827.

Harmony first began to be important in music toward the end of the sixteenth century. Prior to this all music was composed on a basis of counterpoint, which is the art of combining two or more melodies. The first school of contrapuntal composrrs arose in thee fourteenth century, and before this era, harmony as we understand it, did not exist. The highest types of modern classical music are built upon the union of harmony and counterpoint. Since the death of Beethoven, who is generally regarded as the greatest musical genius the world has seen, no material advance has been made in the science of harmony. Modern composers are indebted for any originality in harmonies almost entirely to the employment of discords formed either by the use of auxiliary notes or by the introduction of the chromatic element. It is a remarkable fact that scarcely a chord exists to-day which is not found in the works of J. S. Back who lived from 1685 to 1750 and G. F. Handel, 1685 to 1759.

Many interesting stories are told of the lives of the great composers, of their childish struggles to obtain music lessons, of their struggles in later life to have their great works recognized and to make a livelihood while writing music that will liv e and grow old with the world. We read of the young lad Handel practising by stealth at night on the little clavichord he had smuggled into the attic; of the contrasting picture of the four-year old Beethoven forced to practise all day on the clavier or violin, by a harsh father; of Sebastian Bach, copying his older brother's forbidden music by moonlight, only to have it confiscated at the end of six month's hard labour; of five-year old Joseph Hadyn, happy with two sticks for a violin and bow; of Chopin, weaving a strange tale of a robber on the piano for his young school-mates, putting them to sleep during the story and then waking them up again with lively chords while he laughed at the joke he had played on them; and of Schumann of whom it is said:

"On the piano he would play
Funny pictures of friends, they say,
So, like that they could recognize
With tears of laughter in their eyes,
Each one as he was thus portrayed
By little Schumann as he played."

Characteristic of these great musicians was their perseverance. Nothing daunted or discouraged them, and though they endured great hardships, fighting against poverty, striving for opportunity, suffering from ill-health, deafness as in the case of the great Beethoven, blindness with which Bach was afflicted in his last days, often hungry and weary with toil, yet they persisted in their work of giving to mankind for all time:—

"Sweet music that softer falls
Than petals from blown roses on the grass,
Or night-dews on still waters between walls
Of shadowy granite, in a gleaming pass;
Music that gentler on the spirit lies,
Than tir'd eyelids upon tir'd eyes;
Music that brings sweet sleep down from the blissful skies."

A MUSICAL SENSATION

The Chorus Man Returns to His Own

The chorus man, that generally despised adjunct to musical shows, is back with a smile, and his return has been greeted with a cheer from appreciative throats.

No longer is the thumb turned down at the mention of his calling and an audience's eyes turned away from him to gaze on something of pulchritude and scanty raiment, but rather he is watched with an earnestness that might be almost fascination.

And what has caused this metamorphosis? Has the chorus man become a demon of terpschore and showed to the "thumb-downers" the latest Charleston intricacy?

Not at all: He sings: That's all: But what a wealth of melody pours forth from vibrating vocal chords. The chorus man has found his medium in the melodic rhythmic lilt of Sigmund Romberg's score for "The Student Prince."

What a wealth of music and what a wealth of voice: Inspiring, is the only word that covers it. A chorus of sixty voices.

THE PATHFINDER

To the Hills of Inspiration,
Where the mists are blown away,
I am going for direction
And my orders for the day.

I must leave the darksome valley,
And its grasping fog where grope
Muddled men without a mission,
At the bottom of the slope.

Crowded there in desperation
Where the false displace the true,
Stumbling, reeling, in blind alleys—
Never finding a way through.

So I climb into the sunshine,—
Though the way be rough and steep;
For my vision, from the hill-top,
Of the road that I must keep.

RADIO the Voice of the Air

WIRELESS INCEPTION MARCONI RECOUNTS

Many Improvements on the First Receiver—Very Optimistic.

Transatlantic wireless celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday last Sunday. On Dec. 12th, 1901, in a room of a disused barracks on Signal Hill, Newfoundland, Senator Marconi, the Italian wireless wizard, with every nerve and sense tout, received the first signal ever transmitted by wireless across the ocean. That signal proved that his dream of linking together the nations by method of communication infinitely more mysterious and uncanny than any hitherto discovered, had at last become a reality.

At that time the instruments used were very crude compared to those we have today. There were no valves, no amplifiers, no sensitive super-hetrodyne sets, no directional transmitters and receivers, and no means of making continuous waves. Marconi says in part:

"The spanning of great distances now is child's play compared to what it was then. If those who now think nothing of intercepting signals from the other side of the world had to work with the relatively insensitive apparatus I had in Newfoundland, they would find themselves faced with a very different problem.

"During the next twenty-five years there will probably be almost as great developments in the means of obtaining directional wireless transmission and reception as there has been in other directions during the last twenty-five years.

"As to the application of wireless in the future you know I am always averse from entering into the realm of prophecy, but perhaps I might suggest that, apart from the ordinary transmission and reception of wireless messages of which I have spoken, there is a possibility that the transmission of power over moderate distances may be developed, and that television will become an actuality.

"I must leave to your imagination the uses which can be made of these new powers. They will probably be as wonderful as anything of which we have had experience so far."

Goofus Says:

The things in the house that get used the most are the radio and the sofa.

Also the furnace, but that is not important.

For you can always warm your hands on the tubes of the radio.

And the sofa—well, that's different.

And besides you can always tune in a red-hot jazz band.

And that with the "Black Bottom" and the rest of the acrobatic dances.

You soon get into a sweat-er.

So forget about the furnace and see what coal you save.

Radios are so cheap and coal so high that it pays to buy the radio. The best part is that you don't have to shovel coal and take out the ashes.

If you don't like the jazz bands, why just try to tune in some station with a pirate on the air, and you will soon be hot under the collar.

CANADA SECOND LARGEST LIST

Broadcasting Stations in the —Next to United States.

Sixty-one foreign countries, geographical divisions, or territories are listed as possessing more than 360 broadcasting stations, according to a compilation of foreign radio broadcasting stations, just issued by the Electric Equipment Division of the United States Department of Commerce. This list was prepared from information supplied by consular officers and other representatives abroad. Recent statistics of the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce placed the total number of broadcasting stations in the United States at 534.

Canada follows the United States in number of stations, with a total of 54. Australia has 24; Spain, 22; Mexico, 20; Germany, 20; Sweden, 20; United Kingdom, 19, all of which are owned and operated by the British Broadcasting Company, holding a monopoly; France, 19; Cuba, 18; Brazil, 16, and Finland, 12.

Stations have been unofficially reported throughout Russia, which has no stations or meter lengths listed in the compilation, but the Electrical Equipment Division states that it is doubtful whether there are stations outside Moscow, Odessa and Leningrad, which have been heard in other countries. There are seventeen Russian cities in which stations are believed to be operating.

"Man, you ain' gettin' no distance a-tall, is you?"

"Say, brown gal, heah dat whistlin'? 'Ems de Canary Islands!"

Sixty-Five New Broadcasters For The Month Of January

Fans will have sixty-five new stations to listen to before the year is up as a result of the ruling of the American Department of Justice that makes it nearly impossible for Secretary Hoover to refuse to grant a license to any and all applicants. At least that is the estimate of the Department of Commerce which still has 650 applications on its files. The deluge of new stations will not be heavier because few of the applicants will be able to get their apparatus ready to go on the air before that time.

Mexico Is Heard On Canadian Train

Passengers in the observation car of a Canadian National Transcontinental express recently listened to the strains of music broadcast by Vera Cruz, Mexico, while the train was thundering along at 60 miles an hour near Edmonton, Alberta. Prior to this, while passing through Manitoba, they were regaled with tangos and fandangos direct from Mexico City.

Three years ago the Canadian National, seeking to relieve the monotony of long train journeys, decided to equip all of its de luxe trains with radio. The choice of a standard neutrodyne receiver was made, and the installation begun. All the sets are permanently fitted into the observation cars, and a pair of ear-phones placed on each chair, so designed that the broadcasting could be clearly heard above the roar of the train.

BALACLAVA TRUMPET SOUNDS AGAIN

Over a thousand instrumentalists played in the Massed Bands at the Aldershot Tattoo. It was interesting to note at times how near to orchestral tone the military band can arrive on occasions. The clarinet runs resembled the strings both in fluency and brightness. It is a notable fact that the trumpet-call for the enacting of the charge of the Light Brigade at this tattoo was sounded on the very same trumpet which was used at Balaclava.

LATEST EMPIRE BROADCASTING

Tells How It May Be Done in the Next Few Years.

It is nearly two years since The Daily Mail pointed out that broadcasting was developing so rapidly that the time was not far distant when it would be possible for the Sovereign to speak to every part of his Empire, and the extraordinary success of the recent relay across the Atlantic made it clear that this day was drawing ever nearer.

In February last Major Gladstone Murray, of the B.B.C., outlined a scheme by which the heart of the Empire might be linked with the outlying members. Though little notice was taken of it in this country, it excited intense interest in the Dominions, while the newspapers in the United States denounced the scheme as a proof of British aggression and a menace.

Major Gladstone Murray told a Daily Mail reporter this week the modern methods of dealing with the trouble of clashing atmospherics were efficient enough to guarantee that reception in Singapore would not be much worse than reception in Winnipeg. A series of wireless links in which Daventry would transmit signals to a modern receiving station, and then be retransmitted by another Daventry, was the most hopeful scheme he could visualize at the moment.

The engineering troubles, he said, were great, but the wireless engineers he had consulted thought that there was a good deal of hope for success if experiments were made with the short waves, which were far freer from atmospherics and fading.

Big Radio Production

The United States has one receiving set to every 27 inhabitants. Production is progressing so rapidly that a large increase is expected by the end of the winter season.

A WONDERFUL INFLUENCE

A fond Canadian mother of several happy children has this to say with regard to the influence of music in the home:

"I have found that music has exercised a wonderful influence in the lives of my children. It has not only been a source of culture, but a great aid in developing character. To me, music is the language of the heart, and I know of nothing that is so much loved and so largely understood by children, as music. Every day my children sing, dance, romp and play to the strains of the piano. They fill their little minds and hearts so full of the wonder and love of music that it becomes a part of their everyday existence. Week in, and week out, there is always some time when I help the children to have a good time with the piano. There is no doubt in my mind but that planting the love and appreciation of good music in my children when they were very young has been altogether responsible for their finding entertainment and diversion in music now."

MORE USE OF MUSIC FOR SCOUT PROGRAM

A greater attention to music in the program of the Boy Scouts of America seems likely as a result of the musical activities at the recent conference of the Boy Scout Executives at Hot Springs, Ark. At previous biennial meetings of these directors of the local Scout Councils, community singing had been a feature. However, the recent gathering was the first one in which instruction in the leadership of various forms of community music was offered to the delegates.

These musical activities were in charge of Kenneth S. Clark, who both led the singing at the various sessions and directed the elective study periods in recreational music leadership. The latter covered not only community song leading, but the ukulele and harmonica. A start was made in choral work with the formation of the Conference Male Chorus, which had as a soloist at one meeting a former Metropolitan Opera singer, Albert Pellaton, now one of the Scout executives.

Tilden to Take European Tour to Regain Tennis Rights

BIG BILL QUITS STAGE FOR NET

Plans To Play Lacoste, Cochet, Brugnan and Borotra.

PLAY AT WIMBLEDON.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (by the Associated Press) — William T. Tilden, ruler of American tennis for six years until thrust aside by a mighty French invasion this year, will sail for Europe Jan. 20 to fight his way back to tennis heights in the land of his conquerors.

The former national singles champion plans to take with him John Doeg, junior national champion, of Santa Monica Calif., and Warren F. Coen, Jr., national boys' champion, of Kansas City, to prepare them for the assaults of Davis Cup invaders when the "Big Bill" of tennis and other senior players shall have been forced to step aside.

Tilden, now visiting Coen in Kansas City, has disclosed his plans to Samuel Hardy, former American Davis Cup captain, who is making the necessary arrangements for the trip abroad. Tilden, with Coen, will visit Doeg in California before heading with the youths for the Riviera, tennis playground of Southern France.

Best in World

Paul W. Gibbons, president of the Philadelphia and Middle States lawn tennis associations, says that Tilden probably will compete in title events in Germany and Italy and the Wimbledon championships as well as the Riviera tournaments. He says Tilden is in excellent condition and ready to assume the burden of regaining the tennis crown, and in his belief "no player in the world can beat him."

In France Tilden plans meetings with Rene Lacoste, who broke his string of national singles championships by defating Jean Borotra in an all-French final at Forest Hills last fall and Borotra, who eliminated "Big Bill" in the national indoor championships last February. Henri Cochet, who put Tilden out of the national tourney, and Jacques Brugnon, fourth member of the French Davis cup team, are other probable opponents. At the same time Tilden plans to put Doeg and Coen against these same internationalists to gain them experience.

Their program, as outlined by Hardy, calls for entrance in tournaments at Monte Carlo, Feb. 21-27; the Riviera, Feb. 28 to March 7; Nice, March 7-12; Cannes, March 14-22; Beau Site, March 22-27; San Rafael, April 4-11; Monte Carlo, April 11-17, and possibly Nice, April 24-30. The French stars are expected to enter the same competition.

Bill Quits Stage

Tilden, determined to regain his leadership of world tennis forces, will devote himself exclusively to that task in 1827 tennis authorities declare. He does not intend to be hampered by theatrical ventures that robbed him of sufficient time to prepare properly for major tournaments last season.

With Vincent Richards no longer eligible to represent the United States through professional activitie and other starrs past the peak of effectiveness, they point out that Tilden's racquet in finest form, as well as experienced youth, is needed if America is to regain her tennis laurels.

The absence of Tilden, Richards and the French stars from the national indoor championships in February is expected to detract interest from the tournament.

BADMINTON CLUB

The Y. Badminton Club executive held a special meeting Friday evening to arrange the schedule of games. The competitions are to be played through and through game 21 aces of 2.

Gentlemen handicapped 10 aces, plus compulsory playing in one court, when playing mixed singles.

Members of club please note that Badminton practice will not be held Saturday 18.

Saturday schedule games were: Miss Stone vs. Mr. Fox, 0-2; Mr. Dickinson vs. Mr. Bowness, 2-0.

SAYS DEMPSEY HEAVY HITTER

Gene Tunney Expresses an Opinion on Bout With Light Heavyweight.

WOULD FIGHT JACK.

NEWARK, N.J., Dec. 18 (Canadian Press).—Gene Tunney thinks that Jack Dempsey is too powerful a puncher for Jack Delaney, world's light heavyweight champion, who has been reported as seeking a match with the man dethroned by the ex-marine.

"Delaney, as a great fighter, has everything, but he is not big enough," Tunney is quoted in The Newark Evening News yesterday. "Dempsey would hit him once and—I wonder if Delaney's press agent ever read the list of knockouts compiled by that fellow Dempsey. Boy and man, that Dempsey can hit.

"Would I take Delaney? Certainly, if they make the match."

Tunney expressed the opinion that if he ever fought Dempsey again he ought to drop Jack.

GOLF PROVING MONEY MAKER

U. S. G. A. Reports Profits From Three Major Tournaments This Year.

OF $30,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (by the Associated Press)—National championship golf was conducted at a profit of $30,000 to the United States Golf Association this year, reports to the annual meeting of the organization next month in Pittsburgh will show.

The bulk of this sum was derived from the Amateur and Open Championships. A statement received from the Scioto Club at Columbus, O., scene of the open tournament, shows that $22,967.50 was paid by spectators to see Bobby Jones win the championship. One-half of this amount goes to the U. S. G. A.

The U.S.G.A. also cleared more than $11,000 on admissions alone at the amateur championship, contested in September over the Baltusrol course. Additional profit was realized from entry fees of $5 for each player in the two tournaments. There were almost 700 aspirants for the open championship and 150 for the amateur.

To this income will be added the revenue from the women's amateur championship at Haverford, Pa., figures of which have not yet been made available. The attendance was considerably reduced, by rain on almost every day of the event.

In its report on the open championship, the Scioto Club announces that its treasury was swelled by $9,029.91 profit. There was a total revenue of $43,415.56 from admissions, the restaurant, advertising, parking, concessions, programs and entertainment while the expenses of the tournament ran to $34,385.65.

The flourishing financial condition of the U. S. G. A. is balanced by the growth of the game in all sections of the country. More than 200 new courses sprang up, increasing the total to 3,032, of which 160 are municipal links.

CATALINA SWIM GETS BIG ENTRY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18 (A.P.)—Entries representing Greece, Ireland, Norway and Denmark lend an international aspect to the Wrigly marathon channel swim to be held next month between this mainland and Santa Catalina Island for prizes totalling $40,000, a partial list of entries, announced yesterday, reveals:

Spiros Spingos has entered for Greece; Martin E. Ferris and Walter L. O'Haver will represent Ireland; Harry C. Hensen, Norway, and Pete Peterson, Denmark.

REFEREES TO MEET.

O. H. A. Officials To Confer on Rules To Secure Uniformity.

The second annual meeting of Ontario Hockey Association Referees will be held in the Prince George Hotel, Toronto, on Monday afternoon, commencing at 2.30, with President George B. McKay, of Kitchener, in the chair. The object of this yearly meeting is to iron out any doubtful points in the rules that may exist amongst the referees and to bring about a uniform interpretation. Every referee who expects to officiate in the O.H.A. this season should attend. Managers and honorary coaches of teams are also invited.

PADDED RING TITLE HOLDERS

In no branch of sport activity were so many champions dethroned this year as in boxing. Tunney relieved Dempsey of the heavyweight crown in a rain-soaked arena at Philadelphia. Jack Delaney wrested the light-heavyweight title from Paul Berlenbach. Flowers bested the late Harry Greb in the middleweight division, and in his turn lost the title to Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion, who stepped up when he was taken into camp by Pete Latzo. Samy Mandell won the lightweight championship by beating Rocky Kansas, who had previously outpointed Jimmy Goodrich, who was declared after winning an elimination tourney in New York. Fidel la Barba, in the flyweight section, was the only champion who was not defeated during the season. Pictured from left to right, top row, are Latzo, welterweight champion; Tunney, heavyweight; Delaney, light - heavyweight; bottom row, Fidel la Barba, flyweight; Flowers, defeated middleweight champion, and Mandell, lightweight champion.

THREE IN ROW FOR GOLDBERG

Soldier Dembrouski Beaten By Right Handed Smashes To Head.

NICHOLL WINS.

(By Sam Greene.)

Soldier Dombrowski apparently knows only one method of ring warfare—to plunge headlong into battle unmindful of the consequences.

The former parachute jumper of Selfridge Field fought that kind of a fight against Mickey Goldberg, of Milwaukee at the Moose Temple last night. He was aggressive and spectacular and he caught the fancy of the packed house. But Goldberg knew how to handle his rushes effectively, and thereby Goldberg won the bout.

As the shuffling soldier dashed forward flailing away with both hands. Goldberg met him repeatedly with right-handed smashes to the head. Having beaten Dombrowski twice before, Goldberg had learned exactly how to take care of the soldier and he made good use of his knowledge.

Goldberg made Dombrowski do virtually all of the leading while he stood back throwing that right hand. It landed often enough to give Goldberg the verdict by a conclusive margin.

Boos for Goldberg

In the closing rounds Goldberg was booed by the spectators for his refusal to lead. At times the soldier checked his own march and waited for his rival. Goldberg merely danced around the ring and finally Dombrowski stepped forward either to be tied up in the clinches or met with a jolther right-handed punch.

The chief difference between the two fighters lies in ring intelligence. Goldberg fought a cool, workmanlike bout and was not disturbed by the demands of the gallery that he carry the fight to the soldier. He had mapped out a plan of action and saw no reason to alter his tactics as long as he was winning.

The chief thrills of the match came early. In the first round Dombrowski sent Goldberg to the mat with a left-handed blow to the stomach. As the referee, Elmer McClelland, sang out "one," Goldberg was on his feet and again in the midst of the milling.

In the second round the soldier ran into a right hand and all but collapsed. His knees buckled and he had to hold on to escape a clean knockdown. In this round Goldberg opened a gash over Dombrowski's left eye and it bled freely from time to time as the bout progressed, but did not seem to work any undue hardship on the soldier. He was still rushing into action at the final bell. Whatever else may be said of him, Dombrowski has plenty of endurance and plenty of willingness. When he left the ring he was given an almost deafening ovation while Goldberg was greeted with mingled jeers and cheers.

When the bout was over a spokesman for the Moose Club climbed into the ring and solicited help for Johnny Webber, the Detroit featherweight, who has been under a physician's care since his knockout by Jackie Nichols four weeks ago. The announcer said that Webber, who is married and has one child, is in need of funds and asked for contributions.

Ushers started to pass cigar boxes around the house, but that wasn't fast enough and the spectators started throwing money into the ring. From the ringside and the gallery there came a shower of dollars, dimes, nickels, quarters, pennies. Wadded up dollars bills came bouncing down on the canvas while four or five shirt sleeved men picked them up and tossed them into a strong box. One contribution was a fifty-dollar note and it was afterward announced that the total reached $612.51. It was turned over to Webber today.

Webber, it will be recalled, collapsed in the tenth round after taking an unmerciful beating. After pulmoters had been used to restore him to consciousness, he was taken to a hospital, and later moved to his home. It is certain that he will never fight again and it will be some time before he can do work of any kind. Webber's wife also is in bad health and arrangements have been made to place her in a sanitarium at Northville.

Easy for Nichols

Jackie Nichols, of St. Paul, cuffed and wrestled Curly Wilshur, of Toronto, around the ring for 10 rounds, but could not knock him out. This bout was billed as the main event, but from a spectator's standpoint, it was the poorest on the card.

Jimmy Robe, of Kalamazoo, put his advantage in height and reach to good use and outpointed Johnny Posky, of Windsor, in a six-round preliminary.

The closest match of the evening was the opener of six rounds between Leo King of Montreal and Vic Skerlton of Regina. Because of his superior in-fighting Skerlton was entitled to the decision.

All of the principals on the program are featherweights.

BAND CONCERT.

First of Series To Be Given By Northumberland Regimental Band.

The Northumberland Regimental Band are holding a concert on Sunday evening, Dec. 19th, in the Regent Theatre. Mr. L. J. Elliott will assist in the evening's programme. This is the first of a series of concerts that the band intend to give during the winter months, and as these concerts were very popular during the past seasons, the public will no doubt respond to these announcements and encourage the band in their eoffrts to entertain.

Essay Contest.

Dr. H. B. Longmore and Mr. J. A. Irwin have each offered a prize of a five dollar gold piece to the Sunday school boy or girl of St. John's Sunday school who writes the best essay on "The Evil Effects of Intemperance." Mrs. R. W. Scott, superintendent of the Temperance Department, has given several excellent talks on temperance and after this series of temperance talks are concluded the contest will then begin.

Personals.

Mrs. D. W. Douglas spent a few days of the past week in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Donald and son have moved to town and are residing on Centre street.

The Salvation Army are holding their annual concert and Christmas tree on Tuesday evening in the Citadel.

SEVERAL IN DISPUTE.

HAMMOND, Ind., Dec. 18.—Several furniture dealers and five lawyers recently contested for hours in the city court for the possession of a bed belonging to Mary Ware, colored. The bed had been seized on a judgment. It was worth about $10.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

The customers is going to have a chance next week of looking over the Petes in action in a O.h.A. set-too, with likely a exhibition game tossed in for good measure. Next Thurs. the North Toronto Seniors is with us to open the Senior O.h.A. season, and the line-up the boys from the big town'll trot out there will be enough to give Mister Wright's lads a very busy evening, specially as them North Torontos'll be in better shape than the home product. However, the Petes oughta be in none too bad condition, and they're bound to start the season right by giving the fans a win as a Christmas present.

For a while it looked like the cash and carry circuits was just naturally going to rip the senior champs to pieces. 1st the London Cockneys tried to land Mister Joe Dwyer. The try didn't work, which was a lucky thing for the Petes, what needs Mister Dwyer about as bad as a channel swimmer needs grease. Then Mister K. Kane was reported to have signed on the dotted line with the Windsor team of the Ham and Egg circuit. However, when this is being writ (Thurs.) the latest from Mister Kane is that he'll winter with the Petes.

Right now it looks as if anybody what signed up in the Ontario pro league would take stock in a company to supply electric fans to the Eskimos. The way the league is shaping up some of the promoters is going to halfta dig down deep into the old sock to pay the talent, and anytime a pro promoter has to dig very far he generally throws up the sponge and leaves the athaletes holding the bag. None of them towns is going to support a loser, and as they can't all be in out in front all the time, the day ain't far off when the gate receipts ain't going to be in no healthy condition. The bird what is good enough to play pro hockey should wait until he can get into the big league where the money is sure.

The senior schedule gives the Petes 6 games at home and 6 away, and 12 battles in the group, with 2 more for the play-off teams, is enough to keep the puck-chasers busy enough. With the Toronto Grads, Marlboros, Toronto Canoe Club and North Torontos as opposition, the group race is going to be a merry grind for last year's champs, and it oughta to produce a lotta good hockey for the fans. On paper the Grads look the team to beat, and although them and the Petes was both knocked outa the S.p.A. serious, that don't mean nothing. In fact, it wouldn't be a bad bet that the play-offs in this group will find the college lads and the Petes hooked up in the final serious.

Well, Mac, I gotta date to watch the Petes do their 1st practice stuff at the Brock st. ice box, so I'll put the brakes on here.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Greeting Cards

IF there is one time in the year when we should think of others, Christmas is surely that time."

So says Ethel Barrymore, one of America's most beloved actresses.

Of course, you will do your part, as always, to spread the spirit of Christmas. Christmas Cards express all the kindly, loving thoughts that are in your heart.

Make your list a large one. Beyond your friends and relatives lies a further opportunity for spreading happiness. Shutins, children in hospitals, orphanages, homes of the poor.—what a world of happiness you can spread with Greeting Cards.

In The Examiner you will find a fresh, varied and beautiful assortment if you do your selecting early.

Major-General J. H. Elmsley, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., the General Officer Commanding No. 3 Military District, inspected the 4th Field Battery, Canadian Artillery, at the Armories last night.

The various movements executed by the Battery men went with a precision that was pleasing to watch and earned for them great commendation from General Elmsley, who stated that it was apparent that they had been well schooled by the officers and non-commissioned officers. He congratulated the officer commanding the Battery, Major D. J. Lawrie, on the splendid turnout.

Lieut.-Col. H. T. Goodeve, paymaster of No. 3 Military District, accompanied General Elmsley.

FIRST HOCKEY GAME OF THE SEASON

The Fast Oshawa Team Opens the Hockey Season.

Hockey fans will be glad of an opportunity to see the Peterborough team in action this year, and for the opening of the hockey season, Manager Wright has arranged for the appearance in Brock Street Rink, on Monday evening, of the fast Intermediate Oshawa team, which is one of the best teams in the province, whether Intermediate or Senior.

Several night ago this team defeated the North Toronto Senior team in an excellent game, and there is no doubt but that when they meet Peterborough fans here will see as fast a game as they will see in the regular league series.

Come along and size up the team, and see what Peterborough has got for this year.

OPERATOR DEAD AT SWITCHBOARD

Angry Subscriber Goes To Phone Office and Makes Discovery.

BARRIE, Dec. 18.— For more than an hour telephone subscribers at Guthrie yesterday rang and rang in an effort to get 'central," but there was no response. "Central" was dead at his post. He was J. M. Mitchell, Manager of the Oro Telephone Company, and had been relieving at the switchboard. About 2 o'clock a subscriber living near the exchange office went in person to report "trouble" and found the operator sitting at his board, headphones at his ears, but lifeless.

While he had complained of being ill earlier in the day, Mr. Mitchell's condition was not considered serious, and his death was a great shock to the members of his family.

He was born at Mitchell Square, near Guthrie, 54 years ago, and had lived for the greater part of his life in Oro Township. The late Mr. Mitchell was unmarried. His mother, 85 years old; two brothers and four sisters survive him.

POSSIBLE CANDIDATES FOR ALDERMEN

Names Are Being Mentioned For the January Elections.

There is some mention around town of possible candidates for the City Council.

It is suggested that Ex-Alderman Malcolm McIntyre might be prevailed upon again to offer himself as a candidate.

There are a number also who would like to see Mr. John E. Corkery, barrister, enter the field. His father John Corkery, formerly postmaster, was at one time a member of the city council.

These two, together with Mr. Walter Stocker are the first names to be heard in connection with the Aldermanic race.

WEDDING BELLS.

CARTER—PORTER.

The home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Porter, Otonabee, was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding on Wednesday, December 15th, at 11:30 o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Mary Emeline (Mollie) was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Henry Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, of Westwood, only the immediate relatives being present.

The bride who was unattended entered the room on the arm of her father. She looked very sweet in a gown of cornflower blue georgette carrying a bouquet of ophelia roses and maidenhair fern. She wore the groom's gift, a seed pearl necklace.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. H. Hope, sister of the bride, whose gift from the groom was a rhinestone bracelet. The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens centred with a white bell, by the Rev. John Archibald of Keene.

The happy couple left on the afternoon train for a short honeymoon trip to Toronto and Hamilton. The bride travelled in a Hudson seal coat the gift of her father with a becoming satin hat. On their return they will reside at Westwood.

FINLAY—WATERMAN.

The marriage of Miss Helen Waterman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waterman, of North Monaghan, to Mr. Raymond Curtis Finlay, son of Prof. Henry Finlay of Kansas City, Mo., took place on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 11th, at 1 o'clock, in Fraserville United Church, Rev. Herbert Foley, B.A., B.D., officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, was gowned in ivory Canton crepe, with silk lace and ribbon trimming. Her pearl trimmed veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley and asparagus ferns. Her little cousin, Florence Beebe, acted as flower girl, in a pink silk dress, and looked sweet as she carried her basket of carnations and roses. The wedding music was played by the bride's sister, Miss Kathleen Waterman, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Fred. Waterman sang "O Perfect Love." The ushers were Mr. Herbert Dawson of South Monaghan and Dr. J. M. Waterman of Collingwood.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, "Lowlands Farm," where luncheon was served to over forty guests. Pink roses and sweet peas with gypsophelia and evergreens were used very effectively as house decorations.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts from her friends.

The bride's going away costume was a garnet santoy with georgette trimming, a persion lamb coat and satin hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Finlay left at four o'clock for Toronto and points West. On their return they will reside in Cavan.

HAYWARD—BLONDON.

The marriage was solemnized in Racine, Wis., on December 14th, of Lily Irene Blondon, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Blondon, to Leonard Hayward, formerly of this city. They will reside in Racine.

OBITUARY.

MR. WILLIAM SCOTT.

APSLEY, December 16. - An old pioneer of the Scott line, Mrs. Wm. Scott, passed away in Peterboro on Thursday morning, where she was taken for treatment a few days ago.

Her body was brought to Apsley on Thursday afternoon, and the funeral will be held on Saturday the Roman Catholic Church on the Scott line. The deceased was about 75 years of age.

She leaves four brothers, James, Dennis, John and William O'Brien, and one sister, Mrs. John Gooley of Indian River.

NATHAN TAYLOR.

The death occurred on Friday afternoon at his residence, 233 Westcott Street, of Nathan Taylor, in his 83rd year. The late Mr. Taylor was born in Smith Township and lived in this vicinity all his life.

He was the last survivor of a large pioneer family, all his brothers and sisters having predeceased him some years ago.

The funeral will take place on Monday from his late residence to Little Lake Cemetery, the Rev. N. R. McLeod officiating.

IN SHAPE FOR CHRISTMAS

The dependability of your car will be taxed to the utmost during the Christmas holidays. Are you sure that it will respond to the demand? If not let us go over it for you and make sure that there is not some little part that needs strengthening or some weak part to be replaced. Give the car a Christmas season overhauling. It will pay you.
